Being filled with the Spirit, then, is a prerequisite to acceptable singing in God's house. We are enjoined to sing spiritual songs. How are are we to do this, unless we have the Spirit in our hearts? The melody audible only to the physical ear is not the only melody desirable in the music of God's house. The true spiritual singer will make melody in his heart to God. We not only render thanksgiving and praise in singing, but many songs are forms of fervent prayer, and should be sung with deep feeling of devotion and supplication. However feeble may be his voice, I believe every Christian should unite in the song service in the house of God. And if it is impossible for him to sing, let him strive to be in a devotional frame of mind while others sing. I long to hear more spiritual singing—soul melody—in our churches. And to this end our people should be urged to give more attention to church music and especially to singing with the spirit and with the understanding. Our pastors should take this matter in hand, and make an effort to improve the singing in their congregations, because it is seriously needed in some of our churches.

Vacation Notes.

It was my pleasure to attend the Valley Association of Virginia. It is composed of fifty eight churches. Some of these churches are strong in numbers, wealth, social influence and power for good in the Master's work. Prof. Cocke of Hollins Institute, so widely known and loved by Baptists all over the country, Rev. J. R. Harrison of Radford, Va., and Rev. Jas. D. Taylor and J. M. Lack "seemed to be pillars." There were many visiting brethren in attendance. The brethren did not think alike on all the questions, but the spirit of the meeting was fine and the discussions animated and instructive.

While in Roanoke I was with Bro. L. G. Broughton, pastor of the Calvary church in that city. It was gratifying, in no small degree, to me to witness the many evidences of his growing power and influence in that great centre of population. The people almost idolize him. His splendid house of worship is approaching completion and when finished will be one of the best in Virginia. On last Sunday night the audience room could not contain the multitudes who came to hear him preach, and hundreds left the church. He preached the introductory sermon before the Association, and for vigor of thought, aptness of illustration, forcefulness of utterance and spiritual power, I have rarely, if ever, heard it surpassed.

I also met Bro. G. L. Finch, another North Carolina preacher, captured by Virginia. He never seemed so happy—the fact is, he was radiant. It was his first visit to the Association with Mrs. Finch, known to many as a charming girl of the Old North State. He is located in Pulaski City, and is delighted with his field. It cannot be successfully contradicted that some of the most aggressive and successful ministers now on the soil of our sister State went from us. May their shadows never grow less!

The Baptist Orphanage of Virginia is located in Salem amid most beautiful surroundings. The General Manager is said to be well adapted to the work, and the spirit of harmony prevails. New buildings are now going up, and day by day the Orphanage is growing in the affections of the people of the State. About fifty orphans are now being cared for, while there are applications from many more.

As I wandered in Virginia, I met several friends born and reared in North Carolina, who, notwithstanding present surroundings, sometimes sigh for the quiet and pleasant scenes of other years.

"Ho for Carolina, it is the land for me."

H. A. BROWN.

Religion is well enough when the sky is cloudless, but it is absolutely necessary in time of trouble. It is not a broken weed, but a strong staff. The more you have of it the lighter your burden becomes. That fact belongs to the necromancy of life. The harder your trial, the deeper your faith—that is the rule to follow. Even when death despoils you of your treasure, say with trembling lips, "It is well," and the heart will glow and brighten like the blazing log on a winter hearthstone. And when you lie down to die yourself, stretch out your hands to heaven and angels will come trooping down to bear you in their arms. That is practical religion and unless your religion is practical it is of no value whatever.—Selected.

If you would be pure in mind, be pure in habit.

The Biblical Recorder.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 4, 1895.

J. W. BAILEY, } EDITORS.
J. C. CADDELL, AGENT AND CORRESPONDENT.

Some of the brethren are already looking forward to a fine meeting of our young people at Greensboro just before the Convention. The committee which has the meeting in charge can be counted on to get up a profitable and attractive program.

This week the new administration takes charge of our Orphanage. To Bro. Boone and his aides we pledge the energies, influence and prayers of the RECORDER just as always to the cause of the Orphanage. We are sure the institution has as many friends to day as it ever had, and we believe they will be more active in their friendship now that it has come into inexperienced hands. God help us do our duty by the orphans.

THE Baptists of North Carolina are strong in numbers and in the doctrine. But this will avail but little if they do not use their strength with all their might. The power to do is one thing, the zeal is the other. As the State grows, we can use its growth to increase our strength if we will put forth our best efforts now when the iron is hot. There will be a time when to gain strength in North Carolina will be like shaping cast iron.

AS THE fall of the year comes on we hope our brethren will renew their efforts in behalf of the RECORDER. We have made an offer which will cost us more than it can bring in of itself, in order to get the paper into the hands of the people. Instead of ten or a dozen subscribers in a country church we want to see the number raised to twenty five or fifty. There can be no doubt of the general benefits of getting the denominational organ into the hands of the members of the denomination. A reading church is a working church, a reading member is a contributing member.

UNTIL one gets about a little in North Carolina, he has no conception of the vastness of our State; and the more he studies it the more he is impressed with the vastness of her possibilities.

A prominent preacher who has lived in our State seven years held a meeting in a certain section of the State not long ago. He was amazed. "Why," said he, "I had been so often told of the number of Baptists in North Carolina that I had no idea any section was so destitute of Baptist influences as that one is."

We have numbers. If we could spread out, we could dot the State, but unfortunately we, in common with the rest of the race, go in flocks. There are many communities that would be benefited to day if our State Board had the means to reach them and put permanent workers on them, and in time to come these communities would make valuable contributions to our working forces and financial strength.

THE school opening season is not celebrated as the closing occasions are, the every day world is not startled with the eloquence of swelling and swollen orators, nor awe-struck with the profundity of the titles of graduating theses and orations, but nevertheless the opening is the more important occasion.

All depends on what a boy or girl carries off to school, not of material things, but of views and purposes and ideas. Let one go with the purpose of getting a diploma ground out for him in four years; he will likely get it, but it will be an accident if he gets anything else.

Let one go off to school with the idea of making himself worth so much by "taking a course;" he may take the course, but he will find that there are a thousand or more other considerations when it comes to practical existence. Studies are aids, but alone they are helpless.

Let one go with the notion that he will be lifted above his fellows at home; and he will come to grief for his folly if the school doesn't educate it out of him.

What do we go to school for? To learn, that's one thing, but it is only a means to an end. To serve, that's the main thing; in fact, it is the main thing in life. To serve one's generation well, to serve one's God well, that is all that any one can do. The best service can be given by those who know themselves and the world best. And to get us to studying in this direction and to teach us how to study, this is what schools are for. The motive of Christ's life was serving. The vein that threads through and through the Christian religion, is serve. Christian institutions are the only ones that are prepared to hold up the proper [illegible] to students.

OUR YOUNG MEN AND THE SEMINARY.

The true preacher of the gospel is God-called and God prepared. But this truth is overworked when it is used to excuse any lack of possible preparation on our part. The preacher, relying on God, has a right to expect his greatest blessing when he has done his best in preparation. This is true in each particular effort, and so of life-work as a whole.

An iron-clad educational standard for the ministry is repugnant alike to a sense of justice and to common sense. The plan of study at our Southern Baptist Theological Seminary is of a piece with our whole idea of liberty and individual responsibility. Its doors are open for the college-prepared and for those who have never been to college. It encourages and urges the highest scholarship, but bids the man who cannot reach this not to despair. The matter of giving the young preacher advice is sometimes overdone, but to make the best and most of himself he cannot be urged too much. If it is the duty of his brethren to help him make something of himself, for the very same reason it is their duty to help and urge him to make the best of himself.

Now many of our preachers who have never been to college even, have been as useful as those who have been through Wake Forest and the Seminary; and were so on the principle just stated: they did the best they could in their circumstances. The man who has done this is inferior to none when measured by the truest standard.

Some of our young men rush into the ministry with really less preparation than some of our old brethren who did not have the advantage of our schools of to day. The brilliant young fellow decides near the close of his college course that he ought to preach. He rushes into the pastorate a fledgeling without having studied a day in any school on the subjects of his life-work. Many of these old brethren struggled long and hard over their call to preach, and then they read the books they could procure and studied their Bibles. They began by using small opportunities to speak to the people. They grew up in their work. They gained the experience of mature years. The young man who has had but little of life's experience has ample opportunity, while he is at college and on through his seminary course, to do all the preaching he is capable of doing at that stage of his preparation. He needs to ripen to his work. The world can wait for the young man three or four years longer.

If it were not for the lingering remains of hardshell doctrine among us no one would ever have thought of discouraging theological education. No specialist along any other line neglects special preparation. To say this is not necessary for the preacher because the Lord sends him out, is to argue against all education whatever. It is possible to mistake the satisfaction of ignorance for heavenly wisdom, and the charm of superstition for the guidance of the Holy Spirit.

We wish to urge some plain reasons why our young brethren ought to attend a Seminary.

In the first place it is a great thing to have, very early, an outline of your life study as well as of your life work. Time is saved; you learn earlier what cannot be known and what is not worth studying. This is a great help to you in buying your books. Preachers are greatly imposed on by some booksellers who throw out tempting bait in the way of homiletical helps which cripple for life. And again, it is of great help to go from college to another institution; it brings you in contact with a new faculty and a new circle of ideas, or old ideas viewed from another standpoint. Beware of the man of one idea; yes, and beware of the man of one set of ideas. It takes a dozen such men to make a man.

Besides the acquaintance of a new faculty, it is of incalculable value to meet the foremost students from all the Southern States and many from the Northern States. This is a reason for attending our own Seminary. The warmest and most helpful friendships of a life time are thus formed among the men who are to be the leading workers over the Southern States, and among the missionaries who go to the foreign field. He becomes better acquainted with the great world field.

And not among the least of the advantages is that the young man will get his small conceits pretty thoroughly punctured. If he comes home with the big head, after a full course, he is indeed a hopeless fool. The religious teacher has a great deal of temptation to become conceited. Nobody replies to the man in the pulpit. But at the Seminary he goes through a course of training where he is replied to.

To say that the Seminary course tends to run young preachers into grooves is to indulge in small talk. All men get into them in some way. It is then a question as to selection: Shall it be a groove made by trotting up and down a little path for twenty-five years, or by a wide acquaintance with men and their ideas? The time is here when we cannot afford to pursue the policy of home culture alone. An idea from somewhere else will not hurt. It is a display of poor taste and less sense to compare the preaching of a past generation with that of to day to the disparagement of either. Upon each generation as it lifts its eyes to the white fields of endeavor, comes the demand to make the best use of the best advantages. "Covet earnestly the best gifts."

DEATH OF MRS. W. W VASS.

Lillius McDaniel Vass, wife of Bro. W. W. Vass, of Raleigh, N. C., fell asleep in Jesus Sunday morning, a few minutes after midnight. She had been sick two weeks, nevertheless her death was a great shock not only to her family, but to the people of Raleigh, who, though having missed her from her usual walks, were not prepared for the sad culmination of her sickness. All day as the news spread there were expressions on every hand of eulogy and sorrow, and the shadow so intense in one home darkened hundreds of others.

Herself of a family of noble name in the annals of Baptist history, being a daughter of Rev. James McDaniel, one of the Baptist pioneers of the South, and a founder of the North Carolina Baptist State Convention, in 1866 she married Bro. W. W. Vass, one of the most substantial laymen in our Convention; and they together have long delighted in the service of the Lord, giving their talents and wealth in his cause.

Mrs. Vass has been organist of the First Baptist church of Raleigh twenty nine years. She was especially gifted in this particular, and her work has long been a notable feature of the church services.

A singularly sweet-spirited, gentle, Christian woman, a zealous friend of the needy, an earnest worker in the church; her devoted husband, son and daughters have many who mourn with them, and who look with them to a better land for solace.

HON. C. M. COOKE, SECRETARY OF STATE

THE Governor has appointed Hon. Charles Mather Cooke of Louisburg, Secretary of State, succeeding Hon. Octavius Coke, who died Aug. 30th.

The appointment is an admirable one. Mr. Cooke is not only an able man, but his character is spotless, and he is greatly beloved by hosts of good people who will be glad that so worthy a man has been selected to serve them in this high office.

It is worthy of remark that Mr. Cooke was not a seeker for the office, but had already given his influence to the claims of another gentleman.

THERE is a lesson in the progress we have made in the towns in North Carolina in recent years. Any man who fought in the war is old enough to remember that Baptists have been despised and sneered at in this State. When the First Baptist church at Raleigh was in course of construction, sneers were plentiful. It was because Baptists were weak in the towns.

Our strength at that time was nearly all in the country; and in the country we were doing mission work and making our progress. The prediction that we would never get strong in the towns would have been natural then. But our strength in the country is accountable for our strength in the towns now.

The tendency of population for a generation has been townwards. As men and boys have come from the country to settle in towns they have brought their Baptist principles with them. So while there might have been criticisms of the policy of working in rural districts almost exclusively, time shows that, taken all in all, all things have worked together for good. By God's providence faithful men often build better than they know.

CONSTANT and prayerful work for Home and Foreign Missions will save us from a flood of appeals next spring. It is easier to learn a little at a time than to learn all at once; it is easier to give a little at a time and give oftener than to give all at once. Virginia Associations are doubling their pledges; the Baptist hosts are going forward in missions. We must not lag behind; but rather let our churches be seen at the front.

A MOTHER differs with us and writes, "I cannot agree with you that the women do not organize for development." As we suggested, development is a rare result of wholesome organization. Wholesome activity is a great developer; but no one will say that we work for development of ourselves. A ploughman doesn't plough to escape dyspepsia or to make his legs strong. So we do not do the works of the Master for our own sake, although we get as much, if not more benefit, than any one else.

NEWS NOTES.

....Rev. Dr. A. W. Lamar has resigned the pastorate of the First Baptist church, Galveston, Texas.

....Prof. W. L. Carmichael of Brevard passed through Raleigh Saturday, going to Louisburg where his mother is ill.

....Counting all, 1 296 missionaries have been sent to China, 679 of whom were women, 167 being wives of missionaries.

....Seventeen persons joined our church at Bladen Union in a meeting conducted by Rev. J. W. Cobb and Rev. D. C. Britt.

...."Mortgage the farm, if necessary, to send the boy to college," says the Religious Herald. Mortgage the farm for nothing on earth.

....Rev. Dr. Wayland Hoyt has been called to succeed Rev. Dr. Joseph K. Dixon as pastor of Epiphany Baptist church, Philadelphia.

....Our Asheville first church flock is building a parsonage near by the church for pastor Felix, who is summering in the Virginia Valley.

....Pastors who feel that the RECORDER ought to have a larger circulation among their people, should make known our January 1st, 1896, offer.

....Draw the work close to your people, that their interest and zeal may be kept alive. Get them to reading the RECORDER, by starting them off on our offer of the paper until Jan. 1st, 1896, for fifty cents.

....Bro. Archibald Johnson, editor of Red Springs Citizen, has been elected editor of Charity and Children, and agent of the Orphanage. He will probably accept.

....Rev. A. C. Dixon has joined Mrs. Dixon at Northfield, where, as her friends will be glad to hear, she is gradually gaining in health and strength, after a very severe and painful illness.—Examiner.

....Dr. Thos. Hume is another busy Baptist who is giving his valuable time to the Baptist press these days. We saw excellent letters from him last week in the Religious Herald and the Christian Index.

....There were seven additions to Royal's Chapel, Sampson county, in a meeting conducted by Rev. John Prevatt and Elder J. W. Bell. Twelve were added at Piny Green, five at Brown's church in the same county.

....Rev. A. B. Caudle has had good meetings at Pleasant Valley, Waxhaw and Hermon. Bro. Bruce Benton helped him at the first two places. Bro. Caudle is now in a meeting at Osceola, near Waxhaw.

....We regret to hear of the continued sickness of our friend and brother, J. B. Strain of Wake county. As school teacher and farmer, Bro. Strain has pursued an upright life, walking firmly in the Baptist faith.

....Four of the ringleaders of the Cheng-Tu massacre have been convicted and executed. This will not restore the lives of the slaughtered missionaries, but it may secure the safety of those who escaped.—Central Baptist.

....Bro. Frank Royall writes us from China that all those who were with the late Sister King in her illness had been vaccinated. So there is no ground for alarm for them. Bro. Royall didn't mention the riots in his letter.

....Rev. John C. Hoyett of Burlington recently held a meeting at Cane Creek. There were not a great many conversions, but he reports that he never attended a meeting in which there was more real good to the church.

....The Independent will be glad to learn that the report on which is based its paragraph of last week about the Waldenses is false. The Waldenses of Burke county are fairly prosperous, none leaving, and on the road to greater prosperity.

....Were glad to have visits from a number of Wake Forest boys last week. It was gratifying to see an unusually large number of students who have been compelled to give up their work for a year or more going back. It is a sign of better times.

....Bro. R. H. Herring, who went to Wake Forest last week, informed us that Elder C. C. Haymore and he had been holding a good meeting at a mission station near Germanton. He also informed us that Bro. J. E. Dowd had a good school at Germanton.

....Rev. James Long of Union county, graduate of Wake Forest College and Rochester Theological Seminary, was married to Miss Mary Faulkner of Saluda, Va., August 29. They are now at the home of Brother Long's father in Union county. We wish them a useful, happy life.

....Rev. A. L. Betts is now at Charlotte, having removed from Madison on account of his wife's health. He has no regular work, but has been holding meetings with brethren Austin at Arlington, Thomason at Croft and Morris at Stanly Creek. We hope a field will be opened for Bro. Betts.

....We see that Rev. A. B. Simpson of the "Christian Alliance" has held another meeting in Old Orchard, Maine, in which $75,000 for missions were raised, one man giving $10,000, his entire estate, a young woman stripping herself of her jewelry, &c. Last year about $60,000 were raised at this place by this man.

....Pastor Jasper Howell, Jr., baptized four, and two were restored, after a meeting at Flat Rock church, Franklin county. This church has had a number of pastors who have attained distinction, Scarborough, Mitchell, Royall, Poston, Lynch, White, and Bro. Newton whom Bro. Howell succeeds is right on the way.

....Rev. Dr. G. W. Sanderlin and family of Washington are taking vacation in Eastern North Carolina.

....We are glad to say that Rev. J. W. Powell of Rocky Mount has decided to stay in North Carolina, declining a call to Georgia.

....Rev. A. C. Case, a very promising student of Wake Forest College, has been called to Apex. Rev. Jasper Howell preached there on Sunday.

....Rev. John A. Wray of Broad Street church, Winston, has been and is now holding a blessed meeting at Ridgeway, S. C. There have been many professions and a number of backsliders have been reclaimed. It is one of the best meetings ever held in the town.

....The death of Rev. A. C. Stepp is announced in the Baptist Courier (S. C.) He died at Hones Path, Aug. 22. He was born in North Carolina very near the South Carolina Line, and spent his life in the latter State. He was a positive, honest Baptist, a useful preacher, and was greatly loved by those with whom he labored.

....We get the following hopeful news from Pastor Adams of Reidsville: "Our work moves along here nicely. It is in a better condition than it has been for a good while. Many encouraging features. This has been a hard summer on our work. Many left town for health resorts. Our congregations are gaining now and all is looking bright."

....This week many of our readers will receive statements of their accounts. Every one who responds immediately with the amount due will be marked up until January 1st, 1896. If the responses to this effort are as free as we hope for, we will be able to announce several attractive improvements in the paper for the coming year.

....Dr. C. R. Blackall, editor of the Baptist Teacher, Philadelphia, is organizing a Holy Land party. A contemporary remarks: "Judging by the number of Baptist ministers who have gone to Europe this year, it will be necessary soon to tell of those who have stayed at home rather than attempting the impossible and naming those who have gone across the water."

....The following Virginia Association 1895 pledges for State Missions excite our admiration: Dover, $5 000; Concord, $500; Rappahannock, $1,500; Roanoke, $700; Albemarle, $800; Dan River, $300; Strawberry, $600; Valley, $3,000; Potomac, $300; Appomattox, $500; Middle District, $450; Lebanon, $200. Total, $13 850. The Religious Herald is looking for a total of $25,000.

....A series of meetings, to continue several days, is in progress at Enon. Revs. Newton, Allison and Jordan are taking part. ——Revs. Newton and Jordan last Sunday closed a great revival meeting at the Caney Creek Baptist church near Loxia postoffice. We term it "great" because Mr. Newton says it was the best meeting in many respects, that he had ever attended.—Brevard Hustler.

....Rev. J. T. Betts has given up the pastorate of the French Broad church, Asheville, to take a Holy Land trip. Lexington, Mt. Olive, Chapel Hill, Third Baptist, Raleigh, Goldsboro, First and Second, Greensboro, Thomasville, Salisbury, Broad Street, Winston, Rocky Mount, and Beaufort, are either considering pastors' resignations or are without pastors. May God send a good man to every one of them.

....Rev. G. W. Manly, Ph. D., son of the late Professor B. Manly, D. D., of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, has located in Berlin, Germany, and become director of "The International Institute for Modern Languages," which offers instruction according to the most improved method in all the spoken languages of Europe." For a time Dr. Manly was a professor in Wake Forest College and in Denison University, Ohio.

....Our Sunday-school Board's new weekly Young People's Leader has uniform topics for prayer-meeting, monthly mission program, reading courses, etc., etc. It will be a great help to the young people. Subscriptions should begin now, as this year a series of twenty lessons in Baptist History and twenty lessons on Baptist Doctrines will be given. An informed and trained membership will make our churches much more powerful.

....There were some who feared the Wake Forest Law School would never be a success. If there are any such now, they would change their minds if they could see the success which Prof. Gulley and his class of eighteen are making. One of the students told us last week that a fellow almost couldn't help learning when Bro. Gulley lectured. The number of students enrolled is gratifying indeed. A larger number would require extra teaching force.

....Rev. Chas. A. G. Thomas of Fayetteville has organized a normal class of the Sunday-school teachers, and has arranged an attractive list of topics for every week until the end of this year. He is also taking an aggressive stand against the saloons (that is, he is not only taking a stand, as the manner of some is, but putting the traffic on the defensive). We hope he will succeed in his efforts. In the last Legislature the leading and bitterest whiskey advocate was the Senator from Cumberland.

....Arrangements have been recently made for translation and publication in Sweden and Germany of the standard books of the American Baptist Publication Society by Rev. Dr. A. J. Rowland, the secretary, and Orlando W. Spratt, the business manager of the society, who have but recently returned from abroad. While in Sweden both attended a conference of Swedish Baptists held at Orebrand, near the Arvold circle. This was the most Northern Baptist conference ever held. Dr. Rowland states that a strong temperance movement is on foot in Sweden and is fostered by King Oscar and the Queen.—Christian Index.

....Rev. L. Q. Adams has just closed a meeting with Rev. J. L. Bennett at Marshville in which there were twenty-two accessions to the church, seventeen by baptism. The congregations were large and attentive. The church has now over two hundred members, and if they only knew their strength could do great things for the cause of Christ. The church has called Bro. Bennett for another year, and he will try to make them see the great opportunity that lies before them.

....We thank Bro. C. G. Wells for the following notes: "At the close of a meeting of ten days I baptized nine into the fellowship of New Hope church. Three were received by letter at the beginning. Bro. L. R. Carroll rendered valuable service during part of the meeting.——This week pastor Bilbro is conducting a meeting at Hallsville, Bro. L. R. Carroll assisting.——Elder G. S. Best supplied for me at Mary's Chapel last Sabbath; I conducted the quarterly communion service for the church at Mt. Olive."

....In the Dominion of Canada there are 829 Baptist churches with 280 pastors and missionaries and 80 362 members, 59,118 in their Sunday-schools, and 4 636 reported baptisms in 1894. The two provinces of Ontario and Quebec, in which the bulk of the churches are located, report for pastoral support $142 819; expenses $59 654; home missions $20,330; foreign missions $21 233; Grande Ligne $6,874; Manitoba and the Northwest $3 074; educational $1,065; Sunday-schools $6,168; other denominational objects $9,435.

....During the last five weeks Rev. I S Boyles has been preaching in good meetings. At New Hope, near Wilson, there were ten professions; at Bethel, twenty professions; at Hephzibah, forty professions; at Red Bud, sixteen miles east of Louisburg, eighteen professions. Later on he was in a good meeting at Swift Creek, near Apex, N. C. He is now aiding Rev. A. A. Pippin at Leo's Chapel. In all these meetings the churches were greatly helped. Bro. Pippin very ably assisted Bro. Boyles at his church, Bethel.

....The Eastern Association will convene with Corinth church, Duplin county, N. C., Tuesday after the first Sunday in October, and all delegates and visitors coming on the cars will be met at Rose Hill on the W. & W. R. R. at each train on Monday and Tuesday. After this the trains will not be met. If you are coming, send your name to the corresponding committee, D W. Fussell or J. T. Wilkins, Rose Hill, N. C. We will have our church completed for the Association. Have had a good meeting there.—A. J. Taylor.

....The Louisana Baptist State Convention met recently. One of the main questions discussed was that of education. They have two colleges, and, from reports we have read, certain brethren wanted a third. We have heard of farmers who wanted double rail fences, but treble colleges is a little beyond us. Louisiana Baptists are increasing in numbers and efficiency. In 1884 there were 17,067 Baptists in the State, and they gave to all objects (not pastor's salary or church expenses) $804 01; 1895 figures are, Baptist 80,509; contributions $15 571 71.

....Rev. J. A. Hoyle is keeping up his good work and the Lord is blessing his labors. He writes: "I have just closed a ten days' meeting with Long Creek church in Gaston county. The Lord's presence was with us from beginning to close. Bro. P. R. Elam was with us a few days and did some excellent preaching; also Bro. S. D Brown of Dallas preached three good gospel sermons during the meeting. At the close I baptized six happy converts, received by letter two, restored three, making eleven additions. I also baptized seventeen converts at Mt. Zion, Lincoln county, last Sunday (Aug. 25th)."

....The following are said to be the words of Dr. Cyrus Thompson at the recent meeting of the Farmers' Alliance at Cary: "The church to day stands where it has always stood—on the side of human slavery, and not on the side of liberty. I thank God that even the pulpit is learning that we must live now as hereafter." If Dr. Thompson said this, he is too poorly informed, too quick to speak, too reckless of statement, not to say too ungodly, to lead any respectable body of men. The statement is not true. We can speak for the Baptist church, and we are prepared to show that it is the strongest friend and the greatest advocate of freedom.

....The word "sectarian" needs definition. At the recent Christian Endeavor Convention in Boston, nothing was more vigorously denounced than "sectarianism." One speaker, if he had any sectarian blood, wanted to have his veins opened that it might be let out. Now, according to all the best usage, sectarianism consists in belonging to a denomination and in being loyal to it. The word in some cases has come to signify bigotry, but that is a meaning which Episcopalians, for instance, who are among the most rigid sectarians, would repudiate with some heat as applied to themselves. Just what is that hateful thing that great conventions denounce, and that eloquent speakers wish to let out of their veins by a somewhat risky surgical operation!—Watchman.

....Rev. Thomas E. Skinner, D D., of Raleigh, N. C., who has been spending several weeks at the hotel here, with some of his family, has just left for home. The Doctor was on duty every Sunday, preaching to Baptist and Presbyterian congregations very acceptably. He is a most genial Christian gentleman and made a very favorable impression on the entire community. He did not forget in his sojourning that he was a minister of the word.—N. Y. Chapman. Covington. Dr. Skinner preached seven times while he was gone and preached again in the first Baptist church at Raleigh last Sunday. It is a remarkable fact that Dr. Skinner still reads fine type without glasses and still knows how to reach boys' and young men's hearts. God spare him yet many useful years.

....We regret to hear of the death at Scotland Neck of Mrs. J. B. Neal, daughter of the late Rev. A. McDowell, for many years President of Chowan Baptist Female Institute.

....Next Sunday at 3.30 o'clock p. m. the West Raleigh Baptist Sunday school will have a Welcome Day service. A special song service has been arranged by Prof. J. H. Smith, and several talks will be made by some prominent Sunday school workers. All are cordially invited to attend these services.

....Rev. John C. Hocutt writes: "The work of the Lord continues to prosper in my field of labor. At Haw River on Sunday morning, Sept. 1st, we received four by letter and one for baptism. In the afternoon the ordinance of baptism was administered. I will begin a meeting in Graham to night (Monday, Sept. 2d). This meeting will probably continue two weeks. I beg the brethren to pray the blessings of God on his cause in this important place."

....Rev. W. R Gwaltney of Wake Forest, N. C., has been supplying for Bro. Derieux for a month. The members of the First church, Spartanburg, have greatly enjoyed his preaching and pastoral work. Brother Gwaltney is one of the best men in North Carolina, and we are glad that some of our people have had the opportunity of knowing him.—Baptist Courier. Brother Gwaltney passed through Raleigh last week on his way to Wake Forest in time to greet the new students. He has made plans to throw around them stronger influences for good than ever before.

....Rev. J. A. Campbell writes: "Rev. J. M. White and Rev. J. J. Adams aided me in a meeting at Holly Springs from the second Sunday in August, Bro. White doing most of the preaching. He used to teach and preach there and the people were delighted to have an opportunity of hearing him again. Bro. Adams endeared himself to us all by his earnest preaching at his home church. In order to go to another appointment, I had to leave before the meeting closed. There had been five or six converts up to the time I left" (Friday). Bro. Campbell and his father are now in a meeting at Spring Branch. Later on he will be aided by Dr. N. B. Cobb at Friendship church.

....Should our Baptist colleges be baptistic? What a question. Why not ask, Should a Baptist be baptistic? Of course he should. A man's church faith should be seen in his every-day life. Paul said, "For me to live is Christ." He reproduced his faith, his Christ faith, every day and everywhere. He commands us to be "living epistles, known and read of all men." Well, that is required of all of us. Our colleges are no exception. They ought to speak out and live out their Baptist sentiments. They may not teach theology, but they should teach faith and practice. I should be sorry for the influence of any Baptist college that did not influence every student in the direction of Baptist faith. Such a college would be misnamed.—Western Recorder.

....Bro. B. H. Matthews writes: "I have just closed a good meeting at Cedar Branch church. This is a large country church about one mile and half from Jamesville and the same distance from the A. C. L. R. R. This is one of those places where the people stop everything and go to meeting. We had 400 or 500 people every night. They received the gospel gladly and quite a number were added to the church. Bro. G. W. White, a very promising young brother from Rockyhock, helped us some in the beginning of the meeting. Rev. R. Leggett, the faithful pastor of this flock, has done some good work: he has been pastor for eleven years. This church is located among the isms, but it is fighting its way well. There is a bright future for the good saints of Cedar Branch."

....We found Wake Forest full of young men Sunday. The opening is a very hopeful one. The number of young men registered up to Sunday is 180, and as the opening is a week in advance of that of last year, the number indicates an unusually good attendance. Prof. Carlyle says 280 boys are in sight, and he confidently offered to name them for us. Prest. Taylor advised us to announce the number present and wait for the others, saying at the time that he regarded the opening as very encouraging. Pastor Gwaltney preached Sunday especially to the young men from the text, "Watch ye, stand fast in the faith, quit you like men, be strong. Let all your things be done with charity." For appropriateness and force, it was one of the best discourses we ever heard. In the afternoon there was a general meeting of the Christian students and the faculty with a view toward increasing the Christian influences of the students. There were several informal talks. Tuesday night Dr. J. L. M. Curry of Richmond, Va., will deliver the introductory address for this session. This is a new departure, but it is a good one. Later on a reception will be given to the new students by the men and women of the village. When Wake Forest gets to having all these events occur in a week, we will be able to speak of "Commencement Exercises" with some regard for the meaning of the word commencement.

Four Months' Showing.

We have received for the past four months $16,794 76 for Foreign Missions. One third of the Conventional year has passed. North Carolina has raised $811 50 of the above amount. She was asked by the Southern Baptist Convention to raise $3,000 in that time, or $9 000 for the year. Every State is behind the amount requested by the Convention. Is this caused in your State partly because you and your church have failed to do your duty? The Missionaries must live. To borrow money means heavy interest accounts. Why will God's people act in this way? Is the great work of missions entrusted to us, to drag, while God is showering his blessings on us? Let us all come up with thank-off-rings and render unto the Lord that which is due. Many have given nothing this year for the salvation of the lost in foreign lands. Some have given but little. Let each bring an offering now as God has blessed him or her. The work is needing help now. May those who can, give large gifts, and those who have little give liberally. This is meant for you, reader, and your church.

Mission Day in the Sunday-schools.

The Home Mission Board desires to interest all our Sunday-school workers and pupils in the great work it is doing, and the greater work it ought to do and would do if it had the means to accomplish it.

Its field is the whole South and the Island of Cuba. In that Island alone there are more than a million and a half of people who have no saving knowledge of the truth. They are now struggling for their political freedom. They need to be so enlightened that they will struggle more earnestly for their freedom from sin, for the liberty wherewith Christ can set them free. But there are so few to help. Brother Diaz and his fellow laborers have gathered about one thousand children into the Sunday schools of Havana. But what are they among the multitudes who have nobody to tell them about Christ and heaven? In our own country how many are perishing without the knowledge of salvation?

Brother A. J. Holt, Cor. Sec. of the State Board of Tennessee says there are a million of unsaved in that state alone. There are ten millions of unsaved in the South. We must reach these with the word of life that they may reach others, both at home and abroad. If the people of America are not christianized, from whence will come those who will go to the heathen? Out of our churches and Sunday-schools must come the men and women, who in China, Africa and everywhere shall tell the wondrous story of redeeming love.

The Board has more than four hundred missionaries preaching the gospel to our own countrymen, those who are "bone of our bone." They are in our cities, in our towns and villages, in our rural districts, preaching to the German, the Mexican, the Frenchman, the Cuban, the American, the Indian, the Negro, "all the words of this life." We need help to sustain them; we need help to send hundreds more to the destitute we have not reached and cannot reach because the means to support them while they preach has not been supplied. These men establish Sunday-schools wherever they go. Our missionaries within the last three years have organized more than a thousand Sunday schools, and have brought nearly fifty thousand children into them.

There are thousands of places where these schools should be established and hundreds of thousand of children that should be brought into them. Help us brethren, that all over our land righteousness may go forth as brightness, and salvation as a lamp that burneth. Then will its millions of redeemed be ready to give the gospel to every creature.

Brushy Mountain Association.

Dear Recorder:—The Brushy Mountain Association convened on the 23d inst. with New Hope church. The session was a very successful one. A number of visiting brethren were with us. Among them were Dr. John Mitchell in the interest of ministerial education, who made an excellent speech in behalf of the young men at Wake Forest who are struggling so earnestly to better fit themselves for the great work of preaching the gospel.

Bro. J. C. Caddell, representing the RECORDER, and Bro. B. S. Peterson, the North Carolina Baptist. The speeches of these brethren on the subject of periodicals lent interest to the Association.

There are twenty churches in the Association, all represented. Owing to hard times the contributions for the past year were not as large as formerly. All the churches pledged themselves very liberally for the various objects to which the Association contributes.

The brethren of New Hope have just completed a house of worship which would be an honor to any community. The house is not yet paid for. A collection was taken for that object amounting to forty dollars which will be greatly appreciated by the few brethren who are trying so hard to pay the debt.

The Lord bless the RECORDER.

Which is worse, imprisonment for life or a life-long disease, like scrofula, for example? The former, certainly, would be preferable were it not that Ayer's Sarsaparilla can always come to the rescue and give the poor sufferer health, strength, and happiness.

Cheering Letter by Elder Howell.

Dear Recorder:—On Aug. 18th we held our first service in the church at the Falls of Tar River. The house is covered-in and some of the seats finished.

We organized a Sunday-school with seventy seven scholars a few weeks ago. They are using a Mason & Hamlin baby organ lent to them by Rocky Mount Sunday school, and have very good singing. Bro. Noah Biggs, who is always ready for every good word and work, lent us $300 to start the work. We hope to pay this debt and a few others soon.

Mr. Ruffin Owens of the factory has been very kind and aided us in many ways, but he don't want his good deeds published to the world.

There are over twenty Baptists living at the Falls, and we hope to have a good church there.

I have resigned the church at Rocky Mount. During my pastorate of twenty months, between thirty-five and forty have been added to the membership by baptism and letter. A new brick baptistery has been put in the church-building costing about seventy dollars. The house has been painted inside and outside, and a new carpet put down. The Ladies' Aid Society raised the money for painting and carpet, paid twenty-three dollars on the baptistery, and contributed liberally to the pastor's salary. Home Missions and Falls church. The Ladies' Missionary Society contributes most of the money raised for Foreign Missions. These societies, under the efficient leadership of Mrs. Dennis Worthington, have accomplished much for this church. If every member of the church had her missionary spirit, the Mission Boards would never be in debt. We have established a regular concert of prayer for Foreign Missions on the first Sunday night in each month. In connection with our church, we have a Sunday school three miles in the country with 125 on the roll. Our Sunday school here is larger than it has been in several years.

Good News From Brazil.

We have just closed a blessed work for Jesus. For ten days we have had services in the small up stairs room, and hundreds have been hearing the blessed news of the love of Jesus.

I had been away for a month visiting the other missions and preaching for them, and during my absence my assistant Bro. A. Campos stood in my place working with all his might and doing good.

Immediately after my return I held special meeting, preparing for the Association which had resolved to meet with us this year. We had prayer-meetings, calling on the Lord to shower upon us abundant blessings; and praised be His name He heard us and answered our petitions.

We are encouraged and go forward singing praise and glory to his name.

The meetings began Sunday the 21st of July. We had special prayer-meetings and every one said that the presence of the Lord was felt in our midst.

On Monday at 7 p. m., our brother Dr. Ottoni, the ex priest preached; the most eloquent orator and yet the most humble preacher in Brazil. He came up from Rio at our invitation. His loving wife a thorough Christian (Baptist) young lady, was at his side, and their presence amongst us did us good. No announcements were put out—none but the believers knew of his presence amongst us and yet, the whole city wanted to hear him. His fame is great, but where could we get a hall to accommodate the crowds who came? That was impossible. So we had had to content ourselves with our small up stairs-room when our 150 crammed in. It was a grand night and a grand sermon. Oh, the power of the Word of God! Looking at the man who but a few months ago was the idol of the great and the rich; whom but a few months ago the President of the Brazilian Republic kissed the hand in the open street—see him in a small hall filled with the poorest of the poor, preach the Gospel of Jesus with an eloquence that made the old emperor D. Pedro II stand up and embrace! Can you doubt the power of the Gospel?

On Tuesday we went up to San Fidelis where we have a faithful little flock which has passed through all kinds of persecution. The room where we usually preach being too small, a friend offered us one of the Clubs—a nice big saloon already fitted up for lecturing. As in Campos, so also here, no announcements were distributed, but all the city came out to hear him. The hall was crowded, also the yard and street. The aristocracy of the place came out and all were profoundly impressed with the truth preached. They had already learned to admire the purifying power of the Gospel in the lives of the believers, but now they learned to admire the love of God in giving his only begotten Son to save sinners—poor degraded Brazilians.

Dr. Ottoni preached for an hour and held the audience spell bound and when he told them of his anguish and sufferings while a R. C. priest, tears rolled down from the peoples' eyes. He moves them all.

Brethren pray for him and for the cause in Brazil. Be not discouraged. The cause is the Lords' and he is at our head. He is blessing us and will bless all who help the cause.

Praise the Lord for His wondrous work in Brazil. Do not forget your missionary for Brazil. SOLOMON L. GINSBURG.

School Items.

Bale's Creek Academy has opened with about forty more students that at this time last year. Bro. Campbell is now collecting a library and getting part of a scale for a reading room.

Fairview Institute, W. T. Whitsett, Ph. D., Superintendent, is meeting with remarkable success. A new post office has been opened on the grounds, and a number of new buildings will soon be erected. No high school in the State now has better boarding facilities. The present year promises to enroll over two hundred students. The post office of the school is now Whitsett, N. C.

Prof. Hugh Long of Wakefield Academy was in Raleigh Saturday in the interest of his school. He is very hopeful of the outlook, and thinks there is opportunity to build up a fine institution.

Bro. L. Griffin has accepted a position in the High Point Institute and Business College. He is a son of Bro. J. M. Griffin. He attended Wake Forest College the last two years. We wish him a good share of success.

Snow Hill Church, Allensville, N. C.

Dear Recorder:—It might be interesting to many of your readers to know of the good work being done at Snow Hill Baptist church, Allensville, N. C.

We began a meeting at this church the second Sunday in August, which lasted six days. We had an interesting meeting. Some joined the church and we are expecting more to join. The Spirit of God was present each day and manifested Himself by reviving the drooping spirits of those who already believed. This little band of believers are faithful working Christians, and great good is being accomplished by and through them and their beloved pastor, Rev. K. J. Montague, who is a member and the founder of this church, and who always delights in the service of God. May he be spared many years to continue this good work for the Master whom he so much loves and serves.

A Newsy Letter from Bro. Stallings.

Dear Bro. Bailey.—In your issue of Aug. 14th, you have an editorial headed "Bro. Stallings on Tithing," in which, alluding to the heat, you say you "have no intention of fanning Bro. Stallings' embers into flames this August." If you were up here in the hill country of good Davie and could see the people as they flock to hear brethren Booker and Rich and your correspondent as we preach the Word, you would not be surprised that speaker and hearers stand this August weather so well that there is no danger of "fanning the embers into flames." The pleasant breezes from the mountains temper the heat and there is no danger.

We began at Jerusalem (obeying literally the command) on the fourth Sunday in July. We had Bro. J. M. Bennett of Davidson with us a few services. Brethren Bennett and Elder J. F. Redwine and I, having been called as a presbytery by the church, examined and ordained Bro. S. J. Booker to the full work of the gospel ministry. The presbytery found him exceptionally well qualified. There were some serious impediments in the way of our meeting. There were, however, several penitents and two professions. The church has been hindered in her work by the failure to complete the payment of the purchase money for the house and lot purchased some three or four years ago, soon after her church building was burned. The balance was paid on Saturday, and arrangements made to seat the house. The seats will be in by the first Sunday in October, when we expect to hold another meeting there.

A week was spent with the church at Farmington. There were good congregations and several penitents. The church was revived, but there were no professions.

The next week was spent at Eaton's church. There were large congregations and considerable interest from the beginning. The interest continues to increase, Christians were greatly revived, and there were twelve or fifteen professions, mostly or all Sunday school pupils, ten of whom I baptized last Sunday. Bro. Booker remained till last night, preaching at night only, to large congregations. There were ten or twelve more professions, a number of whom will join the church at the next regular meeting.

Bro. Rich went on Saturday to aid Bro. Mason at Clemonsville.

I came here and began a meeting Sunday night, which continues with good prospects of good success if I can secure help for next week. Bro. Dalton, the Presbyterian pastor, and Bro. Hardison, the Methodist circuit preacher, have helped me this week—the former attending regularly; the latter one day and night, being the only day he was in town.

Brethren Booker and Rich have done excellent work and greatly pleased their hearers.

I have been preaching at destitute points on the second and third Sunday afternoons for several months. I shall protract at one or both after awhile.

The prospects for a bountiful corn crop were never better. If no disastrous freshets, our people will be in better condition than for several years past. I am trying to get the members of my churches to lay aside by them in store as God prospers. What part? At least one tenth. If not that, some part. Without this, there will be very little increase in the gifts to the Lord's cause, though he has increased every one four fold. We must have some systematic plan, and the above is the Bible plan, therefore the best plan. I have been trying to get the Lord's people to lay aside in store some wheat, some oats, and now some corn, some peas, some tobacco, and the sisters some poultry, some eggs, some product of the garden and dairy, and some fruit. What part? Not all, but some, at least one tenth, and more, if any will. Oh that "every one" would do it! There would be plenty always in the treasuries of the churches for every phase of the Lord's work. There would be no need for young people's and women's missionary societies to raise money. There would be no necessity for the two resident pastors of our county or others elsewhere to go into the school-room to supplement what they receive, so as to live. May the time soon come when it will be done!

I have received a pamphlet entitled "The Law of Christian Giving," by Bro. R. L. Patton of Morganton, which I have read with pleasure and profit, since my articles on tithing were published. I desire to put one of these in the hands of every family in my churches, so "every one" may get the instruction he will find in it. I do not mean to commend some expressions in it, which I think mar it, but to endorse the subject matter and argument.

I join with Bro. Blanchard in the wish that the report of the committee of the Southern Baptist Convention on "Tithing" may be published by you. I think, too, the pamphlet of Bro. Patton will do much good, if it can reach the masses. The pamphlet can be secured, I suppose, by writing to Elder R. L. Patton, Morganton, N. C.

Some Work in the "Regions Beyond"

Dear Recorder:—I have been working some of late in the "beyond" land. On the fourth Sunday in July I began a meeting at Ingram's school-house in the western part of Iredell county, which lasted one week. Bro. J. F. Morris was with me a few days and did excellent preaching. At the close of the meeting I baptized three happy converts, one of whom was an old man seventy two years of age. His only story was, "The Lord has done for me what I could not do for myself."

We organized a Baptist church at this place with fourteen members. We now have seventeen and expect others soon. The people of this community have heard very little Baptist preaching up to this time. They seem deeply interested. We have purchased a nice lot of land on which to build a church house just as soon as we can. The prospect for good and growth of the church seems bright, and with the help of the Lord we expect soon a live church.

I have been doing some mission work in this (Catawba) county this year. The South Fork Association appointed me to do some work in a destitute section within its bounds this year. I went into a section to try to get a place to preach, but could not even get a public school house or any other place. Then a few brethren went with me, and we bought a piece of ground at a nice place for a church. Here I made an appointment to preach in the woods, and when I got to my appointment, to my surprise I found the woods full of people. I preached the best I could with the people sitting on logs and grass, and to a congregation which gave the best of attention. It reminded me of how we read that the Master preached to the people as they gathered on the hillside or valley and sat down on the grass. I have been preaching here all summer to large attentive audiences. I trust that much good may be accomplished here. I built a stand and arranged some seats under some shade trees; so we have a very nice place, and I enjoy telling these people the story of Jesus and his love.

Best wishes for the RECORDER.

I am ever yours in love,

D. P. BRIDGES.

A N. C Exile in Virginia Writes

Dear Bro Bailey:—The RECORDER comes regularly every week, and we enjoy it more than ever now as we are out of the State. We love to get the news about the kingdom from all parts of the State as it comes to us through the familiar pages of the RECORDER; and now that the Associations are beginning to meet, we shall be more impatient than ever for its weekly visits. How I shall miss the face of Dr. Bailey when next I visit the RECORDER office! He was one of the best friends I had in North Carolina. I regarded him a true friend. As editor, he was strong, conservative, safe, sprightly. He was just such an editor as we need in these days of new things in the churches and strange doings by the Lord's people. But the RECORDER is still good, and may it ever continue to be so.

The eastern shore of Virginia is a fine country. It is largely a trucking section, and the farmers have felt but little of the hard times that have been experienced by the cotton and tobacco growing sections. The money crops here are mainly Irish and sweet potatoes, and in this county (Northampton), a great many strawberries are raised for the markets, and some English peas and onions, and all of these crops usually bring good prices. But in addition to the trucking business, the farmers—at least, most of them—raise plenty of corn and meat, and this fact accounts largely for the prosperity of this section. As I travel over this country, I see more hogs than I have seen for years anywhere else. No farming section can be prosperous that does not raise bread and meat at home.

Our work over here is moving on slowly. I preach for two churches—one in Cape Charles, and one about three miles in the country.

Cape Charles City is a new town of about 1 200 inhabitants situated on the Chesapeake Bay at the terminus of the N. Y. P. and N. R. R. It is a lively town, and there are signs of growth about it. I know of no better place for a canning establishment, and it would please me much if some good enterprising Baptist would come and go into that business.

Our church there is getting on fairly well. We hope to baptize three or four into its fellowship before long.

The Lower Northampton church, the one I preach for in the country, is the oldest Baptist church on the eastern shore. It was organized in 1778 by Elijah Baker, who preached where the church now stands the first Baptist sermon ever preached on the shore. This faithful brother, for preaching the truth, was, like several other Baptist ministers of his day, imprisoned by the authorities of the Established Church, an day in Accomack jail many days. But notwithstanding persecutions, he kept faithfully at work for the Master; and when the Lord called him home, he had established ten churches on the eastern shore of Virginia and Maryland. The Lower Northampton is a strong flourishing church, and is made up of some of the best people, socially and in every other respect, in the county.

For the first time, I attended the Accomack Association last week. It met with the Chincoteague church near the Maryland line. Every church was represented, and all except one or two had given to all the Boards. As is customary in Baptist meetings, we had plenty of speaking on all the subjects, and several good speeches. This Association has a fine body of preachers, and all seem to be doing good work.

The season for protracted meetings is on, and we do hope and pray that the Lord will give us a great harvest of souls.

May the Lord bless you in your work.

Visits of the Brethren.

The people of Mt. Airy, and especially the pastor, have been delighted, cheered, and edified by the visits of the following brethren: On Saturday evening before the second Sunday in August, Bro. C. W. Blanchard, who had been at Pinnacle with Bro. C. C. Haymore in a good revival, came up and on Sunday at 11 o'clock a. m., lectured on Wake Forest, and at night preached, to a well filled house each time. Then for a few days mingled with the people, giving information about Wake Forest and education to great profit, from which the institution will be benefited financially and numerically. Next came Dr. C. Durham, and Bro. John C. Caddell, and dropped in at our Thursday evening service, on their way to the Yadkin Association.

We had the unusual pleasure of a visit from Rev. C. G. Jones of Covington Ky. Hearing he was in Madison with his father and mother, visiting his brother, W. C. Jones, and sister, Mrs. Charlie Pratt, I went down and joined in their pleasures for a couple of days. Then on my return I brought him with me back to the Blue Ridge Inn. While here he preached a very fine sermon in the Baptist church, and made a telling speech at the Yadkin Association on Home Missions showing the need of this Board to do work among the foreign element coming to our country. Covington owes North Carolina a debt of gratitude for her gifted Jones, and must return him at the proper time to his native State and to those who love him. May God bless all these brethren in their important work. J. H. L.

The Leading.

One of the leading and best known painters in this country says, "I cannot afford to use anything but Pure White Lead" (see list of brands). Every practical painter knows this. It is only those who haven't any reputation to lose who don't know it, or will use misleading brands of White Lead or unknown worthless mixtures. Although low-priced, they are not cheap. Pure White Lead is the cheapest, because it is the best.

If colors are required they are easily made by using the National Lead Co.'s Pure White Lead tinting colors. Pamphlet and color-card sent free.

A Letter and a Torn Clipping.

The following letter will bring a message of encouragement to the many who have determined that the Yates Memorial, of which so much was said in this column last week, must succeed. Since the letters given them were received, a number expressing like sentiments have reached us, but we shall not be content until we hear from every society on this subject.

"Your letter was read and listened to with pleasure in our meeting. I am glad to see much interest manifested by the members of our Tabernacle Society. I think many will give one dollar each. Ten have resolved to raise ten dollars each.

This is something that lies so near the hearts of our people, I feel hopeful that the full amount will be raised in due time. I know there are many demands for means, but it will continue even more so. Now seems to be the best time to push forward this movement. Yours truly,

MRS J. E. E

Raleigh, N. C.

P. S.—Before sending my letter I happened to come across this clipping, which is so old I forget where I got it. It seems so appropriate to the times—a piece I prize, and if it can be of service to you, I send it, though torn, that you may use it."

(THE CLIPPING)—THE LORD WAS HIS HELPER.

A merchant in New York had pledged to the Lord a certain portion of his business receipts as fast as they were collected. He called this the Lord's insurance money. "For," said he, "so long as I give, so long will the Lord help and bless me, and in some way will give me the means to give. It is a blessing to my heart to keep it open in gratitude; a blessing to dispose of it to gladden other hearts and the surest way to keep the Lord's favor with me."

The results of his experience were blessed, indeed, as he said: "I never realized before how He helps me in all my business plans. Things happen daily which show me that some one who knows more than I is protecting me. Bad debts have been paid that I did not expect. Errand boys just getting into sly and bad habits have been discovered ere their thefts had proceeded far. As I needed competent help in my business it has come just as it was wanted.

When customers were about to fail, somehow their debts to me were paid although they failed to pay others.

A severe fire came to my office and seemed to have swept all my valuables away. But it was stopped at just the right moment, and not one thing valuable was lost. The insurance companies paid me enough to replace every damage, and the office was renewed better than before. The Lord sends me business enough to pay my debts, while others are dull.

I cannot tell why it is, except that I always pray for my business, and ask the Lord to bless it for the good of others, and the means which come from it may be used for His cause.

When I stop giving, business stops coming. When I stop praying for it, perplexities arise. As long as I pray for it, all moves easily, and I have no care or trouble.

The Lord is my banker, my insurer, my deliverer, my patron, and my blessed guardian, of temporal things as well as spiritual."—The Wonders of Prayer.

Mexico as a Mission Field.

It happens not infrequently that we become so interested in distant affairs that we quite overlook those that are near at hand. This seems to be especially true in the work of missions. Undoubtedly the church at large in the United States knows vastly more about the great mission fields of Asia and of the South Sea Islands than about Mexico, the nearest foreign field. Scarcely ever does one hear Mexico, South America, or Italy named in the public prayers for foreign missions, except it be at missionary meetings, when these countries furnish the theme.

For the purpose of throwing a few rays of light on the claims of Mexico as a mission field, let us observe some of the salient features of the case.

1. The religious condition of the people.

As is well known, the Roman Catholic religion had an absolute and undisturbed hold upon the Mexicans from the time of the conquest in the sixteenth century till the middle of the present one. It was imposed upon the people largely by force, partly by fraud, and in part through the earnest efforts of zealous missionaries; but by whatever means introduced it gained a powerful hold upon the hearts of the people, and for three centuries they were moulded by the priesthood with all the pliability of the clay upon the potter's wheel. No other country better represents the fruits of Romanism. But the Romanism of Mexico differs quite widely in its external manifestations from that seen in the United States. This is not because the Mexican article is a counterfeit or a corruption, but because the American type has been changed and largely Protestantized outwardly. With all the Pope's increasing interest in the United States as his "favorite country," he addresses the members of the Mexican church as his "predilect children." They are true Roman Catholics.

The masses of the people are still in a lamentable state of ignorance. In the cities and larger towns probably from 30 to 50 per cent. can read and write, but in the rural villages the proportion of readers is exceedingly small. In some parts of the country there are large villages where only one or two persons in the whole population can read and write.

In this city, one of the most pious in the country, I recently witnessed an exhibition of the trust in images that was new to me, and was certainly quite novel. A fire broke out in the corner grocery just across the street from our mission property near midnight. The professors and students from our school joined actively with the neighbors and the fire department to extinguish the blaze. Before much had been accomplished, however, and while the flames in all their fury were bursting out of the doors, I saw a man run up several times and throw some little objects in the fire. My first thought was that they were little bombs or firecrackers that he was playing with, though they made no report. What was my surprise to learn that they were fragments of a family saint, which the wife of the shopkeeper was breaking in pieces and having thrown into the flames in order to extinguish the fire!

This blind devotion to images has filled the churches and the houses of the people with objects of worship of every variety, from the six cent., horribly printed wood cut, to the chaste and beautiful, life size sculpture, clad in silk and velvet, with diamonds and precious stones to the value of a million dollars.

Among many of the ignorant people there is found the strange belief that they can oblige the saints to grant their prayers by inflicting punishment upon them. This is practised in numerous ways, such as locking the image up in a box, turning its face to the wall, or hanging it, head downward, in a jar of water.

But, perhaps, the idolatrous character of the religion of Mexico is not its worse feature. The exaltation of the priesthood seems to me to be even worse. The priest is supposed to have power, not only to pardon and save in this life, but his authority extends to the world of spirits so that he can obtain release for souls in the flames of purgatory. To be sure he cannot accomplish this last feat without being paid for it. There are many ways of obtaining the necessary funds for this purpose, one of the most novel that I have seen being that of a "raffle for souls." In this city one can frequently see on the church doors large posters announcing the result of the last raffle for souls, giving the names of the lucky ones who drew prizes in the spiritual lottery. The plan is simple. Tickets are sold for twenty five cents each by number. People buy the tickets, specifying at the time the name of the deceased for whom it is purchased. The drawing takes place, and the souls holding the winning numbers receive the benefit of the mass for the dead during a specified period.

2. The moral state of Mexico.

The moral condition of a people holding and practicing such a religion may be imagined; to be known in its fulness, one must live for years among the people. There is a varnish of politeness that is very attractive, there are traits of character and some customs that are very beautiful. A corrupt and vicious priesthood sets the example of uncleanness, and the people, unrestrained by their religious convictions follow madly the unholy example of their spiritual leaders.

Indecency in the ordinary habits of life and vileness in speech and manner are general characteristics of the masses. The sanctity of the Christian Sabbath is utterly unknown. The Lord's Day is observed as a "feast day," in which the ordinary labors of the farm and shop are largely suspended, though very many work on without regard to it. But the markets, groceries, saloons, and in many places dry good stores, do their most thriving business on that day; while every form of amusement, such as theatres, circuses, bull fights, cock fights, balls, etc., find it frequently better than all the rest of the week combined. Indeed, bull fights seldom occur except on Sunday.

Liquor drinking is almost universal, and there is an alarming amount of drunkenness. The church is utterly powerless to restrain this vice, since very many of the priests are sadly addicted to it. Sundays and religious feast days are specially notorious as times for drunken carousals. There exists no public sentiment in favor of temperance, except such as is the outgrowth of Protestantism.

This brief outline of the religious and moral state of the Mexican people will suffice to show their great need of the gospel in its purity and with its purifying effects.

More than any other field Mexico has claims upon the Christians of the United States, because of proximity of territory, similarity of governmental forms, the practical import of the Monroe Doctrine, and the absence of organized effort on the part of English and European Christians in behalf of Mexico's evangelization. The missionary societies of the Old World give all their attention to the mission fields on that side of the globe, while Mexico and the other Spanish speaking countries on this continent are left to be evangelized by Americans alone. Surely this noteworthy fact should appeal urgently to the church in the United States, since, in the providence of God, this seems to be a field peculiarly and exclusively our own.—Rev. Samuel R. Craver, D. D., Pueblo, Mexico, in Missionary Review.

A Warning to the Ignorant.

Elder J. A. Burch, Burlington, N. C.:—

Dear Sir:—Yours asking me to answer some questions in regard to Mormonism received, and if my compliance with your request should enlighten any of our people who might be led astray as I was, I shall think I am well rewarded for so doing.

1. They came to my house in January, 1894, and introduced themselves. I heard them talk and read their pamphlets, became acquainted with them and their doctrine (as they represented it), and was with them a good deal.

2. They treated me very well, and promised me greater things than I ever expected to obtain here if I would join them and go to the Mormon kingdom, which I did. I sold everything and bought my tickets, which cost me $275 75, to get there.

3. I learned after getting there that the Priest and President could have all the wives they wanted (as officers of the church). I visited the father of Layton (who is here now); he had two wives. I also visited a man named Barnes, who had five wives. But their representatives denied this before I went there.

4. They claimed that one-tenth of what I had belonged to the church, the balance was to be deposited with the Priest; telling me I could make an honest deposit, live, and enjoy the Mormon faith; but if I failed to do so, as Ananias did, I would go as he did; that is, I should hold nothing back, under the same penalty that Ananias suffered. The round trip cost me $275, which means my all, as I am without a home, with a large family, as you know, and also knew my circumstances before I left here.

D. F. WARE.

We have known Mr. D. F. Ware for a number of years, and believe him to be a man of truth, and would not misrepresent the Mormons.

NEWS SUMMARY.

North Carolina.

The committee appointed by the late General Assembly to investigate the alleged Arrington grievances, consisting of Messrs. Campbell, Phillips and Bryan, attempted last week for a third time to have a meeting in Raleigh. As formerly it was a farce. Two of the men are notorious drinkers, and the other was caught in the act of sneaking a bill through the House of Representatives. They are a disgrace to the State.——The Lynchburg & Durham Railway, leased several years ago to the Norfolk & Western, has been turned over to the Lynchburg & Durham R. R. Co., the Norfolk & Western failing to pay interest.——The Charlotte Observer publishes a despatch to the effect that the Baltimore & Ohio R. R. will consider a proposition to extend their line from Lexington, Va., to Roanoke, Va., in order to make connection with the Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley R. R., of this State.

In General.

The Ku-Cheng Commission of China appointed to investigate the Hwsang massacre, have found twelve men guilty. One hundred are under arrest.——The Western Union Telegraph Company has extended its wires so as to connect with those of the Mexican National Railway Company, which for the first time brings the two republics into telegraphic communication——Cotton rose rapidly last week until Saturday, when it fell fifteen points without stopping. It is now ranging from 6¼ to 7¼: wheat 60½; corn 36; oats 18½; pork 9.55——Ex Senator Ransom has again been appointed minister to Mexico, and it is thought that this will hold good.

The Baptist Female University.

I have just received a copy of Bro. Stringfield's tract giving desired information about the University for our women. I am glad the institution is a fact, soon to become a factor in the progress of our work. It is a great pity the institution was not started years ago. We have lost much in the development of our women because there was no such school. Some of our girls have gone outside of the State to certain famous institutions to be educated. They have been educated, but it has been at a great loss spiritually. Some institutions, of which I have heard, and which I have known by their fruits, have been a curse to the Baptist girls spiritually. The society demands of some make splendid High Church Episcopalians, but very poor spiritually minded Baptists. I am glad the Female University is to be a Christian institution in fact and not in theory. The social ideas developed in some female schools is a curse to the poor girls and to the Baptist churches of our State. A young lady from one of these fashionable Baptist schools in another State said to me that she could not join a certain Baptist church because it prohibited dancing. She had been to the famous —— Institute of the famous State of ——, and there the girls danced. And Prof. Full-of-Wisdom, LL. D., said we ought to travel several years to bitter equip ourselves to enter "society." From an humble Christian girl she had developed into a little social ape under the fostering care of that celebrated school; and under the instruction of that aristocratic Doctor of Laws she had become a society dwarf. I could mention others.

Baptists need the University. They need it to counteract the blighting influences of the celebrated fashionable Institutes and Seminaries for women. Whenever a Baptist girl gets "society" ideas in her mind, she is lost to the denomination. The University will stand for Christian culture against social culture. Our women ought to be educated, for what? To shine in society? Oh! no, "that they may render more efficient service to their Saviour, and their church and denominational work." That's well put, Bro. Stringfield. "That they may be better able to determine what 'society' shall be." Not apes in society, but moulders of society. That they shall know how to sit as uncrowned queens upon the throne of the home. This will be an ideal institution. It will revolutionize some of the social customs of the age. It will elevate the home, purify the church, and bless the world.

Not only do we need the institution, but it rests upon us as a great moral obligation to establish it. "My girls are all boys," but if there were any girls among them, I believe I would think as much of my girls as I do of my boys. The old opinions of women still cling to us. A leading Southern religious editor said when Cleveland's last girl was born words to the effect that it must be to the parents a matter of regret that the children were all girls. How any man who loves wife, mother and sister could pen such a thought is a problem to me. If I had a daughter, I should do as much for her as for the son. Common honesty would demand it.

The Baptists of North Carolina have done well by their boys. They ought to do more. They will do more. But they must, also, do as much for their girls or stand charged with partiality and injustice to them. We can't trust our girls in Pedobaptist institutions. Neither can we trust them in State institutions. The one is in an atmosphere of what we believe is error. The other is in an atmosphere of indifference. The denominational school is the only safe place for a Baptist girl.

Hints for Sunday school teachers in their teaching work are of real value only as they come from a practical worker. Amos R. Wells has just this sort of experience, and a delightfully clever way of putting it into words. In an article soon to appear in The Sunday school Times he contrasts what he terms "trigger teaching" with "big gun teaching," showing how a teacher may and ought to develop a scholar's personality. He shows this, not by mere theorizing, but by many a bit of pointed advice.

Paint.

We have had many inquires as to which is the best paint, and have had circulars sent us of this and that "ready mixed" paint, with the inquiry as to whether we thought them good, etc. In talking with men of experience and good judgment in such matters, we have come to believe that pure lead and pure linseed oil makes the very best paint, and that the many kinds of "ready mixed" paints are more or less cheap (fish) oil. Discussing paint with a couple of pouleryman a few days ago, one said, "I have used three different kinds, and neither of them was worth the time and brush wear to put them on. I'm done with cheap paints." "That is just my fix," said number two, "I haven't used three different makes, but I painted one building twice within three years with a mixed paint the dealer said was 'just as good,' and cheaper, and it washes off like fun in every shower. The next time I paint it will be with lead and linseed oil, then I'll know what I've got!'

If the united testimony of experienced men is to be relied upon, lead and linseed oil would seem to be the paint for us to use. The question would come up, "what lead?" and we have, fortunately, the answer of the associated manufacturers called the National Lead Co., which gives the "brands" of 22 manufacturers which are guaranteed to be pure white lead We do not say that other makes of lead are adulterated, but we do believe these brands of lead are pure lead, hence we shall look out to get a reliable make when we are buying. With the "tinting colors," which they also manufacture, any desired shade (or tint) can be made—and we shall then be certain that we have got "the best."—Mr. Hunter, in Farm Poultry

A Strange Numbness.

From Journal and Tribune, Lawrence, Kan.

It was a newspaper article that caused Mrs. E. L. Whipple who was stopping at 1136 Pennsylvania St., Lawrence, Kan., to try a medicine for which were claimed valuable qualities for diseases and ailments that seemed to fit her case. She was then living in Michigan and it was some time before she got around to taking the medicine, but in December 1893 she began and has since that time become a well woman. Mrs. Whipple never tires telling about the remedy that helped her so much and when called on by the reporter, was glad to give the desired information about her case.

She said that in December 1893 she first commenced to use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. At times she would be so dizzy-headed and so very nervous that she could hardly get around. She had spells of numbness, a pin stuck into her body producing no feeling whatever. After she took one box of Pink Pills she felt a good deal better but kept on taking them till four boxes had been used, when she found herself completely cured. She no longer feels any dizziness or numbness and feels as though it was a duty to make known to everyone her happy experience with Pink Pills. Not only in justice to the proprietors does she gladly do this on every occasion, but that those similarly afflicted may learn where to look for a remedy for every nervous disease. She recommends the Pink Pills highly and thinks that they also cured her of nervousness.

Mrs. Whipple is getting well along in years, and for a time was almost helpless. When she began taking Pink Pills her youth seemed to return and she was strong and hearty again. She lives at her Michigan home but has been staying with her relatives in Lawrence for over six months, and besides proclaiming the praises of Pink Pills from her home she speaks of them wherever she is acquainted.

Dr Williams' Pink Pills contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities and all forms or weakness. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork or excesses of whatever nature. Pink Pills are sold in boxes only at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2 50, and may be had of all druggist, or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

Literary.

Dr. Emery R. Johnson, Lecturer, on Transportation at the University of Pennsylvania, is the author of a paper on "The Industrial Services of Railways," recently issued by the American Academy of Political and Social Science in its series of publications.

In this paper Dr. Johnson concisely states what the industrial services of the railways are, refers to the problems that confront the public in their connection and gives his views of the best methods of solving them. The paper is a brief general survey of the whole question of transportation by rail.

The Monthly Illustrator, H. C. Jones, Publisher, New York, for August displays the work of several men and women of note in the artistic world, accompanying literary articles of decided interest. George Parsons Lathrop considers the use made of of wind and water as "pictorial elements," for which A. F. Bunner's pictures furnish illustrative examples. "Sympathy with Nature in Modern Art," by Dora Read Goodale, illustrated by Albert Insley. "The Decorative Idea in Illustration," by Alexander Black, with drawings by Otto Tousnern; and "The Human Face," by Edward King, with portrait sketches by F. S. Coburn, are all articles of special interest to art lovers. A series of drawings of small animals by a Japanese artist is accompanied by a somewhat argumentative essay, by Ernest Ingersoll, on "The Naturalist and the Artist."

HARRELL—GRIFFITH—On Aug. 25th, 1895, at Shoshie Baptist church, by Rev. Braxton Craig, Jos. P. Harrell and Ella J. Griffith.

DIED.

LASSITER—Died in Salem, N. C., June 25th, Lizzie Vena, infant daughter of W. C. and E. F. Lassiter, aged six months and one day. May God in his mercy bless the heart-broken mother and father, and spare the only little brother that is left to comfort them in their declining years. Weep not, for Lizzie is not dead but sleepeth. M.

TERRELL—On August 12th Bro. Loftin Terrell of Wake county departed this life. He lived to a good old age. Many years ago he united with Mt. Vernon church, and made a faithful member. He was once Senator from Wake county in the North Carolina Legislature. He was never married, and leaves a good estate to his relatives. A. D. H.

FRINK—Died August 10th, 1895, after an illness of eight days, in Decatur county, Ga., little Edith Jewell, infant daughter of C. D. and Minnie Lee Frink, aged one year, nine months and twenty-four days.

"So fades the lovely, blooming flower,
Frail, smiling solace of an hour;
So soon our transient comforts fly,
And pleasure only blooms to die."

J. F. T.

PARKER—James O Parker was born Dec. 9th, 1867, and died July 25th, 1895. At the age of twenty-one he joined Ahoskie Baptist church, where he remained a faithful member until the day of his death. He leaves a devoted mother, brother, several sisters, and a host of friends to mourn their loss. But our loss is his eternal gain.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. M. L. Green. May the blessings of God rest upon the bereaved family. B. C.

BENDER—Sister Emeline Bender died at her son-in-law's, Mr. F. Foy, near Pollocksville, Jones county, N. C., July 12th, 1895. She was born February 14th, 1819, and was therefore seventy-six years old. She married Mr. John K. Bender at the of sixteen years. She connected herself with the Missionary Baptist church very early in life and proved to be an earnest, consecrated worker for the Master as long as she lived. She had been in feeble health for a number of years, and often spoke of the strong hope she had in the blessed Saviour. She gave strong evidence of this hope, even in a dying hour, when she said, "I would like to hear Dr. Nelson (her son-in-law) pray once more, but it does not make any difference, for we will both soon be in heaven." She leaves four daughters, a host of friends and relatives to mourn her death. The church at Pollocksville has lost a consecrated member and the community at large a kind friend. While we mourn our loss let us remember that it is her eternal gain.

A. H. P.

MADDREY—Mrs. S. J. Maddrey, wife of W. J. Maddrey of Seaboard, N. C., was born March 24th, 1836, and died July 1st, 1895. She professed faith in Christ early in life and was baptised into the fellowship of the M. E. Church at Pleasant Grove, near Jackson. Soon after her marriage she joined the Baptist church at Mt. Carmel, where she remained a member until the organization of the Baptist church at Jackson, to which she transferred her membership. She afterwards transferred her membership to the Baptist church at Seaboard, and remained an active member there until she died. She was the mother of four children, all boys, the oldest of whom died in 1870, aged twelve years; three children and three grandchildren survive her.

One who did not know Sister Maddrey would write only the above facts. For several years the writer was her pastor and learned to regard her as a Christian, with an abiding sense of her own sinfulness, with great humility, with meekness of spirit, with strong faith, with an unusual sympathy with the truth of the gospel, and a readiness to yield herself to its requirements. She loved her church, its members, its work, and the worship of the sanctuary. Trusting in God, she stood for the right; loving Christ, she learned of him, and grew more and more like him. She fell at the post of duty, beloved by those who knew her; and she has left to her loved ones, to her neighbors, to her church, the example and the power of a beautiful Christian life. C. W. Scarborough.

The Home Circle.

My Mother's Memory.

There is one bright star in heaven
Ever shining in my night;
God to me one guide has given,
Like the sailor's beacon-light,
Set on every shoal and danger,
Sending out its warning ray
To the home-bound, weary stranger
Looking for the land-locked bay.

In my farthest, wildest wanderings
I have turned me to that love;
As a diver, 'neath the waters,
Turns to watch the light above.
—John Boyle O'Reilly.

Christ and the Trees.

Into the woods my Master went,
Clean forspent, forspent,
Into the woods my Master came,
Forspent with love and shame.
But the olives they were not blind to him,
The little gray leaves were kind to him—
When into the woods he came.

Out of the woods my Master went,
And he was well content,
Out of the woods my Master came,
Content with death and shame,
When death and shame would woo him last,
From under the trees they drew him last;
'Twas on a tree they slew him last,
When out of the woods he came.
—Sidney Lanier.

The Art of Forgetting.

A lady, whose life in a certain well-known educational institution has not been without its trials and vexations, was talking about her experience to her friends at home.

"Are all the people at the institute so perfectly lovely?" asked a listener.

With a bright smile, she answered, "Somehow I remember the pleasant things and forget the others."

No doubt this was in part an acquired grace. Is it not one well worth cultivating if only for our own peace of mind?

A child begged for the story of Daniel one night at bed time.

"I am afraid, said the mother, "you will dream about lions."

"Oh, no!" returned the little one, "I will dream about Daniel and leave out the lions."

How much more cheerful and serene our lives might be if we, too, could leave out the lions. It is true that in much of our life the sweet and the sad are so interwoven we cannot separate them without destroying the entire fabric. We would not forget the grief which opened to us the heart of a friend, nor the parting which was not all pain, nor the dying glory which we saw through tears. Over such experiences we pray, "Lord, keep my memory green;" but the cutting remarks, the cold neglects, the unkind act, Lord, help us to forget.

It is not worth while to cherish the memory of our mistakes and failures. Let them serve their purpose of prevention for the future and be forgotten. They should be stepping stones, by means of which we may attain a higher level, and not a wall to impede our progress.

"Oh, Emeline! let us forget the past and begin anew." This exhortation was found on a fragment of a letter written by some unknown person, and was often repeated to me half jocosely by the finder. It might be well for us to take the words as a motto. "Forget the past and begin anew;" not the kindness and friendship and joy of the past, but its bitterness, its vexations, its mistakes.—Selected.

The Tree of Death.

"A gentleman who visited Java has sent a very singular tree to his sister who resides in Savannah. It is called the tree of death. He says that the natives described to him that there was a singular tree called the Kali Mujah. Its breath would kill birds, and even human beings. One day when he was chasing a bird of paradise, he noticed that it dropped suddenly to the ground under a tree. He examined the tree, and began himself to feel strangely, as the odors from its leaves began to be inhaled by him. His head swam, and ringing sounds came to his ears, as though he were being chloroformed. He hastened away from it, but procured a specimen and sent it to America, which, it is said, is the first one transplanted in our soil. What a striking illustration this is of the tree of death which has been planted in our fair America by the distiller! It has leaves for the blighting of the nations. I see the young, the middle aged, the old, chasing the birds of pleasure and then falling down beneath the dark shadow of this baleful tree, to die there, never to rise again. Would that we might lay the axe at the root of this tree!—Rev. E. S. Ufford, author of "Throw out the Life Line."

For Nervous Females.

Horsford's Acid Phosphate.

Dr. J. B. Alexander, Charlotte, N. C., says: "It is not only pleasant to the taste, but ranks among the best of nerve tonics for nervous females."

Up in Michigan a Sunday school superintendent, at the close of an address on the creation which he was sure he had kept within the comprehension of the least scholars, smilingly invited questions. A tiny boy, with a white, eager face and large brow, at once held up his hand. "Please, sir, why was Adam sent a baby?" The superintendent coughed in some doubt as to what answer to give; but a little girl of nine, the eldest of several brothers and sisters, came promptly to his aid. "There was nobody to nurse him!" The New Orleans Picayune thinks a theological seminary would have turned that over for a week, with no better result.

The Beauty of Plain Living.

We love to see people live well, says a thoughtful writer, and to dress respectably, and enjoy themselves, but there is a happy mean in all things, and when that is passed in the direction of extravagance the people distress and enslave themselves and diminish their ability to do good. For the sake of keeping up the styles people live far above their income, harrass themselves with debt and wear themselves out. How much better is a plain, quiet, Christian home, where all is peace and cordiality, the neighbors heartily welcome to come and go at will, and free from the pestering, senseless conventionalities of fashionable life. Why should our earthly life, which at best cannot continue a hundred years, be fretted and burdened and worn out prematurely by vain efforts to ape the manners of the idle, irreligious, self seeking, rich devotee of pleasure? God has us in the world for a nobler purpose than this, and those do well who strive to place this service above all else.—Ex.

Poultry Pointers.

No poultry should be killed for market which is not of good size and in good condition. No food should be given for hours before killing. Those who allow themselves to be tempted by high quotations into shipping inferior stock, invariably meet with disappointment.

For soft shell eggs, put the hens at work scratching, as they indicate the fowls are too fat. Soft eggs, apoplexy, egg bound and nearly all such diseases, are due to over feeding.

Dry picking is the method preferred by dealers, and when done as it should be, gives best results. Never pack dress poultry until the animal heat has entirely left the body, and make sure the skin is free from moisture.

Foul air and filth are the cause of most poultry diseases, therefore see that all houses, yards, boxes, nests, feeds and water cups are clean. Guard carefully against draughts, but ensure ample ventilation.

To procure eggs, avoid overfeeding, but be generous with meat, milk, and vegetable rations. Grain at night is a necessity, and during the cold months corn is the best of them.—Stockkeeper.

Take Time.

Let us take time for the good bye kiss. We shall go to the day's work with a sweeter spirit for it. Let us take time to speak kind words to those whom we love. By and by, when they can no longer hear us, our foolishness will seem more wise than our best wisdom. Let us take time to be pleasant. The small courtesies, which we often omit because they are small, will some day look larger to us than the wealth which we have coveted or the fame for which we have struggled. Let us take time to get acquainted with our families. The wealth you are accumulating may be a doubtful blessing to the son who is a stranger to you. Your beautifully kept house, busy mother, can never be a home to the daughter whom you have no time to caress.—Christian Herald.

For insomnia, sleeplessness, nervousness, hysteria and all forms of nervous exhaustion and debility, there is but one remedy, Johnson's Sarsaparilla and Celery works directly upon the nerve centers and never fails to cure. Large bottles, 50 cts Sold by John Y. MacRae, druggist, Raleigh, N. C.

If the Son of man should come to night, would He find the house in order? Would He recognize our home as a Christian home? Would He find His alter in it? Would He find His memory cherished? Would He find His will obeyed? Would He find His Word read? Would he find everything going on according to His orders? Would He find the servants fed and all around us cared for according to our ability? Would He find the house swept and the vineyard full of grapes? If so, He would find us ready to welcome Him with joy, sure of our reward and of His approving smile. But if He came and found none of these things, would not His coming be like the cry of fire at mid-night?—like a clap of thunder out of a clear sky!—Ex.

Avoidable Expenses.

It cost money to neglect repairing the fences while the ground is soft.

It costs money to have a poor fence around pastures, for the cattle to break through.

It costs money to allow the manure to lie under the eaves, and fertilize the roadside or nearest stream.

It costs money, in the extra feed required, to keep cattle and horses together loose in the same yard.

It costs money to let the cows become poor during the winter, and take all summer to recover condition.

It costs money to let the manure lay in piles all winter, when labor is cheap and work scarce, and draw it out in spring, when labor is high and work abundant.—American Agriculturist.

Which is Correct?

Some boys were asked the other day to define "editor." Here are some of their definitions: "An editor is a man who handles words." "An editor makes his living out of the English language;" "An editor is somebody who does not do anything himself, and when somebody else does, goes and tells other people all about it;" "An editor is a man who has the industry of a beaver, the instincts of a bee and the patience of an ass."

Baldness is often preceded or accompanied by grayness of the hair. To prevent both baldness and grayness, use Hall's Hair Renewer, an honest remedy.

It is one thing to praise the beatitudes; it is another thing to practice their spirit. Any one can do the former; it requires grace to succeed in the latter.—United Presbyterian.

HORRIBLE SORES

WHICH CAUSED THEM.

Traveler Henry Hudson's Experience.

"Among the many testimonials which I see in regard to certain medicines performing cures, cleansing the blood, etc., none impress me more than my own case, and I conscientiously believe it to be my duty to let people know it. Twenty years ago, at the age of 18 years, I had swellings on my legs, which broke and became running sores. Our family physician could do me no good, and it was feared that the bones would be affected. At last, my good old mother urged me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I took three bottles, the sores healed, and I have not been troubled since. Only the scars remain, and the memory of the past, to remind me of the good Ayer's Sarsaparilla has done me. I now weigh two hundred and twenty pounds, and am in the best of health. I have been on the road for the past twelve years, have noticed Ayer's Sarsaparilla advertised in all parts of the United States, and always take pleasure in telling what good it did for me."—Henry Hudson, James Smith Woolen Machinery Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

THE question is no longer, Is it right to insure? but, Are you able to maintain a policy? As a means of protecting one's family, as a means of saving money, as a means of making a fairly safe investment, insurance is legitimate. That it is profitable to the companies and desirable to the average man is shown by the enormous financial strength of the several leading companies and by the inconceivable amount of insurance that is written yearly.

There is one thing about insurance that everybody ought to know: it is not a guess; it is not a speculation from the company's standpoint. Nothing is surer, not to be absolutely sure, than the mortality tables kept by insurance men. Take ten thousand men, sons of fairly healthy parents, themselves in good condition, and an insurance manager can tell you how many to a man will be dead in ten years. In France where a record of the weather has been kept for more than a century, they have no difficulty foretelling considerable rains, frosts, cold waves or storms. History is the only basis of reasonable prophecy. So in the case of man, the insurance writers have kept such close records of mortality that they know precisely how much to charge for insurance, knowing how much they will have to pay out.

This being so, another valuable fact follows: there is something the matter with cheap insurance. If what we have said is so, it is not easy for one company to offer more advantages or cheaper rates than another. There may be slight differences, but great superiority with safety is impossible. Then the wise course is to seek safe insurance rather than cheap or unusually attractive policies.

WE HAVE written the foregoing by the way. We were set to thinking on the subject by a most abominable business that is now being introduced in our State—child insurance. It is horrible to think about when it is presented in a true light.

What motive can a man have for insuring the life of a baby in the cradle or a three years or six years old child? Is any one dependent on the child? Is it for protecting any one? By no means. The only light in which a good motive can appear is that of insuring the child on the plan of accumulating a certain amount which will be given him when he reaches a certain age. But good companies will not insure (the right term is endow) a child on this plan until he reaches twelve years of age, while child insurance is not limited thus, and, furthermore, it is straight-out insurance, nothing to be paid except at death. So it is nothing more or less than speculating in one of the most uncertain of chances—the lives of children. In a very clear sense the father who insures his infant son without purpose of endowment puts himself in a position to wish for the death of the child: he pays out his money, not to protect any one, not to insure any one against want, for the child contributes nothing to support of the family; but to make money—which he cannot make unless the child dies. And it is a fact that men have killed their children for insurance.

This hideous business is going on among the less intelligent classes in some parts of the State; in Raleigh it is being quietly pushed. Several States have prohibited it by law, and ours ought to the first opportunity.

THE true Christian will not be discouraged in missions. If God can wait, it is no matter to us: we must work. A venerable mission worker recently uttered these words:

"And so God has always waited, and Christ has waited; his enemies had their day and hour, and his time had not yet come. In a like manner did Elijah wait all the live-long day till the priests of Baal could exhaust their resources; in a like manner did Moses wait until magicians could do their best with their enchantments; in like manner did David wait, and wander about from Gath to Adullam, till Saul had worked out his unworthy nature to the full as a king; in a like manner did Abraham wait till the Hivites and the Jebusites and the Amorites all had their day before he could have his. God has been wonderful in waiting; he waited for the sixteen hundred years and more before the flood; he waited the fifteen hundred years and more from Moses to Christ; he waited in all heathen lands till the full fruitage of heathenism could disclose itself; he waited in China till Lau Chu and Confucius and Gautama and the popes of Rome could all have their say without interference—and now at last his messengers are taking the field."

Recent set backs are in keeping with the historic truth: "The blood of martyrs is the seed of the church."

Here is a text which needs to be "writ large" for the benefit of brethren who imagine that to "bring down the house" with a ludicrous story is of itself a notable feat: "Neither filthiness, nor foolish talking, nor jesting, which are not convenient; but rather giving of thanks." Eph. v. 4 These, along with "fornication and uncleanness," are not to be "named" among God's people, "as becometh saints."—Religious Herald.

A free circulation of this paragraph will help mightily. We believe in humor; we admire the humorous speaker in platform and in general meetings. But there is not one in ten thousand who think they are humorous that is humorous.

A preacher or public speaker who gets the attention of his audience by a humorous sally is a good man in any meeting. But the trouble is with the fellows who try to imitate him. They seem to think that a laugh instead of a lesson is the end in view, and some of them are willing to wound a brother's feelings or to make vulgar allusions just to get the laugh. And they usually get it—from themselves at least.

If any brother really doesn't know whether his "humor" is genuine or not, let him see if it is spontaneous. Never set down and deliberately premeditate the perpetration of "funny" remarks.

WE HAVE seen it somewhere urged that a school of missions ought to be established at the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary; and that Prest. Whitsitt approves the idea.

We have nothing to say against it; but we wish to say that as a school of missions the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary now stands first among Baptist educational institutions. We say this from observation. We have never known a Southern Baptist Theological Seminary man who was not an active and uncompromising mission man. In fact we find them active, able and uncompromising Baptists in every respect. Bro. A. D. Hunter—a Seminary man who loves to work for the Lord in the country—was telling us the other day of the missionary meetings that are had at the Seminary; how inspiring they were, and how valuable the impressions gained in them are now to him. Yes, anything to emphasize missions; but let it not be overlooked that as it is our Seminary is a center of myriads of missionary influences.

When the Cuban government is set up, as it soon will be, we shall have equally as good international authority and precedent to recognize a state of war in the island, as Spain did for our own Confederate insurgents forty days after the shot on Fort Sumter. We can return to her, in the interests of liberty, the compliment she then paid us in behalf of slavery. The justice will be poetic. With all possible decorum, with a politeness above criticism, with a firmness wholly irresistible, we should assist Spain out of Cuba and out of the hemisphere as effectually as Lincoln and Seward did the French invaders of Mexico in the 'sixties. Moreover, according to American precedent, neither a state of hostilities nor the setting up of a civil or military organization is positively necessary to entitle a people to belligerent rights; for before either of these conditions was established in 1888, we went so far as to issue a proclamation for "prevention of unlawful interference in the civil war in Canada." Our record toward Spain is clear. We heartily approved when George Canning invoked the Holy Alliance to prevent her from recovering her American provinces, and in 1826 we refused to guarantee her perpetual possession of Cuba in exchange for commercial concessions to ourselves. Our obligations to her are measured by an easily terminable treaty, which, however, while in force, in no way prevents us from recognizing Cuba's belligerency. Is it difficult for us to decide between free Cuba and tyrant Spain? Why not fling overboard Spain and give Cuba the aid which she needs; and which our treaty with Spain cannot prevent? Which cause is morally right?—which is manly?—which is American?—Clarence King, in September Forum.

The Southern Baptist Theological Seminary.

BY REV. J. H. KERFOOT, D. D.

I should be glad to say a word through the RECORDER to the young ministers of North Carolina. I think I have never been so impressed anywhere with the number of young ministers who ought to seek a theological education as at Charlotte last year. As I saw that body of splendid young men, I found it hard to realize that so many of them could have seriously entered upon their life-work without availing themselves of the opportunities afforded for thorough preparation.

Brethren beloved, let us reason together about this matter. Think of what this means for you individually, and of what it means for the cause of the Master whom you wish to serve.

1. Think of what it means for your own future. I do not say that you can not be an efficient minister without a theological training. Many noble ministers were never in a seminary. But it is undoubtedly true that if you are a consecrated man of God, you can add greatly to your efficiency, and therefore to the demand for your services, if you will properly fit yourselves for your work. If a man is going to be a doctor, he must study medicine; and he ought to study it where he can do so to the best advantage. If a man is going to practice law, he must study law, and he ought to study it where he can do so to the best advantage. Shall the children of this world be wiser in their generation than the children of light? What can a young man be thinking about who sees the doctor and the lawyer pressing for the very best special preparation, and himself willing to stop short of the very best that he can get?

Brethren, do you realize that this means for many of you that, long before you are old, the churches are not going to be willing to hear you preach? More and more are the churches demanding that their ministers shall have a theological training. The men who fail to get this training are going into the race of life sadly handicapped. Those who do this often encourage themselves by the fact that some good brethren have been wonderfully successful who never went to the Seminary. Yes, this is true. We thank God for it. And some men will succeed anywhere, and under almost any circumstances.

But, brother, are you sure that you are one of these? And besides do not deceive yourself. The changes that a young man who fails to properly prepare, will succeed now, are vastly less than they were forty years ago. The demands of the churches now upon the preachers are very different from what they were then. If there were nothing more at stake than your own future, you could not even then afford not to take a special theological training, unless the providence of God made it impossible for you to get such a training.

2. But look at it from a higher point of view. You are in the ministry for the service of God and the good of men. Is it right for you to offer your Saviour anything less than the very best that you can make of yourself? Have you a right before God to mar your efficiency by failing to make the most of yourself, and of your opportunities? Have you a right before God to take the risk of some day being a stranded and churchless minister, when you might fit yourself for an efficiency that would be ever increasing even down to old age? True, a theological training is no insurance against being cast aside early by the churches. But under God it may be one of the very greatest agencies, both for early and later efficiency. Do you not owe it to the Master to fit yourself for serving him with the utmost efficiency for the longest possible time?

I am well aware of the many things that may be said over against the plea that I have made for theological training. The question with many is, "How is it possible for me to go to the Seminary?" "I am in debt now, what can I do?" Some think their college training is enough. Some listen to the flattery of the sisters and of some of the older brethren who do not know, and think they can do well without a theological training. Some are so bent on getting married that they won't listen to anything. They are "moon-struck." But, brother, be sure as you live, all of these objections are specious and unreliable.

You can come to the Seminary if you will simply say I will. If you do not believe this, write to Rev. E. C. Dargan about the Students' Fund, and see if somehow the way cannot be opened. Theologically education has been made too cheap for any good brother who wants it ever to say he is not able. If there is any real manhood in you, and you have "a will, there is a way." As to the other objections, I cannot answer them in this article; it would be too long.

But, brother, let me say that nearly every objection that you hear and nearly all of the advice to you against going to the Seminary, comes from good people who simply do not know. I would not disparage the advice of these. But would it not be well also to seek advice on such an important matter from at least some of those who have tried it for themselves? Can you find one single person of good common sense and piety who, after having tried it for himself, will advise you not to go to the Seminary. I would like to offer a prize for such a man.

Suffer just a word now in reference to our Seminary at Louisville. The Southern Baptist Theological Seminary was started out by Doctors Boyce and Broadus and Manly and Williams, and others of the wisest men of the South. It was specially designed to meet the wants of Baptist churches for theological training. Some of its features are altogether peculiar to it. Its course of study is so arranged as to provide the very highest and most thorough course for the most advanced men, while its entirely elective system enables us to offer to those who are not so well prepared the list that they feel able to take. Besides coming in contact with the professors and tutors of the Seminary, there is the opportunity each year to come in touch with from 250 and 300 of the young ministers of your day and generation. Think of what this means in the way of stimulus to work and of future friendships. Those who come to our Seminary may after that go to almost any State and there they will find their class mates, or at least their former fellow students. Do you not think that it is worth your while to come to the Seminary? If so, write to President W. H. Whitsitt for a catalog, and Prof. E. C. Dargan for any information about the Students' Fund, and to any of the professors for any special information that you may desire.

A Tribute to Sister Knight.

BY REV. D. W. HERRING, CHINING, CHINA.

Dear Recorder:—The sad tidings of Sister Fannie Knight King's death went to you by the last mail. But I feel like saying a few words about her, and through the RECORDER. She was a devoted friend of the RECORDER, and she loved Bro. Bailey. I heard her, the last time I saw her, speak of him in terms of love. I know he loved her, too. I have heard him speak of her as one of his personal friends and his favorite missionary. She is gone on, Brother Bailey, and will give you a welcome when you come. [This letter was written to the former editor of the RECORDER, whose death occurred six days after that of Sister King's—EDITOR].

Sister King was an extraordinary woman; devoutly pious, rigidly conscientious, intensely earnest, thoroughly consecrated and unceasingly devoted. Her demeanor was that of the highest type of womanhood, and her noble character ever shone out to the best advantage. She was attractive therefore, and winsome—winning not for herself alone, but especially for Christ into whose image she had become conformed beyond most Christians. Who that knew her did not love "Miss Fannie"? Not one on earth. We feel united in this love to day as we think of her and miss her. Having hold of our heartstrings, she is drawing us after her, upward, heavenward!

I have watched with growing admiration her course as a missionary. I met her at the wharf when she set foot in China. I saw she had arrived, body, heart and soul. From the first to the last she was laying no plans for going home. It almost seems now that she might have been possessed with the knowledge of the fact that she was not to return to her loved home in America, but to go straight from here to her home in heaven. Yet she did not come and go into the work, as fleeing from an intolerable world into a refuge: she was as happy and cheerful as the days were long.

Duty meant much to her—for duty she would have died—but she did not serve as driven by duty, but as a privilege. Her manner of life entitles her to a place on Paul's list of the faithful; for she served and "endured as seeing Him who is invisible." She likewise "had respect unto the recompense of the reward." This walking by faith and not by sight not only determined the nature of her work, but also the manner of doing it. So tremendous is the amount of work to be done in the mission field, and so little does one seem to accomplish, especially by any one act, and most especially by any one little act, that one is tempted, for this or that excuse, oftentimes to sit down and do nothing—except perhaps to deceive himself by thinking on what he is going to do. She for one did not yield to that temptation, for the reason just given, but was serving her ever present, on-looking, co-working Lord, and serving him for his glory's sake. Not that she did not love these Chinese and strive for their souls. Nay; but because she did not love them with something of the love wherewith Jesus loves them; she became a channel through which his love flowed out; her life was a fulfilment of his love for them. Jesus touched the leprosm and was not defiled thereby; she lived and moved among these people and was unsullied. He became flesh and dwelt among us; she, in her Chinese dress and home, was not only in theory but actually amongst them as one of them, reaching unto them. But it cost Jesus his life, so it did hers. But as Jesus' death was not untimely, neither was hers. His was not until his work was finished; so was hers, and God will in his own way—we know not how—make it turn out the greatest good for his cause.

She laid down her life for these people. For she must have caught the small-pox—that dreadful disease of which she died—in passing across the country from Tai Dzwong, returning from Shanghai whither she went to be married. Having gone out to meet them, I was along, and saw how she let the women and children crowd close around her wheelbarrow, seizing upon these opportunities to talk to them about Jesus. From some of these perhaps death found found its occasion. But it was no accident—there are none to the Christian, whose steps are ordered of the Lord. Nought, good or bad, comes without it is given or permitted by him without whose notice not even a sparrow can fall to the ground. Yet from a human standpoint, and not considering her mission into the next world, her death seems a great pity.

Of her work in her former field, in Pingtu and the region round about, her own pen has told you something—for though she was not given to telling of what she was going to do, she did, to sustain interest in the cause, modestly tell of what she was doing. That work has already brought forth rich fruit. But in this her new field she was not permitted to tarry long enough to reap any. She was sowing in hope. And never was she more hopeful than when I saw her last, only a few days before she was stricken down.

Her marriage not only promised domestic happiness, but filled her with the hope of being relieved from the annoyance and suspicion to which she, as an unmarried lady, was subject among these people, and of being enabled to plunge herself even more freely into the work. May God stir up her host of friends at home to love more and do more for this cause which she loved so much. "She hath done what she could"—what of us?

I know what her bereft husband, Bro. W. D. King of Savannah, Ga., is passing through and what is before him. And I think of her family at home. How this will come crushing down upon them! I was in her dear old home a few hours, and saw how they loved her; the sacrifice of her to this work was one that their hearts had to renew every day. Her father spoke feelingly of her return, and the joy of it, should he live. Brother, she did not return to you, but you shall go to her. There you shall part never. Our Saviour is Jesus. He was manifested that he might destroy the works of the Devil, one of the worst of which is death. The gloom of the grave is gone. Look rather at the glorious resurrection! "Said I not unto thee if thou wouldst believe * * *"

Numbers vs. Spirituality.

Now, that so many churches are holding their annual or biennial protracted meetings, it seems to me that a word of warning along some lines in their connection may be in order.

Some pastors seem to have taken on the modern evangelistic idea and expend their forces in securing numbers of converts to count. A greater mistake was never made than in getting into the churches members who give no satisfactory evidence of a change of heart. I remember to have attended and labored in a meeting some years ago which resulted in the reception and baptism of over one hundred persons.

Looking back now over the subsequent church history of those persons, I think I may safely say that I can count on my fingers those of the number who have been of real spiritual benefit to the church.

What has proved true in that case I believe will hold with equal force in many others. But why are we brought face to face with such examples? Is it because the sustaining grace of God is inadequate to the demands of those who have been liberated from the thraldom of sin by regenerating grace? Paul said: "I am persuaded that he is able to keep that which I have committed unto him against that day." Is it because a large proportion of the professed converts have been brought into the church under the heat of excitement, or because it was popular to "join the church?" Whatever may be the cause, there is a fault somewhere which ought to be remedied. I believe that our churches exhibit to an alarming extent the necessity of reform along the line of reception of members.

This is not intended as an argument against protracted meetings, but against the loose manner in which they are often conducted and their results garnered. My experience and observation has led me to believe that many of our churches need a revival of religion, which would so increase their spirituality as to be the means of reducing their membership, by purging out the branches which have a name to live and are dead. Every church—and especially those having only once a month preaching,—should by all means have occasional special services; but the primary object of such services should not be the increase of membership so much as the deepening and broadening of the spiritual life of those already in the churches. Preaching, to the unregenerate should be indulged in, to be sure; but the conversion of souls depends largely on the spiritual condition of the church. "When Zion travails she will bring forth sons and daughters." We boast of numbers in North Carolina, but what are we doing for the extension of Christ's kingdom to justify our boast in numbers? Comparatively nothing. This comparative do-nothingism we believe to be largely the result of partially unconverted membership, an unconverted membership the result of high pressure methods resorted to in protracted meetings by professional evangelists and adopted by many pastors all over the land. The doors of the churches should not be made to swing too easy on their hinges. The plan of salvation should be explained so as not to exclude the necessity of a change in the practical life.

We should beware how we lay persons to "join the church," lest we get in those who have not passed from death unto life by faith in the Lord Jesus Christ.

The Biblical Recorder.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 11, 1895.

J. W. BAILEY, - - - EDITOR.
J. C. CADDELL, AGENT AND CORRESPONDENT.

GOLDEN words they, spoken by Dr. Curry in his address to the young men at Wake Forest last week, when he told them that what they got from the session would depend upon what they brought to the session. Only a few days ago a young man was trying to decide to what college he should go, and on being asked the reason of his preference for a certain institution, said very innocently, "Just because of its name." Such reasoning of course was the result of youth and inexperience; but we could not help thinking what a surprise awaited him and all other young men thus deluded. No, young man, when you step out to be measured for your life-work, the question that will confront you will not be so much where did you come from, as it will be what did you bring with you, and where can you go?

WE SEE from Charity and Children that Bro. Boone and his co laborers have taken up their work at the Orphanage. We have not now, nor have we ever had, since the Orphanage became a part of our denominational work, a doubt about its success and continuous growth. The Orphanage, as was natural it should, at once found its way to the hearts of our people, and where it has failed to receive support, it has been due to the fact that the subject has not been duly presented to the churches; and so it will be in the future. Bro. Boone takes the work in a good healthy condition, and we expect to see the same success follow his work here as has been present with him in all his labors as pastor, teacher and agent. As Bro. E. Frost expressed it at the South Yadkin Association, "Let us thank God for Bro. Mills and the noble work he has done, and now let us stand by Bro. Boone and do more for the Orphanage than ever before."

Bro. Boone is a man of convictions, and has an opinion of his own, and this opinion may collide with that of some one else; it is so with every man who has strength of character and individuality—he constantly meets with opposition and difficulty, but this may not be evidence of inability or unfitness, but on the other hand may be the best evidence of superior knowledge and skill for the work in hand. Once more we would say, let all of our churches, about fourteen hundred in number, and probably as many Sunday schools, and individuals be tides, all do their duty in this matter, and the Baptist Orphanage enters upon an era of prosperity and usefulness not heretofore dreamed of by its dearest friends and most liberal supporters.

THE RECORDER is for helping and encouraging everything good in all of our denominational gatherings; and it is just as anxious to do away with what is objectionable and what will finally retard our progress.

With this in view, we asked Rev. L. Johnson, a wise, conservative, good-spirited brother, to write the RECORDER his impressions of the Baptist Chautauqua recently held at Red Springs. We printed his article with pleasure, and we know it has met with almost universal favor among our readers. It will be seen in another column that Bro. N. B. Broughton excepts to the opinions expressed. So good-natured controversalists can, with all safety, be left to themselves; and we shall pursue this course in the main. We will, however, be allowed a word in reference to the speaking sister, as that possesses more general interest than any other point mentioned by Bro. Johnson. The writer was not present at the Chautauqua, but accepting what Bro. Johnson states—and no part of it is denied—we are with him heart and soul. We do not understand Bro. Johnson as passing on the piety of this sister, or any other good quality that she may possess, but simply reviewing her conduct on this particular occasion.

We know Bro. Johnson would heartily unite with Bro. Broughton in saying nice things of the sister, and if he were not careful would out do him, if he could only see what it had to do with the matter in hand. We hope the occasions for such criticisms among Baptists may be few and far between; but if they should come, then we are thankful for a man like Bro. Johnson, who will speak his mind kindly, honestly and without fear. And more than this, we are thankful for the endorsement which such a course will find among the Baptists of the State.

THE latest intelligence from Dr. Geo. B. Taylor, missionary to Rome, Italy, who was thrown from a buggy at Appomattox, Va., last week, receiving injuries which were thought to be fatal, permits us to hope [illegible] injuries are not so serious as was [illegible] that he shall soon be restored to [illegible] for which let us [illegible]

STAND BY YOUR GUNS.

It is said that a gunner was describing the battle of Waterloo as he saw it just before Blucher came on the field with reinforcements. This engagement decided the destiny of Europe. The gunner stated that the dust and smoke of the battle was so thick and intense that, as he held the height consigned to his care by the commanding officer, he could not see five yards in front of him. He felt the swaying tides of the mighty battle move to and fro, and he did not know at one time whether he was surrounded by friends or foes. A listener asked him, "Well, my friend, what did you do in that supreme hour of darkness and solitude?" "I stood by my guns," he replied.

If this heroic deed is to be commended in the battles of this earth, how much more is heroism to be displayed and admired in the great spiritual conflicts that are raging around us every day?

A minister has charge of a fashionable church; some of his supporters have wine suppers and engage in progressive euchre and dancing. He is himself conscientiously opposed to these sports, and knows perfectly well that such members are a burden and clog to church life; yet, under the strong influences brought to bear on him, he winks at the social sins of his people, and forsakes his guns—the result being the corruption of the church. Stand by your guns, brother; shoot the last shot at these pleasure lovers; put a bullet in these mischievous practices.

There is a brother who moves into a community of Pedobaptists. He is fed with honey; the sentiment against Baptists is strong. It is suggested that it would be better for him in his trade or profession to unite with a Pedobaptist church; or that it would be of advantage to his wife and daughters in a social way to be thus connected. Shall the Baptist gunner lower his piece and throw away his powder—and his principles? Brother, load up your gun; blow the head off of these wicked expedients; turn your old Bible gun on priestly superstitions, and shoot good Baptist shot at them until old Rome, like old Jericho, falls by faith.

There is another brother. He wants an office this time. The political fight is on. He has been esteemed a temperance man; but temperance doesn't carry elections. He takes the shot out of his guns. He can't pronounce temperance or education. He does not care to be seen about a Baptist prayer meeting or at a church conference. He tells unseemly tales and treats his constituents with strong drink. Brother, such conduct is unworthy of a child of grace—and it may only prove in the end that you are a child of disgrace. Rub up that rusty old gun and fire at wrong whether in Church or State. Maintain the right; be a Baptist gentleman; shoot a Baptist gun so loud and clear that, like the trumpet, it will give no uncertain sound.

There is a minister who, for some cause, is without work. He begins to see imperfections in Baptist doctrine he never saw before. He is suddenly enamored of all the fables and tricks and twists and juggleries of Pedobaptism. He prefers a Romish canon to a Baptist gun. He deserts the good old weapon, and takes refuge among his foes. Go on, brother, somebody else with stronger nerve and better faith will fire the old piece again, and put a hole in your brightest hopes, and shatter, as has been done a thousand times before, the sham creeds to which you subscribe. Brethren, stand by your guns.

DR. CURRY AT WAKE FOREST.

Three weeks' time has made a great change in the appearance of things at Wake Forest. I left here just three weeks ago to attend the meetings of our Associations in the western portion of the State. Then the campus was quiet, the buildings closed, and everything seemed to be in restful repose. On my return I find that more than two hundred boys are answering to roll call and the regular work of the session well under way.

One of the rare pleasures of the commencement of the session, was the presence of Dr. J. L. M. Curry, who came especially to deliver an opening address to the young men just entering the session's work.

The Doctor is in fine health, being straight from the mountains of North Carolina, where he has for several years spent his summers. He congratulated the young men on being students of a College, and especially on being students of Wake Forest College, an institution with no superior in this country for thorough work, and for the developing of the best qualities of both head and heart of its students.

Many people, the speaker said, were mistaken as to the influences a young man had around him at college. Colleges, said he, are more emphatically the centers of good influences, and the opposers of everything that is low or degrading, than any other places on earth. He was not present to give advice, but would say that on every student's table ought to be found a Bible and a dictionary; and that every young man ought to write to his mother or sister at least once a week, and if he didn't happen to have a sister, then write to some one else's sister, and to use every means to keep in touch with life and good influences.

In reminding the young men that they stood on the threshold of a new session, he warned them that what the session brought to them would be just what they brought to the session, and that there was no royal road to learning, but that success came alike to all as the price of persistent, honest toil.

Education, said the Doctor, is the mastery of developed powers, and that is what you are here for. Every man of you has his own path to run, and failure awaits every one who starts in the race without this preparation. To deny this in reference to any living being, regardless of color or condition, is nothing less than blasphemy. Churches, the State, and society, all need and demand for their growth and purity the best development of all its members.

Dr. Curry in conclusion said that inasmuch as the power of speech was one of the prime distinctions of man over the lower animals, every man ought to strive to make a proper use of his own language, and not to be content with less than the correct use of words and with the purity and beauty of his own language.

This is no more than an imperfect reference to some thoughts noted down as we could spare the time for listening at the utterances of this charming orator, whose visit every friend of Wake Forest received with inexpressible pleasure and gratitude.

We commend the wisdom of Dr. Taylor in this departure of opening the work of the session; and we trust and believe the pleasure of this occasion will be more than equalled in the helpful, inspiring words of the speaker, as they shall, in the coming years, bear fruit in the lives of the young men who were present. ....At a meeting held at Pleasant Hill church by brethren J. W. Anderson and J. L. Brookshire there were fifty accessions to the church.

....Pastors who feel that the RECORDER ought to have a larger circulation among their people, should make known our January 1st, 1896, offer.

....Bro. R. S. Devane of Red Springs paid this office a pleasant call on his return from Oxford, where he had been to carry his daughter to Oxford Female Seminary.

....The Sandy Creek Association convenes with Rives Chapel church Sept. 19th. All traveling men and delegates going on train will do well to write Bro. John Carter, Ore Hill, N. C.

....Bro. G. P. Bostick, missionary to China, will not visit this country during the present year, but will remain for another year, when he hopes to visit his friends and relatives in this country.

....Draw the work close to your people, that their interest and zeal may be kept alive. Get them to reading the RECORDER, by starting them off on our offer of the paper until Jan. 1st, 1896, for fifty cents.

....We are pleased to hear that Oxford Female Seminary has opened well—a gain of fifty per cent. in the boarding department over the attendance at this time last year, and also a gratifying increase in day pupils.

....I thank you for calling my attention to my subscription to the best paper in the land. Enclosed find the money.—Rev. O. E. Stringfield. Thanks, brother; and we have space anxiously awaiting many others of like import.

....A cheering letter from President Brewer. He says: "I send check to pay for my advertisement in the RECORDER. The Institute has opened 33½ per cent. better than last year. We have a set of fine looking, bright, intelligent girls."

....Rev. C. L. Greaves, pastor of the Baptist church of this place, is holding a series of meetings at the academy this week. He opened the meeting Monday evening, and his bright sermons of pure gospel are beginning to make an impression on the town.—Sanford Express, Sept. 5.

....Bro. R. D. Fleming gave us a few pleasant moments of his time while in Raleigh last week to procure an editor for Charity and Children.

....Rev. W. F. Fry and his brethren at Bay Creek, in Pamlico county, entered their new house of worship last week. This is part of the State Mission work.

....There are now at Wake Forest 216 students. A fine demonstration of the good sense of a large number of fathers and mothers who want their boys to have a good education, for which they are willing to pay an honest price.

....Cleveland county has nine students at Wake Forest this session. For several years Cleveland has been among the most liberal counties in the College's patronage. This will tell for good in the future prosperity of the county as well as for the success of the College.

....The Yancey County Association closed on last Saturday the most delightful, and perhaps the most profitable session the body ever held. They determined on a new start in mission work, and by a unanimous vote appointed a Board of seven Trustees to establish a first-class academy in that county.

....Mr. W. R. Sikes, son of Mr. W. P. Sikes of Pendleton, left last Tuesday for the University of North Carolina which he will enter as a student. He is a very bright young man, intellectually and has fine prospects of a successful career.—Patron and Gleaner. Mr. Sikes is now back at Wake Forest.

....We regret to learn of the death of Dr. W. A. Harris at his home in Roanoke on the 4th inst. Dr. Harris was for twenty-seven years president of Wesleyan Institute, and for several years has been president of Virginia College for young ladies. He ranked with the foremost educators.

....I have been creditably informed that Rev. B. C. Berry, whose ordination occurred in my church at the call of Castle Haynes church, was silenced from preaching for gross immorality by the South Carolina M. E. Conference. This is to put the churches on their guard until the facts are known.—R. E. Peele.

....The exact number of students registered at Wake Forest is 216. The policy of the College is, and wisely so too, not to encourage a young man to come to Wake Forest while his interests can be as well, or better subserved in a good academy. The general average of preparation of the new men is higher than usual.

....Bro. J. C. Hocutt is in the midst of a good meeting at Graham. Our cause is weak at this point, but we shall not be surprised to hear ere long of an awakening among the saints if Bro. Hocutt shall have the usual blessings which have attended his ministry. The Lord bless you, brother, and give you strength equal to your desire to do good.

....Dr. C. Durham was in the Mission Rooms for the first time in three weeks last Monday. He has been greatly pressed with Associations in the western part of the State. Last week he crossed the Blue Ridge twice, preached five sermons, and spoke on State, Home and Foreign Missions, Education, Orphanage, Periodicals and Sunday schools—in all twelve times.

....From Treasurer J. D. Boushall's report in this paper can be seen that the total amount received to date for State Missions has been $4,801,23. Only eighty days now remain in which to secure the remaining $10,198.77 needed to take the Board to the Convention in Greensboro free of debt. Now is the time for every church to do large things for State Missions.

....Dr. J. W. Carter, after a pleasant vacation of over three weeks spent in West Virginia, has returned to his flock, and resumed his pastoral work with the First church, Raleigh, last Sunday. In the morning discourse he made feeling allusion to our late Sister Vass, whose death occurred during his absence. He drew some lessons from her extended career of usefulness in church work, and counseled his hearers to lives of service, that they, too, might be remembered for their helpful labor when they should be gone.

....At the Tabernacle last Sunday, Pastor Simms baptized a young lady, and received two members by letter. At the close of the night service, Bro. Robert H. Bradley was regularly set apart to the work of the deaconship. On the preceding Sunday, two others, brethren Joseph Weathers and W. A. Cooper, were set apart to the same office. Deacon Jacob S. Allen, after years of absence from the city, has returned and again united with this church, and has been recognized as a deacon, and has entered on his duties. Pastor Simms also preached at the Soldiers' Home in the afternoon.

....A "Welcome Service," was held last Sunday afternoon by the West End Baptist Sunday school. The choir, led by Prof. J. H. Smith, discoursed excellent music for the occasion. Addresses were made by brethren N. B. Broughton, Jacob S. Allen, J. D. Boushall, Dr. J. W. Carter, and W. J. Peele, all calculated to inspire a deeper interest in the work at this point. Dr. T. D. Watson is the efficient Superintendent of the School, and an enlarged attendance is expected. Pastor Hunter gave encouragement by his presence and help, and followed up the services by a helpful sermon at night.

....Dr. D. B. Nelson, who died recently at his home near Asheville, was one of the leading spirits of the Western North Carolina Convention. Up to a year or so ago he was president of the Convention, a position he filled with rare ability. For some years he was editor of the W. N. C. Baptist, during which he showed good editorial talent and decided skill in organizing denominational forces. The greatest strength, however, of Dr. Nelson was his power to preach the gospel. In this he was strong, earnest and unusually clear. The RECORDER tenders its sympathy to the bereaved family and friends who mourn the loss of this good man.

....Often I am greatly troubled to decide the best thing to do with young boys and girls who are before the court for crimes and misdemeanors. Recently I was compelled to sentence a white girl to the penitentiary, and I have written my sister to try to get her a place where she may be reformed and have a chance to redeem her character." The above are the words of Bro. A. W. Graham, who has recently been made Judge. To us they are suggestive of two thoughts. 1. Judges are not the cold and heartless distributors of penalties for crime as many people suppose, but in many cases their hearts yearn for the criminal which by law they must punish. 2. We need a place where young criminals may be taken and helped to have at least one chance more to better their lives.

ASSOCIATIONS.

LIBERTY.

For the first time the Liberty met at Randleman, N. C. This is a small town which has rapidly grown up on the railroad running from High Point to Asheboro.

Only a few years ago the State Mission Board decided to organize a church here, and we think the first pastor in charge of this work was Rev. Henry Sheets. He showed his characteristic good judgment in his first efforts at building up our cause by purchasing a lot in the most desirable portion of the town. Now they have a neat house of worship, and the congregation is good and growing every year.

Bro. Thomas Carrick, the present pastor, found no trouble in providing for all who came.

Bro. James Smith was again elected Moderator, and also Bro. H. Sheets, Clerk.

Bro. J. M. Hilliard preached the introductory sermon—a good, plain, practical discourse, the sort of preaching which has produced growth and development in all the churches where Brother Hilliard has been pastor.

All the work of the Association was done in the best spirit, and we think the pledges were better than heretofore.

Brethren Hall and Newton spoke for the Orphanage, and the pledges amounted to $220 besides a cash collection.

We were glad to have Prof. Poteat with us. He spoke on general education to a full house Wednesday night. I noted with real pleasure the extent of interest shown by the operatives of the factories, of whom a large number were present.

I heard a very intelligent man say not long since that slavery in the South had not as many supposed, passed away, but had changed from the colored to white subjects. Prof. Poteat does not go this far, but his speech contains some striking suggestions in this direction. I have no doubt that many of the methods, now innocently used with reference to the labor of our children and young people, will at no distant day be abandoned and looked upon as unwise and extremely hurtful to the mental, physical and moral development of the race.

On Thursday a number of us must leave to be at other meetings. Dr. Durham goes to the French Broad and other Associations over the Ridge. Brethren Mitchell, Peterson and the writer go to the Brushy Mountain and Three Forks.

BRUSHY MOUNTAIN.

At 2 o'clock we are at Wilkesboro where we spend the night, and at 7 o'clock Friday morning are on the road to New Hope ten miles away. We got there in time to hear the concluding speech of Bro. R. A. Spainhour on Temperance. This is a live question here, and no wonder, for there are, so I learn, 225 licensed distilleries in Wilkes county. It is not strange, then, that the Moderator of the Brushy Mountain, who always shows such a clear interest in other speakers, but who seldom talks himself, should, on this occasion, be heard from. Wilkes beats any county I have yet seen for fine apples. At every house passed the trees are loaded and the ground covered with the splendid fruit. Wonder why they do not ship a car load of those apples to the Baptist Orphanage and let the children dry them for use this winter!

New Hope is one of the nicest country churches we have seen in any part of the State. Bro. McNeill and his brethren made a noble effort to finish it by the meeting of the Association, and the brethren were very kind to help them with the small debt that remained. Dr. Durham often says that the greatest burden of our people is the erection of new houses of worship. I never realized this so forcibly before. I find at every Association brethren struggling to complete a house of worship, and there is nothing the RECORDER delights more in than helping these brethren in this struggle.

The Association took a new departure in Associational mission work. An executive committee, consisting of five brethren, was appointed to receive funds and direct this work in the destitute portions of the territory. This work is to be done in strict harmony with the State Mission Board, and the money expended will appear in our Convectional reports. The churches pledged almost twice the amount heretofore promised, and we feel sure the work which brethren Shaw and Pardee will do under this new plan will fully justify the wisdom of those who suggested it.

This mountain air seems to have been just what Bro. Mitchell needed. A youthful glow threatens to set in upon his cheeks, and already his complaint of his vest being a little too small.

We were in a crowd of forty who spent a night with Bro. McGlamery. I am sure I could not imagine what would happen [illegible] sleeping time came; and after I had failed to figure out any possible way of disposing of this throng, the father of Bro. McG., who lives near by, proffered to take some of the "settled" brethren. I was in this number, and so spent a restful night. A few times during the night Bro. Peterson was up suggesting to some of the brethren to "turn over," as music at that hour was not in order.

Sunday the crowd poured in till there was hardly hitching room in the grove much less sitting room in the house. At 11 o'clock Bro. Mitchell preached at the "stand." The people were greatly pleased with the sermon, and were perfectly willing to hear another sermon from Bro. Bradshaw as had been arranged; but after some very brief remarks the audience is dismissed. When dinner is over "we three" are on the road to the home of Daniel Boone. It was a pleasure to turn in for a moment to shake hands with Bro. Hall whose hospitable roof stood between our heads and a rain storm on this same day twelve months ago. He is now higher up the mountain—is building a new house, and says one room is to be set apart for "stragglers." He hopes Prof Sledd may come by next year.

Here we turn aside and find a comfortable place to spend the night with Bro. W. M. Lee. He has no daughters, and so there are no protracted "good-by's." It will be remembered that I am traveling with a bachelor and a widower, and it is surprising as well as delightful to see how readily they are agreed on some things. If I had only been able to take in short hand the constant talk of these two brethren, a sequel to "Maud Muller" might soon appear.

THREE FORKS.

This Association convened with Cove Creek church, probably the best section in the county. I have been attending this Association for the past six years, and have never seen so many people in attendance.

The discussions were good on all the subjects before the Association.

Crops are fine in all this section of the State, and I have never seen a better spirit prevail in all the work of the churches. We were disappointed in not meeting Bro. J. F. Spainhour, the former Moderator: in his absence, Bro. W. S. Farthing was made Moderator, and Bro. J. Younce, the old Clerk, was again elected. Bro. Sherwood, pastor of the church at which the Association met, had made the most ample arrangements for all who came; his difficulty was in getting people enough to occupy the homes he had at his command.

The Association gave Bro. Mitchell a good collection for the Board of Education, and he hopes the churches will do something for this work during the coming year.

SOUTH YADKIN.

Wednesday evening we are compelled to start for the South Yadkin, which meets with the church in Salisbury. Friday night we are on hand just too late to hear the introductory sermon by Dr. J. N. Stallings. The luxury of a seat on a railroad train was duly appreciated after having traveled 120 miles crossing the Blue Ridge in a two-horse hack. However, the fine weather we had in which to make the trip, the kindness of the brethren, and a larger list of subscribers than we ever received on this trip before, helped much to lighten the burdens of the trip.

Bro. N. S Jones had made a faithful effort to make the meeting in his town a success.

We were glad to see that the churches were well represented, and that there were plenty of ministerial brethren present to fill all the pulpits offered to the Association on Sunday.

I have not heard a better speech made on the Orphanage than the one made by Bro. E Frost. A good collection was taken, and the pledges were liberal for next year. Bro. Ivey Allen, the new Treasurer, was present, and was formally presented to the Association.

We were glad to see that the health of Bro. J. B. Holman, the Moderator, is greatly improved. He is one of the best presiding officers in the State, and always finds pleasure in meeting with his Association. Bro. J. C. Turner of Statesville was re-elected Clerk.

Bro. Blanchard was given a favorable time to present the claims of Wake Forest. We are constantly meeting new students on their way to the College.

The Association held over till Monday, and as we had to leave on Saturday, we missed a portion of the proceedings.

We are greatly indebted to brethren in all the Associations which have met for the interest shown in the RECORDER. It is owing to this that we have been enabled to do the best work we have ever done at these Associations.

Revival at Roper City.

Dear Recorder:—We began a meeting at Roper City, N. C., Monday after the fourth Sunday in August and closed the first Sunday in September.

Rev. Josiah Elliott was with me four days and worked earnestly for the Master's cause. We had an old-fashioned revival. The plain gospel was preached and the people heard and received it. The whole church was wonderfully strengthened. Thirteen united with the church. Many others professed faith in Christ, but did not join our church. This is a mission station, but I believe it will soon be self-sustaining.

I expect others to join us at our next regular meeting. Yours in Christian love.

From Mount Zion.

Arrived home last night, tired and weary, yet happy, and, I hope, considerate. Tired because of physical and mental worry, but happy because God had blessed me with a home, and I had been made to rejoice so many times within the last thirty five days in seeing so many happy souls. I have been directly in my field and in other brethren's fields in this Association since the fourth Sunday in July. Eternity alone will tell what has been done.

I labored week after the fourth Sunday in July at Beres with Bro. Horton. "There are a few names" in Beres church like the church in Sardis to which the angel spake in third chapter of Revelation "which have not defiled their garments; and they are worthy." We hope the meeting did the church much good. One professed, and many church members seemed to be revived.

We took buggy from this point and went to Mount Moriah. The church seemed to be ready, and the meeting started off with bright prospects. Bro. Furguson of Orange county was with us here some of the time. Bro. Horton did most of the preaching. I have baptized nineteen, and three have been restored.

At Ephesus, a small but active little church, Bro. Horton did some good preaching, and as a result I baptized seven. They are more interested in quality than quantity here. They think if they can have a good foundation to start on, they will eventually have a good church.

Bro. Mashburn joined us at Mount Hermon, and with Bro. Horton to pull with him, we had a strong team. I never heard better preaching. They uncovered some mysteries for us, and made the way plainer than ever before. Mashburn is a strong young brother. He speaks friendly but fearlessly. He does not handle the word deceitfully. He speaks the honest convictions of his soul. He regards "lines" more than he does "chips." I hope he will never go over the line. We had three professions here. Have not yet baptized at this point. The meeting was a good one.

I boarded the train here last Monday and went to Bethesda Tuesday morning, in Orange county, and assisted Bro. Crabtree in a meeting. There were several professions during the week, and the church seemed to be greatly revived. I left the meeting with bright prospect. I have not heard the result. Bro. Watson was conducting a meeting at Bethel, assisted by Bro. Odeam. Bro. Hocutt had closed week before at Cane Creek. These brethren had good meetings so far as I was able to find out.

Bro. Tyree is at Connelly Springs taking a vacation of a few weeks. He is very much missed by his people. Bro. Dowell has had meetings in his churches. Bro. Horton expects soon to have a meeting with his church here. We are very fortunate in getting Bro. Horton here. There are but few better men in my knowing. He preaches with power. We all love him. We want to get his entire time in this Association. We expect to begin a meeting at West Durham the third Sunday night. This fourth Baptist church of Durham is making great progress. We are looking forward to a gracious revival. Expect to protract at Piney Grove the fourth Sunday.

The Union meeting of this Association will meet at Yates church Friday before the fifth Sunday in September. Bro. J. C. Hocutt will preach the introductory sermon.

Those desiring to attend the Mount Zion Association, which meets with Bethesda church October 8th to 10th, by railroad, will get off at Brassfield, between East Durham and Nelson, which is about one mile from the church.

Bro. Johnson's Criticisms on the Chautauqua.

Bro. L. Johnson, the beloved shepherd of the flock at Lumberton, attended the Baptist Sunday-school Chautauqua on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. We regretted so much his absence on Saturday and Sunday, for many of us thought they were the best days of all for spiritual power. Several years ago a certain well known brother replied to a letter of mine by saying, "I am glad you wrote as you felt. I am sorry you felt as you wrote." We feel much the same way with regard to Bro. Johnson's article. Of course, he was very kind and complimentary to the officers and to the work. It is his usual nature to say pleasant things.

But Bro. Johnson says, "There was not enough help for country schools." Thinking over the whole work of the Chautauqua, I do not remember a single thing said or done that could not be appropriated by the country school. In fact, the idea of one thing for the city school and another for the country school is in my judgment all wrong. I know no reason for a difference in methods whether the school is in city or country. We should aim for the best wherever we are.

Brother Johnson's second objection is so much unlike him that I have hesitated in replying to it. "It seemed to me," he says, "there was a sort of feeling that a few churches in the State had a kind of monopoly of the thing, a sort of holy of holies, so to speak, into which they enter alone."

Personal letters were sent to every Baptist pastor and every Sunday-school superintendent in the State. Year after year we have labored to interest every church in the Chautauqua. We are encouraged each year with the increased number represented.

I feel sure Bro. Johnson really believes that there was in the breast of any of us the "holier than thou" feeling, as he criticism would seem to indicate. For one I do not believe such a spirit was felt or exhibited. Indeed I would despise myself if any act of mine made such an impression. Bro. Johnson is mistaken. The men and women who were prominent in the Chautauqua are not of the sort he refers to, and his intimation does them and himself injustice.

Bro. Johnson's reference to one of the sisters who took part in the exercises is the most unkind of all. If he had objected to what he calls a violation of "Baptist principles and polity," and not made an attack so personal upon one of the most consecrated, godly women I have ever known, I should not have objected. But I am surprised and hurt that he should have said what he did and in the way he did.

If Bro. Johnson had known the toil and sacrifice, the love and labor that the sister he referred to has given to her Lord and Master; if he had known the lives ready to perish that she has lifted up; of the dark homes into which she has carried sunshine; of how true and loyal she has been under severest trial,—surely, if Bro. Johnson had known these things, he would have been less personal and unkind.

I believe the Chautauqua was a great blessing to many people. Its work was not perfect; but that we did the best that we could have done I verily believe. That we shall improve our work I earnestly hope.

N. B. BROUGHTON.

From Rev. M. A. Adams.

Dear Recorder:—I see that Greensboro has called Rev. I. Johnson of Lumberton, N. C., to be her next pastor. We do not know what the probabilities are for his accepting. We know that Greensboro needs a good, wise and efficient pastor. We are very anxious for the Greensboro brethren to secure some good man, for this writer feels real lonely, being the only pastor giving his whole time to the work within our Association.

Our Union meets with Piney church, a mission station some six miles from Greensboro, next time. Let all the brethren take due notice and be on hand. Then follows our Association at Liberty on the C. F & Y. V. Railroad, Oct. 17–20. By reference to the minutes, the Executive Committee will see that it is left to them to supply the preacher for the introductory sermon. This ought to be looked after at an early date. We are hoping to have a good meeting at Liberty. Let every church send her delegates and send them instructed to pledge for all the objects of our work. It is absolutely useless to have "dead head" delegates. Call out the different objects and the doleful wail comes, "I am not instructed—will do the best we can." That is good in sentiment, but it usually means that nothing is going to be done, or next to it. We take pledges for Foreign Missions, Home Missions, State Missions, Associational Missions, Ministerial Education, Ministers' Relief Fund and the Orphanage.

Last year Home, State and Associational Missions were all combined under the name Associational Missions. I presume the same will be done again this year. The need will be as great as last year. There are several new churches to come this year. A warm welcome awaits them all. We hope to grow all along.

Our work here is now in first class condition. The church is more of a unit than heretofore, congregations large and contributions increasing. There are several things about which we wish to write, but not now.

Sincerely, M. A. ADAMS.

Letter from Rev. W. H. Wilson.

Dear Recorder:—The week following the third Sunday in August I conducted a good meeting at one of my mission points. I was assisted by Bro. J. L. Lane, who did good work. Four were baptized.

Last week I assisted Bro. Lane in a meeting at Colfax in Guilford county, one of the hardest places for Baptists in North Carolina. But few of them ever heard a Baptist before. Bro. Lane commenced preaching for them last winter.

Several professed faith in Christ and one was approved for baptism. A considerable number in the community would unite with us, but they have been immersed by Methodist preachers and want to come into the church on their baptism. We had large crowds, and I think we sowed seed that will spring up in after days for the Baptists.

In August, Bro. C. G. Jones, of Covington, Ky., was in Madison, visiting his brother and sister, Mrs. Charlie Pratt, and while here preached three as good sermons as I have heard in a long time. The people of Madison were delighted with him. We hope he will come again.

We regret to learn that the son of Rev. F. H. Jones of Chatham, Va., is in the last stages of consumption. We extend to Bro. Jones our father in the ministry, our heartfelt sympathy.

The crops through our section are good this time, and that means larger gifts to the Lord and many new subscribers to the RECORDER. I think the RECORDER is improving. Yours in the work,

W. H. WILSON.

Meeting Near Lincolnton, N. C.

Dear Recorder:—I am now in a meeting at a school-house near Lincolnton, N. C. The Holy Spirit is with us in great power. At every service several or more have professed faith in Christ. On yesterday and last night nearly every unsaved person in the congregation were anxiously seeking the Lord.

I consider this the most interesting meeting I ever held. We will organize a church here all at early day.

God bless the RECORDER and all its readers.

Matters About Scotland Neck.

Everything reminds us that summer is about over and autumn is upon us. Farmers are beginning to harvest, merchants are storing their shelves and counters with fall goods, schools are opening and every body seems to mean business.

Few communities can boast of two better preparatory schools than we have here in Scotland Neck. We judge them by their fruits. One does not have to stay in the town long to realize that he is in the midst of a people of culture and real worth.

Vine Hill Female Academy opened last Monday with bright prospects for one of the best sessions in its history. Scotland Neck Male School opened Wednesday. Messrs. Prince and Wilson have had charge of this school only one year, but they have a deep hold on the people of the community and are looked upon as men of sterling worth and able educators. Their school is from twenty-five to thirty per cent. better than at the corresponding period last year. I know of no town anywhere in which there are as few bad influences, coupled with so many influences that are good, thrown around the young as in Scotland Neck.

Our church is doing a good work. Of course pastor Vann is missed very much. No one can take the place of the pastor. All of us rejoice greatly that the last report from him says he is improving. Several have been received by letter recently and one was baptized last night. Our church has several mission Sunday-schools from four to six miles around in the country. We have been holding a meeting at one of these points for several days and will be at another point as soon as we close this one.

Our people love the RECORDER and the pastor and deacons are making a special effort to have it circulated and read among a larger per cent. of our membership.

The Baptists.

WHY THEY ARE THE SAME AS THE TRUE CHURCHES WHICH HAVE EXISTED FROM THE TIME OF CHRIST.

Why do we think that Baptists and Baptist churches have existed among the true witnesses of Christ, who were "hid in the wilderness?" Why do we think we may call the Christians, whose different names at different times we have given, Baptists? Because their main articles of belief, as gathered by men learned in church history, are pretty much the same as those of the Baptists. If the principles of men are the same, they may be classed together. So then, if the religious belief and practices of those differently called Christians are very much like the religious belief and practices, or principles, of the Baptists, then we may call those Christians Baptists. We will state a few of their principles:

1. They loved and revered the Bible, and took it, and it alone, for their guide in religious matters. Their churches were modeled after the churches as given in the New Testament; and they professed to believe just what the Bible says, and to do just as the Bible directs. That is in accordance with Baptist principles.

2. They thought a man ought to be converted, or regenerated, before he became a member of the church; and that Christians should be pure, good, and upright in their life and conduct—otherwise, they could not be true Christians. These are prime articles of faith with the Baptists.

3. They did not think that infants should be baptized, and they believed that immersion only was baptism. Perhaps it was their belief that infants ought not to be baptized which caused them to be persecuted more than anything else; for it was the false belief that baptism regenerated and saved, therefore making baptism necessary to salvation, which caused infants to be baptized at first. According to that false belief, to deny baptism to infants was to deny them salvation. But, you see, we are not regenerated by baptism, and therefore are not saved by baptism. We are regenerated by the Holy Spirit, and baptism is a mere profession of Christianity—a sign that we believe in Jesus. The reason why they did not think infants should be baptized was because infants cannot believe. Then again they were like the Baptists of the present day.

4. They thought persons should believe and be converted before they were baptized, according to what Christ says, "He that believeth and is baptized," and according to what Philip said to the eunuch, "If thou believest thou mayest" be baptized. Hence it follows that if infants cannot believe, they should not be baptized. All this is in accordance with Baptist principles.

5. They did not think Church and State should be joined together, or that the government should dictate what the people should believe and how they should worship, but that everybody should be free to believe what they chose in religion, and to worship just as they pleased. This, too, is like the Baptists.

So we can see many strong points of resemblance, which is enough to make up call those Christians Baptists, though they had other names. Therefore we are entitled to say that Baptists and Baptist churches have existed in the world from the time of Christ until now, although the name "Baptists" is of comparatively recent origin.—Good Words.

RALEIGH, Aug. 26, 1895.

Col. Wm. J. Saunders, Gen. Agt. Mercantile Life Association of Boston:

MY DEAR SIR:—I am to thank you for the prompt settlement of the claims of the heirs of the late Rev. C. T. Bailey under a policy with your Company.

Very truly yours, J. W. BAILEY.

A protracted meeting is being held this week at the Baptist church here by the pastor, Rev. Dr. W. R. Cobb, who, his many friends will be pleased to learn, has declined the call extended him by a church in Mississippi.—Chatham Record, Sept. 5.

THE UNIVERSITY—CO-EDUCATION—THE NEW WOMAN AND HER BICYCLE—UP TO DATE SERMON TOPICS AND CHARITABLE INSTITUTIONS—THE VANISHED WHITE CITY, ETC.

BY STARNES SIMMONS.

Sometime ago I received a RECORDER addressed to me as "Correspondent," which I suppose was intended as a gentle reminder of a broken promise.

I intended to redeem this promise by writing you a Chicago letter, but Prof. Carlyle has anticipated me. And even among the bi—bicyclist women of Chicago I did not imbibe enough of the spirit of the "new woman" to attempt to compete with him as a speaker, even when the speaking is to be done on paper. Apropos to this, I wish to say that the "new woman" has not made her appearance in the University. I met her in the parks and in the city, but the women of the University—Northern and Western, as well as Southern—were modest and lovable.

I was a silent listener to an interesting matrimonial discussion between a number of girls in our Hall. One of the best students said she certainly hoped she would marry some day, though she would like to get her degree first. Another girl (of Minneapolis) made the same confession.

Co education is pronounced a great success. The women enjoy equal privileges with the men. Perhaps Prof. Carlyle will tell us later about their relative standing as regards scholarship. The women teachers receive the same salaries as the men, and perhaps I may be pardoned for saying that the teacher whose methods pleased me most, from a pedagogical point of view, was a woman—a very womanly woman, too, in spite of her Ph. D.

I returned to Wake Forest more than ever in love with my Alma Mater. There was not as great a difference between a great big University and a great big College as one might suppose. The difference is more in quantity than in quality. I visited some of the classes in the collegiate department, and as I saw the students flounder over Latin constructions which we were taught at college, and which they were supposed to know, I felt that one would make a great mistake to go to a university for college work.

Dr. Harper is certainly the right man in the right place—a great President of a great University.

I was impressed with the spiritual atmosphere pervading the University. I found this in the class room; I realized it even more as I listened on Sunday to the same teachers preaching in the mission chapels of Hyde Park. The University Settlement among the poorer working people of the city is a great movement—for the spiritual life of the University as well as for the uplifting of these people. Teachers and students alike engage in this work; and as we found what they were doing we felt what one of the other women expressed, "I must go home and go to work."

I wish I could tell you about some of the other charitable movements which greatly interested me—the Armour Institute and the celebrated Hull House, another Settlement not connected with the University. Here we had the pleasure of attending a club conducted by the working people.

Perhaps my ministerial friends would be interested in the subjects of some Chicago sermons. "The Mauxman," "Marcella" and "Trilby" may serve as specimens of the bait used to attract non-churchgoing Chicagoans. I enjoyed especially a sermon by Dr. Gunsaulus on "The Motherhood of God," though I felt more at home in Dr. Henson's church.

Chicago is broad in every sense of the word, and I think is especially noted for its broad theology. A striking figure among the liberal theologians is Dr. Barrows, President of the Parliament of Religions, whose new theology differs widely from orthodox Presbyterianism.

One of the most interesting men whom I met was Dr. Fairbairn of Oxford University. I could not resist the temptation to ask him about the life of the women students at Oxford. He spoke in very complimentary terms of their scholarship, but I was surprised to learn that Oxford is behind (!) the University of Chicago (and Wake Forest College) in that it will not confer a degree upon a woman.

Several of my friends who were in the "White City" two years ago, have asked me for a description of Jackson Park as it is today. There is nothing to describe except the Field Museum, formerly the Art Building, which contains all that remains of the Exposition. "But the lagoons are still there," some one suggested. No, they are gone, too. North of the Museum you will find a pavilion, the remains of the Iowa building, but the southern part is filled with almost impassable debris.

Bloomers and bicycles are taking the day in Chicago. I think the female wheelmen are in the majority in Jackson Park. Dr. Hawthorne was unsparingly condemned for this position in regard to the women bicyclists, while the bloomer girl was censured by the University women, who expressed great regret that the introduction of the bloomer costume should bring the wheel into such disrepute among the better class of women. I saw a grand pyrotechnic display, an interesting feature of which was a bicycle race between two fiery wheelmen. The wheels, perfect in every appointment, were composed of lights of different colors, and produced a striking, almost startling effect.

I should like to tell you about some delightful excursions to Minnesota and across the lake to Michigan; but your Travelling Correspondent once called me an excellent correspondent because I so rarely trespassed the limit, fear I shall forfeit the right to commendation. I also fear to embarrassed by a dearth of the alphabet.

Matters in Monroe.

An event of special interest in Baptist circles here was the recent banquet given at the Stewart House by the Wake Forest Local Alumni Association. There are twenty Wake Forest men in the county, and they determined at a meeting a few weeks ago to excite a deeper interest in the College. As a first step arrangements were made to have a banquet. Prospective students in the county, several ladies, and distinguished alumni (including the one alumna) from abroad were present to participate in the enjoyment of the occasion. Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher had made ample and elegant preparations. The dining room was robed in holiday garb, and the tables were loaded with tempting delicacies arranged in the most attractive style. Mr E Walter Sikes, now of Johns Hopkins University, served with grace and ease as master of ceremonies. After his neat address of welcome the feast was enjoyed by fifty appetites in a thoroughly gratifying way. Then followed responses to toasts. Mr. F. W. Bickett, a promising lawyer of Louisburg, discussed in an original, humorous, and entertaining manner the "Duty of Alumni to each other." Hon. W. C. Dowd of Charlotte followed with a spicy and brilliant speech on the "Days of the Shillalah." "Recollections of the Hill" was the subject assigned Solicitor J. L. Webb of Shelby, but he was unavoidably absent. Dr. T. H. Pritchard spoke on "Wake Forest—its Influence," and his address was of rare interest, filled with valuable history, happy reminiscence and racy humor. President Taylor—and how glad we all were to have him with us—closed the program with a striking speech, marked by his usual clearness and strength, backed by convictions and lit up with hopefulness, thoughtful, inspiring, suggestive. When the benediction came we could not realize that the midnight hour had passed.

"How noiseless falls the foot of time
That only treads on flowers!"

We hope and believe that a Wake Forest revival has begun in our section. May the strength of our manhood throughout the State rally around the standard of the dear old College!

Rev. James Long and his bride, Miss Mary Faulkner, arrived here last Saturday morning on their bridal tour. The happy event took place at Salpda, Va., on Thursday last. They will spend some time at the groom's old home, seven miles north of here. Bro. Long is a recent graduate of Rochester Theological Seminary, and he is thoroughly equipped for useful work. Let one of our pastorless churches secure him at once and retain his services in North Carolina.

It was my pleasure two weeks ago to attend the family reunion of Mrs. S. A. Covington, whose husband was the prime mover early in the fifties in the establishment of Baptist interests here. Sister Covington was seventy-four years old on the day of the reunion. More than forty members of her immediate family were present to enjoy with her the happy occasion at the old homestead.

The revival season among our country churches is not yet over. Good tidings come from every quarter. There has been a great awakening throughout our borders. Brethren Caudle, Bivens, Snider, Davis, Bennett, and others, report gracious news from their fields. Especially let me mention Rev. J. W. Little, a man illiterate, as the world goes, but intensely enthusiastic and full of the Holy Ghost. His churches have had ninety five accessions under his ministry during the last five weeks. He is at New Salem this week. He lost his wife while in the midst of a glorious meeting at Union, his home church. In her last moments she urged him to go right on with the meeting after her burial, and ever to continue faithful in the work of the Lord. He is doing this against great odds, and the Lord is placing upon his work the stamp of divine approval.

The Heartlessness of the Saloon Traffic.

BY REV. CHAS A. G. THOMAS.

At a recent meeting of the liquor dealers of the State, the President, in an address, said, among other things:

"When the habitual drunkard comes, who is of no use to himself, or his family, or his fellowmen, and calls for a drink, I know you will refuse him."

After the barkeeper has received the earnings of a man for years; after he has sapped the best blood of his body; after he has taken his good name and led him to a condition of poverty and suffering, he refuses him shelter and relief, but turns him out to die in the cold, or to be a burden to others. This is the calm declaration of a man who has been president of the liquor dealers' association of the State for several years. The liquor traffic is as heartless as hell itself. It cares not for the gray hairs of age, nor the bloom upon the cheek of youth. It tramples upon the father's prayers and grinds its heel upon the mother's plea. It curses the sister's tears and ridicules the brother's counsels. It damns the preachers and abuses the churches. It stands upon poor fallen humanity and lifts high its gory fingers and says: "I have sapped from you all that is pure and noble, I have robbed you of all that is good in life; now die in despair and thus rid me of your miserable presence."

Upon the declaration of the liquor dealers' president the liquor traffic stands condemned of a heartlessness born of hell. By the side of this heartlessness put the Friend of the helpless: Jesus says to the poor spurned and down trodden sinner, "Come unto me and find rest for your souls."

The doctors tell us that alcohol will burn out the stomach of the drinker, but they fail to tell us what effect it has on the heart of the seller. When I read the declaration above, I am convinced that it burns out the heart of the whiskey seller long before it does the stomach of the whiskey drinker.

Reflections.

BY REV. J. HARTWELL EDWARDS.

We have been thinking much on the power which a pastor possesses to advance any good work. He can double the results of the best effort that an agent of any denominational enterprise can make, by exerting his own personal influence in its behalf. We have enjoyed very happy experiences along this line.

We are impressed as never before with the fact that there are in our churches a host of young girls—bright, intelligent, attractive, and often beautiful—who love the Lord Jesus with all their hearts, and are earnestly trying to please him.

What an opportunity the Baptists of North Carolina now have to provide these girls with such a training of mind and heart as shall make them eminently useful in the communities where they are to live, and in the homes over which they will so soon be called to preside!

One of our most successful and consecrated pastors said the other day: "It is borne in upon me more and more every day that what I do I must do quickly." Is not this a profitable reflection for us all? The time is coming so swiftly when the implements of our toils must be forever laid down.

The electric thrill of health is never felt by those who are run down—out of sorts—poor in blood—badly nourished—dyspeptic. That would be impossible, and so the delight of living is lost!

Brown's Iron Bitters

brings weak people up to the standard of health—feeds the blood—acts on the nerves—strengthens the muscles. It brings the blush of youth to weary women's cheeks—is a boon to the invalid—refreshes and renews life in the aged—nourishes the weak, puny child—briefly said, it gives strength, and strength cannot exist without perfect health. It is a necessity in every family. It does not injure the teeth or cause constipation.

It's Brown's Iron Bitters you need!

it for granted that you want to get the best results in painting, you will have to use Pure White Lead to obtain them. There are many mixtures branded "White Lead," "Pure White Lead," etc., which contain little, if any, White Lead, but are principally barytes, which is of little value, if not worthless. To be sure, accept only a genuine brand (see list).

If you want any shade of color, tint the White Lead with National Lead Co.'s tinting colors, prepared expressly for this purpose. A feature of these colors is the ease with which they are used and the exactness with which the desired shade is obtained. For particulars send for pamphlet, free.

Study Topics.—Romanism fully developed. Sale of indulgencies. The Black Christ of Toluca. Baptist beginnings. Baptist successes. Persecution of Rev. H. R. Moseley. Present condition of our work.

Dear Miss Heck:—Your letter of April 11th, 1895, with its request that I write a short letter occasionally for the Woman's Missionary Societies of North Carolina, has been awaiting a reply longer than I could wish, but the leisure to comply with your request has not come until this morning.

I do feel a deep interest in the efforts the Baptist sisterhood of the Old North State are making to give the Gospel to those whose lives are as dark and hopeless for the lack of its sweet comfort and saving power, and it will give me joy to do anything I can to increase that interest. I will try this morning to give you a glimpse of the work and workers at our Shanghai station. The Bryans left us two weeks ago for a little rest and change in Nagasaki, Japan. We miss them much, but feel real satisfaction in knowing they are gaining much needed strength and refreshment for service in the autumn. Mr. Bryan worked too hard and constantly while at home, and has allowed himself no rest since his return. The warm weather found him weak in body, however strong in spirit, and as he will not rest here where his work is, the only thing to do seemed to be to leave it for a season. None of the children were real well, so the family accompanied him.

Miss Price is finding the climate very trying, and we wish she could be where it is cooler and more invigorating during July and August, but she cannot seem to get the consent of her mind to leave her study. We do feel so thankful to God and to the dear Christian people of North Carolina for sending to our midst such an earnest, faithful worker, and such a sweet, consecrated follower of the Master as our sister, Miss Price. Her life is speaking to the Chinese, before she is able to make her words well understood. Both Miss Price and Miss Kelly are studying faithfully and making good progress.

Mr. Tatum, myself, the children, Joy and Eva, and Miss Kelly, are keeping well in spite of the heat, and do feel very thankful to our Heavenly Father for this great blessing.

As to our work, we are able to report much encouragement. A few weeks ago Mr. Tatum had the privilege of baptising an earnest young Christian woman, the wife of one of our native evangelists. She received her education in a Methodist school and, when converted, joined that branch of the Christian church. Recently she has been studying her Bible to learn its teaching concerning the points where we differ from our Methodist brethren and sisters. We have had no conversation with her, feeling that if she were truly in search of truth we could trust the Holy Spirit to guide her; and under his guidance, and the study of the Word, she came to feel that immersion only is baptism and that the sprinkling of infants has no authority in God's word. Feeling that her place was among Baptists, she applied for baptism and was received into our fellowship. We thank God for sending her to us, and feel that she will be a great help to us in the work among the women and children. For some time past there has been more than ordinary interest at the regular preaching services. Many have seemed glad to linger after the preaching was over and talk about the things of which they had heard. About fifty have put down their names as desirous of knowing more about the gospel, and many of these are coming to the two enquiry meetings which are held weekly for their further instruction in Christian truth. Most of them are very ignorant of the way of salvation and need to be taught like little children, but it is a source of great encouragement that they are willing to be instructed, and we hope that among them are many of the Lord's chosen ones. Two, who are scholars, and have a good knowledge of the Bible, and whose hearts we trust have really accepted Jesus as their Saviour, have asked for baptism, and their cases will be acted on next Sunday. One will doubtless be advised to wait as he is not yet free from the fetters of the opium habit. He was advised by his physician to take opium as a medicine during an illness several years ago, and thus the habit was fastened on him. Being weak in body, his family are unwilling for him to try to stand the physical strain which the disuse of the drug would involve, fearing that his strength would prove insufficient. He is one of the most perfect gentlemen it was ever my lot to meet, and one who commands the respect of all who know him. I have often wished that those who are inclined to think of the Chinese as an inferior order of beings could know this man. He says he believes if he were called away he would be among the saved, for his trust is stayed on Jesus. We are hoping and praying that he may find this name Jesus strong to save him from the fetters of opium, that he may be a living testimony to the power of the Saviour to free from sin in every form. Will you not join your prayers with ours?

You perhaps remember the case of the evangelist at Soochow, who was led into sin and excluded from the church some months ago, which caused us all great sorrow and pain. He has been indeed the way of the transgressor hard, and say he is truly penitent, and wants to be forgiven and restored. The thought that the Lord may come any day seems to be with him continually. Those with whom he has recently been living speak in highest commendation of his life among them, and we hope that he is one who has felt that godly sorrow for sin which worketh repentance not to be repented of. We do wish to be guided in his case by the One who alone knows the hearts of men.

I must not take more time for writing this morning, and if I have expressed myself in a rather disconnected manner, you will be inclined to be lenient when I tell you it is 94 degrees in the shade, and in addition to the heat, the children are needing some attention every few lines.

With Christian love,

ALICE M. TATUM.

The Children and the Memorial

My Dear Miss Heck:—I send by to day's mail $10.00 for missions to Mrs. Briggs, and will say in reply to your earnest appeal for the "Yates Memorial Fund" that the Sunbeams are quite anxious to respond. We will try to raise ten dollars. We will try to do our best, as it is certainly a pleasure to do something in honor of our beloved missionaries. Our little Society has some bright members, and if we can still keep the missionary spirit aroused in them we feel that they will in after years be bright lights in this grand work. I have been able to do so little in comparison to what I have desired, and what has been needed, that I sometime feel quite discouraged. This work of training the children has been left to Mrs. Conrad and myself, and sometime when it is hard to get all the older people interested we feel quite discouraged, but the children's enthusiasm always proves inspiring, and under Mrs. Conrad's leadership I trust we may do even more than we have heretofore.

Yours very truly,

MRS. RUTH ROODICK.

A Bull Fight on Sunday.

There was a great bull fight at Saltillo, on Sunday, January 27th. The toreros were clerks employed here in the city. It was for the benefit of a hospital. By the way, when those people wish to raise money for some charitable purpose, they have a bull fight instead of a church festival. An iron fence was recently built in front of the cathedral, and several bull fights were given before it could be paid for.

Three of the prominent young ladies of the city were chosen as queens. One lives just across the street from us, and we knew there was something going to happen from the unusual stir all Sunday morning. The bull fighters, with their band of music, in carriages, passed down the street about noon.

At three o'clock a fine, open carriage drove up to our neighbor's door. A gentleman alighted and entered the house, and in a short time came out with two young ladies, Senorita Teresa Cuellar, the daughter of the house, and Senorita Cavazos, daughter of the State Treasurer. It was a cold, windy day, but they were bareheaded. The former was dressed in light green satin, all covered with white lace, the latter in white satin and pink ribbons, elbow sleeves, long white gloves, and white shoes. Their hair was all curled and powdered, and they wore gold crowns. They were escorted to the bull plaza and up to a small balcony reserved for the queens and their escorts. This was beautifully decorated with flags and ribbons.

The bull fighters now enter the ring and salute the queens, then march around the plaza, bowing to the audience. At the sound of the trumpet the gates are thrown open, the first bull enters, and the fight begins. Our lady queens are to be judges of which fighter carries off the honors. After the poor animal has been tormented and worried for some time, before he is further enraged one of the toreros comes up to the queens and asks if the animal shall be spared or killed. Usually the answer is "Kill him!" sometimes "Spare him."

After it is over, the victors are received by the queens, and, on bended knee, are decorated with silken sashes. What a strange proceeding to take place on God's holy day!

Dear boys and girls, is it not dreadful—and, think of it! the whole town was there. How can any one witness such a blood-curdling scene as the torturing of poor animals to death? Several horses are killed in every fight by the angry bulls.

These fights were forbidden in this State for several months, but they are having them now regularly every Sabbath. Pray for Mexico, and send us more missionaries and teachers.—Over Land and Sea.

Missions in Mexico.

The republic of Mexico has an area of 767,000 square miles and a population of about twelve millions, of whom about 10 per cent. are pure white, 38 per cent. are Indians, and 43 per cent. are of mixed blood. Of the two latter classes only a small percentage can be called civilized. The country is divided into twenty seven States, two territories, and one federal district. The republic was founded in 1857, but was not in full power, and religious freedom was not enjoyed until 1867. The Bible was first introduced into Mexico in the wake of the army of General Scott in the war of 1846, but it was not until fifteen years later that any persistent attempt was made to carry the pure Gospel to our next door neighbors, enshrouded in the darkness of a corrupt Romanism which was practically paganism.

We do not give the totals under this table because of the incompleteness of the record. There are, however, at present 10 Protestant societies laboring in 87 separate stations in Mexico, besides which there are colporteurs of the American Bible Society. The number of foreign missionaries is 184, and of native workers 542; churches number 388 and congregations 489; there are 16,360 communicants and over 50,000 adherents, 10,668 Sunday-school scholars, and 7,455 pupils in day schools; 18 Christian papers are published in the Spanish language.

Missionary work in Mexico is carried on in the face of many and great difficulties, among which are the ignorance, indifference and immorality of the people, the opposition of the Romish priests, and the spread of infidelity. Much has been accomplished, however, besides the actual conversion of souls to God. (1) Congregations have been established where the Gospel is preached weekly to over twenty-five thousand people; (2) nearly two hundred schools have been established where pupils are enlightened in things temporal and spiritual, and men and women are given a theological and normal training; (3) a large amount of evangelical literature in the form of papers, tracts, Bibles, and books are scattered throughout the land.—Missionary Review.

Consecration.

Consecration just means to have the hands filled. In 1 Chronicles 29: 5, we find David asking the question: "Who, then, is willing to consecrate his service this day unto the Lord?" When you look to the marginal reading for "consecrate," you find it is to "fill his hand." If your hand is full of anything there is room for nothing else. If our hands are full in the Lord's service, then there is no room left for the world. Sometimes a lawyer has so much work to do that he has to refuse new clients. "My hands are full," he says; "I can't give you any attention." Now, apply the illustration to God's people. How is it that the world comes knocking at the door, and so often gains admittance? The reason is simply this: We are not consecrated to the Lord—our hands are not filled for him. But let our hands be filled, let Christ have his place on the throne of the heart, let us be busy at work for him; and what is the result? We turn round at once and tell the world that we are so busy in the affairs of eternity that we have neither time nor inclination to "strive with the potsherds" in any shape or form. But indeed the consecrated man is scarcely ever troubled with the world asking him to come down off the wall. The worldlings very soon see when a man is out and out for the Lord, and, as such a man does not answer their purpose, they let him alone. The world knows him not.—Railway Signal.

Destroy Diseased Fruit.

The Connecticut Experiment Station warns the farmer to let one or two boys follow the pickers and clean the trees of all diseased and mummified fruit, collecting them in baskets to burn. At the same time, gather and burn all diseased fruit which has fallen. In November clean the orchard thoroughly of fallen leaves, especially if disease has been prevalent, and burn them. Better to destroy them now than in the spring, when the fungus fruit will have to come to maturity in and on the leaves.

The "black knot" fungus matures during December and January; attack it early in the former month. Use the pruning knife unsparingly, cutting out two or three inches above and below each "knot." Burn every "knot" and paint the wound over at once.

Henry Ward Beecher never uttered a greater truth than when he said: "It is not what we read, but what we remember that makes us learned. It is not what we intend, but what we do that makes us useful. It is not a few futile wishes, but a life-long struggle that makes us valiant."

In General.

They have but one way of escape—through a long-neglected connecting shaft.——In the Durrant trial a sensation is produced by the production in court of a milliner's dummy dressed in the torn and bloody clothes stripped from Blanche Lamont and hid in the church belfry; a witness has been found who identifies Durrant as the man on the street car with the girl on the morning of the murder.——The electric motive used to draw trains through the belt line tunnel in Baltimore is speeded and develops a speed equal to seventy-five miles an hour.

There is nothing to prevent any one concocting a mixture and calling it "sarsaparilla," and there is nothing to prevent anyone spending good money testing the stuff; but prudent people, who wish to be sure of their remedy, take only Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and so get cured.

The Treasury of Religious Thought for September has for frontispiece a remarkably fine portrait of Rev. Dr. David N. Beach, pastor of the Prospect Street Congregational Church, Cambridge, Mass., who has been most influential in that movement which for several years now has kept Cambridge free from saloons. Dr. Beach's sermon on The Kingdom Within is a strong and beautiful exposition of the doctrine of an inner spiritual life as the source of all true reform and peace. It is followed by outlines and sketches of recent sermons by a number of interesting preachers, and an illustrated sermon by Dr. David Gregg on The Walk to Emmaus. This number, opening the fall and its activities, contains an able article on Christian Voters, by Rev. Dr. B. M. Patterson; and one on the religious aspect of the Single Tax, by Rev. Dr. J. W. Kramer. Applied Christianity is illustrated in pictorial articles on The Farm School of the Children's Aid Society at Kensico; and China in Transition, by Rev. R. H. Graves, D. D. The "Noted Names" of the month include sketches and portraits of Dr. Roach, Hon. Theodore Roosevelt, Dr. T. L. Cuyler, Dr. James Stalker, and a notice on Canon Farrar. There is an article on The Religious Weekly, by Rev. S. Z. Batten; the editorial discusses citizenship and saloons, and the main departments are full as usual. Annual subscription, $2 50. Cedar Rock Academy & Business Institute

CEDAR ROCK, N. C.,

W. A. SMITH, B. A., Principal.

This school is situated in a fine farming section in Franklin county, 11 miles east of Louisburg. The surrounding community is densely settled by a cultured, hospitable and progressive people. The moral and religious influences are excellent. The good water and wholesome air makes it a healthful locality, almost entirely free from malaria.

We prepare for college or for practical business life, and make a specialty of preparing young men and young ladies for teachers in the academies and public schools. The Commercial and Music Departments also offer superior advantages. The music department is well supplied with the very best instruments, and is in charge of an experienced and thoroughly competent teacher. Young ladies wishing to make a specialty of music are offered excellent advantages, since we have a sufficient supply of instruments to give all the practice desired.

For the School of Art a special teacher has already been employed whose whole attention will be given to that department.

Board, including furnished rooms, within a short distance from the academy, can be had at $7.00 per month. Girls, unless otherwise requested, are required to board with the Principal. Young men and young ladies are not allowed to board at same boarding house under any circumstances. We take a special oversight of the girls committed to our charge. Mrs. Smith (wife of the Principal) endeavors in every way possible to see after their interest.

Tuition rates are very low, ranging from $1 to $7.50 per month. The session of 1895-6 opens Aug. 19th. For further information write the Principal for catalog. W. A. SMITH.

Insomnia.

From the Herald, Baltimore, Md.

Mrs. Jessie Shea is a young married woman whose tidy home is at 655 West Lexington Street, Baltimore. For many months Mrs. Shea was a terrible sufferer from a nervous affection which resulted in general debility and superinduced that ofttimes incurable malady, insomnia. A Herald reporter called at her residence recently, and was shown into the neatly furnished parlor and told that Mrs. Shea would be down in a few minutes. Soon a light step was heard tripping down the stairway and Mrs. Shea, radiant with health and the vigor of young womanhood, entered the room. When asked if she had used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, with a smile which betokened the utmost satisfaction the young ladyreplied, "Yes, I have used them, and had I not heard of them I doubt if I would have been here to answer your call."

Continuing, she said: "About two months ago I had an attack of what the doctors termed nervous prostration. My appetite left me entirely and what little sleep I got, and it was very little, I assure you, was not by any means refreshing. On the contrary, when I awoke from a nap I had such a tired and exhausted feeling that I was loth to try to get to sleep again. I continued to lose flesh day after day until I was almost a shadow compared with my former self.

"As soon as I began to take the Pink Pills I commenced to improve. I am no longer troubled with nervousness. I have a good appetite, experience none of the feelings incident to indigestion, and I sleep as sound as a healthy child. The pills are certainly all they are represented to be and, as I believe I owe my life to the fact of having used them, I shall always cheerfully recommend them to my friends and other persons whom I find to be suffering from the maladies of which they cured me."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are also a a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities and all forms or weakness. They build up the blood, and restore the glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork or excesses of whatever nature. Pink Pills are sold in boxes only at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2 50, and may be had of all druggists, or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

Ordination of Bro. W. A. Crabtree.

By order of Sandy Level Baptist church of the Mt. Zion Association, a presbytery met at East Durham July 24th, 1895, consisting of brethren W. C. Tyree, O. C. Horton and J. F. MacDuffie, to examine Bro. W. A. Crabtree, a candidate for the ministry.

Bro. Tyree was, by motion, made Chairman. After satisfactory evidence to the presbytery of Bro. Crabtree's conversion, call to the ministry, and views of doctrine, it was decided to set him apart to the full work of the ministry on the fourth Sunday in July.

The presbytery met with the church at Sandy Level according to appointment. Bro. Horton preached the sermon. The presbytery then laid hands on Bro. Crabtree, and Bro. Ellen, a former pastor of the church, offered the prayer; after which Bro. Tyree delivered the charge, and J. F. MacDuffie presented the Bible. The benediction was pronounced by Bro. Crabtree.

MARRIED.

JOHNSON—GRIFFIN—On Sept. 4th, 1895, in Nash county, by Rev. M. E. Pernell, Mr. Robert E. Johnson of Mt. Union, Washington county, Pa., and Miss Nannie Griffin of Argo, Nash county, N. C.

DIED.

WORLEY—Sister Julia A. Worley died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. A. E. Strickland, at the age of eighty-four years, after an illness of about seven months. She died in the faith. She often prayed that the Lord would take her, and seemed anxious to go. She had been a Christian about fifty years, and had been a consistent member of Pine Level Missionary Baptist church for about twenty-four years.

Her Christian life and example was certainly one worthy to be followed by all who want to make heaven their home. Like many of God's children, she had troubles and trials to contend with during her Christian pilgrimage. But she bore them all patiently without a murmur or complaint, leaning at all times on the strong arm of God, resting on that promise of God which says, "All things work together for good to them that love the Lord." Truly a good woman has gone from Pine Level to heaven. To the brothers, sisters and children of the deceased, let me say, strive to meet your mother and sister in heaven.

She was the mother of thirteen children; eight girls and five boys, eight of whom are living. She leaves one son who is an efficient minister of the gospel of the Freewill Baptist church, Rev. Jas. H. Worley.

Her funeral was preached on the first Sabbath in September, 1895, at her church, to a large congregation of friends and relatives. May the good Lord comfort the bereaved.

"Friend after friend departs;
Who hath not lost a friend?
There is no union here of hearts
That finds not here an end."

W. M. SORRELL, Pastor.

STALLINGS—Emma, wife of G. H. B. Stallings of Stallings, N. C., died July 19th, 1895, aged twenty-seven years.

"Mark the perfect man and behold the upright, for the end of that man is peace."

The gentle character and honorable life of Emma forbids the thought that the ascription to her of the noblest characteristics of young womanhood would be empty or wrongly given. Perhaps I knew her better than many of her friends; but I know that she was by all respected for the beauty of her character and loved for the gentle sincerity of her manner. She was chivalrous and brave. I never knew her to do an act to compromise the high sense of personal honor which she always maintained.

She delighted in unselfish deeds, and she never neglected an opportunity for displaying in her gentle way the kindness and generosity of her nature. And one of the pleasantest thoughts which I have of her is that her home life was singularly sweet and lovable.

She had an atmosphere of gladness and kindly affection about her family circle which I know to them now seem to be one happy song.

Her end was one of peace. She gave assurances which were an inspiration to those about her that looked forward to those habitations of blessedness and freedom from pain and care which she knew awaited her.

Now that she has reached the other shore, the crown of glory and the harp of eternal praise which were ready for her there could not have found a more fitting recipient or one more capable of their heavenly use.

C. A. C.

LASSITER—Died in Henderson, on Sunday, August 18th, at one o'clock p. m., after a few days' illness, Mrs. James H. Lassiter, in the seventy-second year of her age. Some one has said, "There is an ever-growing beauty which only comes to perfection in old age." And it is certain that Time laid his hand upon her with no withering effect. Her form was erect, her brow unfurrowed, her eye undimmed, and the habitual nobleness and graciousness within shone through upon her countenance. Each year added grace and beauty to her character, enlarged her spiritual nature, and broadened her sympathies. Last winter, when in feeble health, she busied herself in making garments for a motherless and destitute little child and for a poor old servant, saying she was glad the Lord had given her something to do.

"Thy love shall chant its own beatitudes
After its own life workings."

Suffering and misfortune will miss thee, the friendless poor look in vain for thy coming. To all who needed comfort or advice she was a very tower of strength. Her attachments were irrespective of rank or condition,

"Never once holding any poor or lowly soul
Less dear to heaven than high and saintly souls."

In friendship, she was faithful, not alone in the sunshine, but in the storm—strong to sustain, fearless to defend. Who can find words to express the charm of her presence in the home, her self-sacrificing devotion to her family, her efficient management of the affairs of a large establishment, her generous hospitality. And our Israel weeps for its mother. He who had been her pastor for eight years, and could appreciate the value of her faithful ministrations, said truly on the occasion of her funeral: "In her death the larger part of this church has been glorified." All relied on her judgment, and she unhesitatingly led the way even in laborious service when duty required it.

She was a woman of strong convictions and the very soul of candor in the expression of them, and yet she was no sectarian in the narrow sense of the word, but loved with true Christian fellowship all her Father's children. The soul bends with instinctive homage when we reflect upon her virtues, and feels as if a ray from her beatified spirit illumed and purified its purposes. Her trust in her Saviour was unfaltering, her own personal salvation a blessed reality, and the heavenly mansions a joyful anticipation.

The funeral service was preached by Rev. Junius W. Millard from Job 19: 25, 26. Rev. Robert Van Deventer concluded the services with appropriate and touching remarks on the life and character of the deceased.

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord."

Resolved, 2. That we extend to the bereaved family our heartfelt sympathy, and commend them to the God of all grace, who is the only comfort in the hour of affliction.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be placed upon the records of the Society, that they be published in the BIBLICAL RECORDER, and that a copy be sent to the bereaved family.

COTTOLENE

BAKE A BATCH OF BISCUITS

Sift one quart of flour, two rounding teaspoonfuls of baking powder, and one teaspoonful of salt into a bowl; add three teaspoonfuls of COTTOLENE and rub together until thoroughly mixed; then add sufficient milk to make a soft dough; knead slightly, roll out about half an inch thick, and cut with a small biscuit cutter. Place a little apart in a greased pan, and bake in a quick oven for fifteen or twenty minutes. These biscuits should be a delicate brown top and bottom, light on the sides, and moist while when broken open.

The secret of success in this recipe, as in others, is to use but two-thirds as much Cottolene as you used to use of lard. Cottolene will make the biscuit light, delicious, wholesome. Better than any biscuit you ever made before. Try it. Be sure and get genuine Cottolene. Sold everywhere in tins with trade-marks—"Cottolene" and steer's head in cotton-plant wreath—on every tin.

A Call for Pearline

brings the best washing compound in the world, and the original one—all others are imitations. It costs no more than common soap. It does more than soap's work, and half of your own besides. Anything that needs cleaning can be washed with it—without scouring, rubbing and scrubbing, and with absolute safety. Make its acquaintance; millions of women call it their best friend.

Every grocer keeps it, because he has constant calls for it.

Beware

Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you, "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, do the honest thing—send it back. 284 JAMES PYLE, New York.

The Home Circle.

Only To-day.

Yesterday now is a part of forever,
Bound up in a sheaf which God holds tight,
With glad days and sad days and bad days which never Shall visit us more with their bloom and their blight,
Their fullness of sunshine or sorrowful night,

Let them go, since we cannot relieve them,
Cannot undo and cannot atone;
God in His mercy forgive, receive them!
Only the now days are our own.
To-day is ours and to-day alone.

—Susan Coolidge.

Day by Day.

Charge not thyself with the weight of a year,
Child of the Master faithful and dear,
Choose not the cross for this coming week,
For that is more than He bids thee seek.

Bend not thine arms for to-morrow's load—
Then may'st leave that to thy gracious God.
Daily only He saith to thee,
"Take up thy cross, and follow me."

—Anon. in Christian Standard.

A Parable With a Moral.

Here is a parable with a moral. A certain farmer set out to break up his ground for a crop. He began with his plow. But after a short time discovered that the plow was dull, and his progress slow. He resolved to try a new experiment. He took a brand new spade with a keen edge and began spading up the soil. But the work was harder and progress less rapid than with the dull plow. Next he resorted to a pick, and failing with this also he tried a large and strong "grubbing" hoe. But in all these experiments his experience was uniformly a disappointment. Hoes and picks and spades are good in their places, but they do not equal the old fashioned plow for rapid and effective work in breaking up the soil for a large grain field. After the loss of much time and the expenditure of much labor in vain expedients, the farmer returned to the plow. It was carried to the grindstone, and a sharp edge put upon it. Then the results were remarkable. The ground was soon in condition, the crop was planted and in due season reaped.

We say the above is a parable. We doubt if any successful farmer ever wasted time on such foolish experiments. That is, any but spiritual farmers. But there are many pulpits in the land which have remanded the old fashioned Gospel-plow to the lumber room. Instead, they have introduced all sorts of devices into the pulpit to do the work of the old plow. Socialism takes the place of Christ crucified. The philosophy of Buddha is expounded instead of the Gospel of salvation. This round of experiments will end in a return to the Gospel Plow, or by an abandonment of the pulpit by the experimenter. The Gospel is the preacher's specialty. Other things never have and never will succeed in the pulpit. Whenever anything else succeeds there it is no longer a pulpit, and the man in it is no longer a preacher. Better sharpen up the old plow by renewed Bible study and prayer. Nothing cuts into the soil and makes a crop equal to that.—Evangel.

A Life of Joy.

"How that man or woman is to be pitied who has no joy that others cannot take away, whose life, to its innermost stronghold, is open to the tread of alien feet! It is dreadful to have no joys of which the world cannot rob us, to have all our happiness, the deepest and most sacred, within the reach of human or earthly despoiling. Yet there are many people of whom this is true. They have no inner sanctuary of life which is beyond the reach of intrusion, which no foot can invade, which no hand can desecrate. But if we are friends of Christ, our heart's joy should be untouchable. Our property, our loved ones, our health may be taken away, and all earthly sources of happiness despoiled; but deep within, untouched and untouchable, the joy of Christ still and ever abides.

"This is the ideal Christian life. It is possible to every one—the weakest, the most exposed, the most sorely troubled—possible, but possible only in Christ. There is no self sufficiency in us which will give it to us. The dream of self culture may be most radiant, but it is only a dream; it never can be realized. All that self alone can build up may be destroyed. The fairy palace of self-sufficiency which one may pile up can be nothing more than a hut to be built upon the sand, which the floods will sweep away. But when we have Christ in our heart, we have a life which no one can touch, whose joy lives on, sweet, calm and serene, amid all earth's strifes and trials.

"There is the life every one should seek to live. We should not carry our joy where any earthly experience can destroy it, but where it will be safe from whatsoever might quench it. It is impossible to estimate the power for good, in this sad, struggling life, of a bright, glad, shining face.

'O all the lights you carry in your face,
Joy shines farthest out to men.'

'One of the best things any of us can do for this world is to show over a victorious life of joy, a face that shines even through tears, a beauty of the Lord which glows with radiance even in the night. That is the life the Master wants every follower of His to live, and we can live it, too, if our life is truly hid with Christ in God."—Rev. J. H. Miller, D. D.

Hard Times.

Hard times is an old man that never dies. He was vigorous when I was a boy, and my father told me he lived when he was a boy, and heard his father say that the old man was alive when he was a boy, and you can trace his genealogy back to Adam. In the estimation of a great many people, hard times have come to stay. But there is a test of character in the hardness of the times. Maybe God is showing a purpose by calling out the manliness in us and the strength of his grace.

I once saw a picture in England, entitled "Move On." It was the picture of a little costermonger on the plains, with his donkey and cart. The axle of the cart had broken, the cabbages, carrots, and everything else were scattered around, and he was in the midst of them picking them up as fast as he could. A burly policeman comes on the scene and with all the authority of the law says, "Move On," and the little fellow looked up, as much as to say, "How can I move on?" Have you not been in that condition, your business broken, axle snapped, and all that you had scattered in inglorious confusion?

But my imagination added to that picture another scene. A man of quiet mein and lovely face comes up and tells the policeman to stand aside while he by his magic touch touch repairs the cart, gathers together the scattered things, and then says, "I will go with you and help you till we reach your home." That is what Jesus Christ loves to do for all who will trust in him.—Rev A. C. Dixon.

Unnecessary Funerals.

"What a sad, hard life poor Mary Ellen has!" exclaimed a sympathetic woman who had just returned from an afternoon call on a neighbor. "She certainly has more aggravations and trials than fall to the lot of most people. It makes my heart ache to hear her tell of them."

"I presume so," remarked rather grimly the energetic person to whom the remark was made, "But I can't agree with you. Mary Ellen has just about the same amount of trouble that comes to most of us, in one way or another, and no more, as far as I can discover."

"Oh, do you really think so?" said the sympathizer deprecatingly. "Yes, I truly do," replied the other, firmly. "The principle difference is that Mary Ellen is more fond of having funerals than the majority of people."

"More fond of having funerals!" ejaculated this first speaker, incomprehendingly.

"Yes, that's what I said, and it's just exactly what I mean," reiterated the energetic woman. "Most of us expect and are willing to bury at least a few of our woes without any special public ceremony; but Mary Ellen always insists upon having a funeral for every grievance, and the larger the number of mourners she can gather, the better she is pleased."

"Perhaps she is one of the people who can't live without sympathy," said the tender hearted woman.

"She'd better make less frequent demands for it then," replied the other, drily. "Of course, I haven't much patience with her, I'm willing to admit, but I've attended too many funerals at her invitation."

There are too many people of the Mary Ellen stamp, unfortunately. It seems strange that, to the end of their lives, they often fail to see the propriety of having a "private burial" of their woes, instead of compelling their sympathetic and tenderhearted friends to attend these frequent and depressing "funerals."

Books of the Old Testament.

The great Jehovah speaks to us
In Genesis and Exodus;
Leviticus, and Numbers, see,
Followed by Deuteronomy.
Joshua and Judges sway the land,
Ruth gleans a sheaf with trembling hand;
Samuel and numerous Kings appear,
Whose Chronicles we wondering hear.
Ezra and Nehemiah, now,
Esther, the beauteous mourner show;
Job speaks in sighs, David in Psalms,
The Proverbs teach to scatter alms;
Ecclesiastes then comes on,
And the sweet songs of Solomon.
Isaiah, Jeremiah, then,
With Lamentations takes his pen;
Ezekiel, Daniel, Hosea's lyres,
Swell Joel, Amos, Obadiah's.
Next Jonah, Micah, Nahum come,
And lofty Habakkuk finds room;
While Zephaniah, Haggai calls,
Rapt Zechariah builds his walls—
And Malachi, with garments rent,
Concludes the ancient Testament.

IT IS not popular to say anything commendable on the side of the much talked of "hard times," but at the risk of being misunderstood we are inclined to say that the stringency through which we have passed will not fail to leave its good influences and wholesome lessons upon the people. It is often necessary to deplete the human system in order that a good state of health may prevail; and, in a way, the same principle may be applied to other things with which we have to do. With an overflowing treasury, public men are not apt to see the necessity of administering, in the most economic way, public affairs. The universal contentment of the people—and they are always content when money is flush—notwithstanding the probability of a fierce and disastrous reaction, is to them an endorsement of their conduct, and so feel no necessity for taxing themselves to find out the best things to be done. But when money is hard to get, and an effort has to be made to make the account balance, people take account of the actions of their servants in their dealings with them. Then when we come to the business world we shall find that, after all, the Spartan idea, the survival of the fittest, prevails.

When customers are abundant, and goods are freely bought, most anybody can run a store; but when the panic comes, then what? When business skill to buy goods in just the right quantities and the right quality, and the best effort to sell and collect the money are required, then the man who is equal to these things stems the tide, and his neighbor who is not, is swept down with the throng who either could and would not, or would but could not.

We know young men who are in college to-day because their fathers decided that they were unable to send their boy to school. The boy at once took an inventory of his own resources, sought help and encouragement from other sources, and ere long he will bless the day of his poverty, for this was one source of his strength and a cause for his success.

The condition of the farmers in North Carolina is an emphatic demonstration of what we are attempting to show. We are aware that there are men, whose promotion to and continuance in office depend upon the agitation of the people, will not agree to this; but in spite of this, the fact remains that the farmer who is out of debt—debt, too, created in that abnormal period of high prices and plenty of money to which we have already alluded—is relatively in as good condition as ever before.

This is, however, by the way; for to properly estimate the good influences, which have been the outgrowth of these years of trial to the farmers, we must take into the account how much better chance his boy has of being a man, after having to mix some work with his books, getting some practical ideas which will not only help him to make his own way in the world, but will bring him in touch and in sympathy with common humanity. Then, this boy's sister is no less fortunate if she, too, has felt the necessity of doing some appropriate work—a charming accomplishment that can in no way detract from the rythm of poetry, the sweetness of music or the beauty of art.

Sacrifices and suffering have for the most part been the heritage of powerful and permanent institutions. Not long ago, when in the terrible money stringency was added the unfair, unrighteous competition of State-aided colleges, it looked as if the existence of institutions not thus favored were nearing their end. It might have been so—it would have been so—but for the fact that new energy was quickened and the friends of these institutions were multiplied, the justness of their contention recognized, and so now the value and merit of these institutions have become more and more to be appreciated as they have been discussed before the people.

We may not just now, but the time is coming when we shall realize that the things which have happened to us have turned out for the furtherance of the cause of education, and for the everlasting vindication of right principles.

"I Am the Way."—John 14: 6.

BY C. C. F.

There are many false ways by which men hope to be saved. God helping me, I want to block up some of them.

I. THE MORAL WAY.

Many thousands are walking this path—relying on their moral character, depending on good works to save them. Talk to them about their need of the Saviour, and they begin at once to laud their consistency. Their habits are the best. They never took a drink. They claim to be honest, just, benevolent and, in their self righteousness and self-sufficiency, they say, "I am sure some of these church members do things I would not do." This moral way is a false way, and ends in eternal destruction. Turn to the third chapter of John and see what Jesus said to Nicodemus, a man of highest moral character, great wealth and wide influence. None of these were of any value. Oh, I beg you to turn away from the moral way. It ends in ruin.

II THE WAY OF CHURCH MEMBERSHIP.

Of itself, it means nothing. The doors of our churches are open too wide. We are too careful for mere numbers. There are many among us who give evidence of a total lack of divine grace. They are professors but not possessors. They are strangers to the new birth. There is a large per cent age of church members among embezzlers, defrauders, and the hands of many a church member has been stained with blood. There are scores in our churches who are leaders in the dance, the theatre-party, the horse race, and other devices of Satan to entrap the unwary. No, I tell you that church membership alone is a false way. Of themselves, neither baptism, nor sprinkling, nor confirmation, nor the communion, nor external devotion, nor the millinery of our altar, nor images, nor crucifixes—none of these alone are of the least value. Mere church membership is a false way.

III GOD'S GOODNESS.

Relying on God's goodness and mercy, out of Christ, is a false way. Some say, "I believe God is too good to punish me." Yes, God is good. "His mercy endureth forever." He has given to you in Jesus Christ and him crucified the richest display of his infinite goodness and mercy. Talk about God not punishing sin! He has punished it in the person of his beloved Son. "He hath laid on him the iniquity of us all." Again, "He was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquity; by his stripes we are healed." Outside of the crucified Christ, I tell you, God is a consuming fire. He hates sin. Trusting in God's goodness, out of Christ, is a false way.

IV. EXPERIENCE AND FEELING.

There is no doubt that a true Christian will have an experience, but experience does not save. Feeling does not save. Many are always looking at themselves, trying to find ground for assurance in their own hearts. Of course, they fail, and are always miserable. Yesterday, their digestion was good, the air pure and bracing—their physical natures were in fair trim, and they had a lively hope of salvation. But to-day they have eaten plum pudding, a fit of indigestion is on, sick headache follows, they have the blues, and with the coming on of all this physical and mental derangement, their hope of salvation is gone. Oh, the supreme folly of trusting to experience and feeling.

V. PART WORKS AND PART GRACE.

"Well," some say, "I know I fall far short of all that is required, but I am just going to do the best I can, and trust for salvation." What is it, pray tell me, that such people say? They say, "I will just go on and make as perfect a robe out of my own self righteous doing as I can, and trust Christ to make it up for me." This is rank Romanism. This is a false way. It leads to eternal destruction. Good works are to be done as an evidence that we are saved, and not in order to be saved. Nothing you can do can add one whit to the fullness, richness and all sufficiency of the work of atonement.

VI. PROCRASTINATION.

A false road. It is the thief of time. Thousands are at this moment enduring all the agony of eternal destruction who went down through their own fatal neglect. Putting off is a terrible mistake. You say to me. "Yes, sir, I want to be saved." I tell you, then, you are in a false and dangerous road. Just as surely as you are living, you will be lost, lost, lost, unless you stop neglecting the offers of God's grace and favor in Christ. "How shall we escape, if we neglect so great salvation?" Procrastination is a road leading direct to hell.

Oh! dear friend, are you treading one of these false ways? If so, heed the tender, loving warning of a true well wisher! Jesus is the one and the only way. Look to him in simple, confiding faith. Commit your all to him. He is waiting to be gracious. God help you to find and walk the true way that leadeth unto everlasting life!

A noble disposition is, of course, a fine thing in itself, but good intentions without good deeds are like unsown seed that bears no harvest; both are capable, but are found wanting in that they accomplish not their end.—Baptist Standard.

Summer Notes.

BY R. F. TATUM, SHANGHAI, CHINA.

Up to July 25th the weather was comparatively cool for this climate, but for two weeks mercury has been nearing, sometimes going above, one hundred degrees in the shade. The beads of perspiration which form and roll off my hand tend to discourage writing even.

Bro. Bryan and family are in Japan for a month or two. In his visit to America he got a change to a better climate but to harder work. No man is more willing to work or enjoys it better than Bro. Bryan. I think it might be said of him that he has an "iron constitution," but he is not made of iron. His absence from his family while in America added care and watching to Mrs. Bryan's lot. So about the middle of July they got consent of their own minds to go aside for a season. Bro. Bryan can't speak (to much extent) the Japanese language. We think he can rest in that country. We know he cannot in China or America.

Our sister, Miss Lottie Price, after seven months' study of the Chinese language, found herself in need of a vacation, and Bro. Bryan persuaded her to go when he and family went, but in a good natured manner she put her foot down against it. Since the hot weather set in, however, she has had to take her foot up and join our friends in Japan.

Miss Kelly is with a missionary friend at the West Gate for a few weeks. (We see her every day or two.) It seems like old times—the times we did not enjoy, when there was nobody here but us. But these times are just for a few weeks and will soon be passed.

Mrs. Tatum and I are taking a kind of vacation, too. Her day-school is dismissed. All services, except the three for Sunday and the church prayer meeting and the women's prayer meeting and the meeting for inquirers, have been suspended for August. We think we will read and write some. Yes, I am reading a book—a rarity in my experience. That book is "A Mexican Ranch." I enjoy it, and can easily see how it took the prize, but in some respects it is not very comforting just now. Its leading character, Miss Summers, a missionary to Mexico, found herself in an epidemic of small-pox. After the precaution of a re-vaccination she went right along with her work, and in spite of obstacles, was happy in her usefulness. In China we are used to small-pox. In the death of our esteemed friend and devoted worker, Mrs. Fannie Knight King, we have lately been warned not to forget the precaution.

But we have no such safeguard as vaccination against sun-stroke and cholera, and the people around us are dying of these by the hundreds daily. A few hundred yards to the west of us is one of the two Ningpo "dead houses" of this place. Here the coffins of strangers and residents from Ningpo are stored to wait for a propitious day to ship them to their native place for burial. Occupants for this "dead house" continually pass our gate. We know sometimes by the procession, often reduced to one man to beat the gong, with one other to scatter along the road paper money for the use of the departed spirit, but more generally by the simple sing song, "Yah ho, yah ho, yah ho," of the hired burden bearers as they go along with the unconcern of carrying rice. Ninety-six was the number of entries given for that house one day lately. There goes the piping of horns, the dong of the gong, and the yah ho, yah ho of the carriers now, and before I can write it they are out of hearing and another approaches. I don't know that the dead body of a Christian ever goes to that house. These facts make us desire to do more rather than consent to doing less. The night is coming to so many.

These days some of you are seeing telegrams which announce the murder of ten missionaries inland, west of Foo Chow, in the Fukien province. It seems that this news is too painfully true. It is said to be the deed of a sect called the Vegetarians, but it is more likely a band of desperadoes acting at the wink of the officials. Of the one hundred and fifty missionaries lately driven from their work in Szchuen province, after their homes, chapels, schools and hospitals were lated and burnt, no lives were taken. Now in another section the Chinese make bold to take a step farther in their fancied hope of driving foreigners from their land. It has been a long time since one of Great Britain's subjects has been murdered in China, except in the case of Rev. J. Wyley by soldiers in Manchuria, and there is naturally considerable excitement among foreigners here on the subject. Some of them would bring swift justice, or rather vengeance, upon the murderers if they could have their way. The Chinese are not savage if left to go their own way. They are taught by officials and gentry that if they want to do a good deed they can do so by killing and expelling foreigners. What action Great Britain or the Anglo Saxon race will take, it would be useless to undertake to prophesy. That Christian people may act as Christians is of vital concern.

Out of the fifty and more who enlisted as inquirers into the Christian doctrine, two, a teacher and a barber, have applied for church membership. We had a very interesting inquirer's meeting last night, at the close of which one other, a teacher, told me he wanted to be baptized. The spirit of prayer that God would forgive sin and save seemed to pervade the meeting.

One other note: About a year ago I assisted our Chinese brother, Wang Sing San, in putting the subject of a subscription to buy an organ before the churches of the South Yadkin Association. At my request, Miss Laura Lazenby, Statesville, took upon herself the work of collecting and forwarding contributions. She did her work faithfully, for which we desire to tender sincere thanks. In all, she sent me eleven dollars. I saw an acknowledgment in the RECORDER as to where ninety-eight cents of this came from. Concerning the rest I do not know where it was collected; but you do. Let me thank you. For the rest of the amount sufficient to buy an organ here, we kept taking collections among ourselves until, added to what you kindly gave, we had two hundred and ten Mexican dollars—about one hundred and twenty gold dollars. We enjoy the organ very much, and hope to use it to the better praise of God.

Sunday-school Finances."

BY T. M. PITTMAN, ESQ.

Dear Bro. Broughton:—I snatch a moment from pressing engagements to express my deep regret that I cannot attend the Chautauqua and render the service imposed upon me.

The subject of S. S. Finances is one that I believe has not received the consideration due it. At the beginning of the whole question of money in Christian work, it is most important that the money principle in religion should be understood and clearly placed before the people. It ought never to be a question of raising money merely, but of doing the Lord's work. If the Sunday school is what we claim for it, then the support of the school is as truly Christian work as the support of a mission in China or Africa, and ought to be so viewed. There ought to be no low, mean views of the Lord's work or its agencies. We ought to insist that the sexton who dusts benches and makes fires, renders a Christian service of honor and dignity, that ought to be done "as unto the Lord," and this work ought to be supported in like spirit. We need to catch inspiration from the Psalmist's declaration, "I had rather be a doorkeeper in the house of my God than to dwell in the tents of wickedness." With that spirit and conception of God's honor, all service is glorious and exalted.

The raising of money should be with the view of supporting the Lord's work. No lower idea ought to be tolerated. How ought it to be raised? Always by direct and never by indirect methods. There is no call for us to do more work for our Father and his Christ than we are able to do in a manly, straightforward way. When we are quite sure we have done our best for God, we may be also sure that we have come up to the full measure of love and duty in our service. Those who see no dishonor to God in roundabout methods of raising money, need to be instructed, not humored. It is still true that "the children of this world are in their generation wiser than the children of light." The man who seeks support for his family by trick and indirection quickly forfeits the respect of the community in which he lives. It is strange that we are slow to comprehend that Christian work and enterprise should be put upon a plane, certainly not lower than is required of respectable men in purely temporal affairs.

It sometimes seems as if our churches and schools are exhausting themselves in the effort to beat their way, dead head, through the world. Shame upon such Christianity! It deserves the contempt the world heaps upon it. The indirect method may promise greater results in the amount realized, but the direct call for the store laid by according to the divine rule, will yield larger results of Christian character and influence, and bless the world with a nobler view of godly consecration and liberality.

There are other phases of this subject I would be glad to discuss, but I will not weary you with them now.

I wish that the thought may yet get hold of the minds and consciences of our brethren that it is more manly and more Christ-like to shoulder directly the burdens and responsibilities of our work than it is to try to avoid the burdens and shift them to other shoulders. I plead for a higher standard of manhood in our churches.

*This subject was assigned to Bro. Pittman for the recent Sunday-school Chautauqua; but it was impossible for him to be present. This article is from a letter to Bro. Broughton.—EDITOR.

The Thought of Death.

It is when considered as the passage to another world that the contemplation of death becomes holy and religious; that it is calculated to promote a state of preparedness for setting out on this great voyage. It is manifest that those who are engrossed with the things that pertain to this life alone, who are devoted to worldly pleasure, to worldly gain, honor, or power, are certainly not preparing themselves for the passage into another; while it is equally manifest that the change of heart, of desires, wishes, tastes, thoughts, dispositions, which constitutes a meetness for entrance into a happy, holy, heavenly state—the hope of which can "mate and master the fear of death," must take place on earth; for, if not, it will not take place after death.—Richard Whately.

A King's Prayer.

B. B. WESTBROOK.

Jehoshaphat, the king of Judah, was far from being a perfect man. As one evidence, read what Jehu the prophet said to him: "Shouldest thou help the ungodly and love them that hate the Lord? Therefore is wrath upon thee from before the Lord." And yet this sinful king humbled himself before the Lord and earnestly prayed to him. In his prayer he said: "O, our God, wilt not thou judge them? For we have no might against this great company that cometh against us; neither knoweth we what to do; but our eyes are upon thee."

This was a very becoming, suitable prayer. One phrase is peculiarly striking. It is this: "Neither know we what to do." How many there are who feel, and often feel as he did! They get into a dark place; their vision is short; their knowledge is very deficient—they know not what to do. We have all been in such a situation. We were entirely shut up. Everything looked dim. For awhile we were greatly perplexed. Well, what did Jehoshaphat do under such circumstances? The answer is seen in the words quoted: "But our eyes are upon thee." When we do not know what to do, then let us look especially to God. Let our eyes be upon him. We should ask him what we ought to do. Perhaps we are forced into trouble by a mischievous neighbor. We are sorely tried. We do not know just what course to pursue. Let us pray God to give us the needed wisdom. Let us beseech him to make plain our duty, and will as certainly aid us as he did Jehoshaphat. We may have some difficulty with a brother or sister of our church. We do not know how to settle it, but God does. Let us quickly ask him what to do, and how to do it. Prayer will settle many things. Carry all of your difficulties to him.

Poorly Paid.

BY P. P.

It costs a preacher years of labor and thousands of dollars in education to prepare himself for his work. In proportion to the amount of work he does, and in proportion to the value of his work to others, there are no persons so poorly paid. Mechanics make from $1.50 to $3.00 a day. There are young men with little education, who, as clerks, bookkeepers, drummers, &c., make from $1,000 to $1,800 a year. There are lawyers and doctors who make from $1,000 to $10,000 a year, and many farmers who are adding to their estates year by year. But I don't know a single Baptist preacher who has accumulated a dollar's worth of property by preaching. Some of them may have some property; if so, it came some other way, not from preaching. I do not know a preacher who makes a dollar more than meets necessary expenses; and many of them have to do some other work to enable them to meet such expenses.

The education and ability of our preachers if devoted to other callings, would secure them from $1,000 to $10,000 salaries. But I do not suppose that the salaries of Baptist preachers in North Carolina would average $500, only half of what many boys get as clerks, &c.

Then, too, these small salaries are often not promptly paid; and preachers have to buy on credit and pay higher prices; or borrow money and pay interest on it; or do without many needed things.

Were it not that the Master pays them in the consciousness of doing good, it would be hard for them to continue their work.

If we had eyes to see the glory of the Lord in the every day of Divine Providence, we should find light and comfort a thousand times where now we walk in darkness with sorrow uncomforted. The glory of the Lord is everywhere. It shines in the lowliest flower, in the commonest grass blade, in every drop of dew, in every snowflake. It burns in every bush and tree. It lives in every sunbeam, in every passing cloud. It flows around us in the goodness of each bright day, in the shelter and protection of every dark night. Yet how few of us see this glory! We walk amid the divine splendors, and see oftimes nothing of the brightness. Says Mrs. Browning:

"Earth's crammed with heaven,
And every common bush afire with God;
But only he who sees takes off his shoes:
The rest sit round it, and pluck blackberries."

We cry out for visions of God, when, if our eyes were opened, we should see God's face mirrored in all about us. There is a legend of one who traveled many years and over many lands, seeking God, but seeking in vain. The returning home and taking up her daily duties, God appeared to her in these, showing her he was ever close beside her. So there is glory everywhere in life, if only we have eyes to see it. The humblest lot affords room for the noblest living. There is opportunity in the most commonplace life for splendid heroisms for higher than angelic ministries, for fellowship with dearest revelations of God.—S. D. Gordon, D. D., in The Every Day of Life.

"Speak gently, 'tis a little thing.
Dropt in the heart's deep well;
The good, the joy, which it may bring,
Eternity shall tell."

The Biblical Recorder.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 18, 1895.

J. W. BAILEY, - - - - - EDITOR.
J. C. CADDELL, AGENT AND CORRESPONDENT.

We thank many of our brethren and sisters in all parts of the State, and from other States as well, for their prompt remittances to our reminders sent out two weeks ago. Many write assuring us of their intention to pay soon, with so many assurances of their love and appreciation of the RECORDER, that we feel almost as good as if we had gotten the money. Do the best you can, brethren, and we will be satisfied.

MANY of our exchanges are discussing at what age a preacher reaches what they term the "dead line." We notice that one, anxious to encourage the older brethren in this matter, claims that probably the most vigorous preacher in New York City has already passed his threescore and ten post. The truth is, age to a reasonable extent may have little to do with the standing of a preacher aside, like men in other vocations, when a preacher relies on what he has done, and fails to add to his resources, be he young in years, middle-aged or old, his station at which to get off is near at hand.

WE notice that free scholarships have been abolished at Trinity College. This is to us another evidence of the superior wisdom of the men who are directing the affairs of this institution. The position of the RECORDER, however, on this question needs no restating. And more, we do not care to pursue an opponent who is on the retreat. If we are not greatly mistaken, the free scholarship business is rapidly losing its charm in North Carolina; so when our esteemed contemporary, the N. C. Christian Advocate, which thinks we are a little eccentric about the use of water, takes the position that a young man worthy of help to go to college, can get it, independent of free scholarships, we take no water here, but stand squarely with you.

WE have met with a goodly number of students from our Seminary at Louisville while spending their vacations in different portions of the State. We have noted with pleasure, in these young men, the absence of that "I have finished" air, which is sometimes prominent in young men who have spent a few years at college. The utmost that any institution of learning can hope for, is to put a young man on a sure foundation for his work, giving him correct ideas as to how he may best accomplish the greatest results in the shortest time, and above all, to impress upon him that his education is his life's work, and must go on through all the years of his labor, be they many or few.

We believe these young men are showing in a marked degree the superior training they are receiving; and we trust the excellencies of our Seminary, which has already done so much by equipping our ministers for their work, may be more and more demonstrated in the greater number of our young men who shall be permitted to share of its blessings and then in turn build up our churches and bless the world.

THERE is one result that we think is frequently lost sight of in considering the subject of giving. We think that the idea uppermost, at least, in the mind of most givers is, that their gift, whatever it may be, is to help the cause under consideration. This motive is worthy and necessary in order to make an acceptable gift. To help others more needy than yourself, to strengthen the weak, and take a part in the uplifting of humanity, are indeed great privileges, when considered only with reference to those benefited; but to get a better and broader estimate of the power in giving, we must not fail to take into the account the good which comes to the giver, as well as that which goes to the receiver.

And this view of it brings out in striking beauty the utterance of our Saviour when he said, "It is more blessed to give than to receive." So whenever we have an opportunity to help the Orphanage, to give to missions, to build churches, or other worthy object, let us not forget that we, too, are strengthened and enriched, strengthened in our faith, furnished in grace, thus becoming more like our Lord.

How fully the Apostle Paul comprehended this idea, may be seen in that affectionate letter to the Philippians. Acknowledging their kindness to him and commending them for their contributions, he says, "Not because I desire a gift, but I desire fruit that may abound in you." Christ's kingdom cannot do without us, but can we grow [illegible] without putting forth our [illegible] in redemption?

HOME RULE.

We have heard much about "Home Rule in Ireland," but, we must confess, we are more concerned about home rule in America. The husband is the head of the family; and being proclaimed by both nature and revelation as leader, his authority should be recognised throughout the home. Inasmuch as this is God's plan, it is, of course, the best plan. It is not asserted that the husband is the wife's master; only as the stronger, he is to protect the weaker, and in the common journey of life to guide his equal partner. He is not to rule his home with arbitrary laws and nonsensical whims, but to consult the interests of his wife, submitting in his governance to the teachings of the Bible. No superiority to the wife is implied except that which arises from the position in which God has placed him—the head of the household. He may be inferior in point of wealth, social position, culture, intellect; still, his headship is secured by divine right, and must be maintained, though assailed by fire and sword and broomsticks. Every institution must have some recognized head. Take the State as an illustration. It must have a governor. There may be many men in the commonwealth possessing more statesmanship, more learning, more executive ability, yet these men must not undertake to perform the duties of governor, nor resist his authority; for such a course would result in anarchy; and a poor governor is better than no governor. Thus, the superiority is often due only to the position the husband holds under God. The wife must render cheerful and loving obedience to the house band, for he is the band holding the house together. If this tie be broken, every other tie of the family is endangered.

If the husband is incompetent, overbearing, unreasonable, dictatorial, the wife's greatest embarrassment will be, not in obeying, but in having such a husband. Still, even in so sad a case, the wife will find that, for the peace of the home, as well as for the social standing of the family, it is wisest to be governed by the Bible and respect the authority of her official half.

Sometimes the husband assumes the attitude of boss. He tries to rule by mere force; but such a course produces friction, and in various ways undermines the harmony of the home. The wives of such men obey because they fear, not because they love. They realize the fact that in the eyes of their husbands they have no rights, are inferior members of the home, and mere appendages of their domineering lords.

There is, however, another side to this question. Instead of bossing he is bossed; the home rule is then reversed, and the husband enters that unconscious state—for he seems never to be conscious of it—which we may term hen-peckery. The wife's stronger nature prevails, and she fills her husband's place as well as her own. This unfortunate condition of things is against the success of the home; yet, if the man will not lead, the woman must. Instinct teaches that the man should direct the affairs of his home.

The home cannot be ruled by thunder and lightning and storm. The law of the home is love. When the wife is the man of the house, the husband is the woman of the house. He cannot maintain his rightful leadership by grumbling, peevishness, fault-finding, or by any of the little meannesses of which female men are capable. The wife's broader sympathies will prevail; her nobler character will assert itself; her larger nature will overshadow the pigmy she, as a queen, leads by her apron strings. If the husband is a cipher, the intelligent wife will be likely to regard him as naught; and if he is a zero, she knows he can never be a hero. So it is not difficult to discern the general principles that determine home rule.

PRESIDENT ANDERSON.

Martin B. Anderson, LL. D., was for many years the wise and successful President of the University of Rochester, New York. Since his death two volumes of his "Papers and Addresses" have been published by the American Baptist Publication Society. We take from one of these addresses, delivered before the "University Convocation of the State of New York," Albany, July 14th, 1876, a few sentences which touch the most important educational question now before the people of this State.

The voluntary system for the support of religion not only excludes the State from the maintenance of forms of belief or worship, but also from the maintenance and administration of those higher forms of scientific education which are necessarily conversant with the very foundations of all morality and all religion.

Nothing is clearer than the fact that government control over institutions of higher education in Europe has been constantly made use of to secure or maintain the ascendancy of political and religious parties. Many of the results which we deprecate in an established church have shown themselves in State control of higher education.

It is obviously impossible, under a government in which religious and political parties make themselves felt in every department, to secure instruction as broad, as free, as untrammeled in such institutions as in those under the control of the voluntary principle.

We believe that, in the future development of the wealth and intelligence of our country, the voluntary system, which has been so satisfactory and successful in the maintenance of religion, will be abundantly able to meet all the demands of higher liberal and professional education. We would confine State provision for education to the common schools.

THIS is the month when the meetings of most of the fall Associations will be held. It is hoped that every pastor has presented the work of State Missions to his people, and that the reports will show a larger proportion of churches contributing to the State Convention this year than ever. As true missionary work as the world affords is done by the State Convention, but the work committed to it cannot be done unless it has the heartiest co operation of every church and pastor in the State. The year has been a good one. Only seven weeks remain before the annual meeting in the Marcy avenue church, Brooklyn. This promises to be one of the largest and best meetings ever held, and one thing that will contribute to its success as much as any other is to report every obligation paid to that date. Pastors and churches, will you not see that this is made possible?—Examiner, (N. Y.)

The above editorial extract from the Examiner shows the estimate of State Missions in New York. The same is true in this State. After five years of pretty extended observation, and a personal knowledge of most of the men engaged, we are of the opinion that no mission work is more needed, none more important, none more fruitful, and none more wisely administered than State Missions in North Carolina. The world affords no more genuine missionaries or genuine missionary work than are to be found in this State. Love of home, patriotism, obedience to the Lord's commands and love of souls, all unite in urging us to do large things in State Missions. This work deepens and expands the life of the churches, and gives and establishes life in destitute places. To control the moral future of our State we should now plant churches in every neighborhood. The State has started anew in its career of growth. Baptist ideas in religion and education are to control the civilization of the future.

....We see from the Richmond Dispatch that Dr. W. E. Hatcher is suffering from an attack of bilious fever. We would, at any time, be sorry to hear of the sickness of Dr. Hatcher, but especially now, as we hope to soon have him in North Carolina to spend a short while. We trust he may soon be well again.

....Dr. W. L. Wright, while at his old home in Troy, preached fourteen sermons, and as a result Rev. G. L. Merrill, the pastor, has baptized seven persons and had one addition by letter. This makes twenty additions to the little church in Troy since Bro. Merrill began his work there in January last.

....Rev. S. D. Swaim says: "My churches are doubling what they did last year for missions. Send me any information in tract form on 'Home Missions.' Whenever a pastor is what he ought to be, and does what he ought to do, the church members gladly and hopefully contribute to missions."

....Rev. J. H. Vernon of Semora, N. C., who has been sick for some months, has greatly improved, and is now ready to begin work. He is a good and true man, a faithful and successful pastor. Here is an opportunity for some church, or churches, in need of a wise and good pastor to secure one of our very best men.

....In a private letter from Bro. J. W. Noble of Ward's Mills, N. C., he says: "We are having a meeting of great interest at Enon church. Already eight have been received for baptism, and many others are interested." Thanks for the nice list of subscribers and the money. There may, after all, be something in a name.

....Rev. L. R. Dixon has resigned the care of the Baptist church at the Gulf in Chatham county, and Rev. O. T. Edwards, we are informed, has been elected as his successor. Bro. Dixon is one of the most efficient ministers of the Sandy Creek Association, an active worker for the RECORDER, and for the various objects of our Convention.

....The brethren and friends of Brother and Sister Tatum will read with sorrow the letter in this paper telling of the death of their little girl. Bro. Tatum's letter shows his reliance on the abundant love and sustaining grace of a kind heavenly Father. His reference to the heathen, for whom he is spending his life, is the spirit of the Master.

....We are made to rejoice by almost every mail with a cheering account by some brother of a meeting held, and the number of members increased. And while we may and ought to rejoice at this, let us not forget that here begins the burden and responsibility, of the pastors and older brethren, to train these young converts in church work.

....Rev. Jasper Howell, Jr., Franklinton, N. C., Sept. 9th, 1895, writes: "Good day yesterday. I baptized four and one received by letter. Rev. Baylus Cade preached Sunday night. Work on our new church is going on now. It will be a credit to our people when it is finished. It has cost sacrifice, and but for this our people should like to help our Female University."

....Dr. W. E. Hatcher is to conduct a meeting at Wake Forest beginning the last of this month. This will bring joy to many a home in the State, especially to those which have a boy at Wake Forest. Let us all pray for the presence and power of the Holy Spirit, and for a meeting, the influence of which shall be felt in all parts of our State.

....In our notes of the Liberty Association, we stated that Bro. Henry Sheets purchased the lot on which the church is built. In this we were mistaken. Bro. Sheets selected the lot, and this is why we commended his judgment; but the land was kindly given by Mr. J. H. Ferrell, and $100 besides. Dr. J. B. Richardson was the first pastor, serving the church two years.

....We are especially glad that Bro. A. Johnson has decided to accept the editorship of Charity and Children. This work will open to Bro. Johnson a broader and, we think, a more congenial field for usefulness. Bro. Johnson's fresh and sprightly style of writing has attracted notice from the highest newspaper authority in the State; and besides this, he is a man of good address, makes a clever speech, and so can be of great value to the Orphanage in all of its interests.

....We wish to call attention of our readers to the plea made by the Executive Committee of the Female University. The building is now well under way, but will suffer if left long in its present condition. The trustees have decided, and we think wisely, too, not to place any considerable debt on the building; and this makes it the more necessary for those who can to help at once.

....A welcome meeting was given by the Christian young men at Wake Forest, assisted by the ladies on the Hill, to the new students, last Tuesday night. The following were the speakers and their subjects: The Ideal Christian College, Dr. C. E. Taylor; The Citizens of the Hill, Stephen McIntyre; The Literary Societies, T. B. Hill; Religious Work Among the Students, A. Cree, Jr.; Athletics, Prof. C. E. Brewer.

....The great fault of many a minister is loquaciousness. To talk too much is even worse than not to talk enough. We had almost said than not to talk at all. Many a pastor has killed his influence for good in a community by too much talking, and especially by talking about the members of his flock.—Christian Secretary. We print the above not so much because we think the preachers have a monopoly in indiscreet talking, but with the hope that others may be benefited along with the preachers.

....A New York exchange of last week states that there has been no gain from 1886 in the per cent. of votes cast for prohibition in the States of New York and Pennsylvania. This may be true in reference to these particular States, but it is far from the truth taking the country generally. We think the great influx of foreign immigration into these States may, to a large extent, account for this condition of things. Coming to our own State, we are sure there is a more universal feeling in favor of prohibition than ever before.

....Rev. G. W. Coppedge has had good meetings at Corinth and White Oak churches. Bro. Coppedge always finds a warm welcome in this office. We feel the most profound respect and admiration for any man who, with little opportunity for preparing himself to preach, has, with a heart full of love for his Saviour, and with a desire for the salvation of souls, gone trusting in the promises of the Book to do the best he might. Our history, if we only had one, would sparkle like gems with the lives of many who have done thus.

....A circular address will be sent out from Baltimore this week to two and a half million Methodists urging that laymen be admitted to the general conferences of the church. This address was gotten up at the laymen's convention in Baltimore. This is progress on the right line—biblical, baptistic, democratic—and shows what every observant man has noticed, namely, that the lay brethren of the Methodist church are wearing lighter and lighter the authority of bishops and presiding elders. We bid you God speed, though you should have to go under the water for a final settlement of the things that now agitate you.

To the Baptists of North Carolina.

Brethren and Sisters:—The Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees desire to speak with each one of you about the Female University. We have the building in process of construction, the walls being up to the floor level of the second story, and the joists for that story being in place.

During this fall and winter there ought to be enough money subscribed and paid in for the building to be put under roof by the early spring. This can be done if our brethren and sisters—members of our faith and interested in the welfare of our Baptist daughters—will give as the Lord has prospered and is prospering them. The amount of money needed is as nothing to our great host of people when their hearts groan with desire for the proper equipment of our daughters for life. We are great in numbers, great in resources, and great in our system of faith; but no denomination can be great in its hold upon the masses of the people, or even great in the eyes of their own children unless they make good provision for their intellectual and spiritual training.

The amount of money needed to complete the building could easily be given by the women alone if they would only attempt it, and when helped by their husbands, fathers, brothers and sons, should be speedily done. We ask our people throughout the State to make special effort for the next year that the work may be done. There come times in the history of every movement when it should have the predominance of our thought, energy and help; and we believe the time has come when our people should unitedly throw their aid to the completion and opening of this school. That this will be done we are greatly encouraged to hope by the cheerful and liberal contributions that have been made during the recent months of financial hardship. There is no doubt about the completion of the work, but we believe it should be done at once and done with such enthusiasm as to awaken profound reverence and respect on the part of all the people of the State. Let those who can give large amounts do so, and let not the poorer ones withhold their offerings because they may be small. It is united effort that makes power and success.

We wish to commend again our worthy and devoted agents, Revs. O. L. Stringfield and J. H. Edwards. Receive them in the Lord and cheer them in their work.

Several newsy communications, owing to want of room, cannot be printed in this issue but will appear in our next.

To Wake Forest Alumni.

Scarcely a tenth of the Alumni, to whom appeals for aid to the Students' Aid Fund were made, have responded. In view of the financial stringency prevalent in the country for some time there is, perhaps, no reason for discouragement. But all signs now point to a season of prosperity such as has not been experienced in a long time. Crops are fairly good and prices of produce bid fair to be considerably higher than heretofore.

Of course, Wake Forest Alumni, along with others, see and rejoice at the brightening prospects. So I venture to remind them a second time of the importance of considering the claims of the Students' Aid Fund. It is a fact of the gravest significance, that no less than ten worthy young men are kept away from Wake Forest this year on account of failing to secure assistance from the Fund. Some of these will probably get free tuition at another institution as well as loan of sufficient money to enable them to spend the year at college. But they are Baptists and, other things being equal, I believe it is generally conceded that Baptist boys of this State ought to be at Wake Forest. I am sure a great many sound thinking people think so and so do some, at least, of the very young men in question.

Every Alumnus of Wake Forest College, one would think, ought to feel a peculiar and personal pride in the success of the movement begun last Commencement and looking to the enlarged usefulness of the college. For the movement is solely in the hands of the Alumni, and upon them depends its success.

In connection with an institution of learning there are many departments of activity. There are the Trustees who are to see that the institution has all needed equipments; there are the members of the faculty who have to look after the course of instruction, making the curriculum the equal, at all events, and the superior, if possible, of that of other institutions; the students also are expected to get the very best possible results from their college training and, in a measure, have the reputation of the institution to sustain. As a result of the combined efforts of trustees, faculty, and students the reputation of the institution goes abroad and young men of talent and means continue to seek the advantages that it offers. But there are plenty of young men who have the talent without the means. For these the Alumni have undertaken to provide. The mission of the Trustees is a noble one; so is that of the faculty and of the students, but the work undertaken by the Alumni is, if possible, yet more high and important.

I beg them, therefore, to "think on these things, and to send their pledges to Prof. Ferrell, Treasurer of the Fund, at once, unless it is simply out of the question for them to do so.

Sec. and Treas. of Alumni Ass'n.

Notes of Travel.

I take up my notes of travel where they were left off several weeks ago because I was too busy to write. A ride of five miles from Creedmore through the rain in Bro. G. L. Allen's carriage, brought me to his hospitable home.

Sunday was spent at old Brassfield church, and the two days following were occupied with a round through that neighborhood. Rev. G. T. Watkins rendered cordial assistance in presenting the claims of the Female University. Substantial help was given whose amount will be greatly increased when the returns are all in. After a few days in Warrenton and vicinity, I find myself again in Granville county at Mt. Zion church greeted by a very large congregation and capital music. After a night very pleasantly spent in the charming home of Bro. D J. Gooch I set out with his horse and buggy, which he kindly lends me for the week, and make a round among about forty families within an area of one hundred square miles. Though half sick I press on, cordially received and well cared for everywhere. Mt. Zion and Eben congregations, which were as thoroughly canvassed as the time would allow, will come up with good contributions which, we are sure, will be but an earnest of better things yet in store. To Bro. J. J. Meadows we are indebted for special kindnesses; several nights were spent at his pleasant home.

On to Stovall Saturday morning where a fair congregation patiently awaits the arrival of the train. The brethren take hold of the work in a manner so hearty as to be exceedingly gratifying. My headquarters here are in the home of Bro. B. T. Hicks whose great kindness can never be forgotten.

I invade Virginia territory enroute for Roxboro and spend a day recuperating at the famous Buffalo Lithia Springs. I am indebted to that warm-hearted Christian gentleman Col. Thos. F. Goode, the proprietor, for special kindnesses. I greatly enjoy meeting here my friend of earlier days, Bro. R. T. Vann who is trying these life giving waters.

Upper and lower Granville are alike in that both sections are dotted with beautiful homes, and covered with abundant crops. Is it not true of the State at large that magnificent crops are the rule?

Brethren, there never was a better time for establishing the Baptist Female University. An urgent appeal for it comes from girls all over the State. If every Baptist who reads these lines will resolve to help and to do it speedily, the walls will go steadily upward. Every one who holds back on the ground that there are enough others to do the work, retards it that much. Every one who helps with even a small contribution, hastens the time when the work will be completed.

The Union of Eastern Section of Raleigh Association meets at Smithfield Sept. 17th. Program next week.

A Word of Reply to Bro. Broughton.

1. I was and am still of the opinion that the ideal was placed so high at the Chautauqua as to discourage workers in country schools. As our Presbyterian brethren say we should "lower the standard" a little for the benefit of country schools. The theory that what is adapted to a city school will exactly suit a country school may be all right in theory, but in fact it will not do, as all active workers in country schools know.

Now the subjects discussed were all very timely and helpful, but it struck me that something might have been added to the program, especially for the benefit of undeveloped country schools.

2. Am sorry that my second criticism made the impression on Bro. Broughton's mind that it seems to have done. Nothing was farther from my mind than that he or his faithful co-workers had any of the "I am holier than thou" feeling. Have always considered Bro. Broughton as one of the most humble consecrated Christians that I have ever known, and all that I saw in him at the Chautauqua only strengthened that opinion. The same is true of the others whom I had in mind when I wrote that second criticism. What I meant to say was that the Chautauqua seemed to be the property of a few churches rather than of the denomination. I gave as a probable reason for this what Bro. Broughton assigns as a true reason, viz., want of interest on the part of other churches. I thought I could afford to make this criticism since my church had more recognition, perhaps, than we deserved; two of us being on the program and two in the orchestra. Am glad to know that other churches are becoming more interested. It was with the hope that others might be lead to take a deeper interest in so helpful a meeting that the second criticism was offered.

3. As to the "speaking sister," very little remains to be said. As you say, Bro. Editor, I didn't question her piety, or zeal and earnestness as a worker. Bro. Broughton's defense, it seems to me, is the strongest endorsement of my criticism. I simply stated what she did, and how she did it. I think nearly all who heard her will say that I did not misrepresent her. Now if what she did was all right, why does she need defending? and why was it unkind for me to use her as an object lesson? If it is wrong to criticise what a sister does before an audience of two thousand people because she is a lady of great worth and piety, then it seems to me the first wrong done her was to place her in a position where she would be open to such criticism. Is the work of "carrying sunshine" into homes where it is needed, I bid her God speed; that is her legitimate sphere; but when she, or any other sister in North Carolina, transcends the bounds ascribed by Paul, they needn't expect to escape criticism.

I wrote my first article, as I have written this, in all kindness and from the best of motives. The Chautauqua was a great meeting, and is destined to do great good in the State. Am sure that I was very much helped by it. It was only because I thought, and still think, that it would be more efficient if some changes were made that I wrote as I did.

When I was a boy, Bro. Broughton came to the dear old country church of which I was a member, and made a speech to the Sunday-school. By his speech and sweet solos he captured me, and I have been in love with him ever since. If I wounded his feelings in what I wrote, am sorry, for nothing was further from my intentions. Candidly but kindly I gave my "impressions of the Chautauqua," and am "of the same opinion still." I want to assure Bro. Broughton of my interest in the great work, and of my prayer for its future success.

LIVINGSTON JOHNSON.

A Word About the Chautauqua.

The Sunday school Chautauqua is capable of great possibilities for good to the Baptists of North Carolina. We should be thankful for the inception of the idea and for the measure of success already attained. That some of its methods are open to criticisms is only an evidence that it has not yet reached perfection. A great many of our best Sunday-school workers recognize the merits of the Chautauqua and regret that they cannot afford to attend because they cannot lose the time and meet the expenses necessarily involved. Now, in order that more of our schools may get the good they need from a meeting of this kind, let each school elect a suitable member and defray expenses. That member will more than repay the school in the enthusiasm he will be enabled to impart and in the improved methods he will be able to suggest. Our school has passed a resolution to this effect, and hereafter, it is hoped, will not fail to be represented.

I do not think there should be any cause for alarm in regard to the "woman question" in the Chautauqua. The large majority of the best Sunday school teachers we have in the State are good women. We may safely trust to their sense of propriety, their fidelity to long established usage, and their knowledge of the Scriptures to do and say only the proper things to be done and said.

H. A. BROWN.

Stands Squarely with Bro. Johnson.

Dear Recorder:—Allow me to say through your columns that I stand squarely by Bro. L. Johnson's criticism of the speaking sister's conduct. Your criticism is on a high key. Brother, the church is with you. Paul is with you. When he warned the church at Corinth against the speaking sister, he says, "It is a shame for a woman to speak in the church," and we believe it.

May the Lord bless every good Christian sister. She has a great work to do, but the moment she is swept from the platform the better for the cause.

Yours in love,

JOHN F. [illegible].

Letter from Rev. E. N. Gwyn.

Dear Recorder:—Rev. G. H. Church of Statesville preached several days and nights at Holly Spring, Iredell county, a few weeks ago. He is a man of power in the pulpit and in the congregation. Some persons speak lightly of him for preaching on the streets; but he has a forte for preaching anywhere and everywhere (Apostle like). His street preaching reaches some who never hear the gospel anywhere else; and also many who hear him wish him to visit the churches in the country and declare unto them the truth of God's Word. There is nothing peculiar nor eccentric about him except that he is a stickler for the Bible. His assertions and propositions are all proven by the Scriptures, interwoven by reason and common sense. Large congregations attend his preaching, and God's Word does not return void. Some preachers or pastors are jealous of other ministers attending their churches; but Bro. Church is a help to any pastor and a stimulant to any church he visits. By his request the church raised the pastor's salary, so that he must visit a week or more in each month, thereby, by God's Spirit, imparting life to the church and more consecration to the pastor. Brother Church has been kindly and urgently solicited to visit other churches, which we hope he will do.

Meeting at Clayton.

Much good has been accomplished from our protracted meeting this summer, which continued ten days from the third Sunday in August. Bro. Cowan, the pastor, preached some as earnest, thrilling and impressive sermons as we have ever heard. The attendance was large from the first, and continued to increase till the close, so our house was packed with eager hearers.

The church was greatly revived and encouraged. Some thirteen have professed faith in Christ. Brother Worley Creech of O'Neill's township, was with us a few days. His warm spiritual and consecrated life lent force to his sermons: he is a real power in the ministry, and the Master's blessing everywhere attends his work.

Bro. Hermon H. Horne, an active young layman, gave very efficient aid in the meeting by his appeals to church members and by pleadings with the unsaved. Most of his work was out of church in private talks with the people about their souls' best interests, thereby, under God, leading some to the Saviour. This young man is not a minister, but tries to live up to that standard which requires every Christian to do all in his power to win souls for Christ.

Another bright Baptist and Christian laborer is young Bro. Will E Dodd, who made some stirring talks and told of how the love of Christ in the heart upholds and protects the tempted soul, in a way that carried conviction to the hearts of his hearers, especially to those who have seen what his life has been among us.

Bro. Ashby, the Methodist pastor, also came "over and helped us" with some excellent sermons and good work.

Our new pastor, Bro. Cowan, is greatly beloved among his people here, and we hope to keep him with us. God has greatly blessed us, and for which we give thanks.

IDA HARRELL HORNE.

Visit to South Carolina.

Dear Recorder:—It was my good fortune recently to visit South Carolina for the first time. The objective point was Society Hill in the old historic Welsh Neck section.

The church is one of the oldest in the State, and has a history that reads like a chapter in the "Acts of the Apostles." The church is a living monument to Rev. John Stout, so well and favorably known throughout our whole South-land. For twenty years he led and fed this flock over which the Holy Ghost made him the overseer. To such a people—brainy, cultured, consecrated it was stimulating in the highest degree to preach to them.

The pastor of this charge is Rev. C. L. Dowell, a North Carolina boy, and he fills the bills, too. He has "grit, grace and gumption," is a pleasant speaker, and has a heart as big as his body. Sister Dowell is a wonderful help to him in his work and a model wife for a preacher.

An unexpected benediction was the sight of F. M. Saterwhite my old friend and schoolmate who came up with me and of great tribulation. I never was any nearer heaven than the evening I spent in his home. He is one of the few men in all the world to whom I have dared to show my soul.

There are two sides to almost all questions and the question of definite or indefinite calls is certainly not an exception. I think the scriptures are silent on the subject. A great deal more is said than its importance deserves. My observation in the matter is, that the relation of Pastor and people is freer, easier and more pleasant when the call is annual, and that almost all the misunderstandings arise where the call is indefinite. I know almost all the preachers are against me, but as an old friend of mine frequently tells me "There are ways enough in the world for every body to have one."

A Few Books.

We acknowledge the receipt of Capt. Ashe's book on the free coinage of silver. We have not found the time to read the book as closely as we would desire. The book is written in good style, and the honesty of purpose which its author had in writing is seen throughout. Capt. Ashe has made an honest effort to inform the public on the subject of finance, in knowledge of which he has no superiors and few, if any, equals in North Carolina. The title of the book is "A Day with the Professor and his Friends; Familiar Chats on Free Coinage," and costs only 25 cents.

Editor Recorder:—In a recent issue of your paper, I saw an article stating that there had been a meeting at Rockyhock, in which there were three conversions and I doing the preaching.

The place and number were wrong. The place was Siloam, Bertie county, N. C.; and the number added to the church was thirteen.

A Few Running Notes.

Dear Recorder:—Since I am at home again I'll give you a few "running notes."

THE CHAUTAUQUA.

If the meeting at Red Springs benefited every one that was present as much as it did me, then all are well paid for the money spent. I went to see and to learn. It was my first attendance, and I think I shall go again. The work done is generally well done and well worth doing. If Sunday-schools are a good thing, then the Sunday-school Chautauqua is a good thing, for it greatly helps the Sunday-school workers.

I saw many people there that I was glad to see. Many whom I hoped to see I did not see.

The Red Springs brethren are a noble band, but how could they be anything else with such surroundings and such a pastor? Many visitors will desire to visit Red Springs again.

KINSTON.

Bro. Spilman asked me to rest by going down and preaching for his people the fourth Sunday in August, as he would be away in a meeting elsewhere. As I was resting a few days anyhow, I went down and renewed some pleasant acquaintance. Dr. Lewis and his good lady made my stay very pleasant while I was at their home. Bro. Spilman has some noble people to march with him in the fight he is making there for Christ. It was a pleasure to preach to those noble brethren and sisters. But the destruction wrought in the town by fires during the year has hurt many of them for a time. Yet trials will refine and purify the pure gold. I believe that in the end it will help the Christian people there.

GOLDSBORO.

Bro. Newton knows how to endear himself to his people. Though a young man in experience as well as in years, and despite the fact that he followed such men as have filled the Goldsboro pulpit, he seemed to have made himself almost necessary to those good people. But his decision to attend the Seminary leaves a good field for some good man. Goldsboro is really a better town than I thought it was, and the church there is doing good work.

CONCORD.

After an absence of two Sundays, I stepped into harness in my own field again, feeling better able to do the work after my running rest. Also I found that my people had enjoyed my absence. They were pleased with Bro. Suttle who supplied for me one Sunday.

We are trying to keep our heads above the water and make a few strokes forward. If you doubt whether we are alive, come up to see us at the Mecklenburg and Cabarrus Association which meets with our church in October. We think we are distancing some of the other churches in the race. Come and see.

We have some of the best people I ever saw. We have others equal to them if we could only electrify them into life and activity. Can't you tell us how to make all as the best ones? Fraternally,

J. O. ALDERMAN.

Concord, Sept. 11, 1895.

From Henderson, N. C.

Dear Recorder:—I have been a reader of your paper for twenty years, and can truly say it is better to-day than at any other time in its history. Every Missionary Baptist pastor should make special effort to get members of his church and congregation to take the RECORDER. The pastors would find it easier to preach to people who read the RECORDER than to those who do not read it.

On the fourth Sunday in August last I was at Grassy Creek church where I was born and reared. It had been five years since I attended services here. Dr. R. H. Marsh, the pastor, is a noble minister of the Word, and I readily saw how hard it was for even him to successfully serve this country congregation. I saw him baptize twenty-two new members. One of them had passed his fiftieth year. The congregations at this place have always been large, but it seems strange that a people who have had the very best preaching for half a century should have among them some who have not learned to keep silent and pay good attention while the Holy Scriptures are read and commented upon for their instruction and spiritual welfare.

The Baptist people of Henderson are well pleased with their pastor, Rev. Junius Millard. He is a young man, and seems to understand how to fill his position as the shepherd of his flock in this growing little city. He is zealous, sensible, and ever ready to speak a word for the Master. It is expected that great good will be accomplished; if this should not follow, the fault will not be with Brother Millard.

Rev. T. D. Hill makes Henderson his home at present as the most accessible to his four country churches.

Furnishing Grain to Distillers.

BY R. O. A. TEAGUE.

"Church members who furnish distillers grain and fruit, would sell the Saviour for thirty pieces of silver."

So said a preacher in Mocksville a few days ago. Did he tell the truth? Church member, would you sell the Saviour for thirty pieces of money? Perhaps you think and firmly believe that you would not sell him for the whole world. Poor deceived mortal that you are! I mean you that furnish the distiller with fruit and grain with which to make ardent spirits. You have already sold the blessed Saviour for less than thirty pieces of money, and are still repeating the sale, as the days come and go. Poor deluded man! You are not only selling the Saviour, but are selling his church. You are selling yourself and others members of the church. You are selling the liberties and privileges of the church of Christ. Yes, the Devil has bought you out for the promise of having a dwelling place with him forever and ever in hell. Oh! what a price you have sold for!

Church member—you that supply fruit and grain to the distiller—how many souls have already gone to hell from drinking the whiskey and brandy you have helped to make? and how many more do you think you will help send to the same place? Now if you are truly helping the Devil and the distiller make strong drink by furnishing material, the New Testament assigns you a home with the workers of iniquity forever.

Two church members, on the morning of this writing, loaded their wagons with corn: one took his to relieve the wants of a poor family, the other carried his to the still-house! The one blessed man and honored God with his corn; the other destroyed man and dishonored God with his corn. The Book says to the first, "Well done, good and faithful servant," and to the other, "Depart, ye cursed," &c. This is bound to be so, though the last given church member had his name recorded on a hundred church books.

Preacher, do you lift up your voice like a trumpet in warning men along this line as you ought?

"The Baptists Have Never Persecuted."

BY G. B ALFORD.

I am much pleased with the article in the RECORDER of the 28th ult., written by Rev. Chas. A. G. Thomas, headed "The Baptists Have Never Persecuted."

The article is an able one and full of truth; indeed, it is one of the best explanations of the fundamental principles of the Baptist church I ever read: it contains the very essence of genuine Christianity, and I would to God that every Baptist in the Nation and all other Christians could read it and get as much out of it as I have. The RECORDER could not do a better thing than to publish that article for three months, and ask its subscribers to hand the paper around to their neighbors, and they in turn to others, so that it could be read far and wide by all classes.

As a layman, I wish to add a little to what Bro. Thomas has said.

It was the spirit of long forbearance and toleration, as exemplified by the true followers of Christ in Baptist churches, which so influenced the framers of the fundamental law of the land as to cause them to place in the Constitution of our great country a provision giving the right to every citizen to worship God according to the dictates of his own conscience. This was far reaching, and really the corner stone of civil liberty. It is doubtful as to whether our forefathers saw at that time the full extent of the clauses in the Constitution, but God was in it and directed it for the good of his people. The guarantees in the Constitution make us a free people, able to govern ourselves, viz., freedom in worship, freedom of the press, and freedom in public speech. The abolition of these guarantees, or any one of them, destroys our Republic. The truth cannot be sold except by the true worshiper in his free expression through a free press, and by a free public expression by word of mouth. Without the truth, all will perish. A great door is open. I pray God to give us a lofty ministry and a pure gospel. Let every Christian pray daily that the weak brethren among us may be lifted up to a higher sphere—so high that no slur can be properly cast at them, and that the casters of the slurs may be seen in their true light. God be thanked for the faith and truth which will overcome errors; for the brightness of the true light which burst through the clouds in about the fourteenth century, and which will soon again burst from a smoky sky. Christians will then come into close relations and see through close glasses. There will be much love and great rejoicing when the stray sheep are all safe in the fold of truth! My prayer is, that the Lord may help us to restore Christian love in our churches.

Begin School Promptly.

ATTEND PUNCTUALLY FROM THE FIRST DAY TO THE LAST.

The following words of timely counsel were intended for Virginia, but will apply equally well to North Carolina. The venerable author, now ninety years of age, was the first President of Richmond College and having spent the most of his life in the instruction of the youth, is widely known as an educator. Surely such words of wisdom deserve to be heeded not only in Virginia but in other States as well.

[illegible] begs leave to call the attention of the people of Virginia to the importance of sending their children, from the country to the university during the [illegible] sessions. Impressed with the importance of [illegible] history of the State, the custom was to give a vacation of two months, and thus make the session of ten months duration. The prevailing habit of the present age, by common consent, is to extend the vacation to three months and to contract the session to nine months. The former is given in good measure—say fourteen weeks—and the latter in scant measure—say thirty-eight weeks. These numbers will be found on examination to be true of a large majority of our schools.

Now take off Saturday from the thirty-eight weeks—for which we have no authority but usage—and the Lord's day—for which we have divine authority and we have 190 school days and 175 rest days in the year. Of what other calling in life can this be said? What an excellent opportunity is thus given to pupils to forget what they learn! What a help to that dissipation which qualifies for new and difficult studies! "Blue Monday" is a standing proof that boys, returning to their books after an absence of even two days, often feel a stronger distaste for their work. Shall not parents, teachers and pupils, in view of these subtractions, combine to prevent the loss of a single day at the opening of the next session of all our schools?

"2. The first days of that period are by far the most important of all its days. From the nature of the case, all the pupils must then be classified. A new study is now introduced. Its cardinal principles are, by frequent repetition, impressed on all the minds of the class. The full understanding of these is necessary to the comprehension of all that follows. The desuetude of the pupils to study is rubbed off and they begin to progress hopefully and rapidly. The preceptor feels like a teamster who has just gotten a loaded wagon up a long and steep hill.

But now a new member is assigned to the class, just two weeks behind the time. He brings from home the request that he shall prosecute the very subject in hand. What is to be done? The teacher is clearly not morally bound to go over all the ground from the beginning with him, and if from pure kindness he attempts it, he feels a dispiriting fear that it will be futile. It requires an unusually apt, dilligent youth to keep up with an ambitious class and yet learn all that they have acquired in his fortnight's absence. It is generally found, too, that the laggard is neither bright nor studious; otherwise he would have started at the beginning. The result is almost inevitable that he will lose his time and money, and will be discouraged through his whole future course.

Many a failure in schools is due to the want of punctuality. I have often been obliged, mainly from late arrivals, to divide an algebra class into two and set the dullards back to the definitions of plus and minus. And yet indulgent parents will continue for frivolous causes to keep their children at home for weeks of school time, to the detriment of the schools, their children and themselves. But this unwise policy is not confined to the humble institutions. We hear sometimes from our colleges and universities, long after their opening the announcement that students are still coming! To this, however, Brown University is an exception. It was long ago—and I trust, is still—her law that all her classes begin to recite regularly on the first day of the session.

"3. I feel justified in adding that my venerable father educated his seven children on the plan here recommended. I do not recall a single instance in which he permitted his children to tarry at home a day after the session began or to come home a day before it closed. They began at the beginning, went through the middle, and stopped at the end. Nor did he ever get late to church. He invariably attended and was always on time. Is not his example worthy of universal imitation.—R Eyland, Lexington, Ky.

The poverty of the pulpit is openly confessed when such subjects as the "New Woman" or "The Wheel" are announced for the purpose of drawing the crowd. The crowd often comes. But it comes, not to be fed, but to be amused, entertained, or to satisfy its curiosity. It comes, but it is likely to go away unsaved, disgusted with the minister and his message, and, possibly, with the Master, on the supposition that he sent such a servant. When the old gospel will not draw men to Christ, nothing else will. God made no mistake in appointing preachers of the gospel as the means of saving men. But men make a mistake when they depend on anything else. We care not what you put in its place, it will fail. There is that in truth that meets the want of the soul. The world knows that such was the mind of Christ. When ministers substitute claptrap, for the avowed purpose of drawing, the world at once looks upon them as acting by false pretences. They placard some popular theme, and then attempt to smuggle in the old gospel. "In vain is the net spread in the sight of any bird." The most stupid kinds are smarter than to be caught that way. Men are usually brighter than the birds. He who would catch them must not tell them that he would inveigle them into listening to what they dislike. To gain the confidence of men is a main point in usefulness as a public teacher.—Christian Instructor.

Your daily meals

can do you no good when your stomach and digestion are out of order. The food you eat does not make so much difference as the way it is digested. When in health you can eat almost anything, but when sick the most delicate dishes cause disgust!

Brown's Iron Bitters

is the best remedy for stomach troubles and indigestion you can take. It has been tried and proven for many years. It will surely cure you. Brown's Iron Bitters does not injure the teeth or cause constipation, as all other iron medicines do. If your stomach troubles you, it's Brown's Iron Bitters you need! Do not try it as an experiment merely, for many, many sufferers have told us of dyspepsia cured, health restored, you need not doubt it.

SUBJECT FOR SEPTEMBER—MEXICO.

"I will bring the blind by a way they knew not." Missionaries, 20; native assistants, 19; stations, 14; churches, 32; membership, 1,120; baptisms, 286; schools, 3; scholars, 103; Sunday-school scholars, 639. Contributions, $1,817 38.

Study Topics.—Romanism fully developed. Sale of indulgencies. The Black Christ of Toluca. Baptist beginnings. Baptist successes. Persecution of Rev. H. R. Moseley. Present condition of our work.

When God takes to himself a leader, we look at one another and say, Who will take her place? The answer is often long delayed and often never comes. Why? Because so few are going to God's preparatory school. Yet the tuition is free, all may attend, and the invitations are incessant and insistant. The text-book is the Bible; the recitation, prayer; the practical application, help given to those who need.

Leaders are falling thick and fast. God says "It is enough," and they pass out of sight. Who of us are giving ourselves into the hands of the great Teacher to be schooled for service?

Practical education is the cry of the hour—in other words, education which may be brought into the practical work of the every-day after life. Practical religious education is needed no less. How many, even amid life-time Bible students, outside of the pulpit, if called on suddenly, could turn without hesitation to just the right chapter to comfort the sick, awe the godless, lead the penitent, or open a missionary meeting.

The hour of service comes often suddenly. God's preparatory school for Christian service is a practical one, and unless we can apply its teachings readily, we are not proficient scholars.

The Foreign Mission Journal comes this month for the last time in its well-known form. Next month (October) it will be The Mission Journal of the Southern Baptist Convention—The Foreign Mission Journal and The Home Field being consolidated to form this magazine. We hope every Society will endeavor to form a club of subscribers for the new and enlarged Journal. The key-note of the September number may to be "more." Mr. McCormick of Mexico treats of the great need—more spiritual power, while the letters and appeals are full of the need of more missionaries.

Mexico.

EXTRACTS FROM REPORTS.

SALTILLO.—The Saltillo church has called a native pastor, Bro. Pablo Rodriquez, and is supporting him without help from the Board. This is a heavy strain on our church, but we are anxious to set an example in the matter of support; already other churches are moving in the same direction.

THE SCHOOLS.—The Zaragoza Institute, a small training school for boys, is supported by a good Southern Baptist brother, whose name I am not at liberty to make public. Of the eight boys who are studying with me this year, two have given themselves to the work of the ministry.

MADERO INSTITUTE.—During the year two young girls, day pupils, have been bapt'zed, and two or three others have declared themselves believers in the truth. A voluntary Bible class has been organized, which is attended by some thirty five of the girls.

TOLUCA.—We have raised some $400 for apparatus, etc., for Madero Institute, and some $3,000 to support the Orphanage in Toluca. The Orphanage is virtually under my control. The church at Toluca has been left under my care by the removal of Bro. Stephenson to Guadalajara. I have devoted considerable time to the establishment of the Orphanage, and the gathering of all the missionaries in Mexico in a meeting in Toluca in April for our spiritual improvement.

PARRAS.—Parras is beginning to take on new life. We are expecting great blessings during the present year. The idea of self-support is growing in my district.

ZACATECAS.—Our work has not been very hopeful in this field for the last two years, but prospects are a little better now.

MORELIA.—The outlook is very encouraging. What gives special promise is the evangelistic spirit growing among the native brethren, several of whom, without salary of any nature, have done this year active and self-sacrificing work. They are fully in sympathy with the self support system, and two of them have refused salaries offered them by Southern Methodists to work for them. God's Spirit has manifested himself during the year in manifold ways.

Between Ourselves.

Several of our old members have come back, and we hope for better times.—Miss Robertson, Yanceyville.

"Our Society now numbers twenty-eight members," writes Mrs. Johnson of the new Society at Bell's church, Mt. Zion Association.

Our Society authorized me to say that we consider it a very great privilege to co-operate in fulfilling the commission of our dear Lord, and that we will do ourselves the honor of assisting to perpetuate the memory of our noble missionaries by contributing to the Yates memorial fund.—Mrs. D. Worthington, Rocky Mount.

Our Society meets in regular session to-morrow, and our pastor, Mr. Lumberth, has promised to meet with us and give us a missionary talk.—Mrs. W. C. Moore, Mt. Airy.

Our President, Mrs. Grant, is away on a visit. We all miss her so much, but know the change and rest will do her good. Please send our Society the name of a Home missionary to whom we may send a box.—Mrs. A. S. Turner, Goldsboro.

A sister writes: "Mine is a busy life. I have to fill the place of President, Secretary, and Treasurer of our little Society, yet I am only a poor widow with ten children. Pray for me that I may be able to do more for the Lord and to the glory of his name here in the world."

Mrs. Scarborough writes to the new Society at Murfreesboro: "We have had two good meetings, and all are interested. Hope and pray. I do: that the interest may continue to increase." This Society has asked for a letter from a frontier missionary, and are talking of a frontier box.

The Raleigh First church has just sent the best box they have ever packed to a missionary who had lost everything by fire. The appeal came in the summer time when work in town is apt to languish. The prospect looked a little doubtful at first, but some said, "we must," and the good box proved again the old will and way proverb.

I want to say that we were delighted with your last letter concerning the box, and the ladies are planning already to fill it. My children in the primary department at Sunday-school have already begun a quilt to be sent to the little girl. I gave them an ice-cream supper last week in order to talk to them about the work, cut patterns for quilt, &c. All seemed so happy to make a square for the quilt.—Mrs. B. W. Wray, Leaksville.

Let us call things by their right names, especially when they relate to the kingdom of God. Therefore, well does Rev. J. B. Donaldson suggest: "We are accustomed to talk of giving to the Lord's work. That is a great mistake. The giving is from the other party. The silver and gold are the Lord's. We only dig it up. The cattle upon a thousand hills are his. We only herd them. The wheat does not germinate by our power. The sun does not shine at our bidding. The rains do not fall at our word. The soil is not fertile through our wisdom. Our opportunities and faculties to make money are all gifts from God. He "giveth thee the power to get wealth." Let us pay God his due.—Selected.

This revision of the Lord's Prayer has been made for those who do not believe in Foreign Missions:

"Our Father which art in heaven, above America. Hallowed be thy name, in America. Thy kingdom come, in America. Thy will be done, in America, as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, in America; and forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors, in America."—Selected.

Miss Fannie:—In answer to your letter received a few days ago, asking us to assist you in raising the Yates' memorial fund, I write to let you know that our Sunbeam Society met last Sunday and agreed to do all we could.

Send us three or four programs for Sunday school Mission Day.

Hope you will succeed in raising the amount needed for the memorial.

Yours respectfully,
BENJAMIN A. SUMMERLIN,

A Bank Account with the Lord

A lady who sent a dollar to Foreign Missions for a little boy friend, said: "Raymond wants a bank account with the Lord, and hopes some day to be a missionary." We trust there are many other little boys and girls who wish to keep a "bank account with the Lord" in this way, and who are hoping that some day they can give their best gift by offering themselves to be missionaries to the heathen. About "bank accounts," see what Jesus says in the Sermon on the Mount, Matt. vi, 19–21.—Selected.

The September number of The Forum will contain an unusually interesting paper by Mr. Clarence King, entitled, "Shall Cuba be Free?" Mr. King paints the treatment of the Cubans by their Spanish masters in the darkest of colors and makes an eloquent appeal for Cuban independence.

Literary.

A new writer, F. W. Cotton, has a very suggestive article in the September Arena outlining the plans of "A Labor Exchange," to take the place of the existing industrial system of competition among the laborers for mere existence.

The Denomination and its Colleges: Three Addresses. By Pres. B. L. Whitman, D. D., Alvah S. Hobart, D. D., LL. D., and Pres. E. B. Andrews, D. D., LL. D. 12mo, 48 pp. Price, 5 cents. Fully worth the price, many times over.

Of the manuscripts left unpublished by Robert Louis Stevenson at his death (not many, by the way), the first to reach the public is a collection of very original "Fables" in the September number of McClure's Magazine. One of them is a conversation between John Silver and "Cap'n" Smollett, of "Treasure Island," which is as delicious in its way as anything those worthies do or say in "Treasure Island" itself.

The Homiletic Review for September justifies its promise of a "new departure." The leading article by Dr. Gregory, in his series on "The Preacher and the Preaching for the Present Crisis," treats of "The Preacher and his Furnishing." It emphasizes the absolute necessity for "a different and better training," logical and theological, if the preacher is to have that "complete mastery of the situation, of himself, and of the Bible message," that is requisite in order to the highest success at the present day.

Among the books announced by Harper & Brothers for publication in September is A Steady of Death, by Henry M. Alden, author of God in His World. The extraordinary success of Mr. Alden's previous book, which was pronounced "the most successful work of religious thought of the season," and "the most noteworthy book of a religious kind (in style as well as in substance) published in England or in America for many years," insures a suitable reception for A Study of Death—a book wholly uncommon, spiritual, hopeful, and important.

Fiction and travel are the strong points of the September Cosmopolitan, which, by the way, illustrates better than any previous number the perfection of its plant for printing a magazine of the highest class. Conan Doyle, H. H. Boyesen, Clark Russell are among the story tellers. A well known New York lawyer relates the story of "A Famous Crime"—the murder of Doctor Parkham by Professor Webster. A delightful sketch of "An English Country House-Party" is from the pen of Nina Larree Smith—the house at which she visited being no less than the historic Abbotsford, still occupied by the direct descendants of Sir Walter Scott. "The Realm of the Wonderful" is descriptive of the strange forms of life discovered by science in the ocean's depths, and is superbly illustrated in a surprising and marvelous way by the author, who is a member of the Smithsonian staff. An article on Cuba is timely. Without bothering the reader with unnecessary description of the famous yachts now so much talked of, The Cosmopolitan presents for full page illustrations showing these noted boats. Thomas Moran again contributes a series of the most exquisite landscapes of western scenery, twelve in number, illustrating an article by Col. John A. Cockerill, on "Modern Utah." And it may be said that no more beautifully illustrated number of The Cosmopolitan has ever been given to the public.

Catarrh Cannot be Cured

with LOCAL APPLICATIONS, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure is no quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years, and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing catarrh. Send for testimonials free.

Don't forget your Sunday school; you will be needed there every Sunday, and you will need to be there; you will never be too old to attend; God commands your presence. Deut. 31: 12, 13.

One advantage of taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla to purify the blood is that you need not infringe upon your hours of labor nor deny yourself any food that agrees with you. In a word, you are not compelled to starve or loaf while taking it. These are recommendations worth considering.

With but little care and no trouble, the beard and mustache can be kept a uniform brown or black color by using Buckingham's Dye for the whiskers.

Good Work at Pembroke, N. C.

Dear Recorder:—We want to tell you what the good Lord has done for us at Pembroke, for we can truly say He has done great things for us, whereof we are glad.

In March, 1894, your humble servant came to this place and found no church and no preaching. So I went to preaching, and the Lord has blessed my labors.

We have closed one of the best meetings I have ever witnessed. Rev. W. R. Caines of Bayboro, S. C., was with us and did some good preaching, and the Lord blessed the Word. Bro. Caines made many warm friends while with us.

On Sunday, Sept. 1st, the writer baptized thirteen happy converts in the presence of a large congregation. There are some awaiting baptism. Others will join soon.

Myself, Bro. Caines and deacons Thomas Pernell and J. C. Beard organized these people into a Baptist church, seven males and ten females. The name of the church is Pembroke. The church has called me for their pastor. We will soon go to work to build a church house. Brethren, pray for us and help us.

Yours in Christ, MOSES PRIDGEN.

The Meeting in Troy.

It was my pleasure to preach eight successive days in Troy, beginning with the second Sunday in August. The attendance was very good. Most of the business houses were closed promptly at 11 o'clock, and the people went to church. There were seven additions to the church. Pastor Merrill was obliged to leave, in order to attend a meeting at New Union church. He made me pastor pro tem, and on the third Sunday at 4 p. m. I had the pleasure of baptizing these candidates in Little River at the old sacred place near the Looky Simmons Ford. The scene is a bright spot in my memory. On the same Sunday morning I took the liberty to lift a collection to enclose the church lot (one acre) with a good substantial fence. My brother writes me that the lumber is on the ground and the work will be done soon. It was a great joy to me to preach there where my childhood's days were spent. The people showed me every kindness possible. May the Lord bless and keep them.

There ought to be a good parsonage built in Troy and the pastor located there. The cause is looking up. The Aberdeen and West End Railroad will be to Troy by or before Jan. 1st, 1896, and then one of the best sections of North Carolina will be put in touch with the rest of the world.

Pastor Merrill is a good man and a genial brother to labor with.

Death of little Eva Tatum in China.

Dear Recorder:—I wrote last week. I send this note by a faster steamship line, and it may reach you before that does. [That letter reached us first and appears in another column under the head "Summer Notes."—EDITOR.]

Sunday, Aug. 11th, our little daughter, Eva, was attacked by cholera. We all ate dinner together. At 1:30 p. m. she began as if she had cholera morbus. We did not know what it was till the doctor came. By 7 a. m. Monday the little spirit had gone. The bereavement came so swiftly, but no more so than God's sustaining grace. How I do pity the poor Chinese who have to give up their children unsustained by the confidence that a Heavenly Father does all things well, and with no hope in the resurrection. It is hard enough with these, what must it be without them!

We have taken every possible precaution that we know to keep well. We must leave the rest with our Father.

Yours in hope and sorrow,
E. F. TATUM
Shanghai, China, Aug. 16, 1895.

An Incredulous Smile, or the Simple Exclamation NONSENSE.

If your physician has not investigated it, he would probably exclaim "Nonsense" if you were to ask him about it. Does it stimulate the body and cause it to absorb Oxygen from the air through the pores of the skin? Does this new method of applying these great, vitalizing Oxygen—effect cures of almost all diseases, and in many cases after other methods of treatment have failed?

We can prove that it Does.

Will mail you our booklet, with actual experience of many responsible people in all parts of the United States.

Know Thyself.

From the Era, Bradford, Pa.

Too few people are acquainted with the rapid advance of medical science, and too many doctors are still plodding in the old paths. Once it comes to pass that people know themselves, that all physicians are abreast of the world's knowledge, much of our suffering will come to an end. Medical scientists are not delving into the depths of knowledge for the benefit of brother physicians, but for the benefit of the world. They place in the hands of the well man's means of keeping well, in the hands of the sick a means of recovery. To the parent they give the power of saving the child. Science is working for you—will you accept the proffered help?

Mrs. George Rowend, an estimable lady who resides at No. 270 East Main Street has cause to feel grateful toward the science of medicine.

One day recently, a reporter, learning that Mrs. Rowend had been greatly benefited by the use of a new medicine, interviewed her. She stated that she had been suffering with a female trouble for many years. She had been doctored for the ailment for a long time—in fact, nearly all her life—and had never received anything more than temporary relief. During the last three years her condition grew worse and was aggravated by an affection of the heart. Her health was so poor that she found it almost impossible to perform her household duties.

"I never believed in proprietary medicines," said Mrs. Rowend, "but one day last fall I read an article in a newspaper which told of the cures effected by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I decided to try the medicine. Before I had taken the contents of one box I began to feel better. The depressing weakness which had bothered me for so many years began to disappear, and the action of the heart at once became stronger and more regular.

"I took nine boxes of the pills and I am now feeling better than I have for several years, and I have unbounded faith in the medicine."

Mrs. Rowend is steadily gaining in health and strength and gives all the credit for her restoration to health to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are for sale by all druggists, or may be had by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., for 50 cents per box, or six boxes for $2.50.

MARRIED.

DAVIS—ATKINSON—On the night of September 11th, 1895, at the home of the groom's mother in Chapel Hill, by Rev. Mr. Curry, Mr. John Davis of Chapel Hill and Miss Mamie Atkinson of Wake.

CAVENAUGH—BETTS—On Sept. 4th, 1895, at Apex, by Rev. J. M. Holleman, Mr G. W. Cavenaugh of Benson, N. C., and Miss Eunice Betts of Apex, N. C., youngest daughter of Rev. A. N. Betts.

DIED.

WRIGHT—Died at her father's home, near Poplar Creek church, Vance county, N. C., Sept. 5th, 1895, Miss Hettie Dakota Wright, aged twenty years. Her parents, George W. and Fannie Collins Wright, live midway between Oxford and Henderson.

In every bereavement there is a mystery and a sadness of its own—some elements of peculiar sorrow that separate it from other afflictions. In this a brief, bright and lovely life, all radiant with sunshine, joy and promise, has suddenly come to a close with its own heart crushing sorrow.

On the morning of the day of her death she was in usual health and spirits, full of life and gladness. Her weight was about 140, her appearance the very picture of health and happiness, with cheeks glowing with the buoyancy of youth, eyes beaming with intelligence and cheerfulness, and feet bounding with grace and activity; but before twilight had faded away the fair maiden and lovely daughter had departed—"to be with Christ." In a few short hours cholera morbus had done its dreadful work; the nerves were shattered; the eyes darkened; the brow marbled; the placid countenance traced by the outcroppings of deathly suffering—only one feature remained untouched by death's relentless hand. It was the gently parting lips over which still flitted the sweet, life-like smile of innocence and purity. With this remaining index of character and seal of goodness she was queenly and beautiful even in death. She was elegantly robed in a garment emblematic of purity and laid away in a casket befitting her personal worth and loveliness.

At the church, where she was a member, the funeral services were held by Rev. T. B. Hill, and a former pastor, who had baptized her seven years before. The interest of this sad occasion was greatly increased by the presence of some teachers and many fellow-students from Oxford Female Seminary, where she had just finished her education. They came with many tears of sympathy, some touching memorial lines by a teacher, and many resolutions of respect from the Societies of which she had been a secretary and vice president.

The remains were tenderly buried in the churchyard by loving hands in the midst of many admiring friends and bleeding hearts. It was a sad time—made doubly so by sympathy for the distressed family and a deep sense of personal bereavement.

Thus has passed away a beautiful life. "Her sun is gone down while it was yet day." She did not live long, but she lived well. She packed her life with usefulness, with deeds of charity, with self-forgetfulness, with purity and love. Her presence was a joy and benediction. The neighbors praise her. The servants rise up and call her blessed.

At school she was a general favorite, a model of propriety, and a bright example of all that was pure and lovely and of good report.

But it was at home and in the church when her ready helpfulness, her sweet-mindedness, her devotion and genial influence were best seen and felt. There "she did what she could." And now for herself the highest degree of confidence, esteem and admiration among her kindred and brethren. As to the magnitude of the loss of such a one, of whom the half cannot be told, be the measure of consolation. "What I do thou knowest not now; but thou shalt know hereafter"—only we know she was a living epistle of the Master, a bright commentary, on humanity, and a heavenly magnet of splendid power. "One less at home—one more in heaven."

Tributes of Respect.

"There fell upon the home a sudden gloom,
A shadow on those features fair and thin;
And softly from that hushed and darkened room,
Two angels passed where but one went in."

On Sunday morning, September 1st, 1895, God in his infinite wisdom saw fit to take from earth to heaven our dear sister, Mrs. W. W. Vass.

She had been for many years a member of the Woman's Missionary Society, and a committee consisting of the officers were requested to extend to the family our tenderest sympathy, and to express our heartfelt sorrow for our irreparable loss. We know that

"All things that are on earth shall wholly pass away, Except the love of God which shall live and last for aye;"

but we miss our loved one, and sorrow that on earth we can see her face no more.

Sadly shall we feel the loss of her cheering presence, her deep interest and hearty co-operation in all the charitable and missionary work of our Society. She ever exemplified the beauties and graces of a true and lovely Christian character.

"To those who knew her not, no words can paint;
And those who knew her, know all words are faint."

May her life ever be an incentive to us to follow her as she followed Christ.

With loving sympathy we commend to the sorrowing hearts the true Comforter, who "to all believing souls gives light in darkness, comfort in despair."

MRS. W. N. JONES,
MRS. J. N. HOLDING.

God in his wonderful power and tender mercy called from this sinful world to her eternal home, on the morning of August 31st, 1895, our sister, Mrs. W. T. Fisher.

About eighteen months ago she moved near Back Swamp church and soon joined our Missionary Society. Since that time we have known her but to love her. She loved the Society, and was always a cheerful giver. We will miss her; therefore be it Resolved 1. That the Woman's Missionary Society of Back Swamp church has lost one of its most faithful and devoted members.

2. That we extend to the bereaved husband and two little boys our sincere sympathy, and point them to God who alone can comfort the broken-hearted. Trust in him, "He doeth all things well."

3. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the bereaved husband, also that they be spread upon the minutes, and that a copy be sent to the BIBLICAL RECORDER, N. C. Baptist and Robesonian for publication.

Revival at Cane River.

Dear Recorder:—I give a brief report of a good revival meeting at Cane River Baptist church, Yancey county, which began August 5th, 1895, and continued about thirteen days. Services were conducted by Rev. J. F. Sams, pastor. There were twenty seven professions, twenty six were received for baptism, and ten united by letter.

This was a good meeting; but the beginning seemed to look a bit unfavorable, by reason of the small attendance. The aspect soon changed. The people seemed concerned. The moving influence of the gospel soon filled a large and spacious room, the doors and windows were crowded, so that we almost could say the house and river both were full and running over.

Pastor Sams was aided a good portion of the time by brethren W. A. Roberson, Christopher Metcalf, Brownlow Lidy, and Wilson King, all of whom did valuable service.

At the close of the meeting Bro. Sams was again elected pastor without a dissenting voice, or any opposition. He is an active, zealous and efficient worker, and makes his mark wherever he labors. He established a prayer-meeting at this church about twelve months ago, and has kept it up once a week ever since. A prayer meeting is undoubtedly the life of the church.

COTTOLENE.

A CRISP CRUST

Is the making of a pie. The making of a crisp crust depends largely upon the shortening. Use COTTOLENE, the new vegetable shortening, instead of lard, and sogginess will be an unknown element in your pastry. Cottolene should always be economically used—two-thirds as much Cottolene as you would ordinarily use of lard or butter, being ample to produce the most desirable results. The saving in a year represents a considerable item. There are many imitations of COTTOLENE; you should therefore be careful to get the genuine.

Sold everywhere in tins, with trade-marks—"Cottolene" and steer's head in cotton-plant wreath—on every tin. Made only by

BUFFALO LITHIA WATER

Springs 1 and 2.—For Bright's Disease of the Kidneys, Uric Acid Diathesis, Gout, Rheumatism, Nervous Prostration, &c.

Dr. William A. Hammond, of Washington, D. C., Surgeon-General U. S. Army (retired), Professor of Diseases of the Mind and Nervous System in the University of New York, etc., referring to Spring No. 2:

"I have for some time made use of BUFFALO LITHIA WATER in cases of affections of the Nervous System, complicated with Bright's Disease of the Kidneys or with a Gouty Diathesis. The results have been eminently satisfactory. Lithia has for many years been a favorite with me in like cases, but the Buffalo Water certainly acts better than any extemporaneous solution of the Lithia Salts, and is moreover, better borne by the stomach."

Dr. John H. Tucker, of Henderson, N. C., President of the Medical Society of North Carolina, Member of the American Medical Association, referring to Spring No. 1, says:

"I have obtained excellent results from BUFFALO LITHIA WATER in Gout, Rheumatism, and other affections dependent upon a Uric Acid Diathesis, especially for pale, feeble, and anæmic subjects—indeed for patients of this class, my experience teaches, that the Water of Spring No. 1 is more efficient than that of No. 2, and for such conditions I have no hesitancy in saying that it is a remedy of great potency."

Wm. O. Baskerville, M. D., Oxford, N. C., referring to Spring No. 1, writes:

"BUFFALO LITHIA WATER Spring No. 1, is a powerful tonic to the Nervous System as well as to the blood. I have known it to produce magical effects in Nervous Prostration, resulting from overwork, prolonged mental strain, etc., and convalescents from adynamic diseases have been restored to health in a surprisingly short time, the water being a direct blood producer, a valuable heart tonic and a physiological diuretic."

This Water is for sale by druggists generally, or in cases of one dozen half-gallon bottles $5.00 f.o.b. at the Springs. Descriptive pamphlets sent to any address.

Help Me to Help.

O strengthen me, that while I stand
Firm on the Rock, and strong in Thee,
I may stretch out a loving hand
To wrestlers in the troubled sea.

O teach me, Lord, that I may teach
The precious things Thou dost impart;
And wing my words, that they may reach
The hidden depths of many a heart.

O give thine own sweet rest to me,
That I may speak with soothing power
A word in season, as from Thee,
To weary ones in needful hour.

O fill me with thy fulness, Lord,
Until my very heart o'erflow
In kindling thought and glowing word,
Thy love to tell, Thy praise to show.

O use me, Lord, use even me,
Just as Thou wilt, and when, and where;
Until Thy blessed face I see,
Thy rest, Thy joy, Thy glory share.

Who Came While Effie Was Away.

"Has anybody been here to day, mother, while I was gone?"

Effie had been away all day, since breakfast, and now daylight had faded out of the sky, and the moon's "silver sickle" was hanging above their heads.

"Let me see," said mother, putting on her thinking cap. "Yes, I have had one visitor."

"Oh! have you, mother! Who was it?"

"She did not tell me her name," said mother, with a quizzical little smile.

"Did not tell you her name! How very queer! Where did she come from?"

"She did not say."

"What did she come to our house for?"

"Ah! for several reasons. For one thing, she cured my headache; she brought me a letter from a dear friend; she gave me a new book to read; she put a red rose on my table; she finished a piece of sewing for me, and gave me some sweet new thoughts."

"What a strange visitor!" murmured Effie. "Was that all?"

"No; she wanted me to do many things for her. She asked me to make broth for a sick girl, to write two letters offering to help two people, to pay a visit, to make a pudding, and several other things."

"And did you do them for her?"

"I did some of them, and some I left undone. I wish now that I had done them all?"

"I would give anything to see her, mother. Will she ever come again?"

"No," said mother, "she cannot come again, because she died at sunset."

"Died, mother? How dreadful! And yet you are smiling. I think you are joking somehow,—are you?

"Not joking exactly, Effie, dear, but I am talking in a little parable which I think you can guess, when I tell you her sister is coming to-morrow at sunrise,—her twin sister, so like my visitor that no one could tell them apart, though some of her gifts and some of her desires will be different from to-day's guest."

"You say you don't know her name, mother?"

"I didn't say that." I said she did not tell me her name. But I do know it,—it is Thursday."

"Thursday!" cried Effie, laughing. "You just mean to day, then."

"Yes, to-day."

"And your visitor to-morrow will be named"— "Friday, of course."

Effie was very much amused at the idea of the Thursday visitor and the Friday visitor; but, when she woke up in her little bed the next morning, she said softly to herself:

"How do you do, Mrs. Friday? I wonder what you have brought me to day? At any rate, I am going to do all the things you ask me, 'cause you have got to die at sunset, you know."

And, right away, Mistress Friday asked the little girl to get up and dress in time for morning prayers.—Elizabeth P. Allen, Lexington, Va., in Sunday school Times.

Looking Upward.

The following advice, given to a young married woman who was visited by another older and more experienced one, may be helpful to some of our readers:

When the visitor rose to go, the hostess came with her to the door, and out upon the pleasant piazza, which, however, looked a little dusty in the corners.

"Oh, dear!" said the young wife, "how provoking servants are! I told Mary to sweep this piazza thoroughly, and now look how dusty it is."

"Grace," said the older woman, looking into the disturbed young face with kindly, humorous eyes, "I am an old housekeeper. Let me give you a bit of advice: Never direct people's attention to defects. Unless you do so they will rarely see them.

"Now, if I had been in your place and noticed the dirt, I should have said: 'How blue the sky is!' or 'How beautiful the clouds are!' or 'How bracing the air is!' Then I should have looked up at that as I spoke, and should have gotten you safely down the steps and out of sight without seeing the dust.—Household."

Not So Easy as It Looked.

Said Ted to Tim, as the twins sat upon opposite arms of Uncle Rob's arm chair, "Tim, we're visitors."

"Yes, we're visitors, Uncle Rob," echoed Tim.

"Ah!" exclaimed Uncle Rob.

"It's a very rainy day, Tim," went on Ted.

"Very rainy, indeed, Uncle Rob," reiterated Tim.

"And what follows?" calmly inquired Uncle Rob. His eyes twinkled, but he went on reading.

"You should entertain us, Uncle Robert," answered Ted, decidedly.

"That's what mamma always says when we have company," finished Tim, triumphantly.

"Well!" ejaculated Uncle Rob. He put down his paper suddenly. "I'll entertain you! How many days would it take to cut up a piece of cloth fifty yards long if a yard was cut off each day?"

"Fifty!" shouted Ted, without thinking a minute. "Pshaw! Uncle Rob, don't ask us those foolish, easy puzzles. "They're as old—old—old as the hills."

"Seems to me," retorted Uncle Rob, "if they are old, they are not so wonderfully easy as you think. You're wrong Ted. You've got to give me a better answer, or I won't think much of your smartness. Now, here's another awfully easy one—as old as the hills, too. But it has puzzled many a small boy before you. If a goose weighs ten pounds and half its own weight, what is the weight of the goose?"

Tim was just going to call out, "Fifteen pounds!" But Uncle Rob's solemn expression disconcerted him. Instead he pursed up his mouth and looked at Ted, and Ted wrinkled his brows and looked at Tim.

"Doesn't sound hard," faintly from Tim.

"It's very easy, indeed," replied Uncle Rob. "And here's one more of the same sort: A snail climbing a post twenty feet high ascends five feet every day, and slips back four feet every night. How long will it take him to reach the top?"

"A snail?' sighed Ted, thoughtfully.

"Yes, a snail," repeated Uncle Rob.

"Seems as if he only got up one foot each day at that rate," considered Tim.

"So he did!"

"And the post was twenty feet high?"

"Yes, Ted; twenty feet."

"Well then," pursued Tim, "it must have been twen—enty—"

Uncle Rob laughed.

"Now, I'll tell you what I'll do. You boys each take a pencil and paper, if you find them necessary, and work out those three puzzles. And when you each bring me the right answer, we'll go to the show and rest our brains for the afternoon."

Then Uncle Rob went back to his paper, and Ted and Tim slipped softly down from the arms of his chair and went to the drawer of the library table to hunt for lead pencils.—Harper's Young People.

No farmer should be satisfied with less than one pound of butter per day from a cow. He should aim to secure cows that will exceed this amount, but a pound should be the minimum product of a cow, and even then there will be but little profit unless the whey and buttermilk are used for pigs.

Charles Kingsley thus counseled a friend: "Make a rule and pray God to help you keep it, never, if possible, to lie down at night without being able to say, 'I have made one human being, at least, a little happier, or a little better this day.' You will find it easier than you think, and pleasanter."

Wealth of the Rothschilds.

What the wealth of this family is can only be roughly estimated. It may be $1,000,000,000, and it may be $2,000,000,000; it is some where between those figures. There are eleven barons, each one of them among the richest men in Europe and with their respective fortunes so fixed that they can be used as a unit, if need be.

THE FIRST BANKER.

All this wealth sprang from the genius of the son of a poor dealer in furniture and cheap bric-a-brac at Frankfort. This genius was named Mayer Amschel Rothschild, and he was the founder of a fortune which has no equal in contemporary history. In a small way this man started a banking business. It was a little concern, and for the first few years he had a hard struggle to keep it from going to the wall. From the first he mapped out certain rules, which he absolutely adhered to, and which are just as potent in the management of the numerous banks to day as they were then, and, for that matter, they will probably be in force a dozen generations from now. One of them is: "A man will not tell what he has not heard." Another is: "Gold never repeats what it sees." Absolute secrecy in all dealings is the rule of the house. Let a clerk in any of the banks be discovered talking about the most trivial thing connected with the affairs of the business, and he is at once discharged. As far as possible, the Rothschilds employ clerks from the same family generation after generation. The great grandson of a present clerk may be keeping the same accounts a hundred years hence that his forefather is working over to-day. In time the capacity for saying nothing becomes hereditary.—Richmond Dispatch.

When Christ was about to leave the world, he made his will. His spirit he committed to his Father; his body he bequeathed to Joseph, to be decently interred; his clothes to the Roman soldiers; his mother he left to the care of John; but what should he leave to his poor disciples that had left all for him? Silver and gold he had none; but he left them the best of all legacies—peace.—Selected.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

"For eight years, I was, most of the time, a great sufferer from Constipation, Kidney Trouble, and Indigestion, so that my constitution seemed to be completely broken down. I was induced to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and took nearly seven bottles, with such excellent results that my stomach, bowels, and kidneys are in perfect condition and, in all their functions, as regular as clock-work. At the time I began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla, my weight was only 120 pounds; I now can brag of 160 pounds, and was never in so good health. SO MANY and such rapid changes have taken place within the last twenty years that it is hazardous to say any one, of many, has been the most striking. It is not our purpose to say about this. Some things, however, present themselves in a more striking way than others, and so come up earlier for discussion. Then, too, in these days of rapid transformation there are some things we take leave of, as they give place to their more modern rivals, with more regrets than we do of some other things. To exchange the old for the new is, not without some doubt, a sign of progress.

That which we shall only allude to in this article may not have attracted any attention, and may have no special significance to the mind of the reader. It has, however, been noticed by some who have occupied first the position to get the truth in its fullest force.

In the not long ago the remark "the people will not come out to hear speaking" was constantly heard. That was so, they would not. And why they would not will not now be discussed, except in an incidental way. We want to say here that if people have really lost their interest in hearing public speaking worthy to be heard, the fact is to be deeply and earnestly deplored. It is a great privilege to hear a great man make a great speech. The glory of Greece and the power of Rome were evidences in part, at least, of the wisdom and power of oratory. How many men may refer their first intentions to make life worth living, to the inspiration gotten from a single speech? We once heard a young and impassioned speaker say he would rather be an orator and play upon the heart-strings of men than to be a king upon his throne.

No mean desire, after all, when a man will use his power for the good of his fellows. But what we started to say was that it seems now that people are losing their fondness for and interest in public speaking. Less than a score of years ago men, and women too, came from far and near by hundreds, and in some cases by thousands, to listen to the speeches of two men—giants they were—but who are now dead.

What these men might do if they were now living cannot be told, but that their successors have not appeared will hardly be questioned. It may be said that men have obtained other means by which they may become informed on public questions, thus doing away with the necessity of learning by listening. A moment's thought, however, will utterly do away with this theory. Who listens with most interest to the speaker on education? Evidently the man who is himself educated. In proportion as men studied the rights of the States and the great subject of equal and just taxation, in that proportion did their love and admiration grow for the immortal Calhoun, the fearless champion of these principles. The same can be said of Webster and of Clay those who were highest in their appreciation of these men were those most intimately acquainted with the subjects on which they spoke; so we are estopped from accounting for the lack of appreciation on the part of the people by supposing they are already informed on the subjects dealt with. Then what shall we say?

Evidently, we are driven, willing or unwilling, to one of two conclusions: Either we are out of men who can rise above selfish ends, party bounds, or sectional interests, and lead the people along right lines, or the people will not duly acknowledge the honest and true worth of their leaders, because, forsooth, of a different party or political affiliations. Either horn of the dilemma is bad, and ought, for the sake of the common interest we all have in the growth and prosperity of the country, the happiness and development of the people, to be remedied, and that speedily.

Autumn Sermon.

Preached by Rev. Archibald Cree in Roxobel church, Sunday, November 11th, 1894, and published by request.

Text—Clause in Mark xi, 12, 13—"Nothing but leaves." The verses read: "And on the morrow, when they come from Bethany, he was hungry: and seeing a fig tree afar off having leaves, he came, if haply he might find anything thereon: and when he came to it, he found nothing but leaves; for the time of figs was not yet."

When it is looked at as a bare external fact to the life of the Saviour, the cursing of the fig tree presents important difficulties to the expositor of the sacred Word. With some literal, prosaic minds, there is a difficulty in harmonizing the event at all with those just and loving attributes which Jesus ever manifested. This feeling, when expressed, is this: "Well, if the poor tree produced no fruit—if it showed nothing but leaves, how could it help it? It was subject to the operation of the inevitable laws of nature, and had no power to alter or reverse the conditions and influences which made it what it was." And certainly those who regard only the bare fact of this incident, and fail to read the sublime import by the light of the circumstances in which Jesus was placed, and in view of its application to man's moral nature and destiny, cannot fail to have some difficulty of the kind. To regard Jesus as in this act simply venting his anger and meting retribution upon an unconscious form of vegetable life, is to violate every principle of criticism, and to destroy the whole significance of the incident. Glad as sceptics are to catch at anything which might seem to involve a compromise of the Saviour's dignity, the foremost critics of the life of Jesus do not put such a construction upon it.

To regard this incident again as simply a proof given by our Lord to testify to observers his profession of miraculous power, is to make it exceptional, unlike the other miracles which Christ wrought; and also unlike the great wonders with which God has filled his universe, no one of which exists merely as a display of power. It is only when we regard it as a sublime and dignified prophecy, touching the duties, the responsibilities, the destinies of men that the account of the event is found to be consistent with itself. And this view of the miracle the narrative bears on its very front.

Amongst expositors is one bone of contention in the passage, which it is necessary I should notice, as upon it I will found my present exhortation; it lies in the interpretation which is to be given to the last clause of the thirteenth verse, "for the time of figs was not yet." Where is the reason for Christ cursing the fig tree,—wherein is the significance of the act, since he sought fruit on it before the season for gathering figs had come round? Surely, it must be an unoffending fig tree after all.

Some expositors try to get over the difficulty by understanding the fig tree referred to as being one bearing that kind of figs which remain hanging on the branches all winter and ungathered in early spring. The sense of the text, according to this interpretation, would be that while the common kinds of figs were not yet ripe, and the time for gathering them had not come, Jesus perceived that this tree, on which he sought figs, belonged to that other species of the fig tree, which at this season of the year bore ripe and refreshing fruit. This interpretation certainly explains how Jesus might reasonably have sought for figs on a tree at this season, as it is well known that a kind of winter figs grows in Palestine. It leaves unexplained, however, that difficult clause, "for the time of figs was not yet." The adoption of this interpretation would be a tacit acknowledgment that the evangelist had put in this clause for no purpose whatever; whereas he evidently gives it as the reason why there ought to have been fruit on the tree.

Another and an equally unsatisfactory interpretation would substitute the word "place" for the word "time"—"the place of figs was not," the idea being that it was not good ground for growing figs. And certainly "place" would not be a wrong translation of the Greek word, as "place" is a secondary meaning of the word employed by the evangelist, though "time" is the primary meaning. But were this the meaning of the evangelist, it would be producing a reason why Christ should not have cursed the fig tree, and that would be a very unnatural thing for Mark, the biographer and disciple of Jesus Christ, to do.

The same objection may be preferred against the interpretation, first given to the clause by Hammond, and afterwards by other expositors, "that it was not a good fig season—that the weather had been unsuitable." The word used by Mark which is here translated by our word "time," being a word of a somewhat generic character, might be regarded as ever elastic enough to be translated "weather." But such a translation would destroy the consistency of the whole event. The interpretation that it was not a "place" or was not "weather" for growing figs will not do. Either of them would be just giving a very substantial reason why the tree could not produce fruit, and therefore why it should not be cursed. Of course, there was, I grant, a natural and inevitable cause preventing the tree from bearing fruit; but to regard Mark as specifying that cause is to put our own ingenious blunders into his account, and to represent him as destroying the whole point of the symbolic transaction.

The whole difficulty vanishes when we understand the nature of the fig tree. You will have observed that most of our fruit trees first produce their leaves, and afterwards their fruit. It is not so with the fig tree. It reverses the process, and produces first the fruit, and afterwards the leaves, so that the appearances of leaves is a sure sign of fruit well advanced toward maturity. "Figs may be eaten to allay hunger," says Campbell, "before they be fully ripe, and the season of reaping not having yet come removed all suspicion that the figs of this tree had been already gathered." These two circumstances then justify and explain this clause, of which so much has been made by expositors,—first, the fact that leaves are the usual sign of fruit, and fruit in an edible state; second, the time of fig harvest not having come, was a strong presumptive reason that the figs could not have been gathered. We thus find that this last clause of the passage, instead of presenting a difficulty, on the contrary, when fully understood, brings us to the bare conclusion that the tree which Jesus cursed was barren, and not only so, but also a hypocritical tree—spreading out its flourishing and deceptive leaves—running its whole strength into foliage, and the promise of uncommon fruitfulness, while yet it was barren in every branch. The symbolical fault of the tree was that it was a hypocrite.

How clearly typical of that class, with whom the Saviour had to contend throughout his earthly ministry, and whose dress he here predicts, who, like the false tree, "made broad their phylacteries, and enlarged the borders of their garments," "who cleansed the outside of the cup and platter, but within were full of extortion and excess," who were beautiful without as whited sepulchres are beautiful, but which "within are full of dead men's bones and of all uncleanness."

"This tree," says Stier, "is Israel! There were leaves enough—words and hypocritical works; as if it were really the Israel which it was called to be, the people of God wonderfully ripened earlier than all other nations—but no fruit! We feel the depths of this symbol."

But it may be asked, "Wherefore adduce all these interpretations of this event? Is it that we may fill your minds with the opinions of men?" That would be a small result though gained. It is that we may tell you, O ye vines and fig trees of the Lord's planting, that some of those unnatural and untrue interpretations we have been considering will suffice to excuse your barrenness any more than they will suffice to explain the evangelist's account of the barren fig tree of our text.

I. The interpretation about the winter fig trees will not suit you. It is no winter fig trees God expects of you. No mere crab fruit will satisfy him. That may be all he expects from persons of deficient understanding, or from the heathen whom he has planted in the wilderness; but from you, with your summers of Christian advantages, God will demand more. Many a winter tree, I believe, we shall find in heaven—trees that have struggled nobly, by divine aid, through hard conditions, and with a degenerate constitution, still hoping and looking for the full quickening life of spring. Though their fruits be not the fairest, we shall find them sheltered there! And we shall find them there just because God sent them into the world winter trees, and in a winter season, and not summer trees with summer advantages; and because withal they produced fruit after their kind.

II. The interpretation about "the place being unsuitable for the growth of figs" will not apply to you. There can be no complaint of unsuitable soil on your part. Visit the moral deserts, and heathen places of our great cities, the unwholesome dens where scenes of vice and squalor are the constant and most familiar sights, and reared there you may find stunted human trees because of bad soil—human growths that may well complain if you demand of them the fruit of the healthy fig tree. Go to the moral deserts of Africa, or India, or China, if you wish to plead excuse for some degeneracy of fruit; but listen not to the false and sceptical interpretation that would make you out to be nothing but the creature of circumstances, and refer all your evil and your barrenness to the soil in which you are planted. Will you tell me that this land in which you have been reared—this land of divine illumination—this land of so much Christian light and liberty, precept and example, will you tell me that here is not the favorable soil? O where in all God's earthly garden is there a more favored spot—a soil more conducive to the growth of Christian fruit?

III. The interpretation about unpropitious weather will not suit you. The lack of suitable heavenly influences cannot be argued for you.

Some men have sought to account for their barrenness on the hypothesis, or the plea, that the needful saving and sanctifying influences had not been granted them by God. Because God had not brought to bear upon them a necessitating and overpowering influence to save them, therefore they imagine that their barrenness is excusable. Now, were it the case that God necessitates any one to become fruitful, or that he altogether withholds the conditions of fruitfulness from others, the argument might hold good. But as the case stands, O man, thou art inexcusable. As the sunshine and showers of heaven are diffused over the whole earth and permeate with their life giving influences all forms of vegetable being, so are the Holy Spirit's influences vouchsafed to every mortal. Did not God promise to "pour out his Spirit upon all flesh"? Does not the Spirit strive with man? And does not man resist and grieve the Spirit? "Ye do always resist the Holy Ghost," said Stephen to the unbelieving Jews, "as your fathers did, so do ye." It lies with man to yield to the fruit-producing power of the Divine Spirit. Even the all quickening sun cannot revive some forms of vegetable life; and it would appear that individuals amongst us are formed to be equally insensible to the heavenly influences of the grace of God. I grant there are distinctions of life giving and fruit producing influences in both cases.

The sun beats fiercely down upon the equator causing a wonderful profusion of vegetable growth, while he slants away but a feeble glancing smile to the lands by the arctic sea. The rains and refreshing dews favor some spots of earth more than others. There can be no comparison between the fertile plains of moderate climes and the great sandy deserts of other lands. And what does all this prove? Just this, that God will not ask the harvests of the smiling continent from the snows of Greenland or from the sterile shores of Labrador. Likewise, in respect to the responsibility of individuals and classes of men, the divine principle of judgment has been enunciated by the lips of the Divine One himself, "Unto whomsoever much is given, of him shall be much required."

But here is no extenuation of your barrenness if ye be unfruitful trees in the midst of great Christian advantages, watered abundantly with the dews of divine grace, and visited by the benign rays of the Sun of Righteousness. O friends! the holy Christ comes hungering after you, seeking if haply he may find any fruit on you. And what is the result? Is it "nothing but leaves!"—the leaves of profession and promise, but no fruit? You know, and God knows, and between God and you the matter rests. But I warn you that you do not allow your outward leaves and appearance of fruit to deceive you. They cannot deceive Christ. Fruit he demands, fruit he is seeking. If there be no fruit, then no plea can avail, no appearance, however plausible or beautiful, can avert the curse, "Let no fruit grow on thee henceforward, forever."

"Nothing but leaves! Nothing but leaves!" There is sadness and regretfulness in the very tone of these words. Do you ever walk in the woods at this season? What a scene of beautiful and variegated colors does a forest of trees present at such a season! Strange that you should feel sadness in such a place, and in this mellow, tranquil time; but you do feel a kind of sadness. Why? The year is declining; all life is hastening to decay; day by day the trees are casting longer shadows, and the sun is assuming a more wintry aspect. And listen! The soft wind, hushed and musical, is humming among the dry, withered leaves which fall before its breath, rusting to the ground. The whole forest is whispering. You start, and look round, feeling as if some soft footfall were behind you, or some voice called you. What mean these whispering sounds? What is the forest saying? Leaves! leaves! nothing but leaves! That is the melancholy ditty of the whispering forest. It is the refrain of the year song, begun so cheerily in spring, running through all the bright music of summer, and now caught up and ended by these beautiful, well built trees, so strong and tall, that have spent the year in producing what they so sadly sing of, "Nothing but leaves!" "Nothing but leaves!"

Well, walk through the forest of human life, and observe the characters of men, and in multitudes of examples what other result do you find? Behold the money-grub! the scheming, over-reaching, worldly hearted multiplier of gain; look at the light minded devotees of pleasure and fashion; at the idle, supercilious critics and connoisseurs of life; at the wicked, knowing men of the world; at the mere professor of religion—the loud, boastful talker of piety but not the doer;—bundle their lives together with many more of the kind, and cast up the total result. What is it? Only leaves, leaves, nothing but leaves! Here is an old man with bare garments, and hard features, and a keen, cold eye. On all occasions he goes on the complaint that he is anything but rich, although it is known that from a life long pursuit of gain he has accumulated great wealth. Much has he done in the way of wringing unjust profits out of the poor and unfortunate who have come within his toils. And now almost on the brink of the grave he is grubbing and grinding still, as if the world were his all. It is a moral rule with him never to give anything away. The cry of the widow and the orphan doesn't reach his ear. He has a strong conviction that it is wrong to pauperize poor folks by gifts. He would almost sell his soul for a good round sum. Who can tell but he has done it already; for how "hardly shall such an one enter into the kingdom of heaven." Here then is an old man who should be like the full shock of corn, ripe for the granary of heaven—just waiting till the great reaper put in his sickle and gather him a fruitful harvest for the Lord. Instead of this, he has spent the energies of his life-season in producing and multiplying mere foliage, which, as life ends, drops from his grasp like withered leaves from the tree, saying, "Nothing but leaves!" "nothing but leaves!"—treasury-note leaves, greenback leaves, national bank leaves, but as absorbing all the energy—all the virility—all the purpose of a man's life; they are leaves! They are nothing but leaves.

Here again is a man of artistic tastes. As a scholar and a connoisseur of art he has a name in the world. He is known as a student and admirer of the great masters. He has strut the gates of his life upon his fellowmen, and buried himself in his own person and pursuits. Universities and art societies have conferred honors upon him. His reputation is enhanced perhaps by the publication of some literary work with engravings of some of the great art productions of the past. Very beautiful leaves, these! very chaste! very delicate! but still, "nothing but leaves." Are there no works of faith? no labors of love? no devotion to God? no loving service to his fellowmen? Then life has been spent in producing nothing but leaves.

Here is another man whose life is devoted to society. He has three ideas in life, and society is the greatest. It is the great god of gold, silver, brass, iron, and clay, that he bows down to and worships. His other two ideas are the hair-dresser and the tailor. They are the priests and he is the victim of society. The contour of his features is superb—he has a splendid profile, and the hair dresser does it justice. He has a magnificent figure, and the tailor hangs clothes upon it; and so he walks up to society, and bows, and smiles, and pays compliments in the drawing-rooms of the fashionable. He is a stranger to the luxury of doing good to any soul on earth. What is the result of his affected, selfish, superficial life? Surely, "nothing but leaves!"

Have you ever met the loose pleasurist? the man whose talents absolutely shine on the subject of delicate dinners and drinks, and profligate company, and who hints and winks that he is rather knowing and intimate with secrets that unsuspecting people don't guess? Well, the less you see of him the better, for he is not an edifying sight. He has a callous, despicable heart, and has been the destroyer and robber of the happiness of others. What has he gained by his devotion to the indulgence and pampering of his bad passions? What judgment can be pronounced upon his life? "Nothing but leaves"—rank, unwholesome, and putrified leaves. It were well could he weigh the words of the great dramatist,

> "What win I, if I gain the thing I seek?
> A dream, a breath, a froth of fleeting joy.
> Who buys a minute's mirth to wail a week?
> Or sells eternity to get a toy?
> For one sweet grape who will the vine destroy?
> Or what fond beggar but to touch the crown,
> Would with the sceptre straight be stricken down?"

I have no doubt you have met the empty, boastful sceptic. I met one some time ago. After hearing him deliver his sentiments, and seeing that he showed a very defective knowledge of the facts of Christian history as well as of the doctrines of Christianity, I invited him to turn his attention to the study of Christianity, to its divine nature, and the mighty power of God it showed in its war with human depravity. Oh, he had done so. When seven years of age, being perplexed with the number of religions in the world, and at a loss to determine which was the true one, he studied the subject, and was not long in exploding the pretentions of all religions. I told him he was the most precocious infant I ever heard of. What a prodigy of seven years! What volumes that man did talk. The difficulty was to find any truth or sense in it all. As one has said, "Them's the fellows that can clear up everything, and bring us to the grand conclusion that we know nothing, making all mysteries as clear as mud." This man was not without a faith, however; he was a thorough believer in modern spiritualism and spirit-rapping. He showed me the volumes which constituted his sacred books, and told me of the large amounts he had spent in professional seances to prove the facts of his faith.

Does not God send men who "receive not the love of the truth," as Paul says, "strong delusions, that they should believe a lie,"—a lie in this case that has been proved and confessed in the highest courts of law by the masters of this cult. You cannot listen to one of the boastful talkers of infidelity, and believers in nothing particular except it be themselves, with the addition, perhaps, of some big delusion, without feeling how appropriate is the judgment, "Nothing but leaves!"

And, brethren, have we never amongst our professedly religious people, some who flourish nothing but leaves, some who have the form of godliness, but are destitute of its power? Do you never meet some criticising, censorious professor, who comforts himself as if he were forever thanking God that he is not as other men are, and who is yet capable of the meanest things? Have we never seen one who can talk piety at church meetings and ignore it in other relations of life? God be praised, that but few of these can exist for any length of time amongst living Christians, but the type is to be met with. These are all hypocritical trees which the day shall declare and reveal in their native barrenness.

And what, let us ask, is to be the reward of all such unfruitfulness? What shall be the meed of man's probational barrenness? This—"Let no fruit grow on thee, henceforward, forever." That is the sentence. Barrenness many choose here in time, and barrenness shall be the reward of that choice in eternity. God does not respect the free choices of men,—so much so that all God's judicial dealings with man may be regarded as but the carrying out to their ultimate issues, their eternal issues, the intelligent choices of the human soul. Choose vice, and vice you shall have with its progeny of "UP TO the neck" preacher coats are on the exit among Baptist preachers. Well, it may be well enough for the brethren who already have them to use them up; but really, we do not see any reason for a preacher to advertise himself by the cut of his coat, the style of his vest, or the depth of his hat. Better be as nearly as possible like other good people.

MEN who are especially interested in the discussion and investigation of religious subjects, will do well to learn what they can by observing the thoughts and business policy of men not thus engaged. Our Adventist brethren, for instance, might get a suggestion from the length of the lease—ninety-nine years—entered into by the directors of the Southern railroad on the one part and the State of North Carolina on the other. Whatever else may be said about this transaction, one thing is reasonably certain: the operators of the Southern railroad are not converts to the doctrine of a speedy second coming and the early closing up of all earthly affairs.

THE promptness and certainty with which the common sense of an intelligent public will assert itself in all matters with which it is concerned, is the best evidence of the preservation and perpetuity of the good, and the ultimate failure of what is fraudulent and deceptive. We often hear expressions of opinion as to the best way to carry on an institution of learning to its greatest success. This is encouraging. People don't discuss what they feel no interest in. The specific opinions people have as to the necessary qualifications of a professor are not less interesting than the general interest which they feel in this matter. For instance, some think a teacher ought to be gifted in public speaking and a good lecturer. Others lay stress on his personal appearance, insisting that he ought always to be scrupulously neat and genteel with plenty of dignity, to be in demand in the social circle. These things are not to be thought lightly of, and yet all the professors in a college might possess these accomplishments in their greatest perfection and still fail to commend permanently the institution they represent.

Nothing short of positive, honest, candid dealing with students on the part of the teachers, faithful work of the first order in the class room, each day and week and month in the session, will serve as a real and ultimate test of the merits of any institution of learning. Show windows are attractive and have their legitimate place in fitting up the establishment, but they can never compensate for loose business methods and shoddy goods on the inside. The certainty and correctness with which the public render an opinion on these matters may be surprising, but it is not the less true.

WE ARE more and more of the opinion that nothing is gained by holding over through Sunday those of our Associations which meet on Thursday.

Our Associations are of necessity business meetings; such business, however, as is calculated to impart spiritual growth and greater zeal for the work before us. We are not indifferent to the fact that there are some things to be said in favor of continuing these meetings through Sunday; but when it is remembered that a large number of preachers lose one-twelfth of their years' preaching at some one of their churches on this account, and adds no small item of expense to the locality in which the meeting is held; and probably worse than this, the sisters in the neighborhood are kept away from the Saturday meeting preparing for Sunday, whereas if there was no meeting on Sunday they might be present to enjoy and receive the benefits of the Saturday meeting. We think the time for the discontinuing of this custom at hand. We know it is claimed that people ought to have an opportunity to hear preaching. The truth is, the greater portion of those who attend these meetings don't hear preaching, and don't come for that purpose. True, some do; but these would, as a rule, hear it at their own churches.

The Sunday Association has come to be a day for a general good time, a sort of "day off" for curiosity seekers, pleasure hunters, and courting couples; and while the preacher sweats down his collar and preaches till his throat is sore, these people who need most to hear preaching take their places in buggies, on logs, and under shade trees, at a good distance, so as not to be disturbed by any third party.

THE SPIRITUAL BODY.

A few days ago we gazed for a moment upon an object which excited the most solemn reflections and the most varied emotions. It was the form of a lovely Christian woman lying cold and still within a flower-crowned casket. The smile that had never failed to greet us had vanished. The lips, for the first time, moved not to speak a word of greeting. The eyes sparkled no more with their light of intelligence and love. The hands, that had been wondrously cunning in the witchery of music, were folded for their long rest.

As we turned away, it was with this thought: "This is a discarded dwelling-house,—henceforth useless. That which temporarily dwelt in it has moved from the old house into a better one."

There is a natural body, and there is a Spiritual Body. Of the natural body, we know something, though not very much. It is the most marvelous fabric in the material world. Whether we consider its adaptation of complicated structure to manifold function, or the adjustment of both structure and function to its environment, we are compelled to pronounce it the most wonderful visible object that God has made and shown to us. And, with its millions of nerves carrying their messages to and from its hundreds of millions of nerve centres, it is admirably fitted to be the home, during its school term, of "a living soul."

But all this, when compared to the Spiritual Body, is as a log cabin by the side of Vanderbilt's new palace near Asheville.

The tabernacle for our wilderness life is wonderful for use and beauty. The temple for our eternal abode transcends our power to understand with our present limited faculties.

A French philosopher once represented an inhabitant of the planet Saturn as visiting our world and asking a man whom he met how many senses he possessed. "Five," was the reply, "Sight, hearing, touch, taste, and smell." "Indeed," rejoined the visitor, with a pitying smile, "is that all? We have seventy senses." The story is a violent appeal to the imagination, but is, at least, suggestive. What reasonable ground have we for concluding that there are not, even now, innumerable vibrations which find no open doors for entrance into our minds? Still less have we ground for imagining that our experiences in the natural body exhaust the possibilities of perception and of intellectual and moral activity.

Is there any reason why there should not be a Spiritual Body? Any objection at all worth considering, must be based upon a knowledge of what spirit is. And, when we come to think about it, we know just as little what matter is, in its essential nature, as we do in regard to the nature of spirit.

There is no more reason that there should not be a Spiritual Body—yes, body—than that there should be a material, natural body.

The death of a believer is only the moving from one house of few windows and comparatively few conveniences to another which is perfectly adapted to every need of the spiritual nature. The carnal mind is all sloughed off along with the old body. The "spiritual mind" will wield an unchallenged scepter over the Spiritual Body. Only the pure in heart can inhabit it. They shall see God. Wherever this body goes will be heaven. To die and dwell in it is no disaster. It is promotion to fullness of life—exaltation to a higher stage of being. "To die is gain."

You and we, brothers, are to dwell just a little while longer in our natural bodies. Let us make these—so far as we can—temples fit for the indwelling of the Holy Spirit. Let us tread down carnality, evil thinking, unholy ambition. It will not be long. The best is yet to come. And it will soon be ours. Our brethren and sisters whom we have known and loved are already dwelling in spiritual bodies. We shall join them. We shall know them. Together we shall sing of "Amazing Grace." Oh the music that our spiritual bodies can make and perceive! Only let us be ready. If we are spiritually minded, we shall have life and peace in spiritual bodies. But to be carnally minded is death.

OUR UNION MEETINGS

In looking over the topics for discussion at our Union Meetings, we have been impressed with two things about them.

First, it will be seen that the questions proposed are in many cases identical in substance, and, in some cases, in the wording of the questions. Secondly, on a number of these questions there is absolutely nothing to be said, though a speaker might try ever so faithfully to prepare.

We believe our churches need practically the same helps from these meetings. These Union Meetings ought to be instructive, stimulating and helpful in all departments of our work. And to do this, these topics for discussion must have in themselves something that will be suggestive to this end. Some of our Associations are greatly benefited by these meetings; in many particulars they may be really more helpful to the churches than our annual Associations. However, there is no conflict in these meetings, but each has its distinctive mission; but it occurs to us that the Union Meeting serves especially to bring out and develop the local talent in our churches, of which we have a great deal waiting, and, in fact, wasting for the want of use. Now, if it is a fact that all of our churches and Associations need help along the same lines, and if it also be true that our Union Meetings need to be attended with more interest in order that we may get the best possible results, shall we not take some steps to bring these things to pass?

There is no plan nor scheme to which we are wedded, but we do want to see our Union Meetings made a more potent agency in accomplishing our denominational work.

How would it do to have a uniform program for the entire Convention—every Union Meeting in the entire Convention to discuss the same topics at the same time? And let these topics stand in the RECORDER, or any other paper that may wish to publish them, three months preceding the time of our meetings. This would give brethren who may be appointed by their Union time and opportunity to prepare something that would be of interest to those who attend. Well, you say, how is this to be done? We have already said we are not leading in the matter; but the object of this writing is to call out expression on the subject. It strikes us that a committee, call it a central committee, if you choose, but let it be thoroughly representative, could get up these questions. This need, in no way, disturb, and ought not to, the present organization of our Union Meetings, but let them remain just as they are.

We want the opinions of at least fifty brethren on this subject. "In multitude of counsellors there is safety." Let us hear from you briefly, and we will print these letters as they come in. Our churches deserve and need our best efforts in all of our work, and we believe a discussion of this matter may be followed by good results.

THE editor of the RECORDER has been kept from his office for three weeks by sickness with typhoid fever. He is now able to get about, and hopes to resume his regular work the latter part of this week, the Lord willing. In his absence Bro. Caddell got out the two numbers of the RECORDER preceding this one, and he and Bro. J. H. Alford got out this number. Miss Fannie E. Heck has rendered valued aid by getting up our Home Circle selections.

Young; Recording Secretary, Rev. T. O. Fuller; Corresponding Secretary, Rev. Joseph Parry; Treasurer, Dr. N. F Roberts.

ASSOCIATIONS.

THE SANDY CREEK ASSOCIATION

met with the church at Rives' Chapel, in Chatham county. This is the 137th session of this body, and Rive's Chapel church is one of the oldest organizations in the Association. In 1833 the Baptist State Convention met with this church, and it is said that at this meeting the first step to organize Wake Forest College were taken.

Then there were few, if any, railroads in North Carolina; so the delegates who attended must have gone on buggies or stages from all parts of the State. At this time Rev. Noah Richardson, one of the most powerful preachers ever in the State, was in his prime as a preacher. Revs. Eli Phillips and Lineberry were also among the leaders in preaching and in denominational work. And just the things those brethren were trying to do then, we are trying to do now.

The same church building is now standing, though more than two generations have passed away. It was at this church that Dr. W. T. Brooks professed religion, and here he was ordained to preach the gospel. He afterwards moved to Wake Forest, and was for many years a professor in that institution.

There are other interesting reminiscences of this church and section that we would take pleasure in mentioning if time allowed.

We were glad to see again Dr. W. T. Wadson, who is now one of the oldest citizens in this section. He still retains his vigor of body and intellect, and is thoroughly interested in everything that looks to the upbuilding of his section and the good of the church.

A goodly number of brethren will join me in acknowledging the kindness of Bro. C. C. Cheek of Ore Hill. The question is, what would have been done without him? His home, teams and carriages seemed to be at the disposition of the brethren who got off at Ore Hill. To those of us who knew Bro. Cheek, this was no surprise. His home, in which are all the comforts anybody could desire, is always open to his friends and his brethren.

It was a peculiar pleasure to attend this Association. In its bounds we were born, and among those present we numbered many of our best and truest friends.

Bro. O. T. Edwards was again Moderator, and Bro. R. P. Johnson, Clerk. We could hardly realize that once we sat on the same recitation seat, and were boys in common at College. Each of these brethren have for several years been conducting schools in this section, and have done great good in building up the educational interest in this portion of the State. The Association made no mistake by putting them in these positions.

Bro. W. C. Petty made a cheering speech for the Female University, and we think it did much good. We hope the brethren will follow up these impressions by an active, vigorous canvass for money with which to carry on the building. Bro. Petty is President of a railroad, and yet he always finds some time to spend at his Association and help out in every good cause.

The brethren were delighted to have Bro. Durham with them. He was at his very best on State missions, and the churches pledged liberally for next year.

In no section in the State is the RIBLICAL RECORDER more highly appreciated than in the Sandy Creek Association, and I can hardly be satisfied that I did the right thing by coming away; but now I am off to the King's Mountain, about which you will hear later.

Just as I am leaving, Dr. O B. Stroud said to me: "Yonder is a lady who likes the RECORDER See if you cannot get her to take it." I, of course, went, and when in the most taking mood possible I presented the matter, she informed me that I was talking to Mrs. Stroud, and that she had been reading the RECORDER for more than twenty years.

The Association was entertained in the most bountiful way. The water, which partially failed, was the scarcest commodity when dinner came on. J. C. C.

KING'S MOUNTAIN ASSOCIATION.

Twenty odd years ago, when I first visited Cleveland county, it was a two days' trip. This evening I left Shelby about sundown, and ought to be in bed at Wake Forest about two hours after midnight.

I am homeward bound from the King's Mountain. Despite the heat and dust, it was a great and inspiring meeting. Bro. Schenck is a Moderator to pattern after. The business was transacted "decently and in order." Bro. Hufham was said to have been at his best in the introductory sermon (which I did not hear) as he certainly was in addresses on Missions and the Orphanage, which I did hear. Bro. Boone made a most pleasing impression by his conservative manner and his cautious yet very earnest statements about his new work and his own relations to it.

Excellent addresses—none the less effective because they were brief—were made by brethren Hamrick, Lattimore, Gower, Webb, Mitchell, Hoyle, Schenck and others. The pledges for State Missions were larger than those of a year ago. There is no telling how far ahead the brethren would have gone if Bro. Durham had been present. He was greatly missed.

One of the most interesting and pleasing features of the whole meeting was the discussion, this morning, on Foreign Missions. Nearly every church in the Association pledged for the work as done through the Southern Baptist Convention, and then a liberal cash collection was raised for Bro. Bostick. I wish that Bro. Hufham's speech could have have been heard all over the State. He indicated, it seems to me, the only road open before us toward harmony and universal co-operation among all Baptists in for missionary "methods." After this discussion a tender prayer was offered by our venerable brother, Thomas Dixon, for all of our workers abroad and for co operation at home.

This little scrap is written between Wadesboro and Hamlet. Oh, the ceaseless wonder of a rushing railroad train! And how cosy it is now for a young man to take the trip to Wake Forest! C. E. T.

Notes of Travel

A day is spent at the famous Buffalo Lithia Springs, and I am the recipient of special courtesies from Col. Thos. F. Goode, the large hearted proprietor.

Roxboro is our destination, and in the dusk of the evening as we roll up to the depot, hot and dusty, we are met by Rev. H. T. Williams and brought to his sweet home. Roxboro, crowning its lofty hills, is a growing place. It is pleasant to find the Baptists well established, and guided by such an under-shepherd as Bro. Williams. Returning on Friday, we spend the night with Bro. B. T. Hicks, who next day kindly conveys us to Island Creek church. We were deeply interested in a visit from there under the guidance of Bro. J. L. Kelly to old Williamsboro. Here stands the oldest Episcopal church in the State, surrounded by quaint old colonial houses which date back before the Revolutionary war. The foundation walls of old St. John's church are built of brick which came from England, and they show no sign of crumbling to this day. Wandering through the churchyard, amid tombstones grey with age, we pause with sacred emotions beside a large horizontal slab of marble which marks the resting place of Mrs. Frances Poindexter. The inscription reads: "For unwards of forty years she was a consistent member of the Baptist church, and among her last words were: 'I have a firm faith.'"

Below I find these words: "This tomb, as an expression of filial affection, is erected by her only surviving children, Wm. H. Jordan and A. M. Poindexter."

We pause beside the tomb and fall into a revery, bringing to mind the saintly deeds of those two mighty men of God. What a noble woman she must have been to rear up two such sons for God.

It is for us to train the mothers of the future who hold so large a measure of destiny in their hands.

Lifting our eyes we see the spires and buildings of Henderson gleaming, ten miles away, under the golden beams of the descending sun—the decayed colonial village in its silence here, and there the busy town with its modern life. How quickly will this our time, too, be but a dream of the past. What we do for God and humanity will live after us. But we must be up and doing.

A beloved brother pastor said to us the other day: "It is borne in upon me more and more every day that what I do must be done quickly."

Island Creek church is situated in a magnificent grove of oaks. The building, a substantial and pretty one, gleams white behind the dense shade. Here for twenty seven years that consecrated servant of God, Rev. J. A Stradley, has been holding forth the Word of Life, upheld in the warm affection of the people.

How appropriate and beautiful is a long pastorate like this. May he add years of usefulness here to those already past. After a night spent in the delightful home of Bro. J. L. Kelly, it was my privilege to preach the gospel here on the Sabbath day, and to set forth the great work of establishing and endowing a school for the girls of the State.

As I leave Granville and Vance counties behind me, I am satisfied that I leave many strong friends of the Baptist Female University who will give of their means, their interest and their prayers for its advancement.

I have spent many pleasant days among the warm hearted brethren of that section, and have been the recipient of kindnesses which can never be forgotten.

There are still some neighborhoods that I have failed to reach, but which I hope to visit at a later date.

I have received the following sums for the endowment of the William Royall Chair:

A. C. Dixon, $25 00; Jno. E. White, $3 00; P. A. Apperson, 50c; Rev. L. N. Chapel, 5 00; W. F. Reece, 1 00; N. R. Windsor, 1.00; C. E. Cross, 2.50; O. T. Smith, 10 00. Total, 48 00.

THOMAS H. BRIGGS,
Treasurer Wake Forest College.
Raleigh, Sept. 23, 1895.

It is a coincidence worthy of note that Rev. Dr. J. W. Carter of Raleigh and the Orphanage General Manager at Thomasville, Rev. J. B. Boone, preached on Sunday, the 15th, to their respective charges from the same text of Scripture, "It is good for a man that he bear the yoke in his youth." Lam. 3: 27. Both drew the same lessons from the text, and it is hoped that the hearers of both will give earnest heed to the counsels given. The Orphanage paper gives the following synopsis of Bro. Boone's sermon, and the same might be said of Dr. Carter's: "Bearing or submitting to the yoke is learning to submit to authority. Children should learn to be obedient to their parents, scholars should be obedient to their teachers, citizens should be obedient to the laws of the land, and above all should we learn to be obedient to the laws of God, learn to love and serve him as our first and highest duty in this life, that we may, through faith in his Son, as our mediator and redeemer, become the sons and daughters of God, and joint heirs with the Lord Jesus to the glory and riches of heaven, the eternal home of the finally faithful."

Explanation by Rev. L. Johnson.

Dear Recorder:—Will you, who have always been so kind in publishing my communications allow me to "rise to a question of personal privilege?" I want to explain to any who may be interested in the matter, why I have given up the work here at Lumberton to go to Greensboro. When a man leaves a field after accepting it but a short time, it usually raises a presumption against the field or the man or both. In this instance I want to say that if blame attaches to any one it is to the man and not the field.

Lumberton is one of the easiest and most pleasant fields in the State. The town is a Baptist stronghold, and there are more Baptists in Robeson county than any other county in the State. They have a Baptist school here, partially endowed and equipped. Nearly all the business houses in town are Baptists. A large majority of the young people, (and there are many of them) belong to the Baptist church. Some of the most active and consecrated laymen in the State belong to this church. One of their most praiseworthy characteristics is loyalty to their pastor. I have received nothing but kindness on all hands since coming here. The church is in good working order. The preacher has nothing to do but preach and do his pastoral work, the deacons look after the finances and attend to the business part of the church work. There has never been the least ripple between the pastor and our members of the church. Such is the church I am leaving.

A word about the field to which I go. Greensboro, as all you readers know, is a large and growing town. It is a railroad center, and therefore a center of influence. Baptist interests there are comparatively new. The Baptists are overshadowed by other denominations. Some of our wisest and best brethren, at great sacrifice, have laid the foundation and have brought up the cause, under the guidance of God, to whom it now stands. There is much land yet to be possessed, and it is exceedingly important that we grow with the town. Now I know what it means to work on a field when the Baptists are overshadowed, for all my ministerial life, except this year, has been spent on such a field. If I wanted an easy time, I would stay here, where the Baptists are the strongest people.

To any who may say, "Well he goes to a larger salary." I will reply, that the salary is very little larger than at this place, and when you compare the expense of living at the two places, the salary here is fully as large if not larger. The reason I make the change is because I feel that the Lord is leading. It came about on this wise:

About a month ago, very much to my surprise, I received a letter from a deacon of the Greensboro church, stating that their eyes were turning on me and wanting to know if I would permit my name to be placed before the church.

I wrote him that I could not; had only been here a short time and couldn't think of leaving. In a few days I received a letter from another deacon, saying that he felt the Lord was leading them, that they were praying over the matter, and wanted to urge that I permit my name to be placed before committee. He asked me how did I feel towards Greensboro? I replied that I thought Greensboro one of the most important fields in the State, and that if this matter had presented itself when I thought my work at Rockingham was done, I would have given it serious consideration, but that I didn't feel it right and fair to this church to leave them so soon, and was therefore cautioned by a sense of duty not to permit my name to be used.

After mailing that letter the importance of the field grew on me more and more. The more I prayed over it the more I was impressed that perhaps the Lord did want me there. I knew they were to meet the following Sunday to call a pastor. I went into my study, shut the door and talked to the Lord about it. I said "now Lord you know that I have written them twice not to place my name before the church; but if it is thy will that I should go to Greensboro, so impress it on the minds of the brethren that they will override my protests and extend the call. But if it is not thy will that I should go, then turn the minds of the brethren away from me, to some other man." I thus left it all with the Lord. Tuesday's mail brought notification of a call toghther with letters from several brethren stating that the church had been praying for guidance, and on Sunday prayer after prayer arose, and when the vote was taken it was unanimous. Still I wanted to test the matter further, I asked the Lord that if I was mistaken about the matter, when I visited the field that something might occur to show me my mistake. But when I went and saw it, was more impressed than ever with its vastness and importance.

Now in the face of these facts how dare I turn aside from that work, where the hand of God seems so clearly to be leading. One of the committee in writing, intimated that criticism would be offered. "But," said he, "we should not care for what man may say, but for what God would have us do."

Even with this explanation, I know there are some who will misunderstand, but those who know me I am sure will not impugn my notions. I may modestly say that during the six years pastorate at Rockingham, scarcely a year passed that calls didn't come to more inviting fields, but I was deeply impressed with the sore needs of that field and so remained till I felt my work was done. If the cause here was weak and struggling my duty to remain would be perfectly clear.

I have had to use the personal pronoun in this communication much more frequently than I like, but in a question of "personal privilege." I believe that is permissable." Haven't written this, mainly, to exhonorate my cause, for when one has his conscience with him, and feels that he has the approval of his Master, he can afford to have men criticise his course, but have written to show that it was no dissatisfaction with the work here that causes my removal.

Any man might be happy who is pastor of such a church and whose privilege it is to live among such a people.

If there be blame, then, it attaches to the retiring pastor and not the church. So let me ask that this sin (?) be laid not to their charge but mine.

LIVINGSTON JOHNSON.
Lumberton, Sept. 16, 1895.

The Royall Chair.

No more important claim is before the Baptists of North Carolina just now than the raising of the endowment of Wake Forest College. The character of the Institution is fixed and well known to those interested in the subject of education in the State and to many outside of it. The personality of the College is unexcelled by any other in the South. Students apply themselves with manly courage and persistence, because it has ever been the policy of those who went before them. They are moral, polite and courteous, because to be otherwise would be unpopular and win the contempt of their fellows, and they are Christians, because Wake Forest is a Christian institution and imparts Christian education.

In spite of the hard times our opening this fall is the best in the history of the Institution. The only deplorable condition is experienced from a financial standpoint. The more than 150 000 white Baptists in North Carolina could easily add $100 000 to the endowment of Wake Forest within the next twelve months without hurt to any one, and this would meet the present demands of the Institution.

Brethren, this is an important need. We could neglect anything else that comes before us as well as this, and yet we need not neglect any just claim upon us. God has blessed us with abundant crops. Cotton and tobacco are selling well. Whose fault shall it be now if Wake Forest does not receive this endowment?

Our first effort is to endow the Royall Chair of English—a memorial to one of the most godly and exemplary Christians we ever knew. His impress has been scattered all over the State through the students he trained.

The National Baptist Education Society offers to subscribe five thousand dollars toward the establishment of this chair when the friends of the college have subscribed the other twenty thousand dollars. May I ask you dear Alumni of Wake Forest College, and the friends of Christian Education in North Carolina, does not this offer have a suggestion in it to you? Will we let the limit of this offer pass before we have done our whole duty toward securing it? Many have promised us in good faith they would help us in this struggle. Will they all be kind enough to attend to it within the next few weeks and let us close this contract. It is exceedingly important. If you have the blank pledges fill them and forward them to me at once. If you have not received them please drop me a card if you would like to help us and blanks will be forwarded.

Meeting at Kenansville.

Dear Recorder:—I have just returned from helping Bro. Bilbro in a meeting at Kenansville, and a most enjoyable occasion it was.

The pastor had done good preparatory work, so we had only to water where he had so faithfully planted. We have few wiser or safer builders than Bro. Bilbro, but a man has to get very close to him to find it out, he is so modest. I was astonished at the man's insight into the problems that confront us, and his way of meeting them impressed me still more. Many can tell us what ails us, but few know the remedy and fewer still how to administer it.

Kenansville is quite an aristocratic town, noted for intelligence and refinement. The religious current is strongly Presbyterian. There are not many Baptists in the town, their membership being in the country; but the few are true and tried, being well rooted and grounded in the faith.

The people of every name largely attended the meeting and heard us gladly on our points of difference as well as where we were agreed.

Our church was unified, substantially strengthened and greatly revived, and all the Lord's people of every name seemed to be benefited. May the good work go on, and to God be all the glory, amen!

From Rev. S. P. Bristow.

Dear Recorder:—I have just closed a meeting at Lawrence's Cross Roads, which resulted in nineteen baptisms and two restorations. This is a united church. I have been serving them seven years.

This is my sixth year with the Bethany church. I have been called to preach for them next year, but have declined to accept. I shall leave this people with many good wishes. The brethren and sisters have treated me kindly during my pastorate with them, but I do not feel it my duty to serve any longer. S. P. BRISTOW.

The protracted meeting at the Baptist church, which closed on last Friday night, resulted in much good. There were a number of professions, and Sunday night four candidates were baptized.—Alamance Gleaner, Sept. 19.

The series of meetings that have been in progress at the Baptist church in Siler City closed on Friday night. They were conducted by Rev. M. A. Adams of Reidsville, and seed were sown that will reap a plenteous harvest in time to come.—Chatham Record, Sept. 19.

Out on the Atlantic Ocean.

Dear Recorder:—I will write you a few lines while enjoying "life on the ocean wave." Our party, "the Whittle and Hale Party," left New York last Saturday at 9 a. m., and yet it will be two days before we reach London. With the exception of three days we have had lovely weather and a pleasant voyage.

With such a pleasant party, of course we have had a lovely time. When did an ocean steamer ever carry such a pleasant and such a select party as ours. Think of it, besides having eleven ministers of the gospel in our happy band, we have a bridal party and seven elect ladies. I must give you the names of the ladies and the names also of the preachers. First, there are three married ladies—Mrs. Fannie Powers, of Knoxville, Tenn.; Mrs. S L Hutchison, of Pennsylvania, a Methodist lady, who wants to be baptized in the Jordan, and Mrs. F. D. Hale, the bride of the popular pastor of Owensboro, Ky. The young ladies are, Miss E. H. East and Miss E A. Redford, of Nashville, Tenn.; Miss Powers, of Knoxville, and Mrs. S. P. Dismukes, a handsome young widow, of Nashville, Tenn. The ministers are all Baptists, except one, Dr. W. W. Staley, of the Christian Church of Suffolk, Va. The names of our Baptist preachers are, W. A. Whittle, D. D., and P. T. Hale. D. D., our leader from Alabama; F. D. Hale, D. D., W. C. Taylor, D. D., and Rev. J. W. Lirch, of Kentucky; Rev. G H. Carter and Rev. S Y. Jamerson, of Georgia; Rev. R, E. Taylor, of Virginia; Rev. W. C. Lisk, of Michigan, and Rev. J. T. Betts, of Asheville, N. C. Six of these brethren are old schoolmates of the Louisville Seminary, and all together they form a very pleasant and congenial party.

One of the brethren, fresh from the Biblical Assembly in Asheville, N. C., soon after getting out on the ocean, organized the whole party into a Bible college, for the purpose of reviewing the life of Christ before we reach Palestine. We meet at 9:30 a. m., with four D D's and six other scholarly ministers in our faculty, and with Dr. Broadus' Harmony of the Gospels as our text-book, we have a profitable as well as a very pleasant time studying the Word together. Dr. Whittle, who has traveled through Palestine, helps us very much by drawing a map of the country and locating the different places for us.

After this pleasant work is over, we amuse ourselves by watching the dolphins chase each other around our ship, or watching for passing ships and whales and icebergs. We have not seen an iceberg yet, but we have seen a number of whales, some of them spouting water as in the pictures. One of the passengers says that in crossing the ocean some time ago he saw an iceberg two miles long with a white bear on it, walking around of course. We spend much of the time reading and writing.

Sunday was a lovely day—the "day of all the week the best" in a double sense. We had three pleasant services. Brother Lirch preached an excellent sermon at the 11 o'clock service from Rev. 15c 2—"I saw a sea of glass mingled with fire." The writer of this letter conducted a song service in the afternoon, and held a service for the seamen on the lower deck at night. With the assistance of some of the brethren this last service has been continued every night. In our audience we have English and American, Jews and Gentiles. Thus we have an opportunity to do both "Home" and "Foreign Mission" work at once.

If all is well we hope to reach London by Thursday morning. The weather has been so exceptionally fine that very few of our party have been sea-sick. I am thankful to say that I have escaped so far, but I may have to "cast up my account" yet before I reach the other shore.

On leaving London we will go on the continent and visit the principal cities in France, Italy, Greece and Asia Minor, and then we will make a tour through Palestine and Egypt.

Should I have the time, I will try to send another letter. With kindest regards to you and all my friends,

Yours sincerely,
J. T. BETTS.

In the "Regions Beyond"

Dear Recorder:—The protracted meetings are about over. There has been good meetings along the border line.

I have spent about two weeks in the "regions beyond" work.

I held a meeting at Oceola from Sunday, September 1st, until Wednesday night following. We had good congregations most of the time. Bro. B. S. Ferrell assisted at this point. Much interest was manifested. One was received for baptism and was baptized on the following Saturday. Several present had never witnessed a baptism before.

The second Sabbath I began a meeting at Wilson's Old Store, which continued until Friday. Eight were received for baptism, and a number of others professed conversion. We had a glorious meeting. Bro. A. C. Baker done some good preaching. He is young in the ministry, but he has preaching ability, and no doubt will soon develop into a strong preacher.

I shall organize a church at this place on Saturday before the first Sunday in October. This is a promising point, easy of access, and large congregations attend every service.

I shall organize at Oceola in the near future. Prospects are bright at this point.

We have the frame of our new church building up at Waxhaw, and expect to complete it soon. Everything in this field is encouraging, and the brethren are encouraged and hopeful. A. B. CAMPBELL.

Is your religious faith real enough and deep enough to be of real cheer and help to you?

misery, not only in time, but in the great eternity. In God's strength choose goodness, and goodness with its offspring, happiness, you shall have not only here, but in the endless hereafter. O perpetual barrenness! Did you ever think what an awful curse that is? Eternal blight! To think that some of the people whom we see blighted with sin here shall always remain blighted! Stripped even of their leaves and deceptive appearances, with no returning spring to cheer, no bountiful flow of quickening life, no prosperous smiling fruitfulness of love, of peace, of hope or joy forever. Nothing but a fruitless, leafless, lifeless, blank existence. The wail of Byron, after the generous heart God gave him had been eaten up by selfish pleasure, is like the wail of a lost soul,

"No more—no more—oh, never more on me
The freshness of the heart can fall like dew,
Which out of all the lovely things we see Extracts emotions beautiful and new."

Dear friends, when you and I stand at last before the eternal throne, what will be asked of us will be fruit. "Inasmuch as ye did it unto the least of these, ye did it unto me." Men are not to be judged according to their faith, or according to their profession, but "according to their works,"—by their fruits. Their works can't save them. Christ alone can save them; but their fruits will tell whether or not they are in Christ, whether they have his life, his spirit. Some of you who are not members of the church think this subject mighty applicable to professors of religion. Perhaps you think that less will be expected of you because you make no profession. I tell you Christ is hungering for fruit from you. When you stand at last before him, he will ask fruit. And if there be no fruit the sentence he will pass on you will be, "Let no fruit grow on thee henceforward, forever." It is a fine thing to hear Bro. Mills pleading for the orphans before the Associations, and telling the people that "Christ never said that it is the vine that bears fruit." "The vine does not bear fruit; it is the branches." "Herein is my Father glorified, that ye bear much fruit; so shall ye be my disciples." Yes, the vine gives the life; the branches bear the fruit.

And if you ask me, in conclusion, how you shall forefend, how you shall avert the doom of the fruitless, I thank God I can give you an infallible direction. Receive the Redeeming Christ—receive him with meekness as the engrafted word which is able to save your souls. However hopeless and purposeless your life may have been, I beseech you not to resist the Holy Spirit, nor turn aside from his voice of invitation, but seek him "to-day; and he will engraft you into Christ, engraft your thoughts, engraft your affections, engraft your will, into the Lord Jesus; and the living sap of Christ's love and life will circulate through all your moral being, and recreate you in everlasting beauty and fruitfulness. Have you not seen how the gardener can take a branch or scion from some valuable fruit tree and bind it on to another tree even of a different species, and if only the cellular tissue be the same in the stock as in the scion, he can bind them together, and before long the living juices shoot up through the cellular tissue of the one into that of the other, and it becomes a living part of that tree and brings forth fruit. "Without me ye can do nothing," says Jesus—no, nothing but leaves. We may profess ever so much, or talk ever so much, but without him we have no life. May God the Holy Ghost make us that we abide in him and he in us. Thank God for all who can say with the apostle, "It is no longer I who live; but Christ liveth in me. And the life which I now live in the flesh I live by faith of the Son of God, who loved me and gave himself for me." Amen.

Oxford Notes.

We begin to hope that in the not distant future our beautiful new house of worship will be completed. Just when our hopes will be realized depends entirely upon the contractors. When finished the house will be complete in all its appointments. The building committee is now corresponding with furniture houses with reference to pews, &c. Let furniture houses make a note of this.

The Oxford Female Seminary seems to have entered upon an era of great prosperity. The opening of this session has been a brilliant one. The attendance of boarding students is fifty per cent. larger than that of last year at this week, which was more than twenty five per cent. in excess of that of the previous year. We have never had altogether so promising a body of students. Very many of them are availing themselves of the superior advantages offered them in the departments of Music, Art and Elocution, and very many have entered upon the extended courses of study leading to the degrees of B. L. and B. A.

How a Woman Paid Her Debts.

I am out of debt, and thanks to the Dish Washer business for it. In the past five weeks I have made over $500, and I am so thankful that I feel like telling everybody, so that they can be benefited by my experience. Anybody can sell Dish Washers, because everybody wants one, especially when it can be got so cheap. You can wash and dry the dishes in two minutes. I believe that in two years from now every family will have one. You can get full particulars and hundreds of testimonials by addressing the Iron City Dish Washer Co., 145 S High land Ave., Station A, Pittsburg, Pa., and you can't help but make money in this business. I believe that I can clear over $1,000 the coming year, and I am not going to let such an opportunity pass without improving it. We can't expect to succeed without trying.

Mrs. B.

From Morehead City.

Dear Recorder:—The good citizens of Morehead City, N. C., and vicinity, feeling the necessity of a first-class school where may be obtained a thorough, practical education at a nominal cost, and being assured their town possesses all the advantages as to location, organized and opened a first class school, known as "Morehead City High School," which was opened Sept. 9th in the spacious North Carolina Teachers' Assembly building, with ninety-two pupils, under the management of Prof. A. W. Reinhart of the University of Virginia, assisted by Professor James F. Brinson, formerly of Davidson College. Mr. William M. Webb will have charge of the business branch of book keeping and penmanship.

The question is asked, Is there opposition to the school? We answer yes, the Devil has his agents at work, trying to break down the work; but the promoters of the school intend to advance it to the very highest grade of excellence. If push and energy count for anything, the school will be improved until it shall become an honor to its supporters and an ornament to the State.

In location, climate, hygiene, and transportation facilities, Morehead City furnishes all the advantages required in the successful conducting of a first class high school. It is situated in latitude 40 deg. 40 min. north of the equator, with a mean annual temperature exactly equivalent to that of Rome, Italy, on a sandy, porous earth that absorbs all moisture in a short time after rain-fall; surrounded on the north by a forest of pine that mingles its healing balm with the air and scents the atmosphere for miles around with healthful perfume, and swept from the south by the ozone laden breezes fresh from the bosom of old ocean, whose billows lash the beach not a mile away. It is impossible for infectious laden germs of disease to live in such surroundings, and hence the health of Morehead City is all that could be desired.

All the delicacies of sea and land in the way of diet are close by and can be had in abundance at the lowest cost; also wild fowl of every description can be had, besides the choicest venison and other game, fish, oysters, clams, escallops, crabs, terrapins, turtles, and every variety of shell-fish, all rich in phosphorus, making the very best brain food, which, according to the highest medical authority, is a great desideratum to the student in keeping up the supply of nerve force needful for close application to study.

Morehead City is a quiet, peaceable town, far removed from the noise and bustle that belong to large cities, and the vice and allurements thereof. The inhabitants are sober, moral and upright, most of them being members of some Christian church. There are two Christian churches, both of them as nice as can be found in any small town in the State. The society is refined and elevating. The town can be easily approached by railroad and steamer transportation.

Here the North Carolina Teachers' Assembly building is located, the only institution of the kind in the United States, where annually the best minds of this and other States meet to discuss matters pertaining to education. This alone will be of inestimable advantage to the student.

The Atlantic Hotel is situated here, the largest in the South, which is aptly called the "summer capital by the sea," where thousands of people from all over the Union spend their summer vacation, and which will eventually be filled in winter with wealthy tourists from the North.

Time fails us to enumerate half the advantage, of Morehead City, as a suitable place for a first-class high school. T. C. D

Open Letter by the Woman's Union Prayer-meeting to Rev. R. J. Pearson.

Dear Brother:—Obeying the impulses of our hearts we address you in an open letter to say a few words, expressive of our Christian love and our appreciation of the lasting good that you were the instrument in God's hand of doing in this community. Do you remember the meeting that you conducted at Chapel Hill, N. C., last January while rain, snow and sleet seemed each contending for mastery? Do you remember how the Lord was with us day after day, and how eagerly christians of all denominations pressed forward in throngs at your request, to pledge themselves to renewed consecration in our Lords service? Some, aye, many here, not only remember it well, but are showing by their lives that the resolutions made then were sincere and made in His strength.

Dear brother, The Woman's Union Prayer-meeting organized at your request has never flagged in interest, but grows from week to week. We feel that it has been a means of grace to us, and we are hoping and praying that God will make it a blessing to others. We write to bid you "Be of good cheer." Many here are stronger in faith and more zealous in works from the inspiration received under your preaching.

We believe that you are faithfully sowing the seed, leaving results to Him who alone can give the increase. We are persuaded that you will be glad to know that you are remembered, as one sent of God, by the members comprising the Woman's Union Prayer meeting.

Meeting at Ballard's Bridge Church.

Dear Recorder:—I have just closed a very gracious meeting with Ballard's Bridge, resulting in twenty-five accessions—twenty by baptism and five by restoration.

I was aided by Rev. W. F. Watson, the gifted and magnetic pastor of Spurgeon Memorial church, Norfolk, Va., who for six days preached the Word with great power and acceptability to overflowing congregations, and made a splendid impression for himself and his Divine Master. He is especially adapted to evangelistic work, and pastors who need help in revival services will be fortunate in securing him.

The church was much revived, and, I trust, elevated to a higher plane of spiritual life and activity. To God be all the praise.

Meeting at Elizabeth Church near Shelby.

Dear Recorder:—We commenced a meeting at Elizabeth church, which is about three miles from Shelby, on Saturday before the second Sunday in August, and continued seventeen days. We had Dr. Hufham and and Rev. A. Ross with us, and it pleased the Lord to be in our midst and to bless the Word preached. The power of the Holy Spirit was poured out, and we had an old-fashioned revival, such as God will own at the judgment day. To Him be all the praise.

I baptized forty-two converts; six joined by letter, and one was restored—in all forty-nine.

Of all Fevers

the worst and most serious is Dengue or break-bone fever. Called "break-bone" because one's bones are not only racked with pain, but feel as if they were tightly held, as by a vice.

At times one feels that the pain is almost unbearable, and many are brought to Death's door by the terrible prostration which follows this grievous complaint.

All persons should know that

SUBJECT FOR SEPTEMBER—MEXICO.

"I will bring the blind by a way they knew not." Missionaries, 20; native assistants, 19; stations, 14; churches, 32; membership, 1,120; baptisms, 226; schools, 3; scholars, 102; Sunday-school scholars, 629. Contributions, $1.817 38

Study Topics.—Romanism fully developed. Sale of indulgencies. The Black Christ of Toluca. Baptist beginnings. Baptist successes. Persecution of Rev. H R. Moseley. Present condition of our work.

Diaz so interwove Scripture teaching in the school for girls, which he established in Cuba, that in speaking of it he aptly described it as "a Sunday school every day." So the day-school of which one of our earnest young society leaders is teaching might be called an every day mission school. She writes of it thus:—

"I might say that it is missionary day in my school every day. The first thing in the morning, in our Bible lesson, we are sure to find some missionary thought upon which we often dwell; and our prayer following, of course, contains a long paragraph in behalf of our faithful band, who have left their happy homes, loved ones, friends, and all, and gone far away to carry the glad tidings of Jesus and his love to our brothers and sisters who have never heard the sweet story. And in some one of the geography classes there is sure to be a subject suggested for a missionary talk. I find the children very much interested to know about the missionary work of these countries as they study them. Then, too, I keep all my missionary periodicals, tracts, etc, on my desk, and invite them to read them at their leisure, which I assure you they do very eagerly."

Another young lady who has recently given herself wholly to home mission work, says:—

"I do not think in all this world there is a happier, more grateful girl than I am. In active service for the blessed Lord there is joy continually, and my heart is just running over with love and praise to him. The Lord is very good to us"

"The Lord is very good to us." Does she mean to say God is especially good to young girls who, like herself, are young and strong and full of life and hope?

God does truly bless the young girls of our country with larger happiness than those of any other land, but they will rejoice in these blessings, as from him, only when they realize that they are not meant for selfish use alone, but to make others blessed. Joy and gratitude arise not from the possession of blessings, but the use of them. We know well that the most favored are often the most unhappy; the most sorely afflicted the most grateful. How to be happy in making others happy, is the thought of a little leaflet for young girls entitled Sunshine, prepared at the request of the Woman's Missionary Union. We would be especially glad to send this to a large number of young girls, but will send it, also, to any one interested in them, free on application.

Are the young women of your church, as a class, a power in God's work? Are they as a rule busy about the Master's business? Ought they to be?

A Grateful Letter.

In the last number it was mentioned that the W. M S of the First church, Raleigh, had recently sent a box to a frontier missionary, who had lost all by fire. How the box reached him just in time, how tears fell on it, and prayers echoed around it, is told below. Truly it is blessed to give to such as these:—

Dear Sisters:—Your letter of the 7th received the 12th. It was one of sympathy, and was highly appreciated. You said the truth when you said you knew that my field was a hard one; though I have never gotten to the place where I thought that those at home were not taking an interest in the work, for I know that God's people are a willing people, and we have great reasons to thank him for it.

I have undergone many hardships since my home was burnt last April, though the Lord has blessed me abundantly in the work. Many have been saved and baptized. I had been gone on the work of the Lord for two weeks; held one protracted meeting and attended two Associations, in which much good was done. I returned home yesterday at 12 o'clock and found one of my children sick, but it is better to day.

I went to South Canadian this morning, and thank God, I received your two boxes of clothing and books. We have just gotten through looking at them, and at your request I will try to tell you how we feel. We are altogether overjoyed, and fail to find language to express our love to you for what you have done for us. We found in the box a sufficiency for each member of the family, such as was badly needed. Our needs for the present are fully supplied. My family is overjoyed this evening. They have been deprived of going to church this summer on account of lack of clothing and shoes. But now their hopes are brightened.

Our protracted meeting commences at Town to-night and will continue to September 6th, then the Association of West Arkansas and Indian Territory meets with us.

Our hearts are so full and glad that the box reached us just in time for the meeting and Association. The scissors, irons, workbasket, dishes, knives and forks, together with everything else, moved my wife to tears and prayers. We do so highly appreciate the Bibles and Testaments, and all the books. My children were almost wild for something to read. The school books are just such as they needed. The oldest boy has been bowed over the fifth reader and history and physiology this evening.

You have made our hearts glad, and now my prayers shall forever be that God, our Father, may bless you in all your labors of love to advance his cause. The box was received without damage or cost to me.

I am your brother in Christ's service until death."

The Pleasure of Serving God.

The service of Christ is a pleasant service, "The ways of wisdom are ways of pleasantness, and all her paths are peace." The Psalmist found it a joyful service when he said: "I delight to do thy will, O, my God." The service of Christ is pleasant, because it brings one into the only true and right relationship with God. No man can enter the service of Christ except by repenting of sin, forsaking sin, accepting Christ as Saviour and enthroning him in the inmost heart, as absolute unchallenged sovereign of his being. Such an act of self-surrender brings deep, abiding and ever-increasing joy. The service of Christ brings one into the only true and right relationship with his fellowmen. There is nothing on this earth that is everlasting but usefulness in seeking to save souls. All things else fade away. The true servant of Christ looks on life from high vantage ground. It is a time of privilege and opportunity. His life he feels is not his own. It belongs to others. His divinely-appointed mission is to save men. This he is to do by example and by precept—living the truth and telling the truth. His blessed privilege is to lead souls to Jesus. There is no joy so thrilling as this. I would not, at this moment, give the blessed consciousness that God has used me in the saving of souls, that he has blessed my poor preaching of his gospel, my loving pleading with souls in private, and my yearning prayers for the lost to the saving of many souls, for all this world's riches, learning, fame. Bringing souls to Jesus is the highest earthly joy! May all my strength of mind and body be spent in this delightful work.—Rev O. C. Peyton, in The Standard.

Aunt Polly's Opinion.

"If you want to think a good deal of anybody, just try to help him all you can," said Aunt Polly. "Why, I don't believe the blessed Lord would care half as much for us if he hadn't done so much for our sakes, do you? There used to be a time when I didn't want to give anything for missions, and when they kept telling about the privations out West, I said I'd nothing at all to do with it. I never did have much money—only enough to keep the wolf from the door, and to save a little for rainy weather.

"How did I come to change my mind? Well, I'll tell you. You know that winter I slipped on the ice and couldn't walk for months. I never was a master hand for reading, but somehow it was all I could do then; and when the minister sent me in some mission papers to read, I said I reckoned they would pass the time better than nothing. Well, somehow, I got interested. The people out West got to seeming like real men and women to me, and the missionaries like brothers and sisters in the Lord. Then that text, 'Inasmuch as ye did it unto one of the least of these, ye did it unto me,' words direct from the Master, got hold of me and I couldn't get rid of 'em.

"Somehow there seemed less than ever to give at our house. I was crippled, and husband waiting on me, made him lose a good deal of time from work. But I tell you," emphasized Aunt Polly, "'where there's a will there's way,' and we found it. 'Husband,' said I, one day, 'those folks out West are our brothers and sisters, and we are doing nothing for them.' He looked thoughtful, and I continued: 'Yes, and we can't hope to be brothers and sisters to the blessed Lord, either, till we learn to do the will of the Heavenly Father. We haven't got many days longer to live at most, and we've done next to nothing for his kingdom.'

"'Well,' said the husband, 'the Lord's work shall have the price of my tobacco. I've got to do without it in heaven anyway, and I might as well learn how here.' That brought tears to my eyes; it was the only luxury he had ever known. 'And I'll give up my tea,' I said. 'No,' said he, 'you can't do without that.' 'It shatters my nerves, anyhow,' I cheerfully continued, 'and if the Lord sees I can't do without it, he'll provide a way.'

"And so we began to give for missions—just a little, you know; and when the reports would come in from the West, husband would say, 'My tobacco is bearing a good harvest, wife;' and when I'd hear of some of the doings of the 'Woman's Society,' I'd say, 'Well, I guess that tea is doing somebody some good, anyhow!'"—Ex.

She had sent off a telegram, and was waiting for an answer. Suddenly the peculiar halting click of the receiving machine sounded in the office, and she said to her companion: "That's from George, I know; I can tell his stutter."—Philadelphia Times.

Death of Rev. James Monroe Register.

Rev. James Monroe Register departed this life Aug. 14th, 1895, at his home in Bladen county, N. C., near Register postoffice. He had been afflicted for three years with rheumatism and paralysis, which kept him confined most of his time. He bore his afflictions without murmuring. He was honored and respected by his church and community. He was born Jan. 12th, 1826, in Sampson county, N. C., united with the Baptist church at Lisbon, Sampson county, at the age of fourteen years; was leading in prayer at sixteen; was married at the age of twenty-two to Miss H. C. Vann; moved to Bladen county in 1851, and settled in the forest where he died. He served as an officer in his county for ten years.

Bro. Register had aspirations for the profession of law, but feeling called of God to preach, he entered the ministry in the year 1862, and was ordained to the full work of preaching the glorious gospel of the Son of God. He stated that he had baptized 1,100 souls, married 108 couples, and assisted in organizing seven churches. He was pastor of Zion's Tabernacle church thirteen years, Bethel church eleven years, Mt. Pleasant church ten years, Abbottsburg church three years, and Edwards Chapel church ten years. He organized Cape Fear and Central Unions, and was the Moderator thereof most of the time.

Bro. Register was a strong preacher for his advantages, and made a good pastor He knew how to keep peace and pursued it with all mankind.

"I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith: henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give me at that day: and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing." 2 Tim. 4: 7, 8

"Servant of God, well done,
Rest from thy loved employ,
The battle fought, the victory won,
Enter thy Master's joy."

MEMORIAL SERVICE.

The second Sunday in September was set apart by his church in memory of Bro. Register. Services were commenced by singing on the part of the congregation, and prayer, Bro. D J. Allen leading. Song by the choir. Reading of the Scriptures by Bro. D. J. Clark. Singing. Prayer, Bro. Stallings leading. Reading of letters from brethren in the churches he served (mentioned before) Singing by the congregation.

Eulogy by Bro. E. W. Wooten, followed by remarks by brethren Bennett, Bridgers, Squires, Allen, Kinlaw and D J. Clark.

Singing by the congregation, "God be with you till we meet again." Thus closed a most interesting service attended by a full house, besides a large number of both white and colored, out of doors.

Good News From Chatham.

Brother L. R. Dixon is having a fine meeting at May's Chapel. Nine had made a profession of religion and many more were penitents on last Saturday. In order that he might continue the meeting, I preached for him at New Salem and baptized three at that place Sunday morning.

On Sunday night I preached in Pittsboro and received one young man for baptism.

Bro. Lineberry, the editor of the Chatham Citizen, and his wife joined us by letter at Pittsboro on Sunday Sept. 1st. He is a good Sunday-school worker.

I hear that Bro. O. T. Edwards has had a great meeting at Lone's Creek near Siler, in which there were about forty professions of religion. There has also been a considerable revival at Bear Creek church in this county. I expect to continue our meeting at Pittsboro for a day or two longer in view of the increased insterest manifested to night.

On Either Side.

A new curate once met a farmer's boy while performing his visiting duties at a small village in the south of England. In the course of their conversation the boy said his parents had an aunt living with them. The parson, not understanding the boy's brogue, asked, "Then, do I understand that your aunt is on your father's side or your mother's?" To which the young agriculturist replied, "Well, sometimes one and sometimes the other, 'cepting when feyther whacks 'em both"

NEWS SUMMARY.

North Carolina.

The "Baldy Pearce" residence—a relict of a former generation in Cedar Rock township, Franklin county, was consumed by fire on Thursday night, the 12th inst. The building, the property of Mr. Willis Boone, was covered by insurance, but the contents belonging to Mrs. John Pearce, widow, occupant of the house, were lost with the exception of some articles saved by the heroic efforts of the neighbors.——Jno. R. Thompson, late postmaster at Horse Cove, Macon county, is under bond to appear at the next Federal court for trial, being charged with $700 shortage in postal funds.——The stockholders of the N. C. Railroad in a meeting at Greensboro on the 17th, ratified the late lease of the road to the Southern Railway. The effort to secure the surrender of the tax exemption as provided in the charter failed. By resolution the President of the Road was instructed to list the property for taxation after June 1st, 1896, when dividends on profits exceed six per cent. So the meeting merely resulted in a ratification of the lease and in the declining to surrender the tax exemption.—— State Geologist, Dr. J. A. Holmes, in a published statement, says that the North Carolina forestry and mineral exhibits were ready at the opening of the exposition at Atlanta and were unsurpassed by those from any other State. Messrs. Carmichael and Hawkins have on exhibition in Atlanta a wonderful "Geological Curio," a mammoth rock from the mountains of North Carolina, covered with human faces, footprints, ancient hieroglyphics and letters of the English alphabet, traced by the hand of nature in the primeval ages of the world. The rock weighs 2,800 pounds, was disconnected with other rock formations where found in our mountains, has been visited by thousands in Asheville, and visitors to Atlanta should not fail to see it at 55 East Hunter Street.——John Watkins of Burke county, near Hartland, committed suicide on the night of the 18th, shooting himself with a gun. He leaves a wife and three children. Mental aberration is the supposed cause of the deed.——There are fifteen young ladies from this State at the Agnes Scott Institute, in Georgia. Prof. Joseph Maclean, formerly of Charlotte, is there in charge of the music department, and Miss Alice Springs is the art teacher.——Minister Ransom to Mexico has been appointed by President Diaz as the arbitrator in the Mexican-Guatemala contention,—a distinguished honor upon a North Carolinian.——A lady of Asheville (name not given) has enlisted the interest of Mr. Wanamaker, the philanthropic merchant prince of Philadelphia, in the Waldensian colony in Burke county. The services of a farmer have been secured to teach the colony the system of farming in this country—in other words, they will be started, so afterwards they can be self sustaining. These people are moral, honest and upright, and if they are successful, other immigrants of like kind will be induced to come to our State.——The State silver convention meets in Raleigh to day, Sept. 25th.——A "free silver rally" was held in Salisbury on the 19th. Senators Pritchard and Butler were the speakers The gathering was rather small.

In General.

The Cotton States and International Exposition was opened at Atlanta on the afternoon of the 18th. The event was accompanied by military pomp and civic dignity. The parade from the city to the grounds (a distance of three miles) was a military one, with bands of music, being headed by the U. S. Fifth Infantry and the Washington Artillery of New Orleans, and followed by several regiments of Georgia State troops. An immense throng of people was present. The opening exercises at the auditorium were impressive. Ex. Governor Bullock was the master of ceremonies and introduced the speakers. Bishop Nelson, Gov. Bullock, President Collier of the Exposition, Mrs. Joseph Thompson, President of the Woman's Board of Managers, Booker T. Washington, representative of the colored race, Geo. Brown, representative of Gov. Atkinson (who was sick), Hon Emory Speer, orator of the day, and Mayor King of Atlanta, made addresses. At about six o'clock p. m., President Cleveland at Gray Gables, 1,000 miles away, touched the button and the big Frick engine in Machinery Hall was set in motion, followed by all the machinery. A shout went up that shook the roof. The flashing lights from the various buildings in the gathering darkness, and the bombs of the presidential salute emphasized the formal opening. Nearly every racial type of man on earth is on exhibition.——On the 19th the Chickamauga battlefield near Chattanooga, Tenn., was dedicated as a national park by the survivors on both sides of the terrible, bloody strife of thirty-two years ago. The principal speeches were by silver-haired generals, Federal Jno. M. Palmer and Confederate John B. Gordon. About 30,000 men perished in the battle, and about 50,000 people witnessed the dedication exercises.——This is a time of great and significant gatherings, none more so, perhaps, than the recent meeting of the Grand Army of the Republic in Louisville, Ky. One of the features of this occasion was a procession of 50,000 Grand Army men preceded by two silver haired Confederate veterans (members of Dr. Eaton's church), bearing the U. S. flag and a white dove, emblem of peace. This is the first assembling of the G. A. R. on Southern soil, and Henry A. Watterson of the Journal made the welcome speech brim full of patriotism, cheer and good feeling, which was fully reciprocated by the Grand Army men. This meeting is regarded as one of the most memorable of the long series of meetings, and the encampment goes to St. Paul, Minn., next year.——The famous old "Liberty bell" of Philadelphia will be carried to the Atlanta Exposition, reaching there Oct. 8th, occupying a previously arranged journey of five days. The route will lead through Delaware, Maryland, District of Columbia and Virginia, and in parts of Tennessee and Georgia to Atlanta.——A Washington correspondent of the St. Louis Republic estimates that President Cleveland is worth $250 000, and therefore the richest President the government has had since the days of Washington. He was worth about $30,000 when he first assumed the presidency in 1885, but by successful investments and by marriage his estate has grown to its present proportion. All the other Presidents were in moderate circumstances, save Martin Van Buren, who was fairly well off. The richest man who ever occupied a seat in the cabinet of a President was Wm. C. Whitney, Secretary of the Navy under President Cleveland's first presidential term. His wealth was placed at $20.000 000, and his annual expenditure was $150 000.——It is published as a fact that Wm. Simpson of Bucks county, Pa., was grandfather to the mother of Gen. Grant and to the father of Jefferson Davis, thus making Grant and Davis second cousins.——There will be no further issue of government bonds, at least for the present.

From Rev. G. M. Webb.

Dear Recorder:—I held a meeting at Shady Grove, three miles south of Cherryville, beginning on Saturday, August 31. It was a good meeting. Bro. Noah Moss helped me. On the 10th I baptized nine happy converts, as the result of the meeting. Shady Grove is a mission church.

I went from Shady Grove to Carpenter's schoolhouse, four miles south of Lincolnton, and commenced a meeting at 10 o'clock the second Sunday. This meeting continued ten days. The weather was rainy, and I had to stay at home part of the time with a sick wife and daughter; but the meeting went on, conducted by brethren Hawkins, Moss and Elam in my absence. At the close of the meeting I baptized thirteen young men and women in the presence of a very large crowd. This was in some respects the most wonderful meeting I ever held, there being but a very few Baptists in all the settlement. An arm was extended from Shady Grove to the schoolhouse, which is in the midst of a missionary field. There had been but few Baptist sermons preached in that section before I went there. Brethren Hawkins, Moss and Elam did good, solid preaching for me while I was absent.

I held another meeting at Cherryville, beginning Sunday night, Sept 1st, and continued till the morning of the 9th—ten services—eight at night and two in the day. This was the grandest meeting I ever saw. One night there were eleven conversions, and at another, nine conversions. There was not a service at night but what there were conversions. On Monday morning at 9 o'clock there was a large crowd gathered at a fish pond near Cherryville to witness the burial by baptism of thirty-two young men and young women, including one old man of eighty-six years, who has been a member of the Lutheran Church sixty seven years. He said when he came up out of the water that he knew he was baptized now, and that he was now ready to die whenever the Lord called him

Cherryville is a mission station on the C. C. Road, eleven miles from Shelby. Brethren Limrick and A. C. Irvin did most of the preaching, and it was well done. They acquitted themselves like men who had power with God. To God be all the glory.

This closes my meetings for this year. Come to our Association. Fifty-four baptisms this year. G. M. WEBB

From Rev. J. M. McManaway in Missouri.

Dear Recorder:—It is a proud distinction of North Carolina Baptists that they feel a tender interest in any of their number who wander beyond the limits of her loved territory. Of her distinguished sons who have come in this direction, the Rev. S. F. Thompson is by no means least. And this is true by whatever standard you measure him. Some of your readers will recall him who saw him at Henderson a few years ago at the State Convention. Scholarly, conservative, courageous, warm-hearted and devout, he is an able minister of the New Testament. He has the grit and the grace and the common sense to live in a village where another is pastor and not embarrass him by criticism, and that, too, when many times there are occasions for criticism. He and his noble wife, a worthy daughter of a veteran Kentucky Baptist preacher, instead of hindering has been a constant source of inspiration and helpfulness to this scribe on his field. Brother Thompson has well earned a vacation which he starts shortly to spend in his native heath.

Let me bespeak for him the consideration which he richly merits.

A Sensible Woman

She's putting the washboard where it'll do some good. She has suffered with it long enough; broken her back over it, rubbed the clothes to pieces on it, wasted half her time with it. But now she knows better. Now she's using Pearline—and when a woman uses Pearline, the only way to use the washboard is in the kitchen fire. There's no more hard work, no more ruinous rubbing, but there's washing that's easy and economical and safe.

Millions of women are just as sensible as this one. Are you?

An Incredulous Smile, or the Simple Exclamation NONSENSE.

If your physician has not investigated it, he would probably exclaim "Nonsense" if you were to ask him about it. Does it polarize the body and cause it to absorb Oxygen from the air through the pores of the skin? Does this new method of applying that great vitalizer—Oxygen—effect cures of almost all diseases, and in many cases after other methods of treatment have failed?

We can prove that it Does.

Indigestion.

From the Standard-Union, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Few women have had a more miserable existence and lived to tell the tale than Mrs. Anna L Smith of 311 Pulaski Avenue, Brooklyn. With all the comforts that money affords, with all the happiness that many loving friends can give, the joy of Mrs. Smith's life was blasted for years by the terrible ravages of sickness. The story is most interesting as told to a reporter:

"I was an invalid for years, suffering first with one complaint and then with another. My case was truly that of a complication of diseases, due to an accident which I received some years ago. The thing which caused me the most discomfort and made me offensive to my family was the worst case of indigestion imaginable. I made all around me miserable by my sufferings, and was most miserable myself. I had the best physician we could find, and occasionally his prescriptions relieved me temporarily. But the pains and misery would all soon return again. I became desperate, and started in to try remedies of which I read. Among them were the Pink Pills. Their appearance captivated me instantly, for I am a great believer in the beautiful. I took the pills and followed out the directions to the letter, and before many days I began to feel like a different woman. For six weeks I took the pills regularly, and I can truthfully add after that I was as well as any one in the family. This change for the better in my condition has caused my relatives and friends to take the pills.

"I assure you it was impossible for me to oversee my household for three years. Now I visit my kitchen every day, do my own marketing and shopping; in a word, look after everything connected with my home and family.

"Oh, yes, I still keep taking the pills. I take one daily after dinner. Prevention, you know, is better and cheaper than cure. I verily believe one half of the women who are suffering from the ills which our sex are heir to would be up and well if they could be induced to give the Pink Pills a fair trial. I certainly recommend them heartily and feel grateful to the physician who put them on the market."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are for sale by all druggists, or may be had by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., for 50 cents per box, or six boxes for $2.50, and are never sold in bulk, or by the dozen or hundred.

To the Baptist Brethren of the South.

Dear Brethren:—The first number of the consolidated Mission Journal will be issued in October. It will have a Foreign Board Department and a Home Board Department. The Missionary Union and Sunbeam Societies will also have the space heretofore occupied by them in the Foreign Journal. It is hoped with the present management it may be possible to give the people a greatly improved mission journal. We earnestly desire your help. We earnestly request that at your earliest convenience you present this matter publicly to your people. The price of the consolidated journal is 50 cents per year. One copy will be sent free for one year to any one sending us the names of ten new subscribers and $5. Please appoint some one in your church to solicit subscribers. If sample copies are desired, address Mission Journal, and they will be sent. Help us, brethren, to make the Journal a power for good in the cause of missions. Yours, etc.,

The King's Household of Bible Readers.

Many have asked about the King's Household, what it is and what it is doing. It is an organization formed in 1885 by Rev. Edwin H. Bronson, of Philadelphia, for the purpose of helping people everywhere to a practical knowledge of the Bible. Though its leader lived only four years after its inauguration, its work is still continued, and testimonies of the benefit of the system are constantly received. One member just finishing the course tells what it has done for her in these words: "I have been helped and blessed by this course of reading. I cannot tell why it should have been so much more helpful than the ordinary method, but it has been fixed in the memory, and the Bible stands out as a whole as never before. I am very thankful my attention was called to it." The work is done by means of a quarterly slip book containing the calendar of daily reading, beside blanks for daily note-making and reviews. The course covers the entire Bible in four years, taking up the Historical portions during the first year, the Poetical portions during the second year, the Prophecies and Epistles during the third and fourth years. The expense is slight, being only fifty cents a year, and where persons are not able to pay, no charge is made. All are invited to join the new class which is now forming. For further information address Mrs. E. H. Bronson, Sec., Salem, N. J. The Advisory Board of the King's Household consists of Rev. Phillip L. Jones, D. D., Rev. Russell H. Conwell, D. D., of Philadelphia, and Rev. J. M. Stifler, D. D., of Chester, Pa.—Evangelist.

Good Work at White Lake.

We began a protracted meeting on Saturday, September 7th, and closed for awhile on the 15th. We expected the help of a dear, good brother, but something happened so he did not come, and the writer and the pastor of the church had to do the preaching.

The Holy Spirit seemed to have been with us from the beginning, and the interest continued to increase until every sinner, without a single exception I believe, asked for prayer by Christian people. On the morning of the 15th we baptized seventeen converts, whom we believe were born from above by the power of God; one was restored, making eighteen in all. When our meeting closed Sunday night, there were about forty penitents. Everybody in the house asked for prayer, I believe.

We expect to have services the last of this week, when we hope that more precious souls will come over on the Lord's side.

White Lake, a beautiful sheet of water about two miles each way, is the prettiest place in which to baptize I ever saw. To God be all the glory.

Yours in Christ,
JAMES H. DOBSON.

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth; yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors; and their works do follow them."

The funeral services were performed by Rev. T. Dixon on the 17th in the presence of a large crowd. F. P. GOLD.

ELLINGTON—Died near Dabney, Vance county, N. C., Sept. 12th, 1895, Mr. Geo. W. Ellington, aged fifty-three years. Death and the grave are dreadful realities, but they had no fears for him. Our brother had long been an active member of Poplar Creek church, and was possessed of a rich Christian experience. He was willing to live for the sake of his dear wife and Ida; but was ready and anxious to depart and be with Christ. His life was in full keeping with a triumphant victory in death—quiet, peaceable, full of faith and good works. He was laid to rest in the churchyard, amid the sympathy of many friends and brethren, by whom he was held in great esteem. He was blessed in life with the good will and confidence of all who knew him, and now he blesses them with the memory of a good man, a faithful friend, and a devout Christian. M.

COTTOLENE.

How To Use Cottolene

the new shortening, like all other things must be rightly used if you wish the best results. Never, in any recipe, use more than two-thirds as much Cottolene as you used to use of lard. Never put Cottolene in a hot pan. Put it in when cold and heat it with the pan. Be careful not to burn Cottolene. To test it, add a drop of water; if hot enough, it will pop. Cottolene, when rightly used, delights everyone. Get the genuine, sold everywhere in tins, with trade-marks—"Cottolene" and steer's head in cotton-plant wreath—on every tin. Made only by

A Prayer.

Dear Lord Christ, I am only a boy,
So merry and brimful of fun,
But I do want to work for you now,
Please give me an errand to run.

If I cheerfully go to my work
And always be fair in my play,
If I do without things that I want
And work for what I give away.

If I carry a basket of food
Or stop in my game to be kind,
If I help some slow fellow at school
Or read to somebody that's blind—

Won't you count it an errand for you?
"Inasmuch as to others," you said;
Won't you whisper new things I can do?
Make me quick to run on where I'm led?

If I live I'll do real mission work,
But perhaps I shall never grow old;
Let me do a boy's work, dear Lord Christ,
Make me willing to do as I'm told.

A Little Peacemaker.

"You upset it on purpose, and I will never play with you again, Margerie Ellis!"

The two little girls had been playing paper dolls out on the front veranda all the morning; and making them dresses, too, for bits of bright-colored paper and lace were lying about in little piles, with stones from the gravel walk on them to keep them from blowing away. A box, filled with ready-made dresses and hats, the children used as store, and brought the mammas and daughters there every now and then for new clothes.

Edith was just deciding between a blue dress and a brown for her favorite, Miss Marcella,—who was soon to be married to Mr. Thomas Twist, a rosy cheeked paper doll with a red cravat,—when an unusually strong breeze took that young lady right out of her hands, and carried her way down the path to the sweet shrub bush. Margerie jumped up quickly to help Edith in the chase after Miss Marcella, when, in her haste, she overturned the box store,—to the great delight of the frolicsome breeze, but not to Edith's delight, for she cried out:

"Margerie, see what you've done! What made you?"

"Oh! I didn't mean to, Edith,—why, I believe you think I did, you look so cross!"

"You did do it on purpose, and you're glad 'cause my dear Miss Marcella blew down the walk!"

This was too much for Margerie, and she cried out: "I hate your old Miss Marcella, and the doll she's going to marry, and all her clothes, and everything about her!"

What Edith would have said in reply I do not know, for just then they were stopped by a strange little girl at the gate.

"Who's that girl, Margerie? She's talking to us."

The little girl at the gate was Edna Herbert, who was visiting her aunt, several doors farther up the street.

That morning Aunt Lucy had given her the text, "Blessed are the peacemakers, for they shall be called the children of God." But she had gone away without explaining it to Edna.

"Can peacemakers mean dressmakers, I wonder," thought Edna. "Oh, no! I guess it means the other kind of peace—not to quarrel. I'll be a peacemaker to-day," and she started down the street to join her aunt at the store. At Margerie's gate she heard the words the angry children were saying, and quick as a flash she thought, "A peacemaker will stop quarrels,"—and then even quicker came another thought: "But I don't know those girls, and what would they think of me?"

It was already too late, however, for they had seen her, and that she was looking at them, so she called out, "Can't I be a peacemaker?"

"A what?" called back Margerie.

Edna had come up to the veranda by this time. "A peacemaker," she said again. "Is that other girl your best friend?"

"Why, yes—no—she was—I don't know," said Margarie.

"Oh! then don't quarrel with her,—and let me help you pick up your things. Look! there's a pink dress blown up into that cedar-tree; it couldn't wait till December to be made a Christmas tree!"

All three children laughed at this, and then began a chase after the scattered dresses and other valuables.

When all had been found and put back into the box again, the eyes of the children fairly sparkled with fun, and Margerie's mother, coming out, saw three happy little girls, all laughing and talking at once.

"What little girl is this, Margerie?" she said.

"I don't know," said Margerie, and she laughed at the thought. "She heard Edith and me quarrelling, mamma, and she came in to be a piece bag—or something."

"Peace maker," laughed Edna; "I am Mrs. Herbert's niece,"—turning to Mrs. Ellis,—"I am only visiting here."

Margerie's mother kissed Edna's upturned face, saying: "It is plain to be seen that you are one of Christ's little ones."

And Edna said to herself as she walked home a little later: "Margerie's mother said I was one of Christ's little ones, which really is just the same thing as being called the 'children of God.'"—H. D. R. Reeves, in Sunday school Times.

A Vassar Girl in Japan.

People in this country, where educational institutions are located, have become familiar in the last twenty years with a multitude of young Japanese, who have been sent to this country to be educated. Nearly all of these have been young men, who, after being trained in the arts and sciences of civilization as known in this country, have gone back to their own land to become leaders of the Japanese in the wonderful progress which they have made toward a position among civilized nations. Nearly all of these Japanese students have been young men, but about fourteen years ago the Japanese government sent four little girls to America to be educated and trained, in order that they might return to Japan and teach the women of that country how we live in the United States. One of these little girls was Stematz Yamakawa. She found a home in the family of Dr. Leonard W. Bacon, of New Haven, Conn., and soon began to go to Sunday school with his daughter, now well known as Alice Mabel Bacon, the author of Japanese Girls and Women. The little Japanese girl was bright and interesting, and made many friends. She also showed an intelligent mind, and made such progress in her studies that after a few years she went to Vassar College, in Poughkeepsie, New York, and in due time was graduated from there with high honors. The Japanese minister came on from Washington to hear her graduating address. After graduation she remained for a time in New Haven, in order to get some knowledge of medicine and of nursing, with the idea of training her own country-women in these directions. Best of all, she became a true Christian, and united with Dr Bacon's church.

Stematz had now become an exceedingly interesting as well as well-educated young woman. But the time had come for her to return to Japan, and she went back to her own country followed by the prayers of the many friends she had gained in America. Her expectation, and that of the Japanese government, was perhaps, that she should engage in teaching and training Japanese women in the things which she had learned in this country. But the lives of young women do not always turn out as their parents and guardians have arranged for them. The natural attractions of Stematz no doubt greatly increased by her American studies and training, won the attention of a gentleman of high position, and only two years after returning to Japan, Stematz became Countess Oyama, and has since been a leader among the noble ladies of Japan. Count Oyama, her husband, is one of the foremost men in the Japanese Empire. He became Minister of War in the cabinet of the Emperor, and during the late war with China, he commanded the second division of the Japanese army, which, under his leadership, captured the strong Chinese fortress, Wei-Hai-Wei.

The prominent position of her husband, as a statesman and a general, gives to the Countess Oyama great influence.

At the time of her marriage the Count was a widower with two little girls, the training of whom has fallen to the Countess. Both in public and in private she has had opportunity to make good use of her Christian training received in America. One of the Count's daughters is reported to have married a Christian. Perhaps in this the good influence of the Countess has been seen. In the recent and marvelous progress of Japan, the multitude of young men and the few young women educated in the United States and other Christian countries have had a profound and leading influence on the future welfare of that country. The stand which Japan has taken, by its victories in the late war, ranks it as in some respects the most influential country of Asia. Every one who desires the progress of the kingdom of Christ must follow its course with the greatest interest and most earnest prayers. The carrying on of Christian missions in Japan is one of the most fascinating branches of Christian work now offered to the Church of Christ. The present is a time in which the moulds are to be formed which will shape the future of the country, and as servants of Jesus Christ we have a large duty to perform toward Japan. —Rev. Edmund F Merriam.

AYER'S PILLS

ARE EASY TO TAKE.

They Keep the System in Perfect Order

"For years," writes CARRIE E. STOCKWELL, of Chesterfield, N. H., "I was afflicted with an extremely severe pain in the lower part of the chest. The feeling was as if a ton weight was laid on a spot the size of my hand. During the attacks, the perspiration would stand in drops on my face, and it was agony for me to make sufficient effort even to whisper. They came suddenly, at any hour of the day or night, lasting from thirty minutes to ten or twelve hours, leaving as suddenly; but, for several days after, I was quite prostrated and sore. Sometimes the attacks were almost daily, then less frequent. After about four years of this suffering, I was taken down with bilious typhoid fever, and when I began to recover, I had the worst attack of my old trouble I ever experienced. At the first of the fever, my mother gave me Ayer's Pills, my doctor recommending them as being better than anything he could prepare. I continued taking these Pills, and so great was the benefit derived that during nearly thirty years I have had but one attack of my former trouble which yielded readily to the same remedy."

A CELEBRATION orator said the other day, "There is no negro problem; we have the negroes, but the problem has passed into oblivion together with many another political scare crow." Our orator is wide of the mark. South Carolina's Constitutional Convention now in session, called for the expressed purpose of disfranchising the negroes in that State on the Mississippi plan, is living evidence that there is a negro problem, and a grievous one at that. There are from twenty to thirty thousand more negro men of voting age in South Carolina than there are white voters; but since 1876 the negroes have been so persistently outdone at the polls that until lately there has been no fear of return of the diabolical regime of negroes and carpet baggers that followed the war. But recently the whites have divided in bitter hatred, and, while danger of return of negro rule has at no time been imminent, the faction in power thinks best to fix the Constitution now so as to put negro rule once for all out of reckoning. Of course the method is to draw the line on illiteracy, as was done in Mississippi, and to have such judges as to who is and who is not illiterate as will be sure to turn down the 100 000 illiterate blacks and pass the 20 000 whites who are no better qualified. It is a hazardous thing to tamper with popular suffrage. None of us would like to see negro rule in our sister State, but we question the wisdom of this method of barring it. It can be said in favor of the present regime, however, that it is at least disposed to have such laws as will make it possible to abridge the franchise of the negroes without transgressing them. But at best it is a terrible thing to cut off from the ballot 100,000 negro voters, who have by this time come to hold the privilege of voting as one of their dearest rights. It gives us forebodings of insurrection and bloodshed, or at best of severe retaliation when the bar of illiteracy is passed over once for all, which is inevitable.

THERE is another way to look at this negro problem—and a most hopeful point of view it is. Down in the notorious Black Belt of Alabama fourteen years ago a young negro man founded a school that promises to do more to settle the race question than any amount of legislation. His ideals were at once the highest and noblest possible, and yet unpretentious. He believes that the time has not come to make negro lawyers, editors, preachers, doctors, and congressmen; that it is not yet time to make Latin and Greek scholars of them, but rather to teach them to be teachers of their fellows, to be better workmen, carpenters and farmers, and how to save money and escape money lenders and mortgages. Of course he is making a success of educating the negro into a good negro, while others are meeting disheartening failure in efforts to educate him into a white man. Last year Prof. Washington (for this is the name of this enterprising negro) had an enrollment in his school of 1,025, his teaching force numbering 36, and the expenses were $8,000. Think of a young negro building up an enterprise of such proportions! Think of the influence of such an institution. It is worth an incalculable sum to the South; it will make of zests of barbarians, and will save them from absurd and foolish notions; and it will teach a wholesome lesson to misguided would be uplifters of the race.

FOR years the Spoils System has been the back bone of political parties and the bane of our government. The barter of offices that party kingpins have conducted year in and year out has been one of the most revolting features of American government, and at times the few who hope for a pure government have been all but despairing because of it. But the day of spoils is passing, and in consequence there is more hope of the purification of politics. The Civil Service Act of 1883 was the first stroke at the spoils system. Since then the licks have not been many, but they have come with a regularity and a force that makes sure the doom of the abominable system in the not distant future. A clerk in the civil service gets his place and holds it, or gets promotion, by competitive examination. This foils the political boss who sells offices for votes. In 1883 the number of places in the Federal service which were classified in the civil service was 15,578; during Cleveland's first term the number was raised to 27 330; during Harrison's term it went up to 42,928; July 1st, this year, the number had been increased to 51,468, and last week the good news came that all offices in the consular service of which the salary is not more than $2 500 a year nor less than $1,000 had been placed under the civil service regulations. About 200,000 persons are regularly employed in the government service, and now nearly a third of them are out of reach of the partisan, office selling bosses. It is rightly said that civil service reform is the foundation stone of political reform, and for one we will hail with joy the day when it is complete in our government.

THE spectacle of our nation depending on a syndicate of bankers to maintain its credit has not been a pleasant one, and we are glad that the Belmont-Morgan syndicate has completed its contract to maintain the gold reserve, which to financiers is the emblem, and the substance apparently of our national credit. Immediately following the retirement of the syndicate the reserve has dropped below the $100,000,000 standard, and, it is said another bond issue is not unlikely. The Belmont-Morgan syndicate's profits for its six months security is variously estimated from $2,000,000 to $12,000,000. Why a gold reserve is necessary, why its ups and downs should restore and destroy business, we cannot understand; but the manifest fact is that the tone of finance is sounder when the gold reserve is $100,000,000 than when it is less than that amount. For one we long for the government to go out of the banking business and let its gold reserve flow into the channels of commerce, where money belongs. No government except our own is in the banking business, and surely our experience has not been such as to entice other nations to follow our example.

THE Atlanta Exposition has been opened with the characteristic American speech-making, tooting of horns and ringing of bells. It now remains for the people to go and make it a financial success. In this day and time it is not sufficient to get a good show; that is half the battle; the other half is to make the people go. Atlanta has gathered a great exhibition, modeled after the magnificent World's Fair of 1893; she has expended $2,300,000, constructing inland lakes, building twelve magnificent buildings, and in many other ways making for a magnificent display of God's wondrous works and man's achievements in transforming them to human uses. It is a hazardous thing to expend $2,000,000 on an exposition only two years after so great a one has been held; and it is to be feared that the projectors of this enterprise will loose money. And especially are we doubtful since the opening of the gates of the exposition; for the crowds have not yet put in appearance. The exposition has been tolerably well advertised, but somehow or other they have failed to arouse enthusiasm outside of Georgia. No doubt the exhibits are worth seeing. In fact it will be a good education to go to Atlanta and spend ten days; and we here in North Carolina so close by ought to go, if we can. The exposition is a Southern affair; it is for the South and mostly of the South, and Southerners ought to do all they can to make it a success in every sense of the word.

"IF I were twenty years younger I would go down and help Cuba out," said an ardent Baptist in our office. We clip the following from the Watchman which justifies the brother's ardor in this particular. "If Cuba should achieve either her independence or autonomy (it is said that Spain is now willing to grant the latter), it is difficult to prophesy how largely the work of Diaz might extend. Such a result would give it an enormous field for expansion, and the island might be evangelized by Baptists." In Washington at the convention Diaz didn't hesitate to take the part of the revolutionists.

THE critics may revise creeds as much as they please. Most creeds sadly need revision, and the others will not lose by revision. But the revisers must stop when they get to the gospel of Jesus Christ. There is but one gospel; that one is as plain as day, and human tampering will at best befog rather than make clear. Critics, however, are usually enthusiasts and enthusiasts never know where to quit.

The Christian in Politics.

BY REV. L. G. BROUGHTON.

TEXT—"Render unto Cæsar the things which be Cæsar's."—Luke 20: 25.

I am aware that I am standing on dangerous ground. I never stand anywhere else. Life itself is dangerous. Everything in life is dangerous. It has been said that a graveyard is the only thing that is not. I have learned that this is not true. I was nearly scared to death by a "will o' the wisp" in a graveyard when a boy. The other day a whole city was poisoned by a graveyard. Everything is dangerous. Shall we turn our backs upon a thing because its dangerous?

"Be careful," said a man to me the other day, "in handling this question." This I am going to do; but I shall be more careful to tell the truth than to please a few politicians. Don't forget this.

There are two classes of people who don't believe in a preacher going into politics and carrying his church. The church member, who will perhaps go to heaven, objects because he says a preacher's business is to prepare men for heaven. This may be true; but perhaps we differ as to what will get a man to heaven. No man is going to heaven unless he lives right, no difference what he believes. Life is no sport. Life is a living reality. The Christian belongs to God, soul and body as well. No man's soul can be right when body is all wrong. To live the goat life here means to live the goat life hereafter. A sheep's skin on a goat's back, brother, don't make a sheep. We are not going to be judged by our hides, but by our hearts and our hides together.

The reason these good brethren oppose taking religion into politics is because of a mistaken idea of the mission of the church and the sphere of the pulpit. They say the preacher, for example, is to deal only with the heart side of life. In Tennessee the Constitution forbids a preacher holding office because it says his calling is to get men to heaven.

Preach the word is one of their favorite quotations. You have heard them. Sometimes you hear preachers who are anxious to excuse themselves. Talking about "the word." There is old Dr. Go Slow. He comes before his congregation of benches, and after declaring himself out and out in favor of preaching "the word," proceeds to reproduce an antiquated essay on "the Jews." Old Dr. Dry as a Cane declares for the word, as he comes forth to engage the attention of his hearers, while he gives them a probable solution of some long vexed problem in theology. Dr. Pleases 'em All comes in, too, in the plea for the word, while he pats, and puffs and paints, agreeing with sister Sue and brother Jim, though as different from each other as the monkey from the man.

When I began to preach, a brother said, "Never say anything about politics, because you will have all sorts in your congregation." Another preacher present said, "Young man, hit sin wherever you find it." That is what I am trying to do. I wouldn't give a snap for party politics. The whole thing is a sham and a fraud from beginning to end. I don't believe the man ever lived who can remain in politics and be honest.

"Preach the word." What do they mean? They say it is meddling with nothing but religion. As a matter of fact, they mean meddling with everything else but religion. Religion touches every phase of life from the cradle to the grave, and township constable to president.

THE LIGHT OF THE WORLD.

Christ said of the Christian, "Ye are the light of the world." A light is to show the right and the wrong way, like a guide pointing out to a stranger a path. In politics the church is not a light. When did you ever hear of a platform being formed in conformity to religion? The whiskey devil makes politics, and you know it. The bums and court house loafers make the light, and the church follows.

SALT OF THE EARTH.

Again, Christ says, "Ye are the salt of the earth." Salt is intended to prevent decomposition. Salt is never applied after a thing is rotten. Salt must be applied, and this before a thing is ruined. So is our religion. We have reversed the order. We spend our money dealing with results—build colleges, orphanages, prisons, and the like, then vote for a party that continues to make the criminals and paupers. Ninety per cent. of the cases tried in Roanoke police court is the result of whiskey made legal by your vote. Let's get the salt on before the meat rots.

THE BODY OF THE MATTER.

I believe in getting at the root of the matter. The way to cure a carbuncle is to cut it open. The way to cure a chill is to cure the cause. What would you think of a man who would go to a man shaking with a chill if he would tie the poor fellow to the bed to keep him from shaking, thinking if he would stop the shaking he would stop the chills. You know he would shake the stake out of the bed. That would be about the end of the thing. This is what so called Christian voters are doing—"monkeying" with the effect rather than the cause—paying our money to relieve the results. Why not stop the cause?

Present politics is the enemy of religion. The church stands for truth. Her prayer is the prayer of Christ: "Thy kingdom come, thy will be done in earth as it is in heaven." Her marching orders are, "Go ye into all the world and make disciples of every creature." Politics grants this in theory and stops it in practice. Their platform is selfish, their methods devilish. The man who does most stealing is the man who "gets there." A Congressman in North Carolina was nominated because he stole his way into the Legislature. The laws they pass are mainly such as retard the kingdom. The Washington Post is now advocating the suppression of the right to send missionaries to foreign lands because it costs so much to protect them. Why not suppress trusts and combines because they cost so much to protect? Why not suppress the whiskey traffic because it costs so much to protect? At least half of the expenses of all our courts and the nation is chargeable to whiskey. This would upset their stronghold. Ex-Mayor Hewitt of New York has said he would rather have one saloon behind him in politics than a half dozen churches.

Look at politics in our own county. Every man up is a "whiskeyite." They range from a distiller down. Tell me that the politicians are the friends of the church? The politician objects to the church going into politics, of course. He says it is because he loves the church. Yes, love the church. What does he do for it? He loves the church when he is running, and that is all. I will tell you why he objects. He knows that the principles of Christ will uproot their rottenness. He knows that the standard will be elevated, and the old "bums" will have to take a back seat.

Let the church into politics. They are citizens. They are teachers. We have been saying, "Go it, boys." Let us be like Lannes at Rattisbon—take the lead and say follow. They are Christians, and as such are responsible to God. No vote is thrown away. You can't throw away a righteous act.

Ah, the sacredness of the ballot! Listen; God is speaking: "Moses, what is that in your hand?" "Only a shepherd's crook, Lord." "It's enough. Go lead my people." "Shamgar, what have you?" "Only an ox goad, Lord." "Enough. Go use that goad as I shall tell you." And this done, six hundred Philistines fall. "David, what have you?" "Only a sling." "Enough. Go kill Goliath." "Dorcas, what have you?" "Only a needle." "Enough. Use it."

Brother, you are standing at the ballot box. What is that you have in your hand? "Only a ballot." Enough. It is sacred. Use it to the glory of God. The man who prays "Thy kingdom come," and votes for an old soaker, is not for Christ.

Oh! the Curse of Liquor!

BY REV. W. B. HARRELL.

From the "Pomeroy Library," we take this extract:

"Business called us to visit one of the hospitals of this city" (New York). "While waiting a few moments on the dock at the foot of East Twentieth street, we saw two men in laborers' garb, drawing a large chair mounted on low wheels. In the chair sat a poor, ragged woman. By her side trotted a little girl, thinly clad, with hair unkempt, soiled face, bare feet and legs, and puny body.

"As they came to the dock, we saw that the woman had a little bit of a baby in her arms. The men helped her to her feet. A police officer assisted her to walk into the waiting room, where she sank exhausted in a chair. The child clung to her mother, and looked in a wild, timid, scared way into the faces of those who stood there gratifying their eyes by gazing on sorrow.

"The tears followed each other fast and faster down the pale, haggard cheeks of the mother. An elderly gentleman gave the child some crackers. One of them fell on the floor. After we had picked it up for the little one, its mother said: 'What did you say to the gentleman?' 'Tant you, sir,' timidly answered the child.

"We looked into her blue eyes to see evidences of refinement there. We looked at the half starved body to be seen through its only short, thin, ragged garment, at the dusty feet and limbs of the little traveler, and thought how beautiful the child would be, could it have care, love and attention, such as we pray God all who read this will give their little ones.

"Turning to the mother, we asked, 'Is this your little girl?' 'Yes, sir.' 'She is a pretty child. How old is she?'

"'Three years old, sir.'

"'And is this little midget in your arms your baby?'

"'Yes, sir.'

"'How old is it?'

"'Four days, sir—will be four, to-night, sir.'

"'And you out of bed so soon?'

"'Yes, sir, I was obliged to come.'

"'How so? Please tell me. Perhaps I can do you or your little one some good.'

"'The doctor ordered me sent to Charity Hospital.'

"'Have you no home—no husband?'

"'Not much of a home, sir. Two small rooms, that is all, sir.'

"'But your husband, where is he?'

"'He beat me last night and tried to kill me, but the neighbors kept him from it.'

"'What for? Why did he try to kill you?'

"'He was very drunk, sir. He had been drinking, and the liquor made him mad. He tried to kill me because I could not get up and work.'

"'And this when your babe was but three days old?'

"'Yes, sir. I have been very sick. I am very sick—very weak, sir. The police took him to the Tombs, but this morning there was no one to appear against him, and they let him go. He said he would kill me, and the police physician sent me here, to be taken to the Hospital on the Island.'

"'And you love this man?'

"'O! please do not ask me! I dare not tell how I feel. My heart is quite broken—do not ask me, sir.'

"'Look up, good woman. Are you willing to go to the Hospital?'

"'Yes, sir. I am willing to go anywhere. Willing to die, only for the little girl, and this poor little thing in my arms. It is so terrible to have no home—to be beaten so. Look there! He made those marks. I knew better days once—before my husband took to drink. I could die so happy if I knew who would take care of these two little innocent children.'

"The poor woman sat there like a grape of humanity in the wine-press of grief. She was thin, poor, ragged. Her scant calico barely hid her nakedness. In a portion of an old blanket was wrapped the new born babe. It was a load—all she could hold in her arms, but nothing to the more terrible load she was carrying in her starved soul!

"A woman who is here on duty to wait upon those who need assistance, brought some bread with molasses for the little girl. Then she brought her a cup of cold water, and never was a feast more enjoyed by an epicure than was that sweetened slice by the little thing, that did not eat, so much as she devoured it.

"As we talked with the mother she wiped with her hand the tears away, and said she would take our advice, never to go back to peril her life in the presence of the husband who, in his drunken frenzy, had tried so hard to make their children orphans.

"All the afternoon—all the evening have we been thinking of this scene of sorrow. It was the result of rum. It is but one of hundreds of cases each day coming to the surface in this wretchedly governed city" (and others, too.) "where there is so much greed, avarice, covetousness; and reckless, wicked scrambling for power."

The author goes on with his reflections:

"The sight we saw to-day has given us strength. We 'cannot serve God and mammon!' We cannot hold our peace for the benefit of the political plunderers, when the victim of the saloon keeper is robbing her tattered life away. We know of no duty to that humanity that is not human.

"The officeholder has position only at the sufferance of the men who control the interest that is the cause of nine tenths of the misery, suffering and degradation now cursing this great city."

This needs emphasizing. It will suit a great many towns and cities in our land outside of the great State of New York. It is here, even in the Old North State—even here, Rum rules.

But hear the author of this extract. He talks like a man with light in his heart, and dares to think and to speak for himself:

"When others keep still we must speak out. This life is not forever. Those who are not for the poor are against them. Those who are not mindful of duty to the weak, the depraved, the helpless, the victims to man's passions and appetites are not friends of the people, no matter what their professions."

"The world is wide. The days of holding office at best are few. Life, 'over there' is eternal. The one who does the most to help, to encourage, to benefit the poor and the weak here about us, will be the fullest in power, and the most loved, perhaps, in the Land of the Real. We reverence the memory of that wonderful being who was Jesus the Christ, for 'He went about doing good.' We love our party, which professes Democracy, for to us, it implies an idea—a principle—meaning of, and for, and to, the protection of the people who need protection; and we love manhood, too, for by this sign men do conquer the fear of death (through Him who overcame death).

"But we love the worker for humanity, for he makes the world better for being here; and if the church" (to which we belong) "teaches us to think only of our own souls, it does not teach as Christ taught.

"And if our party cannot come to the front clothed in clean garments and yet in clean hands, we do not want it to come at all.

"If others will not work for the right, then we must work the harder, that some day may be made better, and that, perchance, we may kindly talk some thoughtless friend back to himself, to his family, to his manhood, to a garden away from the gutter, and to a life that protects itself from storms."

So runs it in Christian people, shall we still vote for the lesser curse? Will we close our skirts as well? Is allegiance to party stronger with us than the cause of the widow and the fatherless? Let us henceforth vote as we would pray. "Thy kingdom come." Doing this we shall begin to subdue the Drink curse.

When town commissioners sign the bonds of groggeries in the county, they will liquor in the county they protect. Let them be voted down for good, and hell to Satan. Christ is trumped under foot.

The Biblical Recorder.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 2, 1895.

J. W. BAILEY, - - - - - EDITOR.
J. C. CADDELL, AGENT AND CORRESPONDENT.

A point for Bro. Stringfield: "Educate a boy, and what do you get? An intelligent man. Educate a girl, and what do you get? An intelligent family."

DR. DURHAM, in speaking on the Orphanage recently at one of the Associations, said: "We now have, in North Carolina, seven orphanages—our Baptist Orphanage at Thomasville, the Episcopal Orphanage at Charlotte, the Presbyterian Orphanage at Barium Springs, the Quaker Orphanage near High Point, the Odd Fellows Orphanage at Goldsboro, and the two Fusion Orphanages—one in Oxford for whites, in which the Masons, the Methodists and the State fuse and support, and one near Oxford for negroes, in which the Baptist negroes and the State fuse and support."

THE Alabama Baptist is not pleased with the number of its circulation as given recently by the Texas Baptist Standard. It is one thing to have subscribers and another thing to have the money for them. The editor with nerve enough to drop from his list the names of people who attempt to read his paper and not pay for it, will be in business while the editor who believes in counting heads, so many of which are "dead heads," will have some valuable experience to hand over to his successor in the editorial sanctum.

SOME of our subscribers will fail to get their paper this week. Look at your label on last week's paper, and the explanation will be clear.

RECENTLY the RECORDER was called on to warn the Baptists of the State against a preacher who had just been ordained to the ministry, but who it was afterwards learned was unworthy of this distinction.

We doubt if our brethren always proceed in this important exercise with as much caution as they ought. Every brother dislikes in the absence of positive proof, to take a position that seems to reflect on a brother who is making his way to the fuller work of the ministry; and yet the importance of the step can fully justify the closest scrutiny on the part of a conference which is to set apart a man to the full work of the ministry.

We are of the opinion that many of our ordinations of young men are gone into prematurely—even admitting there is nothing to be objected to in the character of the applicant. It would be difficult to lay down any definite rule in this matter, and perhaps it ought not to be done; but in cases not exceptional ones, we incline to the opinion that the ordination of young men to the full of the ministry ought to be deferred until they have entered fully into their pastoral work.

WE wish to call special attention to the following taken from the Western Recorder of last week. The General Association of Kentucky has just reached the plan of work adopted by our State Convention at its session in Durham in 1887, and which has worked so satisfactorily and successfully ever since its adoption:—

"At the meeting of the General Association in Mayfield, what is known as the 'Warder plan' was adopted. Before that time the interests of the different Boards were separate. The Foreign Mission Board looked after the cause of foreign missions in Kentucky, and kept Rev. R. L. Thurman in the field to raise money. The Home Mission Board looked after the cause of home missions in the State, and had the Rev. V. E. Kortley in the field to raise money. The State Mission Board looked after the interests of State missions, and had Dr. J. W. Warder in the field. The Sunday-school and Colportage Board looked after their cause in the State, and had Dr. W. P. Harvey in the field. The various district mission boards looked after their interests, and several of them had agents in the field.

By the action at Mayfield, subsequently modified in some particulars, the interests of all these causes were combined, and Dr. Warder became corresponding secretary alike for Foreign, Home and State Missions, and of Sunday school and colportage work in the State. This was a great saving of expense, and it was believed that more money would be raised, and more work done than before. Dr. Warder's salary is no larger than when the other three men were in the field, and that salary is divided between the Foreign, Home and State Mission funds according to what wise brethren decided was an equitable proportion."

THE IDEALA ASSOCIATION.

Having had the pleasure a few days ago of attending the last meeting of this body in Nuequam county, we have thought that a brief account of the proceedings may be interesting to our readers. We have space, however, for only a bare outline of some of the features that most impressed us.

It was evident in many ways that the members of Arista church, which entertained the Association, had not only made ample provision for the material wants of man and beast, but had also been praying that the coming among them of the Association might be a spiritual blessing to the community.

For this reason, or some other, the devotional element throughout the meetings was very noticeable and most enjoyable. These exercises were not confined to the first half hour in the morning, when, in many of our religious meetings, only a handful are apt to be in the house and the rest are scattered about the grounds smoking and talking. But they were interspersed amid the reports and speeches. Again and again brief prayers were offered and single stanzas of familiar hymns sung. This had the effect of giving the meeting more of a religious character than has been apparent in some Associations which we have attended.

The moderator, who seemed to duly magnify his office, was not only prompt in calling each session to order, and judicious in his rulings, but he also showed great tact in expediting the business of the body.

The letters from the churches were not read. These statistical reports—for they are now nothing more—had been mailed to the clerk of the Association a few days before. He had carefully tabulated all the figures; and, when the Association convened, the result of his work, in the form of a printed tabular statement was placed in the hands of each delegate. This statement was the basis of very much in the subsequent discussions.

The time usually consumed in the reading of the letters, and more besides, was devoted to an informal discussion of the state of the several churches, and the general religious condition of the section embraced within the bounds of the body. As the roll of the churches was called, five minutes were given to the delegates from each one to tell in their own way how matters were going with them. This was far more stimulating to attention and more helpful spiritually than the mechanical reading of church letters could possibly be.

Each department of the work of the Convention received its fair allotment of time and attention. As the committees all had been appointed the year before, and as the chairmen had been reminded by the clerk on postal cards just previous to the meeting, the reports were all ready when they were called for.

Visiting brethren were cordially welcomed. They were not encouraged to make their speeches when they accepted seats in the body, but were gladly heard in connection with the various reports. One thing that pleased us much was that, while these brethren spoke effectively, they enjoyed no monopoly in the discussions. The members of the Association, laymen as well as ministers, expressed their views freely, and contributed no little to the interest of the meeting. But all seemed to have discovered that a speech is not necessarily good because it is long,—that quality counts more than quantity. There was no preaching at the "stand." This custom, inherited from the days when churches and preachers and sermons were few and far between, was discontinued in this Association several years ago in order that as many of the people as possible might hear and be benefited by the discussions in the Association.

Though the meeting began on Thursday, it adjourned finally on Saturday afternoon. The preachers and Sunday-school workers were, for the most part, able to be in their own churches on Sunday. And experience has convinced the brethren of that Association that it is, at least, an open question whether as much harm as good is not done by bringing together the great promiscuous gatherings on the Lord's day.

We may have something more to say, at some future time, about the Ideala Association. The hints that we may get from learning of its methods need not be less valuable because of the fact that it has no real existence.

THE true aim of missions should be kept alive in the churches. What is the true aim? may be asked. It is the planting of self-supporting, self governing and self-propagating native churches. Bear in mind that we have only to lay the foundation; converted natives by the help of God will finish the structure. The gospel is like a fire: it must be kept burning to be of use; and the native converts will find this out.

SOUTHERN ORGANIZATION OF BAPTIST YOUNG PEOPLE.

The Georgia Baptist Young People in annual convention, Rev. J. L. White presiding, at Macon week before last, set on foot a movement for a Southern Baptist Young People's Union; and with this in view, issued the following call:—

"Resolved, That it is the sense of this Young People's Convention that the cause would be greatly advanced by the organization of a Southern Baptist Young People's Union auxiliary to the Southern Baptist Convention.

"We, therefore, request the following brethren from this and other States to take this matter under consideration, and if it seems wise to them and to others with whom they may consult, to issue a call for a meeting of delegates from Baptist churches within the bounds of the Southern Baptist Convention, to assemble at a suitable place and time for the organization of a Southern Baptist Young People's Union."

Dr. B. D. Gray of Birmingham, chairman; Rev. L. O. Dawson, Tuskaloosa, and Prof. P. H. Mell of Auburn, for Alabama; Dr. J. B. Hawthorne of Atlanta, and Dr. J. B. Gambrell of Macon, and Dr. Kilpatrick for Georgia; Revs. E. J. Forrester, Greenwood, J. W. Perry, for South Carolina; Revs. J. K. Pace, Hazelhurst, and H. F. Sproles, Jackson, for Mississippi; Rev. D. I. Purser, New Orleans, and Rev. W. S. Penick, Shreveport, for Louisiana; Dr. B. H. Carroll, Waco, and Dr. A. B. Miller, Bonham, for Texas; ex Gov. J. P. Eagle, Little Rock, and ex Attorney General William E. Atkinson, Little Rock, for Arkansas; Dr. W. R. L. Smith, St. Louis, Rev. Dr. G. W. High, for Missouri; Drs. W. H. Whitsitt, President Southern Baptist Theological Seminary and Carter Helm Jones, of Louisville, for Kentucky; Dr. R. R. Acree, Knoxville, and Dr. G. A. Lofton, Nashville, for Tennessee; Dr. C. Durham, Raleigh, and Dr. T. H. Pritchard, Charlotte, for North Carolina; Dr. W. E. Hatcher, Richmond, and Dr. F. C. McConnell, Lynchburg, for Virginia; Rev. W. M. Chadoin, Dr. Malcolm McGregor, Jacksonville, for Florida.

We have no fear of this mode of procedure. It is open and above board. If the general organization of the young people is to come at all, it can come in this way more satisfactorily than in any other.

There is no doubt of the need of a more active church membership; and there is no doubt but that local societies of young people will help in this direction. Young people who early learn to study God's Word and who get interested in the past, present and future of our denominational work will make strong and useful members when they grow up. Intelligent faith is one of the great forces of the Christian religion. We have seen with our own eyes the good results of local societies of young people.

Now the difficulty is to increase the number of these societies, in order that the benefits which are now scattering may be general. In North Carolina we have tried the local organizations with a general meeting with the State Convention; and, to our disappointment, the societies have not multiplied. The friends of the young peoples' work, those who have studied and prayed over the matter, say that but little advance will be made so long as matters stand as they are. More thorough and definite organization and recognition is suggested by them as the remedy.

By taking charge of this Georgia movement in its beginning it can be kept within proper bounds, saving it from the errors of others gone before; and we can give our young people every encouragement that is asked for them.

The new plan is to organize the young people of the South auxiliary to and subject to the approval of the Southern Baptist Convention. In order that North Carolina may co-operate, it will be necessary to organize our State young people auxiliary to and subject to the approval of the State Convention.

The brethren who are leading in this effort are thoroughly in favor of absolute control of each local society by the church in which it is organized. From beginning to end we shall insist on this; and so long as it is maintained there is much good to be gained and nothing to fear.

THE effort to raise $60,000 in honor of Dr. John A. Broadus is an eminently commendable one. Fifty thousand dollars of the amount will be devoted to the Seminary, which is already his monument, and $10,000 for buying a home for his widow. It is not one time in a million that a man of Dr. Broadus' parts dies poor; but in life he gave all to God. He could have accumulated a handsome estate—that is he had the ability, but he didn't wish it.

Dr. Broadus did more for our denomination in the South than any other man, and he is worthy of anything Southern Baptists may do in his memory.

"Observe all things" embraces more than baptism and the Lord's Supper. While we must duly emphasize these ordinances, we must not forget that they are not the sum and substance of Baptist church life.

Dr. Jeffries, who is so favorably known in North Carolina, has a splendid work here. When finished, he will have one of the best houses in the South."

....Rev. R. L. Patton is assisting Rev. G. H. Church of Statesville in a protracted meeting at South End Chapel. This chapel was built by the brethren at Statesville more than a year ago. They have had a good Sunday-school from the first, and the church at Statesville has been greatly helped by the starting of this work.

....Please announce that at the last session of Tar River Association the time of meeting was changed so as not to embrace Sunday. The next session will be held with the church at Wilson, N. C., commencing Wednesday, Oct. 9th. Bro. W. V. Savage of Tarboro will preach the introductory sermon.—N. L. Shaw, Moderator.

....Editor Henry A. London of the Chatham Record was requested by the State Press Association to prepare a synopsis of the laws of North Carolina requiring or authorizing advertisements in newspapers. He has done his work well. As the lawyer of the Association he performs an important function in the newspaper brotherhood.

....Sunday was Home Mission Day at the First Baptist church, Raleigh. Several addresses were made in the Sunday school and a collection was taken. Dr. Carter gave an instructive running sketch of the Home Mission field at the regular morning service, at the close of which a collection was taken. This church will raise $250 this year for Home Missions.

....Bro. W. B. Morton gave us a pleasant half hour last week. He was just from Wake Forest where he met a committee of the alumni association of the College. Bro. Morton, the president of the association, has been active in formulating plans for more aggressive and effectual work in the association, and will give out from time to time such results as will be of interest to the friends of the College.

....Rev. John C. Hocutt of Burlington, N. C., writes Sept. 23d: "I wrote you last Monday of baptizing four, and of receiving one by letter the night before in Graham. Last night I had the privilege of baptizing four more. We expect to make some improvements on our house of worship in the near future. The outlook is promising. Last Thursday night we received two for baptism at Haw River."

....Bro. C. M. Harward sends us the following from Broadway: "Our meeting at Juniper Springs has closed. The Lord has done great things for us. About thirty professed faith in Jesus during the eight days. We received eighteen for baptism, and expect others to join. The church was greatly revived and blessed. Our church has called Bro. E. J. Harrell for its pastor, who conducted our meeting."

....One day at the Sandy Creek Association, and a few hours at the King's Mountain, and we added sixty three new names to our list. We thank the brethren for their help in this work. At a number of the Associations in October it will be impossible for our regular representative to be present. In all such cases we hope the Moderator will appoint the best man in the Association to take subscriptions for the RECORDER.

....A New York publisher announces "with authority" that the day of bad books has gone by. Perhaps it has, but we fear the majority of new novel readers will take a long time to find it out.—Richmond Christian Advocate. Recently we heard Prof. W. L. Poteat of Wake Forest College say: "When I hear a book much talked about, I at once decide not to read it." The more we think about this, and the better we know the contents of these much talked of books, the more striking appears the wisdom of the remark.

....We are glad to learn that the First Baptist church of Asheville, N. C., is erecting a nice parsonage for our friend, Dr. S. Felix. That is a good way to settle a good pastor. With a comfortable home for his family, and a loving, thoughtful people, he is not tempted to "go candidating" over the country.—Evangel. The above is very good. But better still, Dr. Felix is building this nice parsonage himself, which is the strongest evidence of his satisfaction with his new home and his church.

....Rev. A. H. Porter of Pollocksville, Sept. 26, 1895, writes: "I was assisted in a meeting last week at Fort Barnwell, Craven county, by Rev S. J. Porter of Newbern. Only two additions. Rev. J. W. Rose is with me this week at Maysville, Jones county. On Tuesday we organized the church with seven members, Rev. J. W. Rose and myself forming the presbytery. Bro. John Gilliam was ordained as deacon. This is an important point. Prospects are bright for a good, strong missionary Baptist church. The house is nearly completed, and hope the Lord will open up some way for the debt to be settled in the near future."

...."Bear ye one another's burdens."—Gal. 6: 2. "Every man shall bear his own burden."—Gal. 6: 5. There is here no contradiction. The two passages teach manliness and helpfulness—independence and interdependence—personal responsibility and a common brotherhood. Three helping each other are as good as six.

....Rev. Henry Sheets, clerk of the Liberty Association, and Bro. J. T. Valentine, clerk of the Pilot Mountain Association, have each had their minutes for 1895 printed and put into the hands of the brethren. All clerks should have their minutes printed and distributed in fifteen days after their Association adjourns.

....Rev. T. J. Hudson has left for China where he purposes working on the Gospel Mission plan of support. He expects to sail from Vancouver, B. C., Oct. 14, on the ship Empress of India. His address in China will be Gospel Mission Box, Shanghai, China. Bro. Hudson is a young man and will have ample time to get equipped for his work in Chinese. He spent two years at Wake Forest and one at our Seminary. May the Lord be with him.

....Talk about "the dead line in the ministry," which has been put at about fifty, has produced one good result. It has led the middle aged ministers to study and work so that many of them are preaching sermons, thoughtful, rich and inspiring, that no young man could, by any possibility, preach. The law prevents veal, under a certain age, from being sold. There are indications that some congregations, after having enjoyed roast beef, will not, without any law about it, long for immature veal.—The Watchman.

....I had a good meeting at Bethel church which closed on the third Sunday. Fourteen were added to the church. Brethren Riley Monds and Josiah Elliott helped me. We closed a great meeting at Warwick church on the fourth Sunday. Sixty three were added. Rev. C. S. Blackwell and Rev. Riley Monds helped me there. The Lord has wonderfully blessed my churches this year. The Master's cause seems to be moving forward in the old Chowan Association. The Lord be praised for his goodness. —A. W. Burfoot, Hertford, N. C., Sept 24.

....Rev. E. A. Poe writes (Sept. 3) from Siler City: "Bro. C. T. Edwards and I commenced a meeting of days with the Love's Creek church on the fourth Sabbath in August, and the meeting is still going on. About forty-eight converts up to the present, Sept. 3rd, and the interest is unabated; if any difference, the work is growing in interest. The oldest citizens say that it is the greatest manifestation of the Spirit among the people generally that has occurred since the year 1846. There are about twenty inquirers at the altar; and as one is enabled to believe and confess Christ, others come forward and fill the vacancy. The reviving influence of God's Spirit seems to have taken a deep hold upon Christians throughout this entire community, and they have gone to work with a hearty good will. Rev. James R. Edwards of Hamilton, New York, was with us one day and preached two fine sermons. For this great victory over sin and wickedness, let God have all the praise."

....We thank Rev. J. A. Campbell for the following notes: "The continued blessings of the Lord on my churches move me to write again. This time it is Friendship church, Harnett county. Last Sunday (Sept. 22d) the meeting closed, thirty one having been added to the church—two by restoration, and twenty-nine by baptism. Bro. Brooks preached one sermon, my father five, and the writer ten. I have baptized fifty-five in the last two weeks.——Bro. Brooks seems well pleased with his school at Bunn's Level, and the people are delighted with him. New students continue to arrive. Several new ones this week—two from Halifax county, Rev. W. R. Cullom's brothers. Our teacher of Business Course, Prof. J. S. Pearson, graduated with distinction last week at the Bryant & Stratton Business College, Baltimore, and has entered upon his work this week. I am sure we can give as good a Business Course now as any school in this State. We now have fifty boarders—eleven counties represented. We now have six boys at Wake Forest, one of whom expects to go to the foreign field."

....Rev. J. L. Shinn, Morganton, has been blessed in his work among his churches lately. He sends the following account of meetings with his churches: "My meetings closed closed to day (Sept. 21) on my field of work. We have had a gracious outpouring of the Spirit all along the line. Mt. Home meeting began on Saturday before the first Sunday in August. Church greatly revived; no accessions; ran one week. Eight were baptized at the close of the meeting. The Lord was with us. The church is in good shape. We then moved to Hopewell, and the Lord went with us, and gave us a good meeting. One was restored, one was received by letter, and five were baptized. Bro. A. W. Setzer of Wake Forest was with me from the opening of the Mt. Home to Friday of the Hopewell meeting. He did all the preaching, and did it well. May God ever bless this dear brother. Everybody fell in love with Bro. Setzer, and we hope he will come to see us. From Hopewell we we went to Pleasant Hill. Bros. J. S. Gwaltney and J. W. Mull were with me here, and did good work. Bro. W. F. Hall stopped with us two days. One was restored, and two were received for baptism. Church was revived. The Master had blessed my work this year, for which we praise his holy name. I go to-morrow to help Bro. Gwaltney in a meeting at Beech[illegible]

....A magnificent building is now being erected in Germantown, Pa., which will be known as the George Nugent Home for aged Baptist ministers. Mr. George Nugent died about six years ago, and his will provided that about $1,000,000 be set aside for the endowment and establishment of a home for aged Baptists. The building will cost about $60,000, and will be completed during this year.

....Rev. A. D. Hunter writes Sept. 27th: "We are in the midst of a great meeting with the Wakefield church. Bro. G. M. Duke is with me, but has to go to another place to begin a meeting soon. We shall miss him. Truly he is a great preacher. May Zion continue to prosper." Bro. J. H. Smith, who has been assisting in the singing at this meeting, tells us they had a great day Sunday, fifteen being baptized.

....Shaw University opens this week. During vacation extensive improvements have been made. President Meserve has returned from his vacation spent in Maine, and he tells us that he is looking forward to an increase of both endowment and students. We are especially glad to note that he is of the opinion that the negro is in greater need of manual and industrial training than of any other branch of education.

....There is a general impression that the trustees of Colby University have acted with unusual insight of character and perception of the needs of the college in selecting Professor Nathaniel Butler, of Chicago, to their presidency. Professor Butler has developed in his work at Chicago just those administrative and scholarly qualities which Colby needs in a president who is to utilize fully her present opportunity.—The Watchman.

....Bro. D. E. Modlin writes from Windsor: "Bro. Boone has left for Thomasville. He and his 'better half' have very much endeared themselves to us during their sojourn in our midst. He is an allright, four-square man. We give him up just because there is nothing else we can do. They have been a power for good, and have made themselves felt in our midst. May heaven's richest benedictions abide with them. We have called Rev. T. H. Piemmons, a former North Carolina boy, but now of Louisville, Ky., to succeed Bro. Boone."

....President Winston made the following announcement Sept. 27: "The total enrollment at the University is 506 as follows: Graduates, 8; seniors, 40; juniors, 50; sophomores, 67; freshmen, 134; medical, 27; law, 43; teachers in summer school, 140; total, 515; counted twice 9; actual total, 506." The number of students in the University is 296. It is noticeable that the number of students in the preparatory department (or sub-freah, as it is called) is included in the number under head of "freshmen;" and so the actual number of students has to be guessed at.

....Notwithstanding that the meetings at the tent have continued for three weeks, Dr. Pritchard and Mr. Pruett say the interest is so great they cannot stop. Last night there seemed to be a development of fresh interest. Many people stayed for the after-meeting, and the number of inquirers was large. About a dozen confessed Christ at the close of the service. Dr. Pritchard will attend the Union Meeting at Matthews to day and to morrow, so there will be no afternoon service at the tent, but preaching may be expected to night and to-morrow night.—Charlotte Observer, Sept. 27.

....The protracted meeting at Meadow Branch began on Saturday before the second Sunday in August and continued till the following Friday. During these days, our pastor Dr. J. B. Richardson, did some of the most powerful preaching we have ever heard. You know that he always preaches with power, but during this meeting, in the selection and linking of his themes, and in his appeals, both to saint and sinner, he seemed to be at his very best. During the meeting other ministers dropped in and rendered earnest service. As an immediate result, five were baptized Friday morning, and after service Friday evening, two others, and two more are to be baptized at our next meeting. We hope others will follow soon. The Union Association meets with this church Thursday before the second Sunday in October. We hope to have a good session.—H. E. Coppie, Rock Rest, N. C.

The Young People's Convention.

Dear Recorder:—Our Young People's Convention meets in Greensboro, Dec. 4, 1895, at 7:30 p. m.

The meeting—what of it?

It is to be held by order of the Baptist State Convention, and should be a success. We would be sorry to see any part of our Convention work fail. It is a thing in which the people are more or less interested.

The last meeting solved some things. I expect the coming one will do more. Let the churches that have young people's societies, and churches that have not, send their young people. When the churches appoint delegates, let them appoint at least one young man. When the woman's missionary societies appoint their delegates, let them appoint one young lady.

See to it that the delegates are at the opening meeting Wednesday night.

The part of the program devoted to education will be captivating. Some of our brightest minds are working for us. Education is one of the great questions with Baptists to day; let our churches see that their young people get the benefit of this meeting. The education of Baptist young people under Baptist influence should be emphasized by us.

The educated know how to organize "knowledge into faculty," and convert mind into useful arts. He has at hand and ready for use all weapons for warfare, and engines for service of the just—he has the advantage. R. VAN DEVENTER.

Diez of Cuba to Dr. Tichenor.

Dr. I. T. Tichenor, Dear Doctor:—Nevertheless the bad condition of the Island on account of the war, our churches, stations and schools are progressing. Our meetings are always crowded, and the same enthusiasm prevail.

The church has agreed to send another committee of the Red Cross to the field, and I was appointed myself to go through the principal section of the country and investigate about it. I went to the city of Sagua, St. Domingo, and other town and organize there with a doctor, one station in each place, three in number. The station itself put the mens and pay them, and we as a church provide them with medicine and instruments for the operation. This, I think, is a noble christian work, not only attend and comfort the present struggle, but give sympathy to our own Baptist churches. In Cuba the Baptists are always in the field.

In going to Sagua our train travel with 300 soldiers in the front cars, and when the train stop in a little station the insurgents was well armed, all on horseback, the commander of our train order to leave the place immediately for the sake of the passengers. The insurgents fire on the train for nearly a mile—they was place in both sides of the road and divided themselves in small groups all along the road. The troops answered the fire. You may imagine the panic among the ladies and men that was on board. Your humble servant have, as we said, "the heart between the teeth," such was the excitement; and I don't feel myself sure enough until I laid down on the car's floor, because the bullets fly through the windows like a hail stone's storm.

When the train runs three or four miles and no more noise from the fight was hear, I commence to rise up my head, first look around the face of the passengers, I see they was all right except some nervous excitement—my service as a doctor was not need. I took my seat and took a long breath, allowing my lungs to be filled with the pure oxygen of the country.

I make up my mind not to travel any more on the circumstances, but the Lord need us in this work, and I have ready my satchel to leave Havana for Santa Chara and Sagua again Monday morning, and in the name of the Lord I go. He will take care of me and help me in this new organization of His work.

This work is very important for our church, give us sympathy and influence. We are neutral, and I do not mind what will be the end of this effort, because we do good to both side. Pray for this new work, and please pray for me.

My program will be Sagua, Santa Clara and return here Wednesday morning, and go to Atlanta on this day. Will speak more freely to you. Goodbye. DIAZ.

Rev. J. Emmet Yates Ordained.

At the request of Mount Pisgah Baptist church, Revs. Geo. J. Dowell and W. S. Olive met at Bro. J. D. Yates' on Saturday night, and after a thorough examination of Rev. J. Emmet Yates as to his Christian experience, call to the ministry, soundness in the faith of Bible doctrines as held by our denomination, and finding him thoroughly orthodox, qualified and ripe for ordination, did proceed on Sunday morning with the same. Bro. Dowell, the Chairman, preached a sound and practical discourse upon the duty and reward of the Christian minister, which was most timely and well received. Bro. Olive offered the ordaining prayer. Bro. Dowell then delivered the charge; Bro. Olive presented the Bible; afterward Bro. Yates, the candidate, pronounced the benediction.

Mt. Pisgah church has been immortalized by sending out Matthew T. Yates the great Missionary to China. May she be as fortunate in sending out this gifted son who having taken the bright course at our beloved college now gives this life to the preaching of the gospel. I enjoyed my visit to Mt. Pisgah and it was a great pleasure to spend the night with such good people as Brother and Sister Yates, and to enjoy the society of Rev. W. S. Olive, pastor of Mt. Pisgah church, so much beloved, and of Rev. J. E. Yates, the Principal of Aubarn High School of Wake county. W. J. D.

Durham, Sept. 24, 1895.

Letter from Prof. Sampey Concerning the Broadus Memorial.

At their meeting in Washington, May 10, 1895, the Trustees of the Seminary decided to raise $60.000 as a Broadus Memorial Fund—$10.000 for the purchase of a home for the family of Dr. Broadus, and $50,000 for the endowment of the Seminary Library.

THE BROADUS HOME.

The many personal friends of our departed leader will be grateful for an opportunity to show to his family their appreciation of the devotion and self sacrifice of Dr. Broadus in the cause of Christian education. The greater part of the $10 000 has already been paid into the treasury by friends in Louisville. No doubt this announcement will fall into the hands of many who will be glad to add their gifts to those already received.

THE BROADUS MEMORIAL LIBRARY ENDOWMENT.

The Seminary has a beautiful and commodious library building, the gift of Mrs. J. Lawrence Smith, in memory of two nephews and neices. This handsome fire proof building is admirably adapted to the purpose of a public library. The Seminary also has the nucleus for a great collection of books and pamphlets, but only one third of the space in the book room is filled. Empty shelves capable of holding 40 000 volumes cry aloud for a substantial endowment. Until this effort was undertaken, the Seminary had only a hundred dollars of library endowment. Drs. Boyce and Manly left to the Seminary choice collections of valuable books and other friends have also made donations; but there is urgent need of an endowment for the support of the library. The small sum annually voted for the purchase of new books is drawn from the income of the general endowment, a sum which is quite too small to meet our necessary expenses.

SOUTHERN BAPTISTS NEED A LARGER REFERENCE LIBRARY.

(1) For the benefit of Baptist authors. Already the Seminary is being visited by persons who wish to make a special research in the library. There is urgent need for at least one large reference library which will be accessible to all Baptist students and authors. The Librarian gladly welcomes all our ministers and laymen to the privileges of the Seminary Library where many rare and costly books are to be found.

(2) The professors in the Seminary must by all means have access to an extensive collection of books, if they would keep abreast of the times. The teaching in the Seminary will be greatly strengthened by the presence of a great library.

(3) The students also cannot well pursue their studies without access to a good reference library. Nearly 300 young preachers are constantly using our books.

APPROPRIATENESS OF THE MEMORIAL.

Broadus and books! Was he not our ripest scholar? From youth to old age he was ever a lover of good books, a patient and diligent student of the world's best literature. During the last year of his life, Dr. Broadus was devising plans for the endowment of the Seminary Library, so that this Memorial is but the completion of his unfinished task. He was profoundly sensible of the value of a good library.

A CONDITIONAL GIFT.

Mr. Joshua Levering of Baltimore, President of the Board of Trustees of the Seminary, promises to give $5 000 on condition that the entire amount for the endowment ($50,000) is raised in cash and good subscriptions before Jan. 1, 1896. The time is short, but the friends of Dr. Broadus and the Seminary can raise it if an earnest and concerted effort is made. A Southern friend of the Seminary, whose name cannot at present be given, sent his check for $5,000, and several others have given $1,000 or $500 each.

AMOUNT TO BE RAISED.

In order to secure this large conditional gift and complete the Memorial promptly, we must raise $35,000 in a little over three months. Let the friends of higher education among Baptists help as liberally as possible. Some can give large amounts; all can give something.

The undersigned was asked by the Board to undertake this work in connection with President Wm. H. Whitsitt. Send money or subscriptions to either of us or to any other member of the Faculty. Surely he gives twice who gives promptly.

JOHN R. SAMPEY.

A Visit to Wake Forest.

I spent one day at Wake Forest this week. I sincerely wish that every Baptist in North Carolina could visit Wake Forest College. It occurs to me that we might have a great gathering there at the opening of the next session. Let the Sunday schools on the various lines in reach of the College run excursions, and let us all spend the opening day in hearing representative men from the faculty, the trustees and friends of the College tell about the College—its eventful history, its present workings, its plans and purposes for the future. Would there not be great possibilities in such a gathering!

Three years ago I left Wake Forest. There has been but little change in the general appearance. The College buildings, the campus and the town all look as familiar to me as my mother's face. Not so with regard to the students; with a few exceptions they were all strangers. How many times do these professors reproduce themselves over and over again in their students!

I saw and heard many things which were very gratifying to me, and ought to be to every one who loves our College. I can't mention all, but will suggest only a few:

(1) The number of students. Two hundred and thirty-three were enrolled, with about a dozen others in sight to come in during the next few days. There are more students at Wake Forest now than at any one time in its history. Three will, no doubt, be added there during the fall term. This means a great deal at this time.

(2) The character of the students. They are not children, nor are they doing child's work. The number in the preparatory classes is unusually small. The professors are insisting that the academies shall keep the boys until they are prepared for college.

(3) Enthusiasm in the work. Each professor is thoroughly in love with his work, and is determined to make his department the very best of its kind. Nor are the professors alone in their enthusiasm. I talked with a number of representative students, and they seem determined to make the very best of their splendid opportunities. What can hold an institution back when the hearts of faculty and students, of alumni and friends by the thousand are throbbing with love and sincere devotion for its plans and purposes.

(4) Another thing which is especially gratifying is the attention given to Bible study. I have a profound conviction that our College ought to teach the Bible to every student that enters its walls. The trustees have not yet seen their way clear to introduce this. I am sure they are doing all they can with the means at their disposal. But while there is no school of the Bible, there are a number of Bible bands, with competent leaders, which meet weekly for Bible study. All the bands meet together about once a month for mutual consultation and to hear a lecture by some member of the faculty or other Bible scholar. This work is telling for itself in the lives and conduct of the students. I don't know that it was altogether due to this Bible study, but I am sure I never saw before such reverent listening to the Word as it was read in the chapel exercises Thursday morning.

(5) The interest manifested in our Seminary at Louisville is deeper and more pronounced than I ever saw it before. Being en route for the Seminary, I let the young preachers know that I would be glad to see any of them who might wish to talk with me about the work there. So many were interested that we had to have a special meeting in the chapel. I suppose there were at least seventy five who came in and listened to me attentively for a half hour as I told them of the importance of theological education and of the advantages in going to our own Seminary. I shall be very much disappointed if we do not have a large number at Louisville from Wake Forest next year; and from what I saw in the faces of those men, I shall be very much disappointed if the next few years does not show us a very much stronger and more efficient ministry among the churches of our State.

I wish I could mention other things—Dr. Gwaltney's noble work, Brother Chappell's great work in the Wake Forest Academy—but my letter is already too long. I wanted to speak of some things which are needed at Wake Forest, but will have to defer that to another time.

Dr. Hatcher is expected to hold a meeting at the College soon. Let us all pray earnestly for the power and blessing of God in this meeting. W. B. CULLOM.

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 21, 1895.

At Central Falls.

It seems to have been my lot to be put in hard places and fields where there is plenty of hard work to do. This place comes under that head. I am preaching here as missionary under our Board for the bountiful sum of twenty five dollars per year, which more than takes up half my time at Franklinsville. This week I am holding a series of meetings in the M. E. church, as we have no house of worship. We began our meeting by baptizing six on Sunday evening last. It was very solemn and impressive in the presence of a large number of people. "Where he leads I will follow" was said just before we entered the water, which was beautiful and appropriate for the occasion. The audience lined the hill under the deep overhanging shade which was somewhat in the form of an amphitheatre, while the waters of Deep river flowed away at our feet.

God seems to favor the Baptists in providing so bountifully for the ordinance of baptism and so many beautiful places. There is a great opening in the territory of the new Piedmont Association for mission work. With proper leadership and management, it is one of the finest territories in the State for the Baptists.

The difficulties here lie in the fact that we have no house of worship and the woods have been burnt over with all sorts of "lams," and as a result there is an apathy and indifference apparently on the part of the people to religious work. A great many are ignorant, and those who are better informed are many of them careless and indifferent. It will require a great deal of patient, persistent hard work to turn the tide.

Bro. James Jordan and his excellent wife live here, and they are a whole team in themselves. Two of their bright children were among the number baptized on Sunday. He has a son who feels called to preach and is trying to prepare himself for college. I sympathize with him as I see him working hard here in the factory.

It sends a thrill of joy throughout the State among the Baptists at the gratifying opening of Wake Forest College.

Yours for the Master,

S. F. COLLINS.

Good Work in Rev. O. T. Edwards' Field.

Dear Recorder:—I want to say a few things about what I saw and heard among the churches of the old Sandy Creek Association.

I boarded the train at Connelly Springs on August 1st and reached Siler City at about 12 o'clock, and found a large gathering of the old soldiers of Chatham county comfortably seated under an arbor near the Thompson school building, being addressed by Col. Burgwyn. We had gone to that section at the solicitation of Rev. O. T. Edwards, to assist him in protracted meetings at his four churches.

We commenced the first meeting at Brush Creek, Saturday, August 3d, and continued nine days, closing on Sunday, the 11th. There were twenty four professions; twenty-two were baptized and the church was greatly strengthened. Rev. James R Edwards of Colgate College, Hamilton, New York, was with us a part of the time and preached several able sermons.

The next week the two Edwards brothers held a meeting at Moon's Chapel church. There were eight conversions, and the church much revived.

I went from Brush Creek to New Salem, and assisted Rev. L R D xon in a meeting at that point three days. There were three approved for baptism.

We again joined Rev. O. T. Edwards in a meeting at Bear Creek, beginning the third Sunday, the 18th, and closing on the fourth, the 25th. We had large attendance from the first, and the Word was attended with the Spirit, and the church seemed to be greatly interested. There were about forty penitents and several conversions. The pastor thought it advisable to defer baptism until his next regular appointment. Rev. J. R. Edwards was with us two days of the meeting, and did some fine preaching. Rev. S. Gilmore was present all the time, and rendered valuable service, preaching one most excellent soul-stirring sermon. Bear Creek is a strong church and strongly attached to the pastor.

After closing the meeting at Bear Creek, we went to Love's Creek and commenced a meeting on the fourth Sunday, the 25th, and continued twelve days. The meeting in many respects was one of the greatest revivals the writer ever witnessed. Many of the oldest citizens of the neighborhood say that there had not been such a wonderful outpouring of the Spirit upon the church and surrounding country generally since the year 1846.

About eleven other churches were represented during the meeting by persons who took a deep interest in the work and to a great extent taking an active part in the services. The work seemed to be deeply wrought in the hearts of all Christians present without regard to denominational connections. The congregations were large every day and the interest of the meeting was as good the last day as at any time during its continuance. About sixty confessed Christ. Twenty two were baptized on the last day of the meeting, with several others awaiting baptism on the following Sunday evening at 4 o'clock. We can truly say as did the Psalmist, "The Lord hath done great things for us, whereof we are glad." Each of the four churches under the pastoral care of Rev. O. T. Edwards may well adopt the language of the above Scripture. We would say to all the brethren of these four churches, let us live nearer the Lord than we have done in the past, and God will abundantly bless us in our efforts to save souls. E. A. Poe.

Revival Meetings in Alexander County.

Dear Recorder:—The good brethren in the Alexander County Association are so modest they forbear to write about what the Lord is doing in their midst.

At Concord the pastor, Rev. W. J. Bumgarner was assisted by Rev. J. F. Davis of Watauga county, in August, in a seven days' meeting. Four professed faith in Christ and three united with the church. Bro. Bumgarner has been pastor of this church a dozen or more years. The church was almost extinct when he began work under the direction of the State Mission Board. Now the membership is about one hundred and they have built a good house of worship.

At Little River Rev. C. C. Pool was assisted by Rev. W. J. Bumgarner four weeks and nine were added to the church.

At Taree Fork church Rev. L. P. Gwaltney was assisted by brethren W. J. Bumgarner, C. C. Pool and D W. Pool in a meeting of six days, which resulted in nine conversions and six additions.

At Mt. Olive Rev. W. J. Bumgarner was aided by the writer in a meeting of a week, which resulted in nine additions. This was the first church to extend me a call as pastor. Bro. L P. Gwaltney and myself were called jointly to this and Zion Hill in Wilkes county. We served these churches jointly for about six months, when I resigned at Mt Olive and he at Zion Hill.

At Antioch Rev. J. M. Shaver was assisted by Rev. J. P. Gwaltney, but I have not heard results.

At Bethel Rev. D W. Pool has been aided by Rev. W. J. Hopkins, but I am not advised as to results.

These Alexander brethren are good preachers, and are doing a good work for the Lord, but they ought to sometimes write the Recorder of their work. It is a real pleasure to hear from the brethren occasionally all over the State. That is one of the things that makes the Recorder so dear to many of us.

Bro. Bumgarner is a busy man. He serves five churches, keeps a postoffice, runs a farm and a store, and owns an interest in a good mill, but his excellent wife looks efficiently after the interest of the store, farm and postoffice. He is a good pastor, and his churches are prospering.

I. W. Thomas.

Baptist Growth in the Piedmont Section.

Dear Recorder:—Your columns are always filled with good news from every part of the State, and this news is peculiarly refreshing to the Baptists in the old Piedmont section. We believe that ours is the finest section in all North Carolina. The prices of cotton and tobacco do not affect our section as in many others, because it is really a grain and stock-raising country. Almost anything is more plentiful than Baptists, even money; but this can't possibly be the case much longer, for they have been, and are being, planted in every direction; and you know it does not make much difference so far as final results are concerned. The Baptists are a wonderful people, and the world has always had them since the days of John's preaching in the wilderness, and they will continue in the world till the end of time. In their early history, and even down to the age of our grand sires, prison walls, sword and fire have all been employed for their destruction, but without avail. Never till the universe is torn from its foundation can that people, who hold fast to the faith once delivered to the saints, be demolished. With the New Testament for our only creed and the Holy Spirit for our teacher, we must cover the face of the whole earth. It is beginning to dawn upon us even in this country where we have been scarcely known until recent years. Some of our young men can remember when there was not more than one or two Baptist churches in all this part of the State; but now there is hardly a town or village where we are not represented, either by an organized church or a few faithful ones who are waiting for that certain and happy day.

Possibly less than a score of years ago the Baptists were hardly known in Salisbury. Occasionally some passing brother would stop and preach the gospel as we believe it. During all these years the Lord had the seed of the church here, and as the spring time and showers came, the fruit began to be manifest. In the beginning of these few years we were without organization or a dollar's worth of church property. Truly, we had no resting place; but with the spirit of faithful Joshua and Caleb, a sister, who has already gone to her reward, said in her great heart of love, "We are well able," and her faith was not disappointed, and to day with spiritual vision she sees much of the fruits of her prayers and toils. It is evident that if any people have cause for rejoicing, we are the ones.

From the little beginning a few years ago where some said we could not live, we are what we are. Elias Dodson once said, "If any say that the Baptists cannot live in Salisbury, they do 'err, not knowing the Scriptures'" We now have a church membership of 176, and 171 of these go down into their pockets for the support of the church and its objects. If there is another church in the State of equal or larger membership that comes nearer utilizing every member for its support, we want to rejoice with it.

God has given us a handsome and comfortable house of worship, a parsonage that is hardly second to any in the State for comfort and convenience, and all the land that we will ever need in this particular place, and within two blocks of the center of our town of about 6,000 inhabitants. I am thoroughly convinced that Bro. Dodson knew whereof he spoke.

I did not intend to give such a history of the Baptists in Salisbury and the Piedmont section," but have only said what is true. Yet we are a weak people at this place; but our strength and our hope is in the Lord. We have had forty additions to our church this year. With the most thoroughly organized financial system we have ever had, and one of the most delightful and profitable sessions of our Association to inspire us, we go forward at the command of our great leader, Christ Jesus, the captain of the Lord's host. N. B. Jones.

From the Atlantic Association.

Dear Recorder:—I am en route to a point near Teachey's to hold a meeting of eight or ten days. The good people of that community are somewhat remarkable for having protracted meetings. They have combined several church congregations together at a central point, built a large frame building, which they call "The Tabernacle," and all these churches come together and have one large and good meeting once a year. This writer has conducted the services there every year since the erection of the building, three years ago, with good results.

We have preached to 1 500 to 2,000 people there, and baptized about sixty converts. They have made a great deal of preparation this year, and have been holding services for about a week now.

Our Morehead City work is doing about as well as we could ask. Our church is fully active to everything that is to advance the Lord's cause.

Our High School is moving off better than we expected it could under the circumstances. We have had a tide of opposition from the very first, but we "keep moving." The school opened last week with eighty-six students, and to day (Monday) I suppose there were one hundred. The prospect is good for more to come yet.

We have three good teachers, and the fourth one will probably be hired this week. We have room for five hundred students, and hope to have them in less than two years. Our location is charming—in short, it is the most desirable place to attend a high school in our knowledge.

Our Atlantic Association is exciting interest now, and we are looking forward to it with much interest. It meets with Bro. Spilman's church in Kinston on Tuesday after the second Sunday in October. Reduced rates will be secured over the A & N C Railroad between Goldsboro and Morehead City.

There is much important business to be looked after at this meeting, and we will have no time to waste, and things will not "drag." Let all of the churches in the Atlantic be represented on the first and last days, and the Lord's will be done.

The Report.

Two months only until the close of the Conventional report. Two months only, and our Third Quarterly Report, $547.42 below that of the previous quarter! It is true this is the report of the dreaded summer quarter, but the amount reported is nevertheless far below what it should be. But it is past. What remains? To go forward with the firm determination of repairing the lack of the past quarter by the present; to lift the general report up to that of second quarter ($1,196 89), and to complete the whole of the extra amount of the Yates Memorial. Let each Society do its best, gather in all its regular contributions and interest all within its reach in the Memorial. Do not waste time in wondering what the other Societies will do, but go to work and raise the whole of these large sums. See that your Society does its best. That is the field of your responsibility. If your Society has fallen behind, if it is not reported, if its meetings have not been held regularly, if it has lacked your presence, if it has lacked your influence, some one is responsible. Who?

"Young Women and Missions"

Has not the Master need of these, young woman? Is there not work for thee to do, instead of worshiping at the shrine of society as its devotee? We say, who does that? Why numbers, who are not aware of it.

Why has God bestowed on us so many gifts and blessings, if not to use them for him? We owe our best to God to work for the advancement of his kingdom. Mission work is needing our prayers, time and talent. Were we to enter into mission work with the same enthusiasm that worldly pleasures are entered into, would not the spirit be caught by those around us and be spread far and near by the electricity of the soul?

God has intended us to be missionaries, not all for the same mission: each has his own mission in life. Having our hearts filled with love to God and a Christian spirit, He would mark out the work intended for each. This spirit should be carried into our social life, and is it impossible for it to catch that spirit? No, it is possible. We cannot fathom the depth of the influence we might exert for the advancement of God's kingdom.

"Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven." A wider field is opened than ever before: all missions are calling for help. Will we not let our "prayers and alms come up for a memorial before God"? Let all, then, be up and doing, with a heart for any work, praying and laboring for the coming of Christ's kingdom.

A YOUNG WOMAN.

Bring in the Cocoanuts.

It was twenty years ago. We had recently located in the heathen town of Madanapalle, India, to commence missionary work there.

The time for the annual drawing of the great idol car through the streets of the town and by the banks of the river had come. Multitudes of votaries from all the villages around, as well as from every street of the town, had assembled before the car. Great rope cables were attached. Hundreds caught hold of the ropes. Up went the shout, "Hari! Hari! Hayi! Sayam!" "Vishnu! Vishnu! Joy and victory!" "Now pull," shouted the priest, and off went the three storied car majestically through the streets, amid the joyous shouts of the thousands of spectators. On they followed it to the river bank. Libations were brought and poured over the car, and the multitudinous ceremonies performed.

Again, with similar shouts, they began the progress around by different streets, back to the great temple before which the car always reposed for the year. Half way back, and the car came to a stand. "Pull," shouted the priests. Pull they did. The ropes snapped with the strain. All the wheels were examined; no stones were in the way; everything seemed right. The ropes were tied and new ones added. More votaries caught the ropes. "All pull!" shouted the priests. All bent to the effort. It would not move.

A pallor came over the crowd. "The god is angry and will not let his chariot move," was whispered along the streets. A feeling of dread shivered through the multitude. 'Yes," shouted the chief from the car, "the god is angry. He will not move unless you propitiate him. Run, all of you, and bring cocoanuts and break over the wheels; and as the fragrant cocoanut milk runs down over the wheels the god will accept the libation, and graciously allow his chariot to move on again. Run, and each bring a cocoanut. Run!"

Men and boys ran for the cocoanuts; the residents to their houses, the villagers to the bazaars to buy, or to their friends' houses to borrow. Each came back with his cocoanut, and broke it over one of the wheels. The cocoanut milk ran along the streets. "Hayi! Jayam!" shouted the priests. "The god is now propitious." "Hayi! Jayam!" "Joy! Victory!" shouted the multitude. "Now, pull ALL!" shouted the priests. The people took heart; dread passed away, confidence came. They seized the ropes, and, with a shout that resounded in the hills a mile away, they gave a pull. Off went the car, and soon, with singing and dancing, they had it back in its wonted place. And as the crowd scattered to their village homes, the news ran through the country: "The car got set; they could not move it a finger breadth; but each man bought a cocoanut and broke and then on it went with a rush to the temple."

I could not help recalling this incident the other night as I read the financial statement of the shortage in the receipts into the mission treasury the last few months.

God's chariot is delayed. His chariot of salvation had started in its course in towns of India, and China, and Japan, etc, through the agency of our Board. Have the people lost heart, that it stands still? Has discouragement come upon us?

Run for the cocoanuts. Let each man and boy, let each woman and each child, bring what would be to them the equivalent in value of a cocoanut to the poor Hindu as an offering no the Lord, and the chariot will move joyously on.

Had one rich Hindu given a thousand cocoanuts to break over the wheels of the idol car, and the multitude not given any, the effect would not have been at all the same. Each one of the throng made an offering. Each one felt that he had a share in it. Each one took courage. Each one shouted. Each one pulled, and on went the car.

The missionary chariot halts. Many villages are pleading for a missionary or a native preacher. Young men and women are offering to go out to the different missions. Young converts ask to be trained to be preachers to their kindred. Every man tells our Board of onward steps that should be taken.

Our harvests have been plentiful. Let us put God to the proof. "Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing that there shall not be room enough to receive it."

Let the cocoanuts come. Who brings the first? What church sends one for every man, woman and child on its roll? Who sends the cooley load? Who the elephant load? Who the ship load? Please answer soon.—The Christian Intelligencer.

TWO BOOKS ABOUT CHINA.

Timeliness is, in this day when interest in anything is fleeting at best, half the battle in making success of a book. So one is not surprised to find on his table two fresh books on China just at this stage of affairs. One is a biography,* and unusually entertaining at that; the other is a deep study of China,† the people and the imperial government. The biography of Li Hung Chang, who for months has been the most talked of man alive (mostly in a jocular way, however, as the average man knows scarcely more of him than his name and his position). "Li," as he is spoken of in the biography, is the foremost man of his race. He has been placed by some with Gladstone, Bismarck and Pope Leo; but this company is far above him, as we now learn. Indeed it appears that Li is nothing more than an unusually successful man—successful, that is to say, from a selfish standpoint,—but a woful failure as a servant of his people. He is one of the richest men in the world, and the most powerful subject in the most populous nation; but so far as achievements for his people are concerned, his account is blank. His biographer says he is deceitful—a patriot before the public, but a selfish schemer behind the scenes, a fine maker of moral precepts, but an immoral man; brave when he is in power, but a coward when odds are even. "Li did not hesitate to violate faith with the enemy and also with his coadjutor Gordon. Li cringed and promised and flattered when in danger, and bullied and browbeat and lied when the danger passed." He is willing to make use of the mechanical improvements of Western civilization; but he clings to the idea that we are barbarians, and despises our religion as thoroughly as ever. Nevertheless he is China's foremost subject. We had thought more highly of him until this biography came out, which is by an authority on things Chinese; but it leaves us sadly disappointed in the man and decidedly less hopeful of his countrymen.

The study of China is a missionary's work, "Forty Years in China or China in Transition." Now as a general thing we know all about missionaries' books, and so does the reader. But take up this one with the purpose of skimming over it through a sense of duty, and you will change your mind and get to studying, or miss a treat. Dr. Graves says not a word of himself, there is no room for local reminiscence or passing incidents. He is putting down long thought on observations of a nation and a people. With remarkable insight he has marked the currents of political, social and religious life in China, weighed with keen precision the forces for good and bad, and with zealous hope is looking forward to a better day. He gives one a clear idea of Chinese politics, especially of the mode of government. Being a missionary, he has naturally made a long study of the Chinese moral code; and he says they have a good code, but a poor way of sticking to it. There is the touch of the Christian scholar all the way through the pages, and they are so frank and evidently truthful and hopeful that one feels a quick sympathy for the author and a brighter hope for the benighted empire as he goes through them.

This book will be handed down as the first clear treatise on China as a government and a people, and the clearness and utter impartiality of it will win for it a respect among ethnic students which such works seldom get. There is no pious rant or wild beating of the air, yet the book is thoroughly religious and will intensify the missionary spirit of any reader.

Letter from Rev. M. M. Landrum.

Dear Recorder:—I though I would drop you a few lines as to my work in this part of the field; but let me express my appreciation of the RECORDER in the defence of the faith as we hold it. In this day of "new things," I seem it of the greatest importance that our State organ give no uncertain note as to the maintenance of the "old, old story" of the precious "old gospel" in Christ Jesus our Lord. Depend on it, you will be upheld by our God, and the prayer of all good, faithful Baptists in your earnest and bold defence of these old truths in Christ.

The outlook of the work in this place is not what I would desire, but we are at peace, and are holding our own, Sunday-school well attended and seemingly interesting to all, the prayer meeting very well attended weekly, but the attendance on church service is not attended as I would like. Why it is that professing Christians, who by their profession claim to love the cause of Christ more than all things else, can be so punctual as to matters of secular life, and let frivolous excuses keep them from their church on Sunday, is a question I would like for you or some one else to answer. It looks as if some plan had to be devised during the week as an excuse to get away from their church on Sunday, such as visiting, or something else. I fear the hearts of such people are not right; I know the life actions are not. We have some such here, and it is very discouraging to the heart of the pastor. But amid it all, my church here have beautified the interior of our church house very much, and ask for the meeting of our Association in 1896. Now the outside of our house needs something to correspond with the interior, which after a rest I hope will be done.

The sisters of my church here— most of them, at least, (God bless them)—are doing a good work in their mission society and weekly prayer-meeting. They are certainly a great help and encouragement to the pastor; but for them I would be tempted to leave here; and with it all I sometimes feel that it would be best for me to do so. Personally, all are very kind to me, but the discouragement is in active church work.

At Old Fort I had the pleasure of baptizing five last Sunday. We have a fine Sunday-school here and a weekly prayer meetings; but as to the church here, they are not as efficient as might be. The County Sunday-school Convention meets here, embracing the second Sunday in October.

My little church at Bridgewater is the only church that I have ever served that not only met its obligations, but for seven years has more than done so. It is a gem.

I spent a week in the "regions beyond" at a destitute point known as "North Cove" in this county. The outlook is very encouraging—a new house near completion, a good one, the work of a few. I look for great things here in the Lord's work. I think the field white and the ingathering of the harvest near.

I would not fail to mention that in my church here is also a "Sunbeam Society" of the little ones, in which they seem to be much interested. On last Sunday they of themselves ordered that the funds for the quarter be sent to the "orphans" who had no father or mother to help them. I think this action very commendable in them. I look upon this Society as the ground work for future missions.

Our Green River Association meets near here (sixteen miles) on the S C's R. R. on Oct. 3–5. I hope to see you or your Agent there, and that he may meet with greater success than in the past. I know one of the great defects with our denomination is that they do not take and read good, sound Baptist literature.

I am pained to state that we have some typhoid fever with us. A very promising young man, a Mr. Dysart, died of it a few days since. God bless you.

Yours in the work,
M. M. LANDRUM.

From Rev. J. R. Jones.

Dear Recorder:—We have held two good meetings lately—one at the Lower North hampton church, and one at Sunny Side, a mission station of the Lower church. There were a number of professions, and yesterday I baptized nine, one of them being our oldest boy, aged thirteen, in the waters of the Chesapeake Bay. There are several others we hope to baptize before long.

Bro. A J. Reamy of Onancock did nearly all the preaching for us at the Lower church, and Bro. M. F. Sanford of Parksley did the same for us at Sunny Side. Both of these brethren are good preachers and good workers, and we shall not soon forget their services. Fraternally,

J. R. JONES.

Catarrh Described.

A SHORT HISTORY OF A BAD MALADY BY AN EMINENT MEDICAL AUTHORITY.

This is the way chronic catarrh usually begins: A person catches cold, which hangs on longer than usual. Then follows a sensitiveness of the air passages, which inclines to catch cold very easily. At last the person has a cold all the while seemingly. More or less discharge from the nose, hawking from the throat, nostrils stopped up, full feeling in the head, and cracking in the ears. The Peruna treatment for this disease is the only treatment that has withstood the test of time. Peruna should be taken without interruption until every symptom disappears.

Send to The Peruna drug Manufacturing Company of Columbus, Ohio, for a copy of their latest book on chronic catarrh. This book is a complete guide to the cure of all forms and stages of this dreadful disease.

A Visit to the Mountains.

Two of my churches voluntarily voted me a month's vacation, a favor I never had before, and one much needed by a country pastor, after weeks of incessant labor in warm weather in protracted meetings. Thanks to these churches for this kindness.

I went to the mountains near Asheville, N. C., aiming to rest among my relatives in and near Asheville. But I found work waiting for me there. Berea Baptist church, into whose fellowship I was baptized thirty odd years ago, was ready for a protracted meeting. Beginning there the first Sabbath in September, I preached eight days and nights. It was a quiet, earnest, precious meeting—very helpful to the church. As a visible result of the meeting, two promising young men were baptized, and four or five other persons expressed their purpose to join at the next regular meeting.

The pastor of this church, Rev. Amos L. Justice, impressed me as a man of fine common sense, and an earnest, prudent, successful worker. He is greatly beloved by the church and community. This church, like nearly all others, has many members that are worth nothing except to count when making their report to the Association; but she also has a little band of noble workers who do more work than many churches with five times their ability. They have prayer-meeting every Wednesday night. Two young ladies are appointed to manage these meetings. They prepare Bible readings, and select a brother to lead the meeting and others to aid in the work. The attendance is larger than in many of our town and city churches.

This church has a good Sunday school, and a "Ladies' Missionary Society" with $15 00 on hand for missions. It is a very poor church, not a member raising a stalk of tobacco or cotton; and yet they have preaching twice a month. They have a beautiful church-house; aisles carpeted and a nice organ; also a pastor's home with six acres of land. If churches, though poor, have grace and grit, what noble work they can do for the Lord's cause!

I also preached the third Sunday in September, morning and night, for the Beaverdam Baptist church, four miles from Asheville, which contains a large number of my relatives. All things considered, this is perhaps about the banner church of the Buncombe County Association. With only fifty-six members, and only one member of much means, they pay their pastor, Rev. —— Brown, whom they almost idolize, for half of his time. They are planning to build a pastor's home near the church. Beside having preaching two Sundays in each month, morning and night, they keep up a Sunday school, with about forty of the members as regular attendants. They also keep up a weekly prayer meeting and a weekly "Young People's Union." This church gives twice or three times as much to pastor's salary and benevolence as many of the larger and wealthier churches. A poor young lady, who has struggled hard to prepare herself for a teacher, gives twenty five dollars to her pastor's salary.

Paul held up the example of some churches to stimulate others. I hold up these two churches to stimulate other churches in Buncombe County Association and in other parts of the State, that are so far behind these in zeal and Christian work.

On visiting my old home, which I had not seen for ten years, I missed greeting the faces and the forms of my aged parents. White marble slabs mark their resting places in the church cemetery at Beverdam church.

I found that part of the State greatly divided and distracted by religious isms. In the same communities and in almost in sight of each other, there are Northern and Southern Presbyterians, and Northern and Southern Methodists, divided mainly, I was told, on political issues. There you will also find Episcopalians, Campbellites, Adventists, Mormons, Thomasites, &c., &c. But the Baptists still standing by the old Bible landmarks of truth, are gaining ground year by year. In Asheville, thirty years ago, there were only about twenty Baptists. Now they have four churches and a larger membership than any other denomination. Similar progress has been made in many sections of the surrounding country.

I heard two intelligent brethren of the Western North Carolina Convention discussing the question of the union of the two Conventions. They both thought such a union very desirable. They love the Western North Carolina Baptist, but they love the BIBLICAL RECORDER, too, and many more of them would take it, if they could afford a second paper. J. A. STRADLEY

Backache.

From the Priest, New York City.

Few people have suffered more from pain in the back than Mrs. Lillie B. Newell of No. 2313 Second Avenue, New York City. For several years she was so afflicted with this distressing malady that she was hardly able to get around and could do little to care for her children which made he suffering all the harder to bear. Her husband, Charles Newell, who is a well known New York optician, tried in every way to find a remedy for his wife, but no medicine seemed to have the power to remove her pain.

Mrs. Glynn, a sister of Mrs. Newell, is a professional nurse, and was familiar with the symptoms of her sister's sickness. Mrs. Newell was away on a visit when a reporter called upon her, but Mrs. Glynn, who lives at No 416 East One hundred-and twentieth Street, told the story of her sister's recovery.

A doctor was called when Mrs. Newell's condition became serious and he prescribed small pink pills which, in a short time, relieved the woman's pain as no other medicine had done. "After awhile," Mrs. Glynn told the reporter, we learned that the medicine the physician was giving my sister was nothing more than Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Knowing by experience how excellent a remedy these pill were, Mrs. Newell bought some at a drug store and continued taking them. The effect was most gratifying, for in six months my sister was perfectly well and the pain in her back was nothing more than unpleasant memory. Both she and I have recommended the Pink Pills to other people, who have not failed to find them all that is claimed. All the doctors my sister had been treated by, before taking the pills, had done her no apparent good."

Pink Pills are sold in boxes (never in loose form, by the dozen or hundred, and the public is cautioned against numerous imitations sold in this shape) at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2 50, and may be had of all druggists or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y. The price at which these Pills are sold makes a course of treatment inexpensive as compared with other remedies or medical treatment.

Memorial Exercises.

Sunday morning, Sept. 1, 1895, the writer found a very large concourse of people at Island Creek church, Duplin county, N. C., who had come together to witness the memorial exercises appointed in memory of Bro. Robert Wallace and his wife, Margaret Wallace.

Bro. Wallace was born Jan. 29th, 1809, and died Jan. 24th, 1895, in the 86th year of his age.

Sister Margaret Wallace, his consort, was born Sept. 16th, 1804, and died July 19th, 1895, in her 91st year.

They were married March 23d, 1832, by Elder Hiram Stallings, father of Dr. J. N. Stallings, and were blessed with about sixty-one years of happy married life, and a large family of children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

They were both baptized into the fellowship of Concord church, Duplin county, soon after their marriage, by Elder Benajah Carroll, who was, I believe, the father of Dr. B. H. Carroll, the great Texas preacher.

About fifty years ago, they united with the Island Creek church, which they loved and faithfully served till God called them up higher.

Sister Wallace was the daughter of Richard Chasten, Sr., one of the constituent members of Island Creek, organized in 1802 as a branch of old Muddy Creek church. Bro. Chasten was the leading spirit in the new church about fifty years, or until 1851.

The residence of Bro. Wallace was, for many years, the preacher's home. When the infirmities of age prevented this honored couple from attending upon the services of the sanctuary, the writer, who was their pastor about ten years, would occasionally preach at their home for their special benefit.

Among those present at the memorial exercises were Rev. A. J. Taylor, the beloved pastor of Island Creek, and Rev. Colin Shaw, the venerable pastor of the Presbyterian church in the community, now in his eighty fourth year, and full of vigor and hopefulness. These brethren took part in the exercises, and the writer preached from 2 Tim. 4: 6—8.

Under the leadership of Bro. Taylor, an humble, earnest preacher of the gospel, the church seems to be moving forward. They recently had twenty-three accessions to their membership, the result of special services held a few weeks ago.

I shall never forget the glad welcome and hearty handshaking the brethren gave their old pastor. JNO. T. ALBRITTON.

Mt. Olive, N. C.

To My Old Pupils of the Baptist Female Institute.

Dear Girls:—It is raining this afternoon too hard for me to go to my Woman's Meeting, so I shall give myself the pleasure of writing to you. I hope a great many of you take the BIBLICAL RECORDER. It is a source of great pleasure to me and I am truly grateful for the gift, and for the kindness of the editor in letting me talk to you through its columns.

Many of you to whom I last spoke as girls, are now wives and mothers, and, for that very reason, my heart goes out the more in sympathy and love to you. And some of you have gone to that "Fair Land where joy is evermore."

Among that number of the blessed is our beloved Fannie Knight. We thank you God for the gift of such a grand, such a noble woman. Consecrated from her childhood to the service of the Master, her whole life was for us an inspiring example, and now, though dead, she "still speaketh." Her spirit of self sacrifice was manifested not only in giving up her home and friends to preach Christ in a far off land, but in all her actions, all her words. Her motto was, "In honor prefering one another." Her whole life was one of service, one of giving—not only of means, but of that costlier gift, self, and her heroic, martyr death was but a fit consummation of her holy life. I, for five years her teacher, lay this flower upon her grave, feeling that each one of you who reads this, will join me in an expression of heartfelt sympathy for the sorrowing husband and parents, sisters and brothers of our Fannie.

What shall I tell you of our work here? How many of you are praying for your work and missionaries in Mexico this month, of special prayer for Mexico? God is blessing us in all parts of this land. Last night I received a card from Mrs. Rudd, the wife of the president of Madero Institute, Saltillo, and here is what it says: "We are having a glorious time! Seventeen of our girls made a public profession of their faith in Christ yesterday. Among the number were six who have been fanatics and scoffers for years. We are having a series of union meetings conducted by Mr. Morales of Mexico City. He is full of the Spirit and all Saltillo is stirred. I have never seen anything like the sight we witnessed yesterday in our study hall."

And here, too, God is blessing us, though there have not been recently many accessions to the church.

At my last Woman's meeting more than thirty were present and many took part in the meeting, leading in prayer, giving a bit of experience and advice, or quoting a passage of Scripture.

When you consider that but a few of these women can read, and all are ignorant, the progress made is great. One woman, although she has learned to read only since her baptism five years ago, is a great help to me. She spoke somewhat as follows at a recent meeting. "Yes, we must make opportunities to talk to people about Christ. When my neighbors, or people from the country come in on Sunday and ask me to do work for them, I tell them no, that God bids us keep that day holy. Then, if they insist upon my lending them the machine to sew, saying that they do not believe in the Bible, I say no—the machine is my servant by whose means I gain my living, and I cannot allow my servant to violate the Sabbath. So you see I make my machine a preacher." "But can you afford to lose the pay for the biggest day's work of the week when you have yourself and four children to support?" "Yes" said she, "God always makes it up to me in some way or other." Her faith and cheerfulness amid difficulties teach me many lessons. When her husband died some months ago and left her five children to care for, his brothers came to her and offered to support the family if she would give up her Protestant faith, and take her children out of the Protestant school. "No" said she, "my husband's God is mine also, and He has promised to take care of the orphans and widows who trust in Him."

One more thought, friends, and then I have finished. When you heard of Fannie Knight's death, did you you remember that her special friends at the Institute, Effie Wright and Mattie Timberlake, preceded her to the heavenly land, and were waiting to give her a joyous welcome? Those three were pledged to pray daily for the success of Missions. They have entered into their rest. Upon whom have their mantles fallen? Who will take up their unfinished work? May God bless and keep you all.

Sincerely,
LILLIAN WRIGHT CHASTAIN.

Ordination.

On Sunday morning, Aug. 4th, 1895, a presbytery composed of the following brethren—Josiah Elliott, T. G. Wood and J. B. Ferebee, together with the deacons of Olivet church—met at the home of Bro. J. H. Halsey to examine Bro. C. L. Greaves with a view to his ordination to the ministry. Elder Wood was chosen Chairman and Bro. J. H. Halsey, Secretary. They examined Bro. Greaves as to his conversion, call to the ministry, views of doctrine, church polity, &c., which was satisfactory, and the presbytery unanimously voted to proceed with the ordination. We accordingly repaired to Olivet church, where the following program was observed:

Ordaining sermon by Josiah Elliott; prayer by J. B. Ferebee; laying on of hands by the entire presbytery; charge to the candidate by T. G. Wood; presentation of Bible by Josiah Elliott; and benediction by the candidate. T. G. WOOD, Chairman.

J. H. HALSEY, Secretary.

Cost of Endowment Insurance Reduced.

For about ten years the old Union Central Life Insurance Company has been maturing and paying the full face of policies, for which they charged the insured the same as other first class companies charge for policies due only at death. We paid over $135,000 of these last year, and they did not have to "die to win."

We have for many years made the highest interest and lowest death rate, and by these points of successful management, we are doing more for our insured than any company.

No other company known to me ever matured a life rate policy and paid it off before death. Why pay a high price for endowment insurance when we give you endowment insurance at the cheap life rates? Agents wanted

MARRIED.

LANCASTER—SMITH—On Sept. 11th, 1895, at the home of the bride's father, Cedar Rock, N. C., by Rev. W. A. Smith, Mr. W. J. Lancaster and Miss Laura J. Smith.

DIED.

LASSITER—At Rich Square, N. C., Aug. 28th, Mamie Lee, daughter of J. C. Lassiter and Mattie S Lassiter, aged thirteen years, fell asleep in Jesus. She had heavenly visions on her death bed, seeing her deceased sister Helen and an angel summoning herself. She wanted to follow the Lord in baptism. When God's command cannot be carried into act, he takes the will for the deed.

A little letter found among her effects was read at her grave. It was written by herself months ago, when in health, to her sister in heaven, telling her to ask Jesus that she also might be sent for. A. C.

PRICHARD—Departed this life Aug. 24th, 1895 sister Elizabeth Prichard, in the thirty-second year. Her Christian life was exemplary. She was a kind, affectionate, and devoted wife and loving mother. In her death the church has lost a useful member. Her beloved pastor being away, the writer conducted the burial services. There were many friends present to show the respect and love they had for her. She left behind a husband, children and mother, who mourn their loss.—the husband never more to meet her in the flesh and receive her kind admonitions; the children never to hear those loving words again, because mother's voice is still in death. But we weep not as those who have no hope. Sister Prichard was ripe for heaven. With patience she bore her afflictions for many months without a murmur. She was resigned to God's will—like Job, "though he slay me, yet will I trust him." Look up, husband, mother and children, and realize heaven is sweeter because of this attraction. Sorrowing ones, she would not have you weep, but strive to enter in at the straight gate, and spend eternity with God and the redeemed of earth. God bless and comfort the sorrowing ones, is my prayer.

WRIGHT—Miss Hettie Dakota Wright, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Wright of Carlton, N. C., passed quietly to that rest that remaineth unto the people of God on Sept. 5th, 1895. She was sick for about five hours, and during that time she suffered very greatly; but just before the end, a smile came upon her face which indicated that her soul was approaching the golden shore. Miss Hettie was born June 3d, 1875, and had only lived to reach the threshold of young womanhood when the summons came for her to enter a higher life where the conditions for spiritual development would be more favorable.

She had, in childhood I might say, learned the lesson of self-sacrifice, and was therefore the sunshine of her home and community. She had also learned the lesson of obedience, and thus becoming obedient to the demands of life she had become conqueror of life; and though her life was short, yet she had reached attainments that would have required some of us many years to have accomplished.

She professed faith in Christ in her fifteenth year, and though inexperienced in the Christian's warfare, she was ever a faithful soldier. She loved her church with great devotion and was attentive to all of its services, the conferences, prayer meetings, and Sunday-school—she was always there, and never lost an opportunity to speak a word for her Master or to check any influence that might damage the cause for which she labored. Her convictions of right and wrong were severe and close, and those with whom she came in contact could but feel the force and helpful influences of such a Christian character.

She entered Oxford Female Seminary three years ago, and would have finished the full course there in June, 1896. Prof. Hobgood, together with the young ladies of the institution, bear testimony that she exerted a strong influence for good over the girls of the institution. There was a gentle modesty about her that drew her school-mates to her, and she never failed to put forth an effort to make them better.

The shadow of death has hid Miss Hettie from our view, but we know that she still lives, and that if we, who are thus left in sorrow, are faithful to the end, we shall in the morning of the resurrection meet her in a brighter clime.

"See love, truth, and mercy in triumph descending,
And nature all glowing in Eden's first bloom,
On the cold cheek of death smiles and roses are gathering,
And beauty immortal awakes from the tomb."

Good woman, the noble, the Christian true-hearted,
As firm as the rocks which resist the mad sea!
From earth unto heaven thy soul hath departed,
Sweet planter of peace, thy spirit is free.

T. B. HILL, Pastor.

Sweet lips curved for kindly smiling,
Lips that could not speak beguiling,
Clear true eyes with glances winning
That showed a soul not made for sinning,
Noble brow with lines expressing
That life's sweet secret she was guessing,
Tender voice with tones of pity
For every grief!—such was our Hettie.

But fixed and grave her smile is now,
No gleam of mirth shines in her eyes,
Death's majesty is on her brow;
And though the storms of sorrow rise
And beat upon us, not one word
Of pitying love will she accord.
Life's secret, now to her so clear,
She will not, may not, let us hear.

Fulfilled to her is now that Word
Which even she realized in part:—
"Blessed are the pure in heart,
For they, indeed, shall see the Lord."

What the Flowers Say.

The red rose says, "Be sweet."
And the lily bids, "Be pure;"
The hardy, brave chrysanthemum,
"Be patient and endure."

The violet whispers, "Give,
Nor grudge nor count the cost."
The woodvine, "Keep on blossoming
In spite of chill and frost."

And so each gracious flower
Has each a several word,
Which, reap together, maketh
The message of the Lord.

Content With One Life.

I would not if I could repeat
A life which still is good and sweet,
I keep in age, as in my prime,
A not unhearful step with time,
And, grateful for all blessings sent,
I go the common way, content
To make no new experiment.
On easy terms with law and fate,
For what must be I calmly wait,
And trust the path I cannot see,
That God is good sufficeth me,
And when at last upon life's play
The curtain falls, I only pray
That hope may lose itself in truth,
And age in heaven's immortal youth,
And all our loves and longings prove
The foretaste of diviner love!

Tiny Tim.

A gentleman who had long been ill had at last begun to feel better and to grow stronger. When well enough to walk about the room, he could not yet leave it, and time hung heavy upon his hands. Any occurrence, however trivial, if novel, was of interest to him, and this is the story which he told me of what he saw.

One afternoon I sat in an easy chair near the fire, my feet resting, man like, on a narrow ledge halfway down the tall wooden mantelpiece. In the room was an organ, upon which my wife was playing. After a while she began to play, in soft, low tones, an air in a minor key. My head was thrown back against my chair, and my eyes rested on the wall above the mantel as I listened.

Presently I saw, in a hole in the plaster just over the mantel, a pair of very bright eyes peep out. Then a little head appeared, and turned cautiously about, as if inspecting the outlook. Apparently assured by the absolute quiet of the room, except for the music, soon the whole body of a tiny mouse emerged from the hole, and seated itself upon the mantel, still thoroughly alert, and ready to fly at a moment's notice. Just then my wife paused to turn a page of music, when our little visitor was off like a flash, and inside the hole.

The next afternoon I asked for the same piece of music, and seated myself in my accustomed position before the fire. I was confident the music had attracted the mouse, and I was on the lookout for him.

I soon had the satisfaction of seeing him appear and creep warily from the hole. Then he squatted down upon the mantel, and assumed a look of intense listening. He remained until again some stir put him to flight. This was repeated every afternoon, and always, at the playing of the minor strain, or something equally soft and low, mouse put in an appearance, growing bolder every day.

I scattered a few crumbs on the mantel, and he would patter about and pick them up, keeping his bright little eyes on me. Then I put a crumb on the ledge, and a train of them on the leg of my trousers. These preparations were made before he came. Tiny Tim crept to the ledge, and ate the crumb, and then very cautiously followed up the train of crumbs on my trousers, watching me intently. We called him Tiny Tim, both on account of his gentle, confiding ways, and a trick of limping he had, as if one leg had been hurt, and moved with difficulty.

Tiny Tim's visits became constant. If, however, he did not appear, and we wished for him, a few notes on the organ, and he was on hand. He became perfectly fearless, would creep in and out of the folds of a newspaper I was reading, in search of crumbs hidden there for him. He would dive into every pocket of my dressing gown on the same errand; and frequently, in his journeying from one pocket to another, dart up my shoulder and neck, across the top of my head, and down the other side. He would work his little body into my half-closed hand, in hope of finding some dainty morsel.

His visit over, and his appetite for both food and music satisfied, he would patter away to the hole in the wall, and secrete himself—where, we never knew. He preferred making the trip to and fro using my leg as a bridge, always pausing at the ledge to see if it was in place. It usually was, for I liked to welcome him.

At the end of two or three months, when the weather grew hot, we left home for a visit to the seashore. We gave Tiny Tim a parting concert and feast, and bade him adieu, giving him the freedom of the room during our absence. Some necessary repairs were to be made in the room, and we neglected to tell the workmen of the room's little occupant.

When we returned, it was to find Tim's door of entrance closed and papered over. I carefully opened it with my knife, and requested my wife to play Tim's tune upon the organ. We waited and listened in vain. Our little friend never came again. Perhaps he suspected us of forgetfulness and of driving him away from us, or perhaps he found a little fair-faced mate who [illegible]—M. E. Sangster, in Interior.

Be Courteous.

What is courtesy? It is genuine politeness. And what is politeness? Is it not a fashionable bow, a graceful wave of the hand, a beautiful smile, or an eloquent "How do you do, sir?" All this may exist without real politeness.

Yes, you may be assured that not every well-dressed gentleman, with superb personal appearance, euphonious speech and elegant form, who bows and gestures, and smiles so charmingly, is a truly polite man.

Real politeness is free from deception. But multitudes who have a higher reputation for politeness are no better than nodding, simpering hypocrites; they feel nothing of what they so profusely exhibit.

Genuine politeness is a kind and earnest heart, manifested in kind and honest speech and conduct. Hence, that which is most essential to true politeness is to feel kindly, and act accordingly.

Politeness, courtesy and agreeable manners are all the same thing; and they all imply delight in the happiness of others, and a disposition to do to them as we would wish them to do to us. Hence, politeness is properly regarded as Christian duty.

It is accordingly directly enjoined in the Bible. Be courteous, be kindly affectioned one to another with brotherly love, in honor preferring one another." "Bear ye one another's burdens." "Do good to all men as ye have opportunity." This subject has far higher importance than most persons imagine. Are not agreeable manners worth having? And if a person does not possess them is it not well that he should take a little pains to acquire them?

Certainly it is. No one has any right to be indifferent to those traits of character or conduct by which he may contribute to the happiness of his fellow creatures, or to do that which he knows will wound the feelings of others, and yet how often has the want of courtesy and kindness in our feelings and manners given pain to those with whom we have associated!

Who does not like to see a coach driver, a railroad conductor, a farmer, a mechanic, as well as a merchant, a lawyer or a minister, pleasing in his address and obliging in his manners? Depend upon it, courtesy is worth a thousand times more than it costs. It costs only a little patience, love and self-control; and as to its worth, let it be remembered that the success of hundreds is merely the result of agreeable manners flowing from benevolence of feeling—while multitudes fail chiefly from want of such manners.—Sel.

Duty of Hope.

Hope is a duty. Despair is a sin. There is a bright side and a dark side to life itself, and to every event in life. We can choose our point of view, it is not forced upon us. We can resolutely look toward the light; or away from it. There is no cheer in gloom; there is no gloom in cheer. Our duty toward God, toward others, and toward ourselves, demands that we should always recognize and be grateful for the light that is, and thus honor God, help others, and be glad ourselves.

What Makes the Difference.

A minister in preaching referred to the case of two young men who started out in life about the same time. One was liberal, constantly giving as he had opportunity; the other was of an opposite character, disposed to hold on to all he had. The liberal young man prospered greatly; the other did not prosper, and was constantly in trouble. One day they met, and the penurious young man said to the other: "You are always giving to benevolent objects, and yet you are all the time accumulating, but I am saving, trying to take care of all I have, and yet I do not prosper, how is it?" "O," said his friend, "I can tell you. I shovel out and God shovels in, and his shovel is much larger than mine, and consequently more is shoveled in than shoveled out." That is according to the promise: "There is that scattereth, and yet increaseth; and there is that withholdeth more than is meet, but it tendeth to poverty."—Christian Standard.

Postage Stamps.

It takes eighty men and women to make a postage stamp. First, the white paper is cut into sheets, each large enough for a hundred stamps. The stamps on each sheet are counted twenty-six times, to make sure the number is correct. The printer counts and passes the sheets to the gummer, the gummer gums the back, and, having counted, gives to the perforator, who divides the stamps by rows of little holes, not forgetting to count. It is surprising how quickly and accurately the hands can work. Seven hundred million postage stamps are made every year in the United States. New York City uses eight million a month.—American Messenger.

The medicine recommended me did no more good than so much water. Ayer's Sarsaparilla being favorably brought to my attention, I tried it, and, in a short time, began to feel better. I continued to take this medicine for two months, at the end of which time I felt like a new man. My appetite, energy, and strength returned, and all traces of headache and nervousness disappeared. THE statistical brother is everywhere present. Get a number of brethren together, and before they know it, up he jumps and rattles away with his tables of figures until he gets winded, and then retires with, "Brethren, you see the situation; what is the trouble?" And of course the wiser brethren say nothing, while those who venture to elucidate matters sadly fail. It takes a good head to grasp statistics. The statistician has come into as full possession of a field of his own as the editor. It is idle to ask the average man to take an array of denominational statistics and make anything, except 'a problem,' of them. Statistics by themselves unanalyzed and uncompared tell nothing; and the number of those who can handle them intelligently is not great. Any one can take the amount reported to be given by the Baptists in North Carolina to Foreign Missions, divide the amount given by the number of Baptists, and arrive at the average amount given by each Baptist in the State. But is there any one who thinks that this is a measure of the liberality of North Carolina Baptists? We are not writing a defence of small contributions, but with the purpose of showing the unreliability of figures in careless hands. The member who gives least to missions may give largely for education or for church extension. And it must also be taken into account that every member who contributes nothing reduces the average on all sides; but surely no one would allow the closeness of a few members to reflect on the liberality of the entire number. One had better steer clear of the statistical brother, unless he likes to be confused and misled.

THAT the dispensary system of curtailing the liquor traffic is less of an evil than the open saloon has been fully demonstrated; but this is no reason why people who have the happiness of their homes and the good of the State at heart should stop short of complete annihilation of the traffic. Compromises with sin may not seem as disastrous as open acceptance of sin, but in the end they are as likely as not to do as much harm. At any rate they can do no good. Consequently, while we know that the adoption by Russia of the dispensary system will reduce the number of drunkards and bring about an appearance of temporary benefit, we are not hopeful of the final outcome. In Russia the liquor dealers are more heartless than they are in America, if possible. When they get a drunkard stripped of his money and the whisky has weakened his powers, they gladly deal with him on credit, taking all his property for security. In this way the ranks of the poverty-stricken are greatly increased, which makes it expedient for the nation to make for itself a monopoly of the shameful business; in which position it controls the price of liquor and has supervision over the users of it.

THE meeting of the Grand Army of the Republic at Louisville recently, being the first encampment since surrender on Southern soil, the dedication by Federal and Confederate veterans of Chickamauga Park, in honor of one of the severest battles of the late war, the enthusiasm with which a negro professor's speech was received at the Atlanta Exposition opening, all coming together, mark an epoch in our national development. We feel the more assured that they are significant of a genuine reconciliation because there has been little or no sentimental newspaper stuff and oratorical bluster inflicted upon the public in regard to it. There are, however, more evidences than these of the gradual removal of the old feeling of jealousy and bitterness. In fact the difficulty now is to find active evidences of inter-war memories. In view of this turn of affairs, Baptists may take special credit to themselves for the success of the Mission conference in regard to Home Missions in the South.

FLORIDA is a partly Northern State, from the point of view of citizenship; her capital was drawn largely from the North, her market is mostly in the North, and one of her natural resources—climate—is attractive chiefly to Northerners. Not unnaturally then has the North taken unusual interest in her affairs, particularly in her educational system. Naturally, too, there has been more or less of co education of the races in Florida private schools, which of course has not been looked upon with favor by the native citizens, and upon the recommendation of the Superintendent of Education the last legislature of Florida passed a law making it a punishable offence for any school, public or private, to allow white and colored students to be educated together and, further, forbidding white people to teach in schools for negroes. We are willing to plead to guilty to having as many "Southern prejudices" as any sane Southerner; but this Florida law goes entirely too far for us. While the State ought to forbid co education of the races in the public schools, it ought to see to it that the negroes have as good schools and teachers as the whites—ought to do this in the name of justice and for the State's good. Here the State ought to stop. The private schools should not be interfered with.

"THE FASHION" has come to be master almost everywhere. One of his latest and most abject subjects is the reading public—rather the editors of the reading public's literature. A writer wakes up one morning to find himself famous; and that is the end of the chapter for the rest of writers for several weeks or months. The new author has all the magazines and Sunday papers at his feet, and of course he tries to satiate them with all the declined manuscripts that he has been accumulating. These exhausted, he quickly exhausts his natural resources and, before he knows it, finds himself forgotten. Rudyard Kipling, Anthony Hope and Ian Maclaren wrote good stories at first; but of late the magazines and newspapers have stuffed the public with productions under their names which, had they not been the fashion, would not have been accepted by third rate monthlies. Meanwhile doubtless many good productions have been returned 'unavailable;' and many a poorly fed author is waiting for the fashion to take him in.

EFFORTS against the nefarious dealings of trusts are being redoubled. The Attorney General of Illinois, who seems to be the only attorney general in the country who is worthy of his office, has successfully prosecuted several trusts, and is by no means ready to let up on them just yet. Further than this, a decision has been handed down which can be used for the suppression of trusts in States where the people desire to suppress them. New York State, for instance, has enacted stringent anti trust laws (as has North Carolina also), but the trusts have been evading the New York laws by getting their charters across the river in New Jersey and then doing business in New York. The decision to which we have referred is to the effect that a corporation has no right of recognition in any other State save that of its origin. The American Tobacco Trust was chartered in New Jersey; but, under this decision, the people of New York or North Carolina can refuse to allow the corporation to operate in their State.

WE have seen it stated that the young Czar of Russia is bent on winning a better name for himself than his predecessors left to him. He is in the beginning of a policy of liberalism "more in harmony with the spirit of the times," as the Examiner puts it. He will remove from office the Minister of the Interior whose influence has been to preserve the barbaric despotism of former times, and he has instructed the head of the State church to quit meddling with other denominations. God grant that this may be the beginning of the end of the persecution of the Stundists, those sturdy people so closely akin to Baptists, and whose history is not unlike the history of Baptists. Of course it is a matter of speculation how far the Czar may go in his new policy, but the signs are pointing the right way now, and we can hope for even the institution of religious liberty in the great Northern Empire.

THE "germ theory of disease" has come to be as well established as theories ever get to be. It is hard to find a physician who does not believe in it. Accordingly the science of medicine is undergoing renewed investigation, and new methods of treatment are rapidly replacing former methods. A contemporary, whose reliability in this matter is not to be doubted, says the fever of investigation has taken the German scientists more completely than the gold fever possessed the miners in California in 1849. It is already being said that this last generation of the human race has had a longer existence than the preceding; and there is every reason to believe that when young men and women are made to take proper care of themselves, and discoveries in science will master disease sufficiently to considerably lengthen the days of the race.

Tithing not Taught in the New Testament.

BY REV. J. J. HALL, D. D.

With many of my brethren, I thought the endorsement of the tithing system by the Southern Baptist Convention a serious blunder; and in watching the discussion since, I fail to see the wisdom of that act.

We are told that the tithe system is not exclusively Jewish; that it did not originate with Moses. This is probably correct, as its observance has been traced among the Greeks, Romans, Carthaginians and Arabians; and later wherever there is a national or state religion with its costly temples, numerous priesthood, and elaborate ritualism. But the two solitary incidents quoted from Scripture before the days of Moses in the lives of Abraham and Jacob are not only meagre but exceedingly faulty for argument's sake. Abraham gave no tenth. At least the record does not show it. He gave Melchizedek a tenth of the spoils he captured in war. Abraham was a rich man. He needed not those spoils for his own comfort. There was no sacrifice in that gift. And as to Jacob, if we take the account given in the authorised version, the whole seems like a bargain on his part. He addresses God thus: "If thou wilt go with me: if thou wilt prosper me, then of all that thou shalt give me I will surely give a tenth unto thee." Yes, surely he might have made such a vow. If any person would give you $1,000, surely you would be willing to give him $100 in return. But we have no evidence that Jacob ever kept his promise, neither can I see in what way he could have done so, except in sacrificing animals. Jacob is not, in some respects, a pattern for Christians.

But we must admit the Mosaic economy did include the tithe system. Observe it was not included in the moral law at Sinai, and should never be interpreted with it or added to it. But in the Mosaic economy with its standing priesthood, its costly offerings, its elaborate worship, and in after days its magnificent temple, with all that related thereto, required large sums of money for the maintenance of the whole. And in all of this, God was honored, worshiped and served. It covered the religious, political and social life of the people. Let us remember that to the Jews Palestine centered in Jerusalem, and Jerusalem centered in the temple.

I believe the tithe system passed away with the Jewish economy and is no longer binding as such upon God's people.

1st. It was never taught, so far as revealed to us, by Jesus Christ to his followers. The passage so frequently quoted (Matt. 23: 23) cannot justly be so construed. Jesus is denouncing the Pharisees for being so scrupulously exact in paying a tenth of mint and anise and cummin, thereby probably extending the law applying to corn and fruit so as to make it include herbs also, while neglecting greater things. They gave money, but withheld mercy, faith and righteousness. Not an uncommon practice even in this day. But observe these words of Jesus were spoken of the Pharisees who looked to the law for their salvation; and were not addressed to nor for the guidance of those who in after days would behold the Lamb of God taking away the sin of the world.

2d. The tithe system was not, so far as taught us in the New Testament, observed by the Apostles or practiced by the Apostolic churches. If in the early days of the church the Christians at Jerusalem gave all they had, then they could not have observed the law of tenths. Again, to whom could the tenth have been given? Not to the Apostles, for they burdened not the churches with their own needs. It is not likely they received any stipulated salary for their services. The Apostle Paul distinctly affirms that he worked with his own hands. The one tenth could not have been used for the erection of churches, for they were unknown to the early Christians. It could not have been used in endowing colleges or establishing theological seminaries. If Christians in the early days of the church paid the one tenth, they of the Jews only did so, and they gave it as Jews and for Jewish worship and service, and this we cannot believe they did. They are nowhere commanded or encouraged as Christians to do it.

And this leads me to remark that no where in the New Testament is the tithing system taught, and no where commanded or endorsed by any Apostolic letter to the churches. But it is said, "The faithful Jew did not need teaching upon this subject. It was a part of his religion." Quite true, but Paul did not write his epistles to the Jews. The most progressive church was largely a Gentile church. The Gentile converts would certainly need instruction upon this duty if such were a duty, but no where is it taught in the New Testament dispensation to either Jew or Gentile.

The tithe system, bringing into the treasury of a denomination or a church a vast sum of money, has not been allowed to pass away from man's plans. The church of Rome wherever it can enforce it has done so, for, has erected its magnificent cathedrals from the hard-earned money of the poor. The priests of Rome have in Mexico, Lower Canada, Italy, and in other lands made their highest (certainly not God's heaven) gorgeously grand. Under the bowels of their poverty-stricken followers. The Church of England, when and where it had the power, was not much better in this respect. It would give the tenth, and give one third to the Bishops, one-third to the clergy, and one third to defray the expenses of repairing the cathedrals and for the support of the poor; and precious little of it the poor ever received. The Latter Day Saints of Salt Lake City adopted the tithe system in their teaching and enforced it with undue severity.

The spirit of Christianity is that of love and not of law. It teaches that all belongs to God; that we are his stewards and should use everything we have for his glory, and that how it shall be so used is left largely to our individual judgment, provided we always watch against covetousness and selfishness; that we act intelligently and with much prayer, knowing that God will bring every work into judgment. This will not mean less than a tenth but frequently more; instead of measuring ourselves with the Old Testament yardstick marked with its ritual, political and social designations, we shall find ourselves responding to the dying need of the world, the command of Christ to give the gospel to every creature, the great love of God who gave for us his only begotten Son, and the mighty presence and power of the Holy Spirit. Recently I witnessed a scene I shall never forget. I saw $65 000 laid down to give the gospel to the heathen world. I saw ladies who had taken their diamonds and sold them for Jesus. The $65,000 was increased to nearly $75,000. Not one dollar was given by the tenth rule, but the thousands of dollars were given in with the joy of the Holy Ghost. Friends, come up higher.

Levity in Speaking of the Scriptures.

It is a sad fact and deeply to be deplored that many persons who profess the Christian religion will allow themselves to jest about Scriptural subjects in a truly shocking manner. I heard a lady, who seemed to be a sincere Christian, say that "Jacob was an old rascal, cheating his brother out of his birthright, and his father-in-law, Laban, out of his flocks and herds." Her remark only raised a laugh from her thoughtless listeners, and there was no one to answer, "Do you think it right to remember only the faults of Jacob, and ignore all his virtues?" Our Saviour himself refers to him as a proof of the resurrection. Mark 12: 26. He was deemed worthy to obtain "resurrection from the dead," and of whom it is said, "Neither can they die any more, for they are equal unto the angels, and are the children of God, being children of the resurrection." Luke 20: 36. And in Gen. 25: 28, he is described as a "plain." The Hebrew word here translated "plain" means perfect, and is the same word used by David when he said, "Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright, for the end of that man is peace." Ps. 37: 37.

Christians ought to study their Bibles carefully enough to give reasonable answers to foolish and profane remarks. Jacob was one of God's saints. Saints in this life are good people, but never perfect, and they are sometimes led into mistakes. Jacob deceived his father (persuaded by his mother), and he himself was bitterly deceived in the dearest object of his heart by Laban, his father-in-law. Still he was a perfect man, dwelling in tents rather than pursuing the bloody sports of his brother. He instituted God's worship in devoting a tithe of his income to divine service. He instituted the ordinance of baptism, when he commanded his family in Gen. 35: 2. "Put away the strange gods that are among you, and be clean, and change your garments." This expression, "be clean," meant in Hebrew "baptism." See Wilson's Hebrew Lexicon and Concordance. It seems that the holy man had become aware of the idols which Rachel had brought dishonestly from her father's home, and as he was entering the promised land, he was determined to put away all forbidden things.

People joke about Adam's eating the forbidden fruit, calling the unsightly protuberance of the human throat "Adam's apple," beside making various other profane allusions to the cause of the ruin of the human race.

All these things are wrong; and especially is it wrong to slander those whom our God has made especial objects of honor.

Poets and painters have taken great pains to represent Hagar as deeply wronged and cruelly treated by Abraham. The facts are these: Hagar was an Egyptian, an idolater. She had no reverence for God's laws, and to her influence was doubtless due the improper conduct of Ishmael when he was seen "mocking" at the religious rites in his father's household. Sarah was right in demanding their expulsion, but Abraham would not have listened to her advice, had he not been so commanded by God. The wilderness of Paran was full of fruit producing trees, dates and ballotte oaks, and there was no fear of starvation. God himself provided them with water. Abraham was truly the father of the faithful, the friend of God, and as such is entitled to the reverence and honor of all true believers.

A False Step.

A dense fog prevailed. A custom house officer had finished his day's work, and was about to leave the docks. Being asked if he would like a lantern to enable him to reach the gate in safety, he refused, saying he knew the way well enough. The poor fellow's body was found next morning in the dock water. He had made a false step, fallen over the quay and was drowned. He professed to know the way, but by his walk he denied it.—Parish

Sunday-school and Church Finances.

BY REV. I. T. NEWTON.

Dear Recorder:—I have just finished reading this week's RECORDER. Perhaps this copy is better than usual, or perhaps I was in better condition to enjoy it, or perhaps both these conditions make out the truth in the matter. Anyway I enjoyed it more than usual, especially the letter of Bro. T. M. Pittman on "S. S. Finances."

May not the truth conveyed in this letter apply equally as well to all our religious finances? For sometime my own conviction has been that we really lose ground by adopting "round about methods" instead of doing our work in the "manly, straightforward way." Perhaps the tendency to adopt these "round about methods" arises from a too great desire to see large and immediate results. In our haste and enthusiasm, we go beyond the Scriptural direction, and for a time the work shows grandly, but, being too largely on a sandy foundation is soon swept away by a fearful lack of spirituality in the churches. No doubt one feature of irregularity and hindrance is the tendency into which we have fallen of doing our work on the credit system. Sometime ago I expressed to a certain minister, who has long been prominent in our denomination, my fear that many appeals to the people to "pay debts" would not be conducive to the highest motives to contributions to benevolent and missionary enterprise. His reply was that this borrowing money, &c., for the advancement of our work was all wrong. Also that this was the result of having conducted our home and business affairs in this way; for the same plans of work carried on in the home life would find their way into all our religious work.

I have been much interested in the letters I have seen along this line. In these writings there is frequent quotation of Mal. 3: 10 and 1 Cor. 16: 2. In the first there is emphasis laid upon the proportion to be given and the blessing to follow, and in the second the stated time this proportion is to be laid by. No doubt the writings give the correct teaching so far as they go, but it has been a matter of no little wonder to me why so little emphasis is placed upon the basis of these scriptural directions.

In the first quotation, "that there may be meat in mine house," and in the second, "that there be no gatherings when I come," there is, it seems to me, clear indication of the basis of the duty of giving; that is, that all our work be carried on upon the basis of money in hand, and not money either borrowed or to be borrowed. Now I do not mean to say that the amount for a whole year's work is to be in hand before anything is done; for even that of a few weeks would be scriptural, 1 Cor. 16: 2; but the thought indicated seems to be that the work is to be planned and executed according to contributions already given, that is, on the basis of former and regular work, and not to go ahead and do the work first, and then strain the contribution up to it by spasmodic and "round about" methods.

Stand by the Old Landmarks.

Dear Recorder:—I love the RECORDER more and more as the days go by.

On account of affliction in my family, I have been deprived of the privilege of meeting with the brethren for two years. My only means of knowing what they are thinking and doing is what I learn through the papers, and much that I learn makes me sad. There is, however, one hopeful feature, many are asking, What can be done to advance the kingdom? I differ with many of them, and yet it is hopeful that so many are asking what can be done.

The old RECORDER stands firmly by the old landmarks, and that is the reason why my admiration for it grows. The New Testament church is a perfect organization and needs no appendages. They weaken rather than strengthen it. What we need, and all we need, is to stand by the old landmarks. Let us have more doctrinal teaching, and we have nothing to fear. When I was younger than I now am, the preachers kept before the people the peculiar doctrines that separate the Baptists from other denominations.

Let me say just here that Bro. J. F. Love (one of our own boys) has written a tract on this line that ought to be broadcast over the land. For general distribution, it is the best thing that I have seen on that line. Not long enough to frighten the average man, nor so condensed as to lose the argument. It is just the thing for the people. The world needs no society but the church. The spirit is charming. It is plain, simple and strongly put. I think, it is unanswerable. Brother Love not only writes a first class tract, but he is a first class preacher. It was my pleasure to have him with me five days at Shiloh, Camden county, the first of August. I say he is a first-class preacher to come to preach the old time gospel, viz., human depravity and salvation by grace without any admixture of works. Thirty were added to the church.

Thank God for young men who preach the old gospel, and stand by the old landmarks.

The Biblical Recorder.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 9, 1895.

J. W. BAILEY, ... EDITOR.
J. C. CADDELL, AGENT AND CORRESPONDENT.

FIFTEEN thousand dollars to be expended this year for State Missions, and only $5,404 38 reported thus far. Brother pastor, keep State Missions on the hearts of your people.

Convention in sixty days!

WAKE FOREST COLLEGE must have a chair of Biblical Study. In higher education the revival of interest in this respect all over world is most unmistakable. The time will soon come when we will wonder that our Christian colleges ever gave more room to the pagan literature of Greece and Rome than to the Old and New Testament.

A COLLEGE is a character maker. If more business men were educated in Christian colleges there would be no reason for the discussion of whether Christian principles should be carried into business. If a man is properly educated, Christ will so dominate his character that wherever he goes the principles of Christianity will be uppermost.

THE Young People's meeting at Greensboro will be a most interesting one. There are many reasons why every pastor who can should attend. As an earnest of future meetings and as an incentive to greater efforts in behalf of the young people, the meeting will be particularly interesting and instructive. The feature of the meeting will be education.

LET us remember that each one of us has his charge to keep. Very many seem to have reached the conclusion that religion, like everything else almost, has fallen into the hands of specialists—of a professional class. Never was a sadder error. Before the throne of God each one will make account. There is no scriptural authority for expecting preachers to do all the sowing, reaping, watching and feeding. You and I are accountable for ourselves; our pastor is accountable for himself only.

IF THERE is one thing that holds our churches back more than another it is the inactivity of the laity. This is partly the fault of the pastors, but mostly of the lay members. The business side of church work should be particularly the care of laymen. This embraces charity, missions, church building and improvement, and pastor's salary. How few of our members know anything about these matters. Further than this there is room and need for activity in the prayer meetings, in the Sunday-school, mission station work and young people's meeting. Never fear, there is always room for willing workers.

THERE is no worthier object of our Convention than the Ministerial Relief Board. We have often thought that one of the best points of our Methodist brethren is their care for the aged preachers. A preacher cannot save much. He does well if he educates his children. And he should not be allowed to suffer. The winter is coming on, but our Ministerial Relief Board will not be able to do much good unless the churches rally to it. If, however, every pastor who reads this will speak to his people on the subject and take up a collection, the result will be most gratifying.

The condition of our Ministerial Relief Board presents a good topic for the consideration of the lay brethren, and we would be very glad to hear from a number of them on the subject.

THERE are thirty-five young men on the Board of Education at Wake Forest College. These brethren are not gathered up indiscriminately; but they have been approved by their home churches and by their brethren as worthy of the assistance of the denomination toward fitting them to do their best in the high calling for which they wish to prepare.

IT COSTS nine dollars a month to support one young man through the Board, that is eighty-one dollars for a session of nine months. Knowing this, is it not rather to our discredit that the Board is in debt? If thirty-five men would give nine dollars a month, the Board would be able to carry these brethren without the assistance of the other 100,000 white Baptists in the State! If thirty-five churches would contribute nine dollars a month to the Board, the assistance of the remaining 1,500 could be dispensed with. And yet the Board is in debt with the whole State of 125,000 members and ample churches to support it!

ON DROPPING THE CABLE.

We were standing on Broadway in New York City. Down the middle of the crowded street came moving rapidly a cable car. It was evident that the earnest efforts of the motor man to stop it were unavailing. The grip upon the cable, which was gliding underground under powerful impulse, could in no wise be relaxed. Relentlessly the car ploughed its way through carriages and heavily laden trucks, pushing them aside, or leaving them wrecks behind. The next morning's papers told the story fully and recited the catalog of disasters.

Being in a meditative mood, we reflected, as we strolled up the street, upon what we had witnessed. Cable cars are an unspeakable convenience and blessing to hundreds of thousands of people in great cities, but when they forget when and how to stop, they are only nuisances. Grip,—not the disease, but the power to hold on—is a good thing as an element of success in life. It involves decision of character, and courage, and steadfastness of purpose. We are bound to admire it. But it may be overdone. The wise man will consider, not only how to hold on, but when to let go. Wealth comes not only from holding on to property, but from knowing when to part with it. So usefulness and happiness will sometimes be enhanced by letting go at the right time.

Well it is for that man or woman—especially the brain worker—who has learned to drop the cable of work when excessive fatigue puts up the danger signal. One of the most eminent of living surgeons said to us not long ago, "I have to work night and day, and to think carefully about what I am doing. The anxiety and the draught upon my sympathies is very great. Now and then I am aware of the beginnings of nervous prostration. Immediately I drop everything and give myself up to perfect rest." There can be no doubt that all of us can accomplish far more in a lifetime if we can learn to knock off from work before exhaustion begins.

Perhaps we all allow ourselves to be carried too far in feeling and imagination, and especially in conversation, because we fail to drop the cable, or at least to put the brakes on, at the proper point. We do not intend, when we begin, to say aught to our neighbor's disadvantage, or to pass the bounds of purity of utterance. But, borne headlong by the momentum of feeling, of good fellowship, of desire to entertain, we make the criticism, spread the scandal, tell the anecdote. And, afterwards, we blush when we remember that we allowed the cable of conversation to drag us on beyond the proper stopping point.

What can require more courage and self-denial than for a preacher to drop the cable of his sermon before he has said all that he had prepared and had intended to say—especially when he knows that his best things are in the part that he leaves out? But the motor man in the pulpit, if he is wise, will sometimes stop before his sermon is ended. It is very easy for the man of books and abstract thought to over-estimate the capacity for attention of the average audience. But, when minds and bodies are fatigued, and when attention is withdrawn, the chance to do good is passed. If the best thoughts were put first, would it not be easier to have the "good terminal facilities," which a railroad man once said were essential for a first-rate sermon?

Those who have had large experience in protracted meetings tell us that there is a point at which it is best to drop the cable of "special effort" and close them. This point, they say, is often reached before all interest has subsided. Because we are human, there are limitations to the emotional strain. Reactions are inevitable. Is it not usually better to close a meeting while, as yet, there is but little ebb in the tide, than to have it close itself after interest has culminated and declined?

It is just possible that men may sometimes keep too firm a grip on positions, when their work in them is done. Some could have retired with fortunes from their boom investments a few years ago. They held on too long and lost all. In the same way many a preacher, professor, agent, editor, who has labored wisely and well, could, at a certain point, have dropped the cable, leaving his work in good shape, and bearing away the savor of a good name. But it is possible to hold on long enough to undo some of our own good work. Along the cable lines are occasional signs for motormen, "Drop the cable here." No such plain directions appear for other workers. They are not needed. He who has his eyes open, and can exercise sound judgment, will demand no such imperatives. Not in a fit of discouragement, not because there may be a few malcontents, but because one can see for himself that his work at a place is done, he will see his opportunity and drop the cable.

THE interest that is being awakened in our Orphanage is very gratifying. We are looking forward to a day when every Baptist church and Sunday-school in the State will help support this great charity.

NEWS NOTES.

....Rev. W. H. Wilson has accepted a call to the church at Madison.

....We were glad to see Bro. S. W. Oldham of Chapel Hill in Raleigh Monday.

....Dr. C. Alphonso Smith has been called to the chair of English Literature and History (general) at Davidson College.

....Bro. N. B. Broughton has been helping Pastor Burgess of the Newbern Baptist Tabernacle in a successful series of meetings.

....Of course the RECORDER is looking for letters from those brethren who said they would pay up when cotton got back to eight cents.

....An epidemic of diphtheria at Washington, Indiana, has caused the State Convention for this year to be indefinitely postponed.

....Dr. Cobb filled his regular appointment at Pittsboro Sunday. One person was baptized and three given the right hand of fellowship.

....We believe the pastors can do a great work within the next few months putting the RECORDER into homes out of which low prices have kept it.

....Bro. D. G Smaw is sending out money cards asking aid for the Tabernacle church at Newbern. We hope those who receive them will respond promptly.

....There are a number of brethren and sisters who haven't answered the letters we sent them Sept. 1st. We want to hear from every one of them this month.

....General evangelistic meetings are going on in Baltimore. Revs. Wharton, Barron, Neighbour, Gregory, and a number of Pedobaptists are participating.

....The Epworth League (the Methodist B. Y. P. U. A.) proposes a federation of young peoples' societies. Organizations organized! Will they ever reach the limit?

....Dr. N. B. Cobb attended the Union Meeting of the Raleigh Association and got two new subscribers for the RECORDER. He also put in a good word and took up a collection for Ministerial Relief.

....Rev. H. Marris writes from Palmersville that he has resigned the pastorate of Poplin's Grove Baptist church, which he has served since last October. He feels that the Lord calls him elsewhere.

....Rev. W. H. Lawhon has baptized seven persons into the fellowship of Mt. Vernon Springs church, following a meeting held in August. Rev. K. C. Horner and Rev. J. R. Edwards took part in the meeting.

....I mentioned the program matter (at the Liberty Union), and the brethren think it best for every Union to select its own program, as different communities have different needs; what one church might need, another would not.—John A. Dunaway.

....Rev. J. L. Shinn spent last week in Statesville, aiding Bro. Church at the South End chapel. In the note last week about Bro. Shinn's meetings, we should have said there were eight additions to his church at Zion, not at Mt. Home, as we had it.

....We were glad to have a visit from Bro. T. B. Lanier of May, N. C., last week. Bro. Lanier has been subscribing to the RECORDER twenty five years, and he says he will take it as long as he lives. As a help in the training of his children he thinks it indispensable.

....Bro. J. C. Turner of Statesville, clerk of the South Yadkin Association, has had the minutes of his Association printed and distributed. It is very important for the clerk of every Association to be prompt in getting out his minutes. It ought to be done in ten days.

....Rev. T. Bright has just completed a series of seven revival meetings, lasting from July 19 to October 4. The seven churches with which he labored were greatly revived. There were more than one hundred professions of faith, most of the converts uniting with the church.

....We were glad to have a visit from Rev. A. L. Betts last week, who had been visiting his father at Varina. Bro. Betts is for the present located at Charlotte, and helping brethren Pritchard and Pruett in the meetings that are being held in the suburbs.

....Dr. R. H. Graves and wife and Rev. R. E. Chambers are on their way to China. It had been hoped that they might carry quite a number of recruits with them, but in the present indebtedness the Board does not feel justified in enlarging the number of missionaries.

....The calling together of the Texas Legislature and the prompt enactment of a law against prize fighting in good time to prevent the brutal exhibition which had been planned to occur at Dallas, will receive the applause of all right thinking people. Good for Texas.

....There is a sect in some parts of this country called 'Seventh Day Baptists,' here in North Carolina there is a numerous following of 'Thirty Day Baptists,'" said Pastor Carter of the Raleigh First church in a recent Home Mission sermon. His reference, of course, is to close communion preaching.

....We have received the new Mission Journal of the Southern Baptist Convention. It contains good reading matter, but is on the whole rather disappointing. We had hoped to see a larger and livelier journal.

....The Philomathesian Society of Wake Forest College has elected Mr. T. B. Hill orator, and Mr. S. B Cannady second debator for anniversary. The Euzelian Society has elected as marshals for the occasion D. S. Moss, L. A. Robertson, W. R. Sykes.

....We see in the Richmond Dispatch—a daily paper that seems to make a specialty of religious news and clean pages—that brethren Biggs and Hilliard of Scotland Neck have been to Rocky Mount to assist in organizing a Baptist church. There's an example for laymen.

....The acknowledgments of receipts for the Baptist Female University in another column will encourage every friend of that institution. $882 25 a month is a good standard to keep up to, and now that times are brighter we hope the brethren and sisters will come to the aid of this great enterprise.

....So far as we have seen, the Christian Index, Texas Baptist Standard, Baptist and Reflector and the RECORDER have expressed themselves as favoring the organization of a Southern Baptist Young Peoples' Union. We have been requested to add the name of Dr. O. F. Gregory of Maryland to the list of those selected to organize the Union.

....Henry M. Stanley believes in Africa, although he says he will not lead any more exploring expeditions. However, he made his first speech in Parliament in behalf of Africa, and has within the last two weeks become associate editor of a Methodist monthly devoted to evangelization of the Dark Continent.

....A brother—told us Monday that he came to Raleigh on the morning train from the West, on which he found six Wake Forest ministerial students returning from appointments. Two of them, brethren C. L. Greaves and E. J. Harrell had their first experience Sunday in administering the ordinance of baptism.

....Prof. John G Mills, son of Prof. L. R Mills of Wake Forest College, and Miss Sophie Lanneau, neice of Prof. J. F. Lanneau of the same institution, were united in marriage at Wake Forest Oct. 3d, pastor W. R. Gwaltney officiating. Brother Mills is teaching successfully at Franklin, Va. We wish him and his bride a long and happy life.

....President Cleveland has appointed Major General Nelson A. Miles successor to Lieutenant General Schofield, who retires from the command of the United States army. Gen. Miles is a Baptist, a member of the Clarendon Street Church, Boston. He does not become Lieutenant General, however, by the appointment, as that grade became extinct with the retirement of Gen. Schofield.

....No cleverer conductor than Captain J. B. Timberlake ever punched a ticket. He is known and loved by thousands of the travelling public who have received favors at his hands in his forty-two years of service on the Raleigh & Gaston railroad. Last week he retired for a well-earned rest, and was succeeded by Capt. Chevasse, who is said to be second only to Bro. Timberlake in cleverness.

....The inconveniences of their general meetings are sure indications that the Methodist and Baptist denominations are outgrowing themselves. For some years the question of representation has been a live one in the Southern Baptist Convention, and now Zion's Herald states that the next General Methodist Conference (North) will have to reduce its size; and it adds, "unfortunately the question is complicated with other questions."

....If we were asked to name the great causes of the low religious state of our churches we would place the "annual call" system that obtains among them at the head of the list. Our churches may continue to live after a fashion, but they will never prosper until they locate pastors in their midst on an indefinite call to serve them. Very few of our churches have pastors in any proper scriptural sense of the term.—Pee Dee Baptist.

....Dr. Pritchard told his flock last Sunday that while he had missed many prayer meetings, he had not been out of his pulpit on Sunday in a year and a half, except on such occasions as he was entitled to be absent; that is during vacation and when attending conventions. He also stated that in a pastoral history of forty years he had not had a like experience, and he doubted whether any pastor in this city or even in the State could say as much.—Charlotte Observer.

....The Protestant Episcopal church gains in membership about 3 3 per cent. per annum; the Southern Presbyterians about 3 per cent.; the Northern Presbyterians, 4 4 per cent.; the Congregationalists, 3 6 per cent. The Methodists and Baptists exceed these figures. When the Protestant Episcopal church assumes the title, "The American Church"—if it ever does—the rate of gain will be even less than the 3 3 per cent. of the present—that is, so prophets declare.—Nashville Christian Advocate.

....Rev. James Long has accepted the call to the Goldsboro pastorate, and enters on his work immediately. Goldsboro sets a good example in many ways, especially in her manifest determination not to be without a good pastor. Bro. Long graduated from Wake Forest in 1893, where he was awarded the Dixon medals for writing and oratory. He has since completed a two years course at Rochester Theological Seminary. Thus Goldsboro gets a pastor in whom is combined North Carolina conservatism and the highest learning. We welcome Bro. Long back to North Carolina and congratulate Goldsboro on securing him.

....We have heard many favorable comments on President Kilgo's lecture last Friday night at Wake Forest College. His subject was "Christ as an Educator," and the speaker won the hearts of faculty and students completely.

....Bro. L. H. Battle, who for several years has been teller in the Fidelity Bank in Durham, has moved to Charlotte to engage in the milling business. Bro. Battle was one of Bro. Tyree's best and most active church and Sunday-school workers. We congratulate Dr. Pritchard in securing him as a member of his church in Charlotte.

....The average age of the students in the Chowan Baptist Female Institute at Murfreesboro is about eighteen years, and one third of them are paying their own expenses with money earned by teaching before they entered and during the vacations. That institution has been and is still a power for good in Eastern Carolina, says the Patron and Gleaner.

....Messrs. Walters Durham, John H. Kerr and A. J. Taylor of Wake Forest College were licensed to practice law by the Supreme Court last week. These were the first candidates from the Wake Forest Law Department, and it is gratifying to know that they passed with great credit to their instructor, Prof. Gulley. There are now fifty-two students in the law department at Wake Forest.

....A great meeting has followed the forward movement at Morganton, just as might have been expected. Where his people work, God gives increase. Brother Church of Statesville aided Pastor Patton, and there were sixty professions of religion, forty one additions by baptism, and others awaiting the ordinance. The whole town was stirred, and our faith and doctrine gained a deeper hold upon the people.

....Good for the Seminary! Bro. W. R. Cullom sends the following: "Our Seminary opened yesterday (Oct. 1). There were 230 present on the first day, being forty more than we had on the first day last year. Dr. H. H. Harris made the opening lecture last night, and was then formally inaugurated as Professor of Biblical Introduction and Polemic Theology. There is a larger per cent. of college men among the new students than ever before, and they have begun their work like they mean business. North Carolina shows up well, having some fifteen or twenty men—don't know the exact number."

....Rev. J. G Pulliam writes: "Bro. F. M. Jordan was with us two weeks at Princeton in the hottest weather in September. He preached twice a day with power and demonstration of the Spirit. His youth seems renewed. He ploughed deep and broke up hard soil. There doubtless has never been such a shaking among the dry bones at that village before. The influence of this meeting has done wonders, and will do more, in many ways. Five were baptized. Two more to join on the second Sunday. I am expecting Bro. Jordan to join me in meetings again soon."

....We have a letter from Bro. Frank Royall of China in which he says the Chinese in his section still insist that they run the Japanese out of the country, and also that they have vanquished England and France, and there is danger now of other nations trying to overcome them. "The war," writes Bro. Royall, "was confined to a small territory; the outside world has made a great deal of it, saying that China will be opened up and railroads will be built, etc., etc.; but those who are here and see the situation known that no progress has been made with the exception of one or two places on the coast. Out here the people are as wild as they were one thousand years ago." Bro. Royall preaches and practices medicine on his field, and is meeting with good success.

....We thank a brother for the following interesting note from Chapel Hill: "Our pastorless church is keeping up its services, as best it may. Bro. Cade has rendered valuable help. Bro. A. Oree, Jr., has preached for us with much acceptance. Bro. J. W. Watson who preaches the gospel and teaches near us lately served the church by baptizing five interesting young people who some months ago made profession of their faith. Dr. Hume of the University of North Carolina has preached frequently and conducted the prayer meetings. The Sunday school under Mr. H. H. Horne who is now an efficient assistant in the teaching force of the University has had marked success. The Young People's Society is alive and well. We have not called a pastor yet."

....The following press despatch is of general interest: "Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 3.—The celebration of holy communion with which the Triennial Convention of the Episcopal Church was ushered in this morning was the most imposing event ever witnessed in a church of that denomination on this continent. Sixty bishops, attired in vestments of snowy white, with hoods of scarlet, purple and blue, occupied the chancel of St. Gethsemane, brilliantly illuminated with candles and fragrant with floral offerings. Eight hundred clerical and lay delegates and laymen occupied the pews in the church, while the front seats of the temporary galleries were filled with the wives and daughters of the visitors. Admission to the church was by ticket and a crowd of several thousand gathered on the outskirts to witness the arrival of the distinguished participants." One would think this is a meeting of the church of Rome, but it is not; it is only a good imitation. This convention will remain in session three weeks. Up to the present writing nothing of general importance has been accomplished, except a signal defeat of the faction which has been contending for a revision of the constitution and canons of the church. The effort to change the name of the church to the "Reformed Catholic Church" will not succeed. The Convention has voted an appropriation of $40,000 a year for work among the negroes.

....Rev. J. G. Bialock of Rockingham baptized twenty-five persons last Sunday into the fellowship of Rockingham church.

....Bro. A. M. Ross of Wake Forest College was the guest of Pastor Simms of the Raleigh Tabernacle Sunday. He was returning from an appointment near Raleigh. Dr. Simms gave the hand of fellowship to three persons at the morning service. Large congregations.

....According to the following the "Baptists" in England had better change their name: "Here in Great Britain," writes Rev. C. A. Elton to the Baptist Watchman, of Boston, "Baptists have the name and principles and piety and power, but they lack distinctiveness and the spirit of unity. Unbaptized persons are members of their churches in good and regular standing, often holding office, and among the largest contributors. Baptist ministers at communion, with a glorious nineteenth century disregard of scriptural precedent, extend an invitation to 'all who love the Lord.' Congregational preachers are pastors of Baptist flocks, and vice versa; and while, on one hand, our Baptist principles are strenuously stood for, on the other they are by precept and practice calmly ignored. There seems to be something in the air debilitating to anything like robustness of Baptistic life."

....Our Record, the neat and lively little paper of the Raleigh Baptist Tabernacle reports six additions to the church for September. We take the following items from the Record: Last Sunday Sept. 29, was surely a great day in the history of our school, in in some respects the grandest of all. The weather was delightful; at the opening hour, 9:15 a. m., nearly every seat was occupied, and before we closed more than a hundred were standing: 750 present; 80 new scholars; $35 76 collection. The crowded condition of our Primary Department so impressed the school that a movement was begun to build a large new room 30x30, and in the afternoon out of a small gathering of members the handsome sum of $450 was paid in and pledged toward the erection of said room. It will takes perhaps $1 500 to build and equip it, and it is proposed to press the matter to a speedy completion, so that the Primary Department, now numbering 204, may be in their new room by Christmas. —— On the first of July last, brother B. F. Faison passed into the 17th year of his remarkable record. For the 16 years past he has not missed a Sabbath or been late at Sunday school. If there is another one in the world with such a record we would be glad if the newspapers would find him.

GREEN RIVER ASSOCIATION.

The meeting of the Green River Association at Round Hill church in Rutherford county last week adde another to the pleasant and profitable meetings held during the present year. The meetings thus far held have been all well attended, and the interest shown in every department of the work has been most satisfactory and encouraging.

This was the fifty fifth session of the Green River Association, and we doubt if it ever had a more pleasant session.

The introductory sermon was preached by Bro. C. B. Justice from the text: "Verily I say unto, he that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do because I go unto my Father." The sermon was full of rich thought and helpful suggestions, magnifying as it did the dignity and power of Christ's followers.

I was reminded that this was not the ideal Association an account of which appeared in the editorial columns of this paper a short while ago. Letters were read from the churches; but we venture to predict it will not be long before the practice will prevail of sending the letters to the Clerk prior to the assembling of the body, so they can be tabulated and read by him in fifteen minutes of time when there is nothing else to do.

Dr. M. M. Landrum was again elected Moderator of the body. No one was surprised at this. The Doctor is now in good health, and is one of the very best presiding officers in the State. His fair and friendly ruling is helpful to every man who speaks in the Association. Bro. Rucker, the old Clerk, who for so many years has served faithfully and efficiently the Association, was again elected without a dissenting vote. Bro. A. L. Grayson, one of the best laymen in the Association, was re elected Treasurer.

The report on Periodicals was the first work of the body after its organization. Brethren Justice and Dent were very kind and helpful to us in getting subscribers for the RECORDER. We got a fine list of new names, besides renewing the subscription of old ones. The best work we ever did at this Association for the RECORDER was at this session.

The brethren gave Bro. Boone a royal welcome, and listened to him with much interest as he talked about the Orphanage. At the close of his speech a cash collection was taken amounting to $25 00, which is, we believe, the largest cash collection taken at any Association this year for the Orphanage.

The brethren were disappointed at not seeing Bro. Hufham, who was expected to speak especially on State Missions in the absence of Bro. Durham. This subject was, however, in good hands. There are a number of brethren in the Association who pu ak well, and the churches, as far as they go, are all loyal to and interested in, the subject of missions.

The report on Education was read by Bro. J. E. Denton, who also made a very practical and sensible speech on this subject. He was followed by Bro. Z. T. Whiteside who spoke for the Board of Ministerial Education. Bro. Whiteside made his own way through college, and knows the trials and difficulties that are in the way of a young man undertaking such a task.

The spirit of the meeting was fine, and we were sorry that it was necessary for us to leave on Friday evening instead of remaining over till Saturday.

NOTES.

The brethren are impressed with the points made by the account of the "Ideals Association." One brother who probably did not read to the end was very anxious to learn where the body met and who was the Moderator.

Bro. P. P. Price said: "I have been married fifty years, have raised five boys, have twenty-four grandchildren, and have never lost a single member of my family; have read the RECORDER for the last forty years, enjoy it more than ever before, and expect to read it as long as I live."

Bro. M. H. Justice, one of the best lawyers in the State, and who always adds interest to the Association by his crisp, earnest and straightforward speeches, was married to Miss Tanner the day before his Association met. He took the north bound train for a trip to the Northern cities, and so was excused from this meeting.

Bro. C. B. Justice: "If I am anything as a Christian worker, I owe it largely to what I have gotten from religious literature."

Bro. J. C. Price, a large lumber dealer, said: "I used to have partners in business; these were good, clever men, but some how we didn't get on well. I decided to take the Lord as a partner in my business. I put aside a portion of all I make to the work of the Lord, not as much I suppose as I ought to, and yet it has amounted to more than two hundred dollars the present year."

Union Meetings

Dear Bro. Bailey:—Your article, in last RECORDER, on 'Our Union Meetings" is along the right line. I have frequently been impressed with the difficulty of saying anything on some of the topics presented for discussion at our Union Meetings. Your idea to have a uniform program for the entire Convention is a good one, and let me suggest that a committee of our older and experienced brethren be appointed at Greensboro, whose duty it shall be to prepare such a list of topics for publication in the RECORDER, and any other papers which may be willing to publish them. I offer this as a suggestion, and hope the brethren will adopt some plan which may infuse new life into the Union Meetings.

This body will meet with Oliver's Grove church, two miles from Four Oaks Station, on the Wilson and Florence Short Cut Railroad, on Wednesday, Oct. 23d inst.

Brethren from the College, and from Raleigh, all agents of every name, and all good people generally, are invited to meet with us. We are expecting a rich feast of spiritual good, and your presence is desired.

W. B. HARRELL.
Dunn, Oct 4, 1895.

The attendance at the Union of the Central Association was better than ever before. Dr. Carter made a most excellent address on the question, Who is responsible for the lack of mission work, the pastors or the churches? The duty of Baptists to their Colleges and High Schools was clearly and forcibly stated by Prof. Poteat. Then Prof. Gulley, who said he was not prepared, but no one would have suspected this if he had not said so, told our people their duty to and interest in free schools. Sunday morning we had a Sunday school mass-meeting, which was participated in by a number of brethren. The denominational sermon by Dr. C. E. Taylor at 11 o'clock Sunday could hardly be excelled. Of its merits, however, the readers of the RECORDER, may judge, as we hope soon to print it in these columns. How can our country pastors best do pastoral work? was earnestly and practically discussed by Dr. W. B. Gwaltney. One of the most interesting topics of the meeting was the discussion by Profs. Denson and Ferrell on How can we interest all church members in the work of the church?

Gospel Tent Meetings in Charlotte.

Dear Recorder:—While Charlotte is noted for the number of its churches and the multitudes who attend church services there are perhaps, two thousand, of its twenty thousand, who rarely go to church. These are the operatives in the cotton mills, built in the suburbs of the city. The Presbyterians have erected chapels for the accommodation of these people and have organized Sunday-schools there, though they do not have regular preaching services. Now the great majority of these operatives are Methodists and Baptists, perhaps, more Baptists than Methodists, and they don't seem to take to the chapels, and brother Pruett and I have found it impossible to prevail on them to come into town to church. After canvassing the matter we concluded to get a tent and try to draw them to hear the Gospel in that way. I advertised in the Examiner of New York for a second hand tent. To this advertisement, I received an offer of a loan of a tent from the Rev. L. B. Plumer, of Altoona, Penn., and he was so kind as to come out and preach for us for a week. The tent caught the people and it has been full every night. For more than three weeks we have conducted a gracious meeting, with results that greatly encourage and gratify us. I do not know how many persons have professed faith in Christ, but I should think not less than a hundred, and the character of the meeting has pleased me as well as any in which I ever labored. We would just preach a plain simple Gospel sermon, then dismiss the general congregation, asking Christians who were willing to work to remain and all who were concerned about their souls to retain their seats, and then in a quiet after meeting we would talk to them, try to explain the way of life to them and at the close of each service request those who hoped that they were pardoned to confess their faith in the Lord. About forty have come into our churches, the most of them joining Olivet church, and we hope that others will be added. Next week we will pitch our tent in the Southern part of the city, two miles away from where it was, and we hope the Lord will bless our labor there as he has done in the Northern part of Charlotte. We are about to organize a Sunday-school where the tent was placed and hope, in the future, to build a church over there. The truth is, there is urgent need for two, if not three more churches in this city, which now has more white population than any town in the state, and I believe it would pay the State Board well to appoint a regular city missionary for Charlotte.

I have received a copy of the Georgia Index, containing an account of a Convention of Young People, held in Macon, Ga., of which Rev. J. L. White was president, at which gathering a movement was begun which looks to a general organization of the Baptist Young People of the entire South. A letter also has been sent me by Dr. B. D. Gray, of Birmingham, Ala., stating that Dr. Durham and myself had been appointed to meet other representative men in Atlanta, in the near future to carry out this project. As I was in favor of such an organization in Washington last Spring, I have no hesitation in giving my sanction to it now, and am glad to know that brother Durham, who was opposed to the movement in Washington, is in favor of this organization. I hope too, that it will have the hearty support of all our leading men, and of the RECORDER, especially.

Notes of Travel

Dusty, dusty! Was there ever a dustier time since the flood? My journey through Northampton began at Jackson, where I was again the recipient of many kindnesses. Bro. S. N. Buxton, though sick, showed the same deep interest in the great work, and put his horse and buggy at my disposal for nearly a week. A ride of thirteen miles, with dusty accompaniment, brought me to the pretty village of Rich Square. Here I found a gracious meeting in progress, which it was my privilege to attend for several days. Bro. J. E. Hutson was aiding pastor Creo, and the Lord greatly blessed the work. It was delightful to see the devotion of pastor and people to each other. There was a hearty and gratifying response made to private appeals in behalf of the Female University. The abounding liberality of one brother, specially, cannot be forgotten.

Going up to Woodland after Thursday night's services, I abode in the attractive home of Bro. J. E. Blanchard. Arriving at Gaitia church next morning I found a genuine, old-fashioned Union Meeting; with an attendance that made one think of an Association. There was one specially admirable feature of the meeting. The contributions of each church in the Bertie Union to every object of the Convention during the past three months, were read out, and they amounted to more than $1,360.

Saturday night was most pleasantly spent at Margaretsville in company with Bro. R E. Peele, who was preaching with power and acceptance in a meeting there. The latch string is on the outside of the home of Bro. Bridgers where we abode, and I shall be very much inclined to pull it again some time.

A ride of twelve miles Sunday afternoon in happy converse with Bro. C. W. Scarboro, brought me for the first time to the classic old town of Murfreesboro. I was prepared to see something beautiful, but the spacious and handsome grounds of Chowan Institute and the massive symmetry of the building, with its fluted pillars gleaming white through the trees, made an effect that was charming beyond all expectation. I was the guest of President Brewer during my stay in Murfreesboro and was immediately at home in the midst of his attractive family and a lovely of girls as bright and promising as the State affords.

A ride with Prof. Brewer down to Meherrin river revealed the fact that Murfreesboro is upon a bluff whose sheer descent is sixty feet. It is one of the best drained towns in the State.

The Institute has opened with a larger attendance than for several years past, and the young ladies seem to be in fine health and spirits. With our Baptist institutions throughout the State opening so well this year, we have great reason to rejoice and thank the Lord. It is one of the brightest auguries for the future.

Let our people throughout the length and breadth of the State be aroused to the importance of educating our young people—educating them in our own denominational schools.

The mighty influence of Chowan Institute in building up the Baptist cause in all the eastern part of the State, by placing cultured Christian mothers in so many homes, is, to my mind, one of the very strongest arguments why we should have a well endowed college for girls disseminating a like gracious influence into every nook and corner of the State. The door of opportunity to us as a denomination is opened wide. How soon shall we enter it?

Through the kindness of Prof. Brewer, I visited old Meherrin church, built and rebuilt away back in the 18th century, and several times rebuilt during the present century. Here in eastern Carolina we are constantly finding monuments of the early struggles and triumphs of Baptist principles. They should be the incentives to yet nobler attainment.

J. HARTWELL EDWARDS.

From Rev. Archibald Cree.

Dear Recorder:—We closed a very gracious meeting of six days last Friday at Rich Square, Northampton county, in which the fruits of many labors were gathered up. The Spirit seemed to be with us in power, God's people were refreshed, and the meeting resulted in the accession of twenty-five members to the church.

Bro. J. E. Hutson was the preacher, and faithfully and powerfully did he reason with the people of righteousness, temperance and judgment to come. There is something peculiarly reasonable and trenchant in Brother Hutson's appeals, and the savor of divine love so mingles with them all, that they are hard to resist.

Our converts presented a considerable variety, mature men and women, young men and maidens, and a few children. One of the most influential and respected business men of the town was a candidate for baptism and fellowship in the church.

I baptized in the church baptistery on Sabbath evening. The church could not seat all who wished to see and hear; and we do not wonder, the symbolic service is itself so impressive and significant.

Three were restored from the now defunct Parker church. On our removal to the new church at Rich Square, we sold old Corinth church to Rev. H Parker and a few brethren. After paying one yearly instalment they returned the deed, and have now dissolved. Those who were in sympathy with Bro. Parker have been gradually finding their way back to us. Others are coming, and we look for other baptisms also.

Our church at Rich Square is alive and is growing. We have faithful and devoted brethren and sisters to whom the Lord's cause is precious.

Devotional Meeting.

This feature should be the most prominent in our young people's societies. I do not see how there can be a vigorous one without it. Let us emphasize the missionary service, that will keep the streams from stagnation; let us put the doctrinal in italics, this will make us strong and self-respecting; let us see to it that due importance is given to the social, this will have the effect of unifying us; but the devotional puts us in communion with God, without which we will fail in the others. Special stress will be put on the part of the program devoted to this subject.

One of our best pastors, thoroughly in sympathy with the young people will lead our thoughts toward God in this service.

It is with our pastors to see that our churches get the benefit of this meeting by encouraging the young to attend.

Favorably Impressed.

Dear Recorder:—Your idea of a uniform Program for the "Union Meetings" of the Convention impresses me favorably. These meetings when well attended and properly conducted are more helpful to the churches than our Annual Associations. They are potential in creating healthy public sentiment, and are excellent training schools for the development of the gifts of our laymen.

A well considered program published a month in advance and kept standing in the paper, with the names of the brethren who are to lead in the discussions, would go far I think to increase the efficiency of the meetings, and the interest of the brethren in them. The committee should be located in, or near Raleigh—if you want to publish it I would like to name the committee. Here they are: C. Durham, C. E. Taylor, and J. C. Caddell. These men go over the state every year and know the needs of our several Associations.

Let us have a flexible, uniform program. It is a good spoke in this fifth wheel of our denominational polity.

Resolutions in Regard to Rev. J. E. Boone.

WHEREAS, Our Heavenly Father, by an act of his providence, has caused the severance of the connection which has existed between Cashie church and our esteemed brother and sister, Elder J. E. Boone and wife, pastor of Cashie church for the last two years; therefore be it Resolved, 1. That we bow with humble submission to the will of our Heavenly Father, though the severance to us is severe.

2. That we tender to our departing brother and sister our sincere thanks for their indomitable labors among us during their stay with us.

3. That we feel that our brother and sister need no commendation to the Baptist host; yet we wish to put ourselves on record as commending them to all with whom they may meet as workmen of the highest order and deepest sympathy for their fellowman.

4. That a copy of these resolutions be spread on our church record, sent to the BIBLICAL RECORDER, Charity and Children and Windsor Ledger for publication, and a copy be given our brother and sister.

5. That we pray God's blessings on the retiring brother and sister and us as a church till we meet at Jesus's feet.

Ordination.

At the request of Juniper Springs and Shady Grove churches, the deacons of the Wake Forest Baptist church recommended to the brethren of the Central Association assembled at Forestville church, the fifth Sunday in September to appoint a presbytery to examine and set apart Rev. E. J. Harrell and Rev. W. H. Davis to the full work of the gospel ministry; and pursuant thereto, the ordained ministers then present were by motion appointed to examine these brethren. This presbytery consisted of Revs. W. R. Gwaltney, D. D., W. B. Royall, D. D., D. C. Britt, A. W. Setzer, W. H. Rickman and L. N. Chappell.

After subsequent examination, these two brethren, E. J. Harrell and W. H. Davis, were on Sunday morning, Sept. 29th, set apart to the full work of the gospel ministry. Sermon by Rev. C. E. Taylor, D. D., prayer by Rev. L. N. Chappell, charge given by Rev. W. B Royall, D. D., and benediction by Rev. W. H. Davis.

To the Churches of the Raleigh Association.

As there is some misunderstanding in reference to the next meeting of the Association, the following is published for the information of the churches. With the amendment, which was adopted, the next meeting will begin on Nov. 28:

"Your Committee on Time, Place and Preachers for the next meeting of the Association beg leave to recommend Thursday before the first Sunday in November as the time; Hepzibah church as the place, and Rev. O. L. Stringfield to preach the introductory sermon; Rev. O. C. Horton, alternate.

"The report was amended by inserting 'Thursday after the fourth Sunday,' instead of 'Thursday before the first Sunday.' The report was then adopted."

Cost of Endowment Insurance Reduced.

For about ten years the old Union Central Life Insurance Company has been maturing and paying the full face of policies, for which they charged the insured the same as other first class companies charge for policies due only at death. We paid over $125,000 of them last year, and they did not have to "die to win."

We have for many years made the highest interest and lowest death rate, and by [illegible] points of economical management, we are doing more for our insured than any company.

Sunday in Minneapolis.

BY REV. B. R. LACY.

After a week of intense heat, aggravated by the fact that every northwesterner insisted that it was "North Carolina weather," which I hotly denied, and claimed our climate was the best on earth, Sunday dawned cold and rainy, with a wind that felt like it came from the Arctic regions. We rarely have worse days in winter, and why the water did not freeze I don't know.

We were the guests of a Universalist minister, and in spite of the weather we went with him to the Church of the Redeemer, first putting on our winter flannel and getting our overcoats on. This church is one of the most perfect specimens of Gothic architecture in the Union, built of gray stone, with interior finished in walnut. The pews are remarkably comfortable. I noticed that in every church I went there were pews instead of chairs. Dr. Shutter, the pastor is a young man, not over forty, and eloquent to a degree. His text was I John 2: 14, "I write unto you young men because ye are strong." He preached thirty-nine minutes, and I most heartily enjoyed it. There was a vein of love and duty without fear that permeated everything he said. He explained who should be considered young—it was not men of few years only, but those who were young in heart and feeling. Some people were born old, and the text did not suit them. Some, while their eyes were dimmed by the years, and hair whitening for the grave, were never old. The young live in the present and future, are alive and enthusiastic. The old live in the past and like to sit with hands folded and dream. He spoke of the Spartans going into battle singing while the Persians were whipped in, and although the Persians outnumbered them, the victory was with the Spartans.

Dr. Shutter's delivery is very fine, and his prayers were grand. There was no touch of the nineteenth century familiarity in his address to the great I Am, yet no cringing. His attitude was as if he felt he was in the presence of his father, at the same time a God. The congregation was different. No one stood up, none kneeled or leaned over. I could not help thinking of a North Carolina pastor who reverses the case. His congregation all get in a reverent attitude, bow their heads and shut their eyes, while he stands and prays with eyes wandering over the house.

The choir, four in number, were exactly behind the pulpit, with their feet on a line with the minister's head. A lady presided at the organ. At one place they chanted the Lord's prayer beautifully, and to my surprise they had responsive reading. And I guess it will surprise my friends when I say that I took in the whole service, responding and all.

After service we went into the pastor's study, which opens into the church, and is as pretty a sanctum sanctorum as I have ever seen. Then we went below to the kitchen. Every church of any size has a kitchen in the basement. It had a large range, and pile upon pile of plates, dishes, etc. Between the parlors, and also between the Sunday school rooms, were partitions made of wooden curtains, like desk tops, that could be run up out of the way.

The magnificent stone building; the delightfully well heated, well lighted, soft-seated interior; the perfect accoustics; the beautiful marble angel, kneeling with a baptismal fount in extended hand, made in Italy, and a present from a millionaire; the handsomest memorial windows I have ever seen; the chanting choir, and the "answering back" service, all fade from the mind when I think of the real pleasure of the sermon. It was love without fear—no doctrine to provoke antagonism.

At night we attended Dr. Hunter's church, or rather his services, held in the theater. He is the most eminent Presbyterian divine in Minneapolis. I felt at home, but came near making myself very conspicuous by standing during prayers. That circumstance blunted to some degree my home feeling. Like the Universalists, they sat with heads erect, but I think most of them shut their eyes, and seemed to have more confidence in their pastor. It was a song service. The choir consisted of two male and two female voices, a cornet and a piano, and I suppose gave us some very artistic music.

Dr. Hunter did not take a text, but gave a fourteen minute's account of his three month's vacation in the Green Mountains.

On Monday I visited a Methodist church which seated 1,800 in church proper, but when the partitions between it and the Sunday-school room were raised it seated 3,000. It also had parlors and kitchen.

I venture to offer you a few brief notes, that you may know how our time has been occupied.

FORESTVILLE.

This is my childhood's home, and here is the church into whose fellowship and care I was baptised and received, at whose request I was ordained and set apart to the gospel ministry.

Here I rejoiced with joy to find that under the pastorship of Bro. W. B. Royall, the church old church is still maintaining its good record, and stands third in point of liberality as compared with the other churches of the Central Association, notwithstanding she is not numerically or financially so strong as some of her sister churches in this Association. Notwithstanding the many dark days and vicissitudes through which she has passed, Bro. Royall's long and successful pastorate has led her, under God's blessings, through many dangers and trials; and for which he justly receives her highest esteem and confidence as pastor and preacher. And I understand why these brethren and sisters gave so good attention and sympathetic interest to my talks which I have made them on China and the foreign mission work.

ROBESON ASSOCIATION.

The four weeks spent in Red Springs were pleasant and helpful. I learned what an enterprising place this is, and how rapidly the Baptist cause is progressing here under the efforts of Brother Keuler and his faithful brethren and sisters. We shall never forget the kind welcome we here received, and at the Robeson Union meetings of June, at Siddle Tree church, and also by the brethren and sisters of Spring Hill church. And judging from the pressing invitations given me to visit other churches I should have been likewise treated at other churches had it been possible at that time to visit them. I hope it may be my privilege to do so hereafter and address them in behalf of our Foreign Mission work in China. I regret to hear that Robeson Association is to lose Bro. Livingston Johnson from the number of her many able pastors and preachers, but I think his decision to go to Greensboro is a wise one. While his churches in Robeson suffer a great loss in his removal, I think the church in Greensboro needs him most, and I pray God to bless his work for Christ at that place. We regretted to miss the Chautauqua, but the heat of July constrained us to seek refuge for a few weeks in the cool hills of

YADKIN.

This is the land of choice fruits and abundant harvests. The trees were breaking under their luscious burdens, the fields smiling under exuberant crops of all kinds; and I found this large hearted, hospitable people rejoicing under these material blessings from God. And while they need much to cultivate the grace of giving to the Lord's cause, I think their eyes are turning towards an advance movement in missionary work.

The churches to whom I presented the claims of China gave me good attention and good reasons to believe they would do more for the Lord's cause than before. The Yadkin Association agrees to raise four times as much for Foreign Missions as she has done the past year. I trust she will do so.

Why do not some of our young ministers from Wake Forest settle in this Association, and give these undeveloped churches a mighty impulse towards denominational education and church beneficence and missionary activity? What a grand and glorious field for any young minister who is willing to work hard on a small salary, and with the promise of great development of church activity in the years to come! Some one should take the place left vacant by Bro. J. E. Green, who has recently been called to higher service from his work at Elkin.

On our return through Winston we were glad to meet brethren and sisters in the First and Broad Street churches; and at Greensboro had the pleasure of hearing Bro. L. Johnson preach so as to give the brothers and sisters of that church great joy at the thought of the good preaching before them as soon as he should settle among them.

And here we are again in Forestville.

What will our churches do the coming year for Foreign Missions as a thank offering to God for the blessings of abundant crops?

From Bro. Tatum of China.

Dear Recorder:—The death angel has come into our immediate midst again. This time the summons was for our most experienced and useful native evangelist, Bro. Sia Tsung Kong.

Tuesday night of last week I heard through a mutual friend, who came to bring him some medicine, that our Sunday-school superintendent, Bro. Wong Sing San, was sick. On going to his house I found he was prostrated with diarrhœa, and his little baby boy was thought to be dying with the same disease. The medicine was left, and I returned home to watch our little daughter, Joy, who was taken with choleraic diarrhœa the day her sister Eva died. In a few minutes there came an urgent call for me to go see the above named Brother Sia. From what he said I feared he had cholera. I prescribed "Sun Cholera Mixture," but was obliged to leave him to be his own doctor. He took one dose, but did not retain it. He then let the disease take its own course. Early next morning he sent for me again. This time I took a missionary friend, temporarily in Shanghai, with me. On reaching his house we found one of the evangelists' little girls had cholera also. My friend prescribed, and we in turn administered medicine Wednesday, and till 4.45 p. m. Thursday, when our brother died. The little girl seems to be recovering. The mother and five little girls are left without any means of buying daily bread.

Our brother was a student under Dr. M. T. Yates. He had been preaching for more than ten years. Many a time have I listened to his preaching with deepest interest. Habitually he was very polite and considerate of the feelings of others, but when he was preaching the gospel he hewed to the line and let the chips fall where they might. We can see how he has grown in grace during the last year even. He used to drink wine in the Chinese way. Last autumn and winter when he with another native brother, Bro. Bryan and I, went to the country to preach he would drink wine for dinner. We never lost an opportunity to tell him of a better way. One Sunday later Bro. Bryan was preaching from "Quench not the Spirit." During the sermon he showed how we might quench the Spirit by wine drinking. At the close Bro. Sia arose and said that if wine drinking would keep him from being filled with the Spirit—and he admitted that it might—he would never drink any more wine. And he kept his word.

Bro. Sia enlisted the greater part of the fifty and more names of enquirers lately spoken of. He knew them by name, and knew the hopeful cases among them. How we shall miss him in the work here, but God in wisdom and love has seen fit to put him into the perfect, glorious service.

Our brother Wong Sing San, referred to above, is able to be out after a week. He came to call on me yesterday. His child still lives, and he has some hope that it may recover. Our little daughter, Joy, is so far recovered that she has been out for a short time on two occasions. We have good hope that she will soon be well again, though her present feeble, wasted condition is quite a contrast from her usual good health. Mrs. Tatum and I have kept fairly well. We have been obliged to be extremely careful with our diet, eating little or no meat, fruit or vegetables. Miss Kelly has come to see us most every day, and has been very kind and helpful.

Perhaps some would question the wisdom of exposing one's self to such a dreadful disease as cholera. No doubt one known case in an American city would put thousands to flight. The doctors assure us that there is no danger if we do not eat the germs down our throats. The chances to do this are legion. Hence the necessity for care. After exposure, we take a bath and change clothing. It is said to have been demonstrated that a fly may walk among cholera germs and then on food and leave a deadly bait for the consumer.

The black plague was in the South, the war was in the North, the riots were in the West and South. We read, and are reading, of them in the newspapers like you do. But the pestilence of cholera, contemporaneous with many neighboring cities, has come into our midst, and we have seen a part, not the worst, of what it means.

May the Lord, by his own good Spirit, enable his people to love the unlovely and help the helpless in seeking to save China from filth and disease of soul and body.

FITS CURED

(From U. S. Journal of Medicine.)

Prof. W. H. Peeke, who makes a specialty of Epilepsy, has without doubt treated and cured more cases than any living Physician; his success is astonishing. We have heard of cases of 20 years' standing cured by him. He publishes a valuable work on this disease which he sends with a large bottle of his absolute cure, free to any sufferer who may send their P. O. and Express address. We advise anyone wishing a cure to address, Prof. W. H. PEEKE, F. D., 4 Cedar St., New York.

I send designs to any address free of expense. In writing for them, always give age of deceased and some limit as to price. All work warranted first-class and entirely satisfactory.

SUBJECT FOR OCTOBER: INDIANS.

"We have waited for Him and He will save us." Missionaries in Western Arkansas, Indian Territory and Oklahoma, among the whites and Indians, 70; churches and stations, 848; baptisms, 1,591; Sunday-schools, 80; teachers and pupils, 2,042.

Study Topics.—Their past history. Their past possessions. Their past sufferings. The past injustice of the white man's dealings with them. The present status of Indian Missions and governmental control. The present transition stage and opportunity. The future of the Indian.

We are glad to be able to give below extracts from letters from our missionaries, both in China and Mexico. News of the Chinese massacres of which we have learned through the newspapers some weeks ago, had reached Miss Moon only a few days before her second letter:

TUNGCHOW, P. O. CHEFOO, CHINA, August 8, 1895.

Our work seems very encouraging. There have been already as many baptisms here and at Hwanghein as there were in the whole North China Mission all of last year. The people were never so friendly and so accessible.

We had three baptisms last Sunday. One was Mr. Wang, who came with his wife from Tientsin to ask for baptism. He has given the church here nearly 150 Mexican dollars. One hundred is meant for the support of a native evangelist and wife.

TUNGCHOW, CHINA, P. O CHEFOO, August 14, 1895.

Dear Miss Heck:—We have been filled with horror by the brutal massacre of ten Church of England missionaries by Chinese roughs in Central China. The victims were mostly single women. A man and wife and one child were burnt to death, one child's eyes (baby) gouged out, and another severely injured. Besides the killed, several were severely wounded—a most base and cowardly affair. Surely England will not let it pass without demanding full satisfaction and justice. The Swedish consul, who condoned the murder of two Swedes some three years ago, is probably responsible for the present reign of terror in Central West China.

Affectionately, L. MOON.

CANTON, CHINA, Aug. 16, 1895.

In September, our work will commence again after the hot weather in good earnest.

The Chinese brethren will come to Canton for a month's study with Bro. Simmons; and we hope for a large attendance of Christian women at the "Woman's Class," which will be in charge of Miss White. I am preparing to assist her some in this work.

All the other workers will be busy in the country at the different stations.

We hope to welcome Dr. and Mrs. Graves back early in October. All along we have been hoping they would bring out some reinforcements with them.

We were greatly shocked at the news of the massacre of English missionaries near Foo Chow on August 1st. How my heart aches at the thought of what poor Mrs. Stewart must have suffered during the brutal assault on her helpless little children!

None of the children were killed on the spot, but two injuries received. But you will see a full account in the papers.

SALTILLO, MEXICO, Sept. 8, 1895.

We have matriculated this session at Madero Institute even one hundred girls. Our teaching force was cut down in December by Miss Cabaniss' removal to Orizaba. This made the work fall heavier on those of us who remained. We have only three single ladies with us this year, Misses Hayes, McDavid and Barton. Miss McDavid is housekeeper, and consequently cannot do as much teaching as she could otherwise. My twenty music pupils, with two babies and household duties, occupy me fully until after four in the afternoons. Then frequently I am too tired even for the loved house-to-house work which I feel must be done.

Recently we have received quite a number of small gospels which were selling through the city at three cents each. I always carry them when I start on my visits and have never yet failed to sell at least a few.

Our church is having a hard, brave struggle this year in trying to be self-supporting. We called a native pastor in January, Mr. Pable Rodriguez, and the church determined, with the help of the Lord, to pay his salary, besides pledging twenty five dollars, for Foreign Missions and the same amount for Home Missions. Considering the extreme poverty of the majority of the members, this is a brave stand. We are proud of having a missionary in Brazil, supported largely by the efforts of the Mexican churches. How glad we are that DR. Willingham has promised to be with us at our annual mission meeting, which will be held here on the 26th, 27th and 28th of this month.

September 10.—Some days have passed since the above was written. I had some interruption that night and put aside my letter, thinking I would finish it the next day. When next day came, I was too unwell to be up and have continued unwell for more than a week. To day, however, I am some better, spiritually as well as physically. It would have made your heart rejoice had you been with us last Tuesday and seen the happy conversion of seventeen of our girls. Six of these have been in the school for years and until that day were scoffers and fanatics. They are now happy Christians.

Our whole city is being stirred by the preaching of a Mexican minister of the Presbyterian church in Mexico City. The Protestant churches here in Saltillo have united in having him come and preach for us. He is a wonderful man and full of the Holy Spirit and an example of what the gospel can do for these people. Ah! how many prayers have been offered and how many tears have been shed for the conversion of these our girls! We asked especially for fourteen and the Lord gave us seventeen. I feel as if I must trumpet the good news to the ends of the earth. It is well worth a life-time in Mexico just to have witnessed the conversion of these girls. Showers of blessings are being poured out upon us. Blessed be the name of the Lord.

Your sister in Christ,
MAY BAGBY RUDD.

In Memoriam.

On September 3d, at her home in Wadesboro, after a brief but painful illness, the spirit of Minnie Lee Webb wended its heaven-ward flight in obedience to the call "Come up higher."

Just in the prime and vigor of young womanhood, when life seemed so full of hope, and when she gave promise of so much usefulness as a Christian, she is suddenly taken from us. When she felt that the summons had come she expressed herself as perfectly willing and ready to go, saying she had long since made her preparations.

God's ways are not our ways. They are past finding out. We cannot understand his strange dispensations, but we must remember that he in his infinite wisdom doeth all things well.

In the death of Miss Minnie the Woman's Missionary Societies of the Wadesboro Baptist church and of the South Wadesboro Chapel lose one of their most earnest and useful members. She was for a long time the efficient Secretary of the former, and President of the latter from its organization. Her whole Christian life has been devoted to the cause of the Master. When the Chapel Sunday-school was organized she offered to teach, saying she didn't know much about it, but she was willing to try. And what a faithful teacher she proved to be! Not even the deep snows of winter nor the intense heat of summer ever kept her away from this work. Her class told the one who has taken her place there that she had never missed being present unless she was out of town. She has been known to leave company at home to attend to this duty. If put on duty in the Society work she always responded readily and gladly, only wishing she could do better. At a meeting when the little tract, "Aunt Margarett's Experience," was read, she said, "I am so glad I heard that; hereafter I intend to spend less for myself and more for the Lord. I am ashamed that I have not done it before."

Minnie was not endowed with any special talents. She was only an ordinary girl like the many others in our churches and Societies, but she used the talent the Lord had given her for his honor and glory. She performed to the best of her ability whatever she believed to be her duty. This, then, is the lesson to be learned from her life, that God does not always choose those who are most liberally endowed with special gifts to do his work, but that he accepts and blesses the efforts of his humblest children. May her example be an incentive to the young women of her church to go and do likewise.

Though gone from earth, she is yet working, for the young men of her church, knowing this to be her great desire, have given an organ to the Chapel Sunday school which she loved so well.

MRS. FRANK BENNETT.

There are now about 250,000 Indians all told. Two thirds of these are in various stages of civilization, and beyond the need of special help, though still calling for the ministries of Christian love. The other third are wild and degraded, and must be lifted up and qualified for citizenship. The simple basis of all thought and activity in their behalf is that the Indian is a man, and is capable of all of which man is capable, in character, in culture, in industry, in mental and moral achievement. The truth of this has now been so abundantly demonstrated that it is beyond controversy. As speedily as possible the Reservations must be abolished, the Indians put upon their own lands in severalty, with the responsibilities and opportunities of individual ownership, and with the freedom that belongs to them as men in whatever calling in life they may choose to enter. Civil service reform must be extended to all who are put over Indian affairs, from the highest to the lowest appointments, and the Indian himself translated from wardship to complete citizenship. —Examiner.

In the "olden time" the Governor of Pennsylvania, by proclamation, offered bounties for the scalps of Indians, as follows: For every male above ten captured, $150; for every male above ten scalped, being killed, $130; for every female or male under ten captured, $130; for every female under ten scalped, being killed, $50.

In 1708, Carolina gave a gun to every Indian who would kill another Indian.

North Carolina is the only Southern State which has an Indian Reservation, 65,911 acres or 113 square miles in the western part of the State being set aside for a remnant of the Cherokees now numbering 3,000.

We have been doing this class of work for more than twenty years, and are familiar with the proper arrangement, and with the names of the brethren, &c., and when we print them the work is not only well done, but the Minutes are correct.

It would be better for all the work if the Minutes of all the Associations were printed at one place.

NEWS SUMMARY.

North Carolina.

A new furniture factory has been started in Thomasville. The forthcoming report of the Commissioner of labor statistics will show that this State stands third in the South in number of cotton factories. There are 200 in the State.——In the Circuit court of the United States the suit of the Bonsack Machine Company and the American Tobacco Company against Smith & Son's was decided in favor of the defendants, which, it is said, will destroy the American Company's monopoly of the cigarette business.——The State Supreme court licensed fifty one new lawyers to practice law last week.——Frosts last week injured uncut tobacco in the Piedmont section, and drouth has injured cotton and corn.——The Southern Railway has secured control of the Alabama Great Southern railroad including the Queen and Crescent. This gives it way from Chatanooga, Tenn., to Meridian, Miss., and from Cincinnati to New Orleans.——Some years ago Lawrence Brown, a merchant of Wilmington willed all his property (about $10,000) to the Roman Catholic church. In the Superior Court of New Hanover last week the heirs of Brown entered suit for the money and got a favorable verdict; but an appeal was taken.——340 young women are reported to have registered at the State Normal and Industrial School, and it is said the limit (about 400) will be easily reached.——The North Carolina railroad track will be greatly improved by the Southern Railway.——A $10,000 fire occurred in Newbern Oct. 4, the property being dry house of the Blake Lumber Company.

In General.

Louis Pasteur, the most distinguished of French chemists and biologists, is dead. He was one of humanity's foremost benefactors. It was he who discoved that fermentation is more than a chemical process—that it depends on the production of vital organisms. To him we owe much of the knowledge of inoculation as a cure of disease; and he is popularly known for his successful treatment of hydrophobia by inoculation. From his investigations others have developed present methods of treating diphtheria, typhoid, cholera and tuberculosis. He also demonstrated the error in the theory of spontaneous generation; which put aside the belief that skeptics were clinging to, that there could be life without some antecedent life.——Hjalma Hjorth Boyesen, the Norwegian-American novelist, died Oct. 4. He was one of the foremost living men of letters, a ripe student of English literature and master of many other languages As a writer of short stories he has been widely read.——The aggressive measures England is taking to get redress for China's wrongs inflicted upon her subjects will be sufficient to secure safety for missionaries many years. The head officer of the province in which the massacre occured has been degraded, and several participants in the murders have been executed. Others are being tried.——Public sentiment—which had turned with pity for the Armenians and with indignation against their persecutors, the Turks—has undergone considerable change within the last few days. The Armenians are in revolt at Constantinople, the capital of Turkey, and there has been much rioting and considerable bloodshed. It is said now that the Armenians desire to make trouble in order that Great Britain and other nations may be aroused to further restrain the Turks. The Armenians do not conceal that they earnestly desire Great Britain, France and Russia to to take a more active part in the administration of affairs in Armenia.——The University of Chicago begins this year with an enrollment of 2,000 students.——Electric carriages may now be seen in Paris frequently.——Lieutenant Peary has returned from his two years' voyage in the region of the North Pole. He succeeded in going farther than anyone ever did, and made new explorations of Greenland; further than this his voyage was fruitless, and it is said that he will not go again on account of the hardships which face artic explorers.——The Liberty Bell has been shipped to Atlanta. This is the first time it ever came South, and it was received with enthusiastic patriotism where ever it stopped. On its return it will stop at Charlotte and Greensboro, N. C.——Business of every kind is looking up. Gold exports have ceased, and there is no danger of a bond issue. The tariff is raising sufficient revenue to meet current expenses. Cotton selling from 6 to 7 cents, corn 30, wheat 58 to 60, oats 18, pork 8.35.——The situation in Cuba is unchanged. Conflicting reports come every day, but it is likely that neither side is making progress. Spain will land 25,000 men in Cuba next month.——The South Carolina Convention has adjourned to rest a few days. It refused to bar the negro from holding office, but will abridge popular suffrage.——Our Washington authorities have notified Great Britain that she must respect the rights of Venezuela, which some take as signifying that President Cleveland is determined to see that the Monroe Doctrine is lived up to.——Gen Wm. Mahone of Virginia is at the point of death.

I call your special attention to a new policy issued by the Union Central Life Insurance Company. It is admitted by all who examine it to be the finest plan they have seen. State age, and write to Paralysis.

FOLLOWS BLOODLESSNESS AND NERVOUS PROSTRATION.

From the Press, New York City.

For more than fifteen years, Mrs. A. Mather, who lives at No. 48 East One hundred-and-twentieth Street, New York, was a sufferer from anæmia, which, in spite of the treatment of physicians, gradually developed into nervous prostration until finally marked symptoms of paralysis set in. Mrs. Mather gladly gave the reporter her experience.

"For many years," Mrs. Mather said, 'I was a constant sufferer from nervousness. It was about fifteen years ago that my condition began to grow worse. Soon I became so affected that I was prostrated and, until about two years ago, was a part of the time unable to leave my bed. I employed several physicians from time to time, my bills at the drug store for prescriptions, sometimes, amounting to as much as $50 a month, but all the doctors did for me did not seem to help me at all. My blood became greatly impoverished and after years of suffering I was threatened with paralysis."

"When I walked I could scarcely drag my feet along and at times my knees would give away so that I would almost fall down. Feeling that doctors could not help me, I had little hope of recovery, until one day I read in a newspaper how a person, afflicted almost the same as I was, had been cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I purchased a box and began taking the pills. The effect of this first box pleased me so much that I bought another. Before I had taken all the pills in the first box I began to experience relief and, after the third box had been used, I was practically cured. It was really surprising what a speedy and pronounced effect the medicine had upon me."

"I always keep Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in the house now, and when I feel any symptoms of nervousness find that they give me certain relief."

When Mrs. Mather talked with the reporter, she was dressed for the street, intending to go out for a walk. She looked the picture of health, far different than she did before taking the Pink Pills.

Mrs. Mather's daughter corroborated her mother's account, and told how she herself had been cured of chronic indigestion by these pills; and, too, how her cousin had been cured of anæmia in same way.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price, (50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50) by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

Rev. R. E. Peele in South Carolina.

Dear Recorder:—Our meeting which closed recently was conducted by Rev. Robt. E. Peele of Wilmington, N. C., and throughout our congregations were large and attentive. We have received one by restoration, and seven for baptism, while others will probably follow.

Mr. Peele is plain man, but as a preacher he has points of excellence that are rare. At times he says things that are a little grating to sensitive ears, but he is a man of deep piety, strong convictions, ripe experience and of burning religious zeal. He believes and preaches the doctrine of grace with all the fervor of his ardent nature. He reads the Scriptures almost wholly from memory, and his comments are instructive and strikingly suggestive. His prayers are short, simple, searching and specific. In preaching, his style is earnest and sympathetic. Every movement of the man shows this. Much impressed himself, he is anxious to impart his convictions of truth to others. From the heart's experience, he speaks to the heart. He is animated. His interest in his subject never flags while he is before an audience. His words are well chosen and his thoughts are presented with a clearness, conciseness and force seldom equalled. He is graphic. He loves to impersonate character. At times he grows impassioned, and reveals the instincts of the true artist, painting things in life like colors. He speaks of soldier, or prophet, or saint, or apostle as if they were present, living, breathing, acting before your eyes. Sometimes his thoughts and manner are so striking as to almost startle. He is a reasoner. His arguments are clear, cogent, logical and convincing. He is, also, fair. From premise to conclusion, he appeals to the judgment of his hearers. He announces his subject, states his propositions, and, beginning, develops his subject gradually but vigorously, until he has reached a climax, where he stops: not because he has finished his subject, but because he has "talked long enough," literally taking Dr. King's advice, "Say your best things first, and stop before you get prosy." Finally, preaching is spiritual and scriptural. He sticks close to his text, and his text he confines to the teaching of the other Scriptures. His mind delights in speculation, but he is always careful to state that his opinion on a subject is not God's Word. He delves deep into the Scriptures, and brings up things both new and old. His sentences are short and terse, abounding in aphorism, epigram and simile, while behind almost every fibre of his argument is the Scripture framework upon which the validity of his statements is made to depend.

Truth, thus presented, will linger in the memory of men, and, in coming years, will live in their hearts.

"Work done for God, it hath not."

While here, Mr. Peele's sermons were nearly all expositions of Scripture, and they were of the highest merit. The sermons on Joseph, Gideon, Paul, The Temptation, The Kingdom, The Crucifixion, The Sermon on the Mount, and The Judgment to Come, were all powerful and convincing. It is my conviction that as a series of expository sermons, I have never heard their equals. They were "a mental and spiritual feast," said his presence a benediction in our home and community. May God add many years to his life.

Resolutions in Reference to Rev. Jno. A. Wray.

At a called meeting of the Broad Street Baptist church after the regular service on Sunday night, Sept. 22d, 1895, the following resolutions were passed in regard to the departure of Bro. John A. Wray:

WHEREAS, God in his providence has called our beloved pastor, Bro. John A. Wray, into another field of labor which he feels it his duty to accept and obey; and whereas, as a result we are called upon to yield to the orderings of God's hand and sever the relation which he has sustained to us. Therefore, be it

Resolved, 1. By us as a church and congregation, that in severing this relation, we desire to express to him our love and gratitude for the faithful service he has rendered to us as an earnest and loyal expounder of the Scriptures, as a worthy and acceptable pastor, and that in leaving us he will carry with him our sympathy and prayers for the blessings of God upon his life and labors.

Resolved, 2. That we do most heartily recommend him to the confidence and esteem of all with whom his lot may be cast in his future work; and that a copy of these resolutions be given him, and that the same also be spread upon the church record, and also sent to the BIBLICAL RECORDER and North Carolina Baptist for publication.

Good Meetings.

I spent August holding meetings with my four churches. I determined to preach the gospel with all my soul; I did it, and never was so blessed. There were nearly one hundred converts, and sixty five were baptized.

The meetings were all good, especially at Love's Creek. I never was in a meeting of such spiritual power. Its blessed influence will go with us through life, and children unborn will feel its effects. The Lord be praised for such a meeting. Revs. E. A. Poe and J. R. Edwards, one or the other, assisted me all the time, both doing most excellent preaching.

Our Association (Sandy Creek) was harmonious, and a good, spiritual feeling pervaded all its proceedings.

Dr. C. Durham added greatly to the interest of the occasion, and his sermon on Sunday morning was the best of the feast.

Yes, let the Association include Sunday. You will never have a meeting if you wait for people to quit courting. That argument proves too much. And, further, who can attend an Association all the week and then reach his appointment to do much good? How is one Sunday one-twelfth of a minister's time? After I preach five or six weeks, I don't think it is wrong to miss one Sunday. Let God's people be there and be in the spirit of the Lord on the Lord's day, as John was on the Isle of Patmos, and they will receive, if not a new revelation, a new inspiration. Many brethren leave on Saturday; they should stay hereafter; they missed a spiritual feast on Sunday.

My school at Mt. Vernon Springs is doing fairly well. The outlook is good. We are hoping to do much permanent good by working on the hearts and brains of the youth of the land.

Atlantic Association.

The A. and N. C. R. R. will sell low rate tickets to the Atlantic Association which meets in Kinston, Oct. 15th to 16th, and be good to return until the 21st. The round-trip fare from Morehead City will be $3.45; Croatan, $2.25; Newbern, $1.75; Core Creek, 80 cents; La Grange, 60 cents; Goldsboro, $1.50.

Brethren, let us pray for a good meeting, and go with the determination to do more for building up the kingdom of God on earth than ever before. Let us go to the Association, and be sure that good-natured Bro. Spilman will welcome you and do all in his power to make the Association an enjoyable and beneficial success.

SAMUEL J. PORTER.

Newbern, Sept. 30, 1895.

Report of Meetings.

Dear Recorder:—Since our meetings have closed, I will send you a short report of them.

Our first meeting was at Corinth. There were very large congregations all the week. There was much interest among the members of the church, and also among the unconverted. Rev. A. A. Butler was with us and did good work. Thirteen were added to the church—eleven by baptism, and two restored. The church was greatly blessed and strengthened.

Falling Creek had crowded congregations. From five to fifty asked for prayer every day. Two were baptized. Bro. Butler was at his best here, and preached the gospel in power, purity and simplicity.

I went from Falling Creek to Piny Grove. I got there Wednesday and found the brethren and sisters had been meeting since Sunday in meetings for prayer. One had joined the church. Rev. R. C. Sanderlin was with us three days. He did good preaching. The writer did most of the preaching. At the close of the meeting, eight were baptized, one was restored, and two were received from sister churches.

At Island Creek the Holy Ghost was with us in convicting and converting power. The congregations were very large. Bro. Butler was with us one week and preached the gospel with power. After he left, the writer went on with the meeting four days, and at the close of it we led twenty-three down into the baptismal waters, and they put on Christ in baptism. To God be all the honor and glory.

I was with the people of the Second church of Goldsboro last Sunday morning and night and preached for them.

A. J. TAYLOR.

Mt. Olive, Oct. 2, 1895.

The Pope very graciously invited the world to become Roman Catholics. The Archbishop of Canterbury gravely replied by inviting all to become Episcopalians. But who that reads the Bible can fail to see that we can have no millennium till all the world are Baptists!—Western Recorder.

DIED.

HOLLOMAN—Bro. Kindred Holloman was born Oct. 11th, 1814, and died Sept. 24th, 1895. For more than a half century he was a faithful member of Ahoskie Baptist church, and though he rarely ever spoke in public, he enjoyed the confidence of his brethren, and many of us sought his wise counsel. His was a quiet life, and but few knew his real worth. His delight was to talk of the goodness of God. Among the last things he said was, "God is merciful; I am trusting him."

Although he was confined to his room for a long time, I never heard him complain, and when his sufferings were very great his prayer was that the will of God might be done.

About four months ago he sent for his pastor and told him just how he wanted to be buried. Said he did not want a funeral—only wanted a portion of God's word read and prayer at the grave. He talked as calmly about dying as if he were only preparing to take a journey. He loved the Saviour and his brethren, and we fully believe that he is at rest.

He leaves an aged wife, ten children, and a host of friends to mourn their loss, but their loss is his eternal gain.

"Brother, thou art gone to rest,
And this shall be our prayer,
That when we reach our journey's end,
Thy glory we may share."

B. C.

CARMER—Mr. Jas. W. Carmer, a native of Martin county, N. C., and who spent most of his early life in Newbern, N. C., died at his home in this city this morning at one o'clock, at the age of seventy-six years. He came to Baltimore about twenty-five years ago and joined the firm of Boykin, Carmer & Co., and was actively engaged in the wholesale drug business with the above firm until four years ago, when he retired on account of failing health. He was in many respects a noted man—his habits were perfect in all respects. Of the highest order of integrity, he always had a contempt for a mean act, and looked with disgust upon men who had no regard for their pecuniary obligations. Being honest himself, he was inclined to be too credulous, and, unfortunately, in consequence of this characteristic, he was often victimized by those who should have been his grateful friends. Among his many virtues, one of the most noteworthy was his energy and constant application to business. Through his long business career, in Newbern and in Baltimore, in retail and wholesale business, he preferred his place of business to any and all others, and nothing but the influence of his wife or nearest friends could induce him to leave his work for as much as a day. By education and inclination he was a Baptist, though not a communicant. He was regular in his attendance at most of the services of the church, and always a liberal and willing contributor. In conclusion, I am glad to be able to say that, all in all, Mr. Carmer was one of the purest, best, and most unselfish men I have ever known.

THOS. J. BOYKIN.

Baltimore, Sept. 26, 1895.

Tributes of Respect.

WHEREAS, It has pleased our Allwise Father to remove from our midst on Aug. 20th, 1895, our dearly beloved sister, Hattie Lemay, aged twenty years, daughter of Hubert and Frances Lemay; and while to us the death of such a friend and child of God is an unseen mystery, yet believing our Father knows best, we say, "Thy will be done." Therefore be it

Resolved 1. That we, the Sunday-school, do deeply sympathize with the family and friends of our departed sister, and ask God to strengthen and comfort them in their sad bereavement.

2. That in the death of this faithful worker Island Creek church and Sunday school will sustain a great loss.

3. That we urge the young people of her church to follow her example in looking to God for help in all their trials and troubles.

4. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the parents of the deceased, and a copy be sent to the BIBLICAL RECORDER for publication.

Sister Ann Farthing was born in Wilkes county, N. C., March 11th, 1812, and died in Caldwell county, N. C., January 2d, 1895. Sister Farthing joined the Baptist church at Beaver Creek, Wilkes county, at the age of twenty years, and remained a member of that church a number of years, when she transferred her membership to Bethel church, Watauga county, at which place her membership remained a long while; then she transferred her membership to Yadkin church, Caldwell county, where she remained a consistent member until her death. But being an invalid for a number of years previous to her death she was often deprived of meeting with the church she so much loved; but she devoted a large portion of her time to reading God's word and religious literature.

Sister Farthing was a patient sufferer, always willing to bear her bodily afflictions, and expressed herself perfectly willing to submit to the will of God. "The Lord gave and the Lord hath taken away, blessed be the name of the Lord."

Resolved 1. That we humbly submit to the will of him who never errs.

2. That in the death of Sister Farthing this church has lost one of its most pious members, and the community a good neighbor and friend.

3. That a copy of this obituary, with these resolutions, be spread upon the church record, and a copy be sent to the BIBLICAL RECORDER with request to publish.

BUFFALO LITHIA WATER

In Uric Acid Diathesis, Gout, Rheumatism, Bright's Disease, &c.
Its Nerve Tonic Properties.

Dr. Harvey L. Byrd, of Baltimore, President and Professor of Obstetrics and Diseases of Women and Children in the Baltimore Medical College, formerly Professor of Practical Medicine, etc.

"I have witnessed the best results from the action of the BUFFALO LITHIA WATER Spring No. 1, in Chronic Gout, Rheumatic Gout, Rheumatism, Gravel and Stone in the Bladder, and I do not hesitate to express the opinion that in all diseases depending upon or having their origin in Uric Acid Diathesis, it is unsurpassed, if indeed it is equaled, by any water thus far known to the profession.

"It is an admirable general tonic and restorative, increasing the appetite, promoting digestion and invigorating the general health. It is powerfully anti-acid and especially efficacious in what is commonly known as acid dyspepsia. It is strongly commended to a very large class of sufferers by a peculiar power as a nervous tonic and exhilarant, which makes it exceedingly valuable, where there is nothing to contra-indicate its use, in all cases where nervous depression is a symptom.

"It has an ascertained value in Bright's Disease. A knowledge of its action in that disease thus far would seem to warrant the belief that it would in many instances, at least in its early stages, arrest it entirely, and in its more advanced stage prove a decided comfort and palliative."

Dr. J. S. Wellford, Professor of Diseases of Women and Children, Medical College of Virginia:

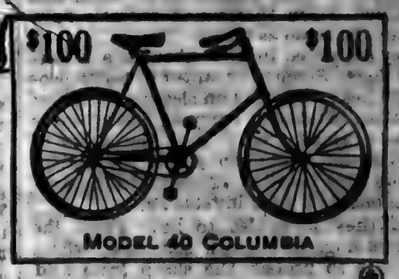
"I have paid a great deal of attention to Urinary Troubles, and have frequently and freely prescribed the BUFFALO LITHIA WATER in their treatment, with the very best results. In all the various forms of the Uric Acid Diathesis, whether as well-formed Gravel, Gout, or the milder forms of Gouty Dyspepsia or Nettle-rash, in their variations, I know of no mineral water which I consider at all equal to that of Spring No. 1.

"In many Skin Diseases of old age, dependent on the Uric Acid Diathesis, such as Eczema, etc., this Water acts most beneficially."



This Water is for sale by druggists generally, or in cases of one dozen half-gallon bottles $6.00 f.o.b. at the Springs. Descriptive pamphlets sent to any address.

A Prayer.

Father, take not away
The burden of the day,
But help me that I bear it
As Christ His burden bore,
Who cross and crown He wore,
And none with Him could share it,
In His name, help, I pray.

I only ask for grace
To see that patient face,
And my impatient one
And that mine grow like His,
Sign of an inward peace
From trust in Thee alone,
Unchanged by time or place.

He wrote a book; its title now forgot.
He ruled a city, but his name is not
On any tablet graven, or where rust
Can gather from disuse, or marble bust.
He took a child from out a wretched cot,
Who on the State dishonor may have brought,
And reared him in the Christian's hope and trust.
The boy, to manhood grown, became a light
To many souls, preached for human need
The wondrous love of the Omnipotent.
The work has multiplied, like stars at night
When darkness deepens. Every noble deed
Lasts longer than a granite monument.

How Fritz Became A Hero.

Fritz was a little brown water spaniel dog, with a coat as soft and glossy as silk, and a dash of purest white on his neck.

Joe Brown had bought him when he was but a few weeks old, and for two years they had been boon companions. Rip Van Winkle could could not have loved his faithful Wolf more than Joe loved Fritz.

Every night, about six o'clock, he listened for Joe's familiar whistle, and, as soon as he heard it, away he scampered down the street, barking and jumping with delight. Joe had taught him to play hide-and-seek with the children, and take his turn at "blinding" by lying down and closing his eyes until Joe's whistle announced that they were "ready." Then sniffing along the ground, he followed the scent until he found some one of them, and then back to the goal.

Shall I tell you why Fritz and the children were such good friends, and had such good times together? It was because they were always so kind to him, and never kicked him about nor whipped him.

Joe often gathered the children of the neighborhood about him, and told them stories of brave deeds performed by dogs, and had shown them that dumb animals have feelings the same as people.

They delighted to hear about the Esquimaux dogs, which are trained to carry people and heavy burdens on sledges for miles and miles, often also carrying heavy loads on their backs. They take the place of horses in that land of snow and ice, and so swift do they run that explorers in the Arctic regions find them invaluable.

And they love also to hear about the shepherd dogs in Eastern countries, whose duty it is to protect the sheep from wild beast. So trusty are they, that often a shepherd will send a flock of sheep to pasture in charge of a faithful dog, the sheep following his bark as they do the shepherd's call.

But best of all did they like the story of the brave St. Bernard dogs in the Alps, which are sent out from a monastery far up among the mountains, after a hard snow storm, to search for any travelers who may have lost their way and become benumbed with the cold. These noble dogs start out two by two, and many, many lives have they saved.

Joe's audience never tired of these stories, and he often ended his story by patting Fritz on the head and saying, "And my little Fritz is just as true and noble as any dog, and perhaps he'll be a hero some day, won't you, Fritz?"

And now I must tell you how Fritz did become a hero.

Joe was eighteen years old, and was obliged to support his mother and three younger sisters. He arose every morning at six o'clock, and had trained Fritz to call him so that his mother might not be disturbed. Fritz was as punctual as clock work. He climbed the stairs softly, jumped up on Joe's bed, and licked his face and hands until he awakened. One cold morning in December as Fritz started up stairs he smelt smoke, and his first instinct was to run away from it. But he knew that Joe was up there, and almost with the instinct of a human being, discerning the danger of his beloved master, he darted up stairs, rushed through the little hall, which by this time was black with smoke, jumped into Joe's bed, and pawed frantically at the bed clothes, whining and crying piteously.

Joe turned over sleepily, but Fritz was so wild and excited that he started up, and, to his horror, saw that the room was filled with smoke, and the next instant saw the flame burst from the room in which two of the children were sleeping.

In shorter time than it takes to tell, he rushed into the room, snatched the children from the bed, the mattress of which was a flame, just in time to save them. He could not get down the stairs, but shouted to his mother that they were all safe, then rushed to the window and lowered Sue and Ethel to the men below.

No sooner did he see Sue safe in the fireman's arms than he fell back into the room in a dead faint, so great had been the strain.

The people below were awed with horror, and instantly two ladders were place to the window, and two strong men climbed them. There upon the floor was the unconscious form of Joe, and the faithful Fritz gnawing madly at his neck and crying in his wild way to rouse his master.

Both were carried down the ladders just as the flame burst forth behind them.

Fritz was, indeed, the hero of the hour, and such shouts and cheers as greeted him would have done honor to a warrior bold.

"Didn't I tell you," said Joe, when it was all over, "that it pays to be kind to dumb animals."—Exchange.

Church Etiquette.

There is such a thing as church etiquette, and the lack of it is quite as noticeable as a breach of good manners in any other relation of life. Right behavior in church should be as religiously observed as are any of the rules and regulations of polite society elsewhere. It is quite certain that our conduct at church has not a little to do in deciding the measure of blessing which we may hope to receive, and has a very direct influence upon the minds of those about us.

The following suggestions are not altogether new, but they deserve frequent repetition, in view of the fact that they are so often and so flagrantly violated, even by those who would be quite offended if directly informed that they were guilty of such violations of good manners. We should always be reverent and attentive, and in all things we should try to be "an example of the believers."

1. If possible, be in time. You need at least five minutes after coming to get warm or cool, to compose your body and mind, and to whisper a prayer before the service begins.

2. Never pass up the aisle during prayer or Scripture reading. If you do, your presence will distract the minds of many in the audience.

3. Be devout in every attitude; all whispering should be studiously avoided. Find the hymn and sing it if you can. Share the book with your neighbor. If in a strange church, conform to its customs of worship.

4. If the sermon has begun, take a seat near the door, no matter if you are "at home."

5. Be thoughtful for the comfort of others. Take the inside of the pew, if you are the first to enter, and leave all vacant space at the end next to the aisle.

6 Speak a bright, cheery word to as many as possible at the close of the service. If you are a stranger, ask one of the ushers to introduce you to the pastor or to some of the church officers. This will always insure you a hearty welcome.

7. Never put on your coat, overshoes, or wraps during the closing hymn, and do not make a rush for the door immediately after the benediction is pronounced.

8. There should be no loud talking and jesting after the service is concluded. They are as much out of place in the house of God as at a house of mourning.—Sel.

Having A Plan.

Having a plan must go before doing a work. If a man does not know just what he wants to do, he is not likely to do it. A plan does not grow in a man's mind, as he works at details, without a well defined purpose that includes those details. Unless a worker in leather knows at the start whether it is a shoe or a saddle that he wants to make, he is sure to waste time and material at every step in his course. A skilled writer is not prepared to shape his first paragraph until he has a well defined idea of the object and outline and conclusion of his essay or of his volume. Most of the waste work of the world is a result of beginning to work without a plan that includes the middle and the end of that which is begun.—Sel.

Rights of the Baby.

He has right to be "well-born." He has a right to healthful blood and clear brains, not those impoverished and befogged by dissipation, narcotics, and alcohol. He has a right to a happy, healthful mother—one not exhausted by overwork. He has a right to your first care and thought—baby first, self last. He has a right to be kept sweet and clean, that he be not repellant to those about him. He has a right so be "mothered" every day of his little life, not turned over to the mercies of the average ignorant hired nurse. He has a right to your deepest sympathies, that you may, during his developing, enter largely into his joys and griefs. He has a right to wise discipline, since, if undisciplined and uncontrolled in his infancy and childhood, his future may be hampered by faults his mother should have corrected. He has a right to a good, general education, that life's best gifts may be fully appreciated. He has a right to the cultivation of any special talent with which he is, by nature, endowed.—Interior.

I am as strong this day as I was in the day that Moses sent me. Josh. xiv. 11.

There is no way of retaining one's youth like being in God's service, in cheerful, trustful obedience. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." The path of duty is often a rough one; but it is always the safest path in the universe. Knowing that he is where God wants him to be, a man is sure that he can remain there unharmed so long as God wants him to remain unharmed. Doubt as to one's course of duty is a sure cause of chafing worry. There is no need that any one of us should wear out his life through doubt on this point.—S. S. Times.

Confusion as to the choice of a blood-purifier is unnecessary. There is but one best Sarsaparilla, and that is Ayer's. This important fact was recognized at the World's Fair, Chicago, 1893, being the only blood-purifier admitted to be placed on exhibition.

THE people are no longer burdened with over taxation, at least if they are, they no longer cry out. We have heard no word raised against the tariff in half a year. Forgetting that their attention has been absorbed by another subject, and arguing on the usual lines, we may believe that the tariff is entirely satisfactory; for the people always let it be known when they are not satisfied with a political measure. Indeed the tariff is more generally satisfactory than even its friends expected. Graded on the admirable principle which all parties will finally come to, of "tariff for revenue only," for several months it failed to bring in the desired amount of revenue, and on this ground was said to be a failure; but commerce is looking up now, and in the month of September there was a Treasury surplus of $3 000,000. This encourages us to hope that the revenue will continue to be sufficient, so that in the event of a turn in politics the tariff will not be molested. And it is likely that no party will molest it for several years; for so opposed are the people to change in this respect (not because they are pleased with this particular tariff, but because any prospective change would bring about an uncertainty which would paralyze business) that it would be suicidal to any party to call in the next campaign for revision of the tariff.

IT is impossible to estimate the number of people who have obtained employment in picking the cotton crop and gathering the corn; but it is sufficient to know that no few communities have found it difficult to get extra negro labor since the season began. Labor statistics in factories, mines and factories, however, can be easily gotten; and a careful investigation has revealed that wages of 400,000 men have been increased since March 4th, when Congress adjourned, and further that increase of wages is now going on at the rate of 40,000 a month. Congress adjourned March 4th; and this fact is used (and reasonably) to show that uncertainty as to what a legislative body will do has a bad effect on industry. It is also said that this improvement is due to the new tariff, and also to improbability of a change in our financial system for a year or more. It seems to us, however, that it is best not to attribute it to any one thing. Just as a series of evils produced the business paralysis of 1893, so we must look in more than one direction for our recovery.

ENCOURAGED by the splendid achievements of Roosevelt in equitably enforcing the laws of the city of New York, citizens of Chicago are taking steps to have their laws likewise enforced. There is no telling how much good Roosevelt will do if he keeps up his policy. The benefits that are conferred on the great city which is directly under his surveillance are nothing compared with the benefits conferred on the cities and towns of the whole nation, as shown by the steps now being taken in Chicago. It is a great thing to vindicate a principle, and especially when the scene of action is a great city, and the principle involves the majesty of the law and the justness of its enforcement. This is what has been done in New York. Not only this, many cities, which have had open saloons on Sunday because big cities had them (the motive being like that which prompts the small boy to smoke a cigar) may now follow the example of New York and close the doors of their saloons on Sunday. It is bad enough to have them open in the week, but we rejoice at every step that is made toward total closing of saloons.

God's Superiority an Incentive to Faith.

BY REV. W. O. WILLIAMSON.

"For their rock is not as our rock, even our enemies themselves being judges." Deut. 32: 31.

Our text is from the poem entitled "The Song of Moses," delivered to Israel probably on the day of his death.

Nothing in the poets of ancient Greece or Rome can surpass it in its touching pathos and its beautiful and graceful imagery. Its parallel can no where be found save in the plaintive words of Job, the seraphic Isaiah, or in the prayer of Habakkuk.

The greatest man who ever lived in any age—a man who gave liberty, law, government, nationality and a religion to Israel, who had loved and nourished them as a father his children, delivers them an affectionate farewell. In doing so, he recounts God's dealings of mercy with his people—his patient forbearance and his loving kindness. He tells them that the Lord's portion is his people and that Jacob is the lot of his inheritance. "He found him in the desert land and in the waste, howling wilderness—he led him about, he instructed him, he kept him as the apple of his eye." "The Lord did lead him, and there was no strange god with him. He made him ride upon the high places of the earth." Such is some of the beautiful and sublime imagery of this poem.

"For their rock," &c. This phrase must claim our attention briefly in passing. The language is figurative and denotes strength, permanence, solidity and security. Palestine abounded in rocks and mountain fastnesses, which in times of imminent danger constituted, to a good degree, the strength of the country. In times of impending calamities, when their enemies made sudden irruptions into their land, the people fled to the rocks for safety. The remnant of the Benjamites, who escaped extermination by the other tribes, found shelter in the rock Rimmon. So David, when hunted by Saul found a refuge in rocks, as at Maon, Adullum and Engedi. And as these rocks were an asylum and a refuge whither the people retreated for safety, so God is a refuge and an asylum to his people. Hence Isaiah says in the Lord Jehovah is the Rock of ages (Is. 26: 4). David says, "The Lord is my rock and my fortress." And again the prophet Isaiah, looking down through the vista of time, sees the coming Messiah as the promised Rock of Ages, and exclaims, "Therefore, thus saith the Lord, behold I lay in Zion for a foundation stone, a tried stone, a precious corner stone, a sure foundation; and he that believeth on him shall not make haste." Such is the glory and the excellency of the Rock Christ Jesus. Moses is deeply impressed with the superiority of Israel's Rock to that of their enemies. Hence he adds to show the worthlessness of his enemies' rock, "For their rock is as the vine of Sodom and of the fields of Gomorrah: their grapes of gall, their clusters are bitter, their wine is as the poison of dragons and the cruel venom of asps." This is the sad experience of those who reject the immutable Rock of Ages.

The superiority of Israel's Rock had been conceded by their enemies.

When the Canaanites heard of the plagues in Egypt, the overthrow of Pharaoh and his hosts in the Red Sea, the crossing of Israel over dry shod, the miraculous supply of manna and quails, and the defeat of Amalek, they lost all courage and became as dead men. And when Joshua with the ark of God and his people crossed the Jordan and the walls of Jericho fell down at the blowing of the ram's horn, the stoutest hearts quailed with fear.

"Who is a rock save our God?" Who can estimate the excellency of the glorious gospel of the Son of God? Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard the things which God hath revealed through his Son to those who believe on him. The excellency of this Rock beggars the description of angels. This Rock is infinitely superior to all others.

It transcends all human wisdom and all human systems of religion.

What could human wisdom tell of the great problems of redemption? It knew man was a sinner, but could not tell how he could be reconciled to an offended God. Communication between heaven and earth had been broken off by sin. Human wisdom could not divine how it could be restored. Man grasped in midnight darkness for four thousand years. His future destiny was involved in gloom and uncertainty. There was no hope beyond the grave. "If a man die, shall he live again?" They could not tell. The worst superstition influenced the greatest minds: even Socrates, while discoursing upon the immortality of the soul just before he drank the hemlock, ordered a cock to be offered in sacrifice to Esculapius, the god of physics. So dreadful was the idea of death, that the ancient Romans referred to it in the most indirect manner. And the Apostle Paul represents the heathen as being all their life time subject to bondage through fear of death. There was no way for them to be reconciled to the loss of friends. "Inhuman decrees an inexorable fate demands it," said a heathen orator and statesman, as he stood around the grave of his son. He could not exclaim with Job, "The Lord gave, and the Lord hath taken away," &c. He knew nothing of the reunion of redeemed spirits in a heavenly state. He could take no comfort from those words of Paul to the Thessalonians, "Let us not sorrow as do others who have no hope," &c. He knew nothing of the glorious doctrine of the resurrection. He could not exclaim with old Job, "For though after my skin worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God." It is the gospel that hath brought life and immortality to light. One page of divine truth is worth here more than all the folios of the ancients. The immortality of the soul and the resurrection of the body are matters of pure revelation. The enemies of religion may cavil and sneer, but cannot disprove these grand doctrines. The analogies of nature and the teachings of true science justify these doctrines. Hence, proud, vaunting reason is humbled before the doctrines of the cross.

It transcends infinitely the teachings of infidelity.

Skepticism and infidelity will do for some men in this world, but not for all who profess to hold it. Witness the state of man in the absence of all religion. Burn up the Bible and close the churches. What then? A hell on earth. What of your boasted science? Unsanctified knowledge is the power of hell. But what of the future? "Godliness is profitable unto all things, having the promise of the life that now is and of that which is to come." How with infidelity? Has it anything to comfort man in affliction or brighten his pathway to the tomb? The lives of most infidels are a refutation of their creed. Hobbs said when dying, "I am taking a leap in the dark." "O God, if there be a God, have mercy on me," said Thomas Paine. It is said that Voltney in a storm on Lake Erie prayed fervently. Ethan Allen of Revolutionary fame advised his dying daughter to trust in her mother's God. The philosophic and speculative Hume, who had unsettled his mother's religious principles, had no consolation to offer her in prospect of death, but advised her to return to the Church of England. Lord Byron a year before his death said:

"My life is the sere and yellow leaf,
The fruits and flowers of love are gone."

He had no peace of mind nor hope for the future. Voltaire finds a complaint against Providence itself and wishes he had never been born. The pious Halyburton thanked God that he had been born. Who ever heard of a faithful and devout Christian regretting in his dying hour that he had trusted in Christ?

Infidelity has been described as a religion without a moral tolerant. Like Noah's weary dove, it finds no place upon which to rest the soles of its feet. It has no panacea for the ten thousand ills to which flesh is heir. It cannot bridge the chasm sin has made. It has no Jesus, no atoning sacrifice for sin, no satisfying faith, no peace with God through Lord Jesus Christ, no pardon bought with the blood of the cross, no sanctifying Holy Ghost, no immortality, no heaven. It is cold, cheerless and dreary as the polar regions. It is a dead, putrid corpse that cannot be galvanized into life.

It is the religion of Jesus infinitely surpasses all the the world can give.

You may be content to have your portion in this world. But there is a vacuum which the world can never fill. It cannot give the bliss for which we sigh. The soul is not satisfied with swine's husks. The soliloquy of one who possessed every avenue to worldly grandeur and happiness was "All is vanity and vexation of spirit." Man that is in honor abideth not. His glory will not descend after him. Will you amass wealth? Remember the rich fool. You may heap up riches, but know not who shall gather them. Will you indulge in the pleasures of sin for a season? "Rejoice, O young man in thy youth, and let thy heart cheer thee in the days of thy youth, and walk in the ways of thine heart, and in the sight of thine eyes: but know thou that for all these things God will bring thee into judgment." The world speaks of no pardon bought with blood—gives no peace to the guilty conscience—no consolation in death. It is a broken reed—a broken cistern that hold no water. The dying Frederick of Saxony said: "I see neither truth, nor love, nor faith, nor any good under the sun." How mutable is all of earth! "For the fashion of this world passeth away." But Jesus is the Rock that abideth forever. He is the Stone cut out of the mountains without hands. His kingdom shall subdue all others and stand forever. "Upon this rock I build my church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." Job speaks of the floods moving the rocks, but this is immovable. "How firm a foundation ye saints of the Lord." All other other foundation is as sinking sand, but this has stood the test of all the ages. It has been tried by friends and foes, and it stands stronger to-day than ever. It has stood the fires of persecution, the assaults of infidelity and science falsely so called.

Who will build upon any other rock? "Lead me to the Rock that is higher than I." It will lift me up above the plain of sin in this world and finally to heaven where the consummation of Christ's prayer will be realized: "Father, I will that those whom thou hast given me be with me where they shall behold my glory." Oh! the excellency of the gospel! It has made the desert to rejoice and blossom as the rose, the wilderness and the solitary place to be glad. It has bound up broken hearts and opened the prison houses of despair. It has changed the lion into the lamb. It has lifted up the fallen, and rescued the drunkard and the libertine from destruction. It has elevated communities and nations from the lowest degradation to the highest civilization.

When an African chief sent to Queen Victoria to know the secret of England's greatness, she sent him a beautifully bound copy of the Bible with these words written upon a fly-leaf: "This is the secret of England's greatness." "For their rock is not as our rock, our enemies themselves being judges."

A Good Work.

I present below a letter to which I ask special attention. It was not written for publication, but only as a report to me of work done. I wish to make a request.

NEW CHURCHES.

I wish every one who has aided in the organization of a new church in the State since December 1st, 1894, to write and give me the facts—name of the church, number of members, the Association and county in which located.

NEW HOUSES OF WORSHIP.

I wish a full report from some one of the location and cost of every new house of worship finished or being built this year. Will not the pastor, or missionary, write me these facts at once?

REPAIRS ON HOUSES OF WORSHIP.

I need the same full report about all repairs that have been made since December 1st, 1894.

Do not, brethren, take it for granted that some other brother will write me. If you know of any facts along the line of the above request, will you not write me about them?

Please read the letter below.

C. DURHAM.

WORK ON THE COAST—WHALE'S HEAD.

Dear Bro. Durham:—I enclose herein the report of Bro. S. B. Overton, missionary employed by our Camden and Currituck Union Meeting to labor two and a half months on the coast. His field embraced Gallington Islands, Kitty Hawk township, and the Southern end of Roanoke Island. In addition to the $10.00 reported collected on the field, our Union paid him $30 00 in money, and gave him $3 00 of tracts for distribution, receipts for which will be sent you by our Treasurer.

Now let me tell you of our work in the Regions Beyond.

Rev. Samuel Saunders and I held a meeting at Whale's Head during the last week in August, resulting in the organization of a little church at that place.

Whale's Head is a bright little community of twenty or more families clustered about the White House of that name, and No. 6 Life Saving Station, and is in the extreme north east of our State, close to the Virginia line. About half of the residents are in government employ, the others make a comfortable support by gunning, fishing, stock raising, &c. A few of the favored ones are paid good livings to occupy and care for the club houses of millionaire Northern sportsmen. This is the paradise of ducks, geese, and swan, and rich men from the North have purchased nearly all the marshes, and built themselves luxurious houses, in which they spend their winters in order to hunt the water fowl that literally swarm in these bays and sounds. The coast, too, North and South, is more or less inhabited, and quite a number of people came from a distance to our meetings. There were five professions of conversion, and three baptized. With these and the resident Baptists a church was constituted last Wednesday, Dr. Crerby going with me and aiding in the organization. This is the only Baptist church I knew of on that strip of beach running the whole length of our coast, separating the sounds from the ocean, and, like the Beacon Light in whose radiance it stands, is set up for the illumination of the people. May it forever shine, warning sinners of impending danger, and guiding storm-tossed souls into the harbor of divine truth!

They have a good house already built, lacking only ceiling and benches to be complete. This mainly through the self sacrificing labors of one man, who collected the money, hauled the lumber first in his boat, and then over the sands in his cart, built the house and gave the land.

A Sunday-school has been organized and supplied with literature. I have promised to go to them once a month and preach for them on week days until they can do better.

The Grace of Giving.

The sea of Galilee, receiving the Jordan on one side and pouring it out on the other, has its waters clear, pure, and full of life, while the Dead Sea, receiving the Jordan and giving out nothing, has waters black as asphaltum and barren of life. The church whose pastor refuses to train them in the grace of giving will become a Dead Sea; the curse of God resting upon it; while the church whose pastor continually teaches them to give, as they receive, will be like the sea of Galilee, full of life and beauty. To live we must give.—Rev. A. C. Dixon.

The fact that Satan has so many agents should at once put us on our guard. The police are generally looking after men who have more than one name.

The Baptism of Paul.

BY REV. J. C. ALDERMAN.

"And immediately there fell from his eyes as it had been scales: and he received sight forthwith, and arose, and was baptized." Acts 9: 18.

Question: What does the history of Paul's baptism teach?

Answer: That the rising up and baptising are closely connected. Dr. Armstrong says: "In the original, the language is much more definite than it appears in the English version." On the expression "arise and be baptized," (literally, standing up, be baptized), and "he arose and was baptized" (literally, standing up, he was baptized), Dr. J. H. Rice remarks correctly: "According to the idiom of the Greek language, these two words do not make two different commands, as the English reader would suppose when he reads, arise, and be baptized. But the participle (ἀναστὰς, literally, standing) simply modifies the signification of the verb; and, therefore, instead of warranting the opinion that Paul rose up, went out, and was immersed, it definitely and precisely expresses his posture when received baptism."

The above I find in a booklet entitled "The Shield of the Young Methodist under Examples of Baptism." Verily, I am always glad to learn. And though I have studied Greek a few years, I have only learned this special Greek idiom which makes the Greek participle anastas in the above passage "definitely and precisely express his posture when he received baptism."

But I am glad to learn, and so I turned to Luke 1: 39, which says, "And Mary arose in those days and went into the hill country with haste, into a city of Judah," and thought to learn something more about that trip of Mary's. And sure enough I learned it, for according to this new idiom of Greek, the Bible does not mean that Mary arose and went, but that she went standing up. Poor Mary! The journey was enough to kill her. It was some eighty or a hundred miles; and she went standing up! She had to walk all the way, poor woman, or she had to ride standing up in a cart, or standing up on a mule's back, probably. Really, I do not envy her her ride. This same idiomatic participle, anastas, is found here and "definitely and precisely expresses her posture when she went."

And so I find the general mode of travel to have been riding standing up, for the many expressions, "He arose and went," mean he went standing up.

So when the rich centurion sent men to Joppa for Peter to go to him, Peter "arose and went," i. e. went standing up, a distance of some thirty five or forty miles.

Really, I find this new Greek idiom throwing a flood of light on the customs of the people in those days.

Dr. Boyell and Dr. Harris and Dr. Broaddus all failed to give me this wonderful idiom of Greek.

And now I am ready for another new idiom.

Dr. Boyell is far behind the times, I fear, since he does not know this wonderful idiom.

A wonderful shield that!

Annual Calls.

I think the objections to anti-annual calls in the RECORDER of August 14th were well taken and to the point.

While it may be true that the advantage gained by annual calls might be gained by indefinite calls, it is perhaps too often not the case. "Anti-Annual" says if a church is dissatisfied with her pastor, &c., she can at any time, through her deacons, inform him that a change is desired, and he had better resign.

Now this sounds right nice, but it is not such an easy thing to do after all. The deacons dislikes to do it, knowing as he does that he is more than apt to wound the feelings of his pastor by telling him he had better resign, the church thinks so, and the cause of Christ demands it. I tell you it is a right delicate thing to do, so much so that it is often not done, and the church goes on from year to year thinking that the pastor will see that he ought to resign, and one member will say to another, "I can tough it out if the rest can."

"Anti" says if all the churches and pastors will adopt the indefinite call, and be kind and candid with each other, &c. That "if" is a mighty big little word. Now I am no preacher; but I reckon human nature is nearly the same in preachers as in deacons and other people; and it does seem to me, and it looks reasonable, too, that a pastor would be bound to feel better and work better, with more life and zeal, to know that he had a new and hearty welcome every year. This he does not know, or fully know, by indefinite calls.

Pray Without Ceasing. 1 Thess. v. 17.

There is a class of animals—the cetaceous—that inhabit the deep. It is their home, they never leave it for the shore; yet they have ever and anon by rise to the surface that they may breathe the air, or they could not exist in the element in which they live. Something like what is imposed on them by physical necessity, the Christian has to do by a spiritual one. It is ever and anon to ascend to God by rising through prayer into a purer region, for supplies of divine grace, that he may maintain his spiritual life.—Gurney.

The Biblical Recorder.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1895.

J. W. BAILEY, EDITOR.
J. C. CADDELL, AGENT AND CORRESPONDENT.

We are fortunate in being able to lay before our readers the article on the work of labor statisticians, by Commissioner B. R. Lacy. With the prospect that the population of North Carolina will at no distant day become in a considerable degree industrial, our duty to guard against the evils of child labor and oppression, which have marked the history of industrial progress in many sections, becomes more imperative. As Mr. Lacy says, the work of the labor statistician is not so much material as it is educational. We regret that the work in our State will not remain in the hands of the present Commissioner, who is well fitted for it.

Bishop Coxe, of Western New York, in a sermon at the Minneapolis convention, hit our good women pretty hard when he said: "Shameless nudity in bathing and semi-nudity in evening attire, with lascivious dances, long banished by Christian decorum from social life, are flagrantly characteristic of American manners."

Coming from a leading Episcopalian bishop, this should set well on the stomachs of the high flying Episcopalians who say it is "bad form" not to go semi-nude in ball rooms, and the sorry Baptists who run off after them to get into society. We commend Bishop Coxe's words to the "diocese of North Carolina."

A good many people were disposed to complain at the almost unprecedented, long dry spell, which has just ended. It seemed to us to be just what was needed. Crops ripened, and hot, dry weather were necessary to mature them before frost. The first part of this year was notably wet. Crops were reported time and again to be hopelessly behind. At no time have the seasons been as favorable as usual; and yet the yield is better than the average. There has been an abundance of fruit, there is a good tobacco crop, the yield of corn and wheat is very large, and prices are not at all discouraging; while the cotton crop is selling better than in five years, and though not as large as usual is worth a good deal more than the crop of last year, which was perhaps one-fifth larger than the present crop. Like the children of Israel, we are prone to fall away from God, attributing to him the misfortunes of hard times and forgetting him in prosperity. Any farmer in North Carolina knows that the crops this year have done far better than conditions warranted; but few are they who make acknowledgment to God for bringing an abundant yield in spite of the conditions. When men are nigh unto death, they pray to be spared; but if they get well, in most cases they praise their doctor or come to the conclusion that they were going to get well any how. All of us ought to be more thankful, more hopeful and more liberal than we are. We cannot expect God to prosper us unless we lay by in store for him. We cannot expect anything of him if we refuse or neglect to make acknowledgment to him.

A. B. Simpson, the founder of the Divine Healing Alliance, who came very near getting in his mischief making work in one of our Baptist churches in St. Louis, makes constant displays of the marvelous collection taken up by his fanatic sect for foreign mission. This year he or they reported $75,000 raised at one meeting in England. The Boston Watchman, whose reliability is unquestioned, found that Simpson exhorted his followers to subscribe large sums whether they had a dollar on hand or in sight or no. He subscribed $15,000, though he has no property and a small income. One contributor gave stocks said to be worth $1,000. Simpson exclaimed, "Put it down $3,000; all who believe it worth $3,000 hold up your hand." It was put down at $3,000, by faith.

A man worth nothing solemnly pledging $15,000 on faith, a people voting one thousand dollars to be two thousand, by faith, can, of course pronounce people who are sinking under disease, cured and well by faith. The non-payment of the $15,000 is never heard of, and the death of the healed by faith is never told. Satan still appears as an angel of light to Simpson and his deluded followers.—Burden Christian Repository.

We made note of Simpson's "work" several weeks ago. Dr. Hall referred to him in his article on tithing in last week's Recorder. The foregoing shows what a splendid read he is. He has deceived many people and has been praised very widely. His work of raising money every year has been held up as an example. And he has been compared with our preachers to show how far behind they are. How we sometimes glorify fraud and sin. The showman was right when he said "the people like to be humbugged."

WHAT ABOUT OUR NEW MEMBERS?

The last few months have been harvest seasons in many of our churches. The Recorder has rejoiced to publish, and its readers have been glad to read, accounts of large accessions to our numbers in almost every part of North Carolina. With amazement and joy we learn that the young preachers now at Wake Forest report over a thousand professions of religion as a result of the meetings in which they have aided during their summer vacation. Yet they were present at very few, comparatively, of the numerous revivals.

Our joy is somewhat sobered and tempered when we remember the weighty responsibility laid upon the churches and pastors by the reception of these new members. Not a few of them are of tender years. Most of them are comparatively ignorant about spiritual things. All of them are without experience in Christian activity. That they may grow, whether young or old, they must be fed; that they may resist temptation, they must be restrained and admonished; that they may become useful church-members, they must be trained; that they may become willing givers, they must be encouraged to form habits of liberality.

That so large a proportion of the numerous members of our churches are inefficient in helping to extend Christ's kingdom—a fact which we cannot disguise—is undoubtedly due to their lack of training in the earlier months and years of their connection with the churches.

Of very many of them it may be said, as the late Lord Lyndhurst said of himself, "Their souls are saved; their lives,—so far as usefulness is concerned—are lost."

To feed these lambs, to train these young Christians is, of course, one of the first duties of the pastor. And he will, in some cases, undoubtedly, in other cases, possibly, do all that one man can do. But when he is the shepherd of three or four different flocks, some of which may be widely separated, he can, single handed, accomplish but little. From many a monthly visit to his churches, he will return with a heavy heart because of his conscious inability to do the work that he well knows ought to be done.

Under these circumstances—and, indeed, under all circumstances—it is clearly the duty of all the older members, as much as possible, to look after and care for their younger brethren and sisters. Situated as we are now in North Carolina, the future of our churches,—their discipline, their character, their development in usefulness,—seems to be to some extent dependent on the efficient assistance given to pastors by all the more mature brethren and sisters. Not especially by the deacons. Their specific function is to care for temporalities. Their official position creates no special obligation in this direction. In their relation to young members, they stand along with all the other experienced and trusted brethren of the church.

One way to reach the desired end is to see that each new member has some specific work to do in his new relation. This may not always be easy, but it is of great practical importance.

Activity is an essential condition of health and growth. This is just as true in religious as in mental and physical life. And it must be real activity, with a definite purpose. Exercise taken merely for the sake of exercise is not so likely to accomplish its object as real work, where exertion is not the end, but only a means to an end.

In every community, however, there is plenty of work to tax all the energies of all the Christians, old and young. Some connecting rod between idle power and unperformed work is what is needed. And too many people have the wrong idea that a church of Jesus Christ is only a hospital, whereas it ought to be a workshop.

Moreover, if in each Baptist church there were a special committee to look after the interests of each object of the Convention, and if new members, from time to time, were added to these committees, a double purpose might be accomplished. The present efficiency of the whole Convention would be enhanced and a great host of workers would be trained for the future.

Almost any kind of active work for Christ will be sure to have other valuable results. From some temptations, at least, the workers will largely be delivered. In church relations, as well as in other, it is for idle hands that Satan finds mischief.

Those who are known to be active in Christian work are not likely to be targets for social allurements. The man, young or old, who is helping in cottage prayer meetings or in raising money for, say, church extension, is not going to be invited to take a drink or to engage in a game of cards. The woman, maid or matron, who teaches in a Sunday school will not be solicited by those who know of it to enter a ball room.

As to whether the desired ends can be accomplished through Young Peoples' Societies will largely depend on local conditions. That they are sometimes exceedingly valuable as special factors in the general work of some churches is no longer an open question.

In country churches the conditions in many churches,—not all,—will not be favorable. Perhaps, even among these, the trial might well be more generally made.

There is much trustworthy evidence offered by excellent pastors that in towns and villages Young Peoples' Societies are easily organized and can be made potent agencies for good. And there seems to be no good reason why they should not receive encouragement even from the most conservative brethren, so long as such is controlled—as it should always be—by a local church, and is recognized as being an integral part of church work. If they should ever set up for themselves as independent equals or rivals of the churches,—but that, as Mr. Kipling would say, is another question.

One man says the needs of the field make necessary a better trained, a better informed, a more wide awake, aggressive ministry, but yet one that is thoroughly conservative and true to the principles of our religion and loyal to the Bible. Another says, "The needs of the field make necessary a better trained, a better informed, a more wide-awake, aggressive" laity, etc. Both are right. Wake Forest and our Southern Baptist Theological Seminary help greatly in these directions; both helping the ministry, the former specially fitted to develop the laity.

The study in statistics by Bro. Spilman comes in good time to emphasize our late remarks on the statistical brother. He has gone deep into census and general statistics, and he brings up valuable information. His article, which will be concluded next week, deserves to be carefully studied by all who are interested in our denominational development. Coming, as it does, when there is a general feeling that we are about to enter upon an era of great progress industrially, its value, as a map of our position and strength as a denomination is exceedingly valuable. Aside from the practical value of the articles, they will be especially gratifying to our readers because they confirm the judgment of our State Mission Board.

Biblical scholars, and, indeed, the whole religious world, will be profoundly interested in the announcement, made apparently on good authority, that a manuscript of the four gospels in the native tongue of Jesus has at last been found in the convent on Mount Sinai, which was built by Justinian nearly 1,400 years ago, when Christianity was young, and its treasured records would naturally seek such sanctuary. The value of such finds depends, of course, on the intrinsic evidences of their antiquity; but the judgment of experts that the present parchment was written within fifty years of the death of the last of the apostles must give it exceptional importance in the eyes both of scholastics and antiquarians, and their further judgment respecting its value will be awaited with lively interest by the Christian world.

We find this in the Philadelphia Record. It may or it may not be true. If, however, all that is claimed for it should be proved, the evidence of the authenticity of the gospels would not be strengthened; because evidence already in hand is overwhelmingly strong. It is as authoritatively known that Matthew wrote Matthew, Mark wrote Mark, Luke wrote Luke, and John wrote John, as it is that Macaulay wrote Macaulay's History of England.

....Rev. N. R. Pittman is now pastor of the First Baptist Church of Mexico, Mo. This church has some strong members. The "Regular Baptist Publishing House" is located in this place. The General Association of Missouri meets in St. Joseph Mo., October 22d, this year. Bro. Pittman was pastor of the St. Joseph's church for ten years, and the Rev. J. L. Lawless is his successor.

....The American Baptist Publication Society has sent us two tracts that can be used to advantage in some sections of our State—"Household Baptisms," by Professor Henry C. Vedder, and "The Sabbath and the Seventh Day," by Rev. W. W. Beardslee. Both are all that could be desired. Order through our Convention's store at Raleigh, known as the Sunday-school Supply Store.

....Rev. Geo. R. McCall, of Macon, Ga., died October 6th, aged 65 years, after a long attack of paralysis. The Christian Index says of him: "As a Baptist minister, Secretary of the Georgia Baptist Convention, financial agent, member of the board of trustees, secretary and treasurer, professor of theology of Mercer University, Dr. McCall was one of the best known men in Georgia."

....The Charlotte Observer prints encouraging news of brethren Pritchard's and Pratt's tent meetings with the factory population. Interest continues well sustained, and a goodly number of converts have joined the churches. It is a well known fact that factory workers are reluctant to attend regular church services in the towns, which makes this work in Charlotte more commendable. We hope the chapels, of which Bro. Pritchard wrote last week, will be built, and that a regular city missionary will be employed. In this connection, it is worthy of note that Rev. A. D. Hunter our efficient Raleigh missionary, says this work in Raleigh is large enough to engage one man for all his time.

....Bro. S. McIntyre, of Wake Forest, represented the RECORDER at the late sessions of the Mt. Zion and Union Associations. He brought up a goodly list of new subscribers and renewals. In another column he gives an account of the Union. Bro. McIntyre worked with the success of an old stager, though this is the first time he has appeared before any of the Associations in this capacity.

....A note from Dr. J. J. Hall of Norfolk: "I look hopefully to the organization of the young people as planned at Macon, so that our young people may be yoked to our great work in the South, and also to our Southern publications, the BIBLICAL RECORDER included. Rev. J. W. Millard preached recently two sermons in the Free mason Street church with great acceptance by all who heard him."

....Rev. L. N. Chappell, missionary to China, now on a visit to his relatives near the College, delivered on Sunday afternoon last a very interesting missionary address before the "Yates Mission Band," a juvenile missionary organization in connection with the First Raleigh Baptist Church. He also preached for Dr. J. W. Carter on Sunday night from Acts 16: 9—"Come over into Macedonia and help us."

....Christian mission work is in its infancy, if we consider the vast field yet to be occupied. The Sermon Illustrator says: "Afghanistan has six millions of population and no missionary; India, one missionary to two hundred and seventy five thousand people; Persia, one to three hundred thousand; Thibet, one to two millions. If forty thousand missionaries were sent to India, there would still be only one to every fifty thousand people."

....Bro. Jno O. Gough has done a fine work at Manning. The church is reported as being in a very fine condition—united, active and liberal. There is talk of building a new house of worship, and some of the members told us it will soon be an assured fact. Bro. Gough is quite popular with his people, and they are devoted to him, as he is devoted to the cause.—Baptist Courier. Another Wake Forest boy reflecting credit on the College and State.

....Some time ago, we promised to let the brotherhood know when Columbia church was prepared to call a pastor. "All things are now ready," and in conference assembled on the first Sabbath in Oct. 1895, the above church extended a call to Rev. Josiah Elliott (no D. D.) We have a fine Sabbath School, and three prayer services every week, with a good attendance. No preacher in the flock, which we regret.—Jos A. Spruill, Church Clerk.

....We have heard with genuine pleasure of the improvement in Dr. R. T. Vann's health, and we hope it will prove permanent. He occupied his Scotland Neck pulpit the first Sunday in this month after an extended vacation. Bro. Vann's recovery must be especially gratifying to his flock, but there are many brethren and sisters in every part of the State who rejoice with them. May God give his servant many years of growing usefulness.

....Rev. I. S. Boyles called in to see us Monday on his way to the Louisville Seminary. He leaves Mrs. Boyles at Stanhope teaching music. She was baptized from the Methodist church by Dr. Mundy at the recent session of the Tar River Association, held at Wilson, N. C. He and Bro. A. A. Pippin have labored together in ten revival meetings this summer, resulting in the conversion of from twenty to fifty at each meeting. The Lord has been very good to them.

....The Tar River Association met last week in the new brick church in Wilson, N. C. Owing to the fact that there is a debt on the house in its erection, it has not yet been dedicated. Pastor Mundy is living in a comfortable home erected by the ladies of his congregation in one corner of the church lot. Dr. N. B. Cobb volunteered kindly to represent the RECORDER at the Association, and we hope to publish an account of its proceedings from his pen, in our next issue.

....The many friends and relatives of Bro. W. A. Pool of Texas will be glad to learn that his health is greatly improved, and that he is again able to preach. He is pastor of three churches, preaching twice a month to one and once a month to the others. He has just closed a great revival meeting with one of his churches, in which forty eight were added to the church by baptism. He thinks Texas in many respects a great State. Bro. Pool ought to write occasionally for the RECORDER.

....Rev. S. F. Bristow writes from Colerain: "We have just closed a meeting at Ariel church, Gates county, N. C. We began this meeting Monday after the fourth Sunday in September and closed on the fifth. It was my first visit with this church, and it was a pleasant one. This is a weak church numerically, but I see no reason why it should not become strong. I never preached to a people more attentive. I preached twice every day and had no one to rebuke for misbehavior. The result of our labors was five additions. Brother J. R. Matthews is pastor, and the brethren speak highly of him."

....Superintendents of Baptist Sunday-schools in Wayne county will confer a favor by dropping a postal card to Mr. C. J. Rivenbark, superintendent of the Sunday-school of the First Baptist church, Goldsboro, giving him their name and postoffice address and any statistics. Mr. Rivenbark and other workers in the city desire to get in touch with the Baptist Sunday-schools in the county and to lend them any possible aid in the furtherance of their work.—Goldsboro Headlight. Bro. Rivenbark is not content with making our Goldsboro Sunday-school one of the best, but he is spending his blessed energies on the "regions around." He is working along the right lines. Country and town ought to be knit more closely together; and the Sunday-school is a good starting point.

....The Baltimore Sun of the 9th says: "Yesterday a committee from Brantley church, waited on Dr. Wharton with an offer to furnish a parsonage if he would consent to remain permanently with the congregation. He told the committee that he would be willing to do so provided the present assistant, Mr. J. Henry Orcs, is retained, and that the parsonage be paid for by private subscription, and not made a charge upon the church. This, it is said, would necessitate his giving up evangelistic work almost entirely."

....A convention of the colored Baptists throughout the United States was in session at Atlanta, Ga., the first week in October, and was probably one of the most notable gatherings of colored people ever held in this country. It was the Colored Baptist Foreign Mission Convention, composed of representatives of three large bodies, which were consolidated, and resolved upon union for future work at home and abroad. Reports on the progress making in education and in missions were read, and excited great hope and encouragement for the future.

....A twelve days' meeting of much power closed in Elenton on the night of the 7th. The whole town felt its influence. Rev. W. P. Hines gave efficient aid and greatly endeared himself to the Elenton saints. The total number of converts was sixty six, ten of whom were females, eight or ten under the age of sixteen, and the others were men of mature years. Members of the other denominations attended and took part in the services. Forty six united with the Baptist church. Others joined the Methodist and Episcopal churches. So we learn from the Fisherman and Farmer of the 11th.

....From the following our readers may learn the real name of the Episcopal Church; it is a resolution which has passed the Convention: "The constitution and canons for the government of that portion of the Catholic Church known in law as the Protestant Episcopal Church of the United States of America." There was no debate, and the designation was adopted by a vote of—ayes, 83, noes, 13; divided, 7. To speak of the Episcopal Church as a "portion of the" Roman "Catholic Church known as the Protestant Episcopal Church of the United States," would be literally true.

....Bro. W. G. Upchurch, one of Raleigh's most prominent business men, died after a long and painful illness at his house in this city early on Sunday morning last. He leaves a wife and several children, together with a large family connection to mourn their loss. Bro. Upchurch was a highly esteemed member of the First Raleigh Baptist church, and was baptized into its fellowship by Dr. T. E Skinner. For more than thirty five years he has been a very active man of business, and no man has labored more industriously than he to build up the material interests of the community. His death is greatly deplored.

....Rev. G. W. Coppedge, of Wakefield, has been reaping a rich harvest of souls from his field. At White Oak (sometimes called Archer Lodge church) there were sixteen professions of confession, seven were baptized, four restored and two received by letter; at Corinth there were seven professions, and the ordinance of baptism was administered to five; at Clyde's Chapel twenty-two were baptized, six restored, and one received by letter. He had the assistance of Rev. J. W. Sledge and Rev. Worley Creech in these meetings. In a meeting with Bro. Sledge's church, Stony Creek, in Nash county—a notable "hardshell" section—in which Bro. Coppedge assisted, twelve persons joined the church by experience.

....The Building Committee of the First Baptist Church will next Sunday morning recommend that the church at once extend the back walls of the church building so as to connect with the Sunday school room, and thus largely increase the seating capacity of the church. This is a forward movement. The recommendation will likely be adopted. Thomas is spreading. He is preaching all about and to far more people than any other man in Fayetteville. At the services the house is packed to overflowing, and seats are brought in from the Sunday school room. The church and Sunday-school have appointed building committees to arrange for increasing the seating capacity of the church. We need it. Besides, a telephone has been put in the church, and people all over town and at Manchester and Spout Springs, twelve and eighteen miles away, listen to the sermons and get all the words of the speaker with all their force and power.—North Carolina Baptist.

....At a meeting of the Twenty third Street Church (New York City), held Friday evening, October 4th, a call was unanimously extended to Rev. Boardman B. Bosworth to become their pastor. The call has been accepted, and Mr. Bosworth will begin his pastorate on Sunday, October 13th. Mr. Bosworth comes from the Green Mountain State, and is a graduate of the Vermont University. He is also a graduate of Rochester Theological Seminary, Class of '95. For some time after graduating from the Vermont University he was engaged in commercial life as acting secretary and treasurer of a large manufacturing concern in New England. He is twenty-nine years of age, and, after a commercial career succeeded by a careful theological training, he brings into his work a practical knowledge of affairs such, it is hoped, as will make him eminently useful to his own church and to the denomination generally.—Examiner. This is the successor of Rev. Thos. Dixon, Jr.

Where Are Our Preachers?

BY REV. A. W. SPILMAN.

A STUDY IN STATISTICS.

H. K. Carroll, LL. D., superintendent of the religious census for 1890, says, "North Carolina is a Baptist State." Perhaps so. In many respects we are in the very front in North Carolina, but we labor at a disadvantage because of the location of our preachers. They are largely in the west. I figured a little in 1893 along that line. Here are a few facts as they were then. Raleigh is the center of the State Convention east and west. East of Raleigh there were 197 Baptist preachers. West of Raleigh (giving half of the Wake county preachers to each) there were 433. In the thirteen counties of our Western Convention were 173 preachers.

Our State missionaries are placed in a rather curious plan also. East of Raleigh are thirty-nine, west sixty seven. In the extreme west of our Convention is a space of 110 miles square there are forty State missionaries. If every missionary were run over, there would still be left 232 Baptist preachers, an average of more than ten preachers to the county. In the extreme east is a space of 110 miles square (seventeen counties), there are seventeen missionaries. Remove the missionaries, and only nine preachers remain, and there would be ten counties without a Baptist preacher. There are more State missionaries in Ashe, Stokes, Forsyth and Davidson counties than there are in the sixteen eastern counties south of Roanoke river. And these four counties would still have thirty five preachers if the missionaries were not there.

To one far away and unacquainted with the situation, it looks like these counties might import some preachers from their next door neighbors, Watauga, Wilkes and Yadkin, and lend their missionaries to us down here who need them so much. I am sure the last named counties have some to spare. The three counties together have sixty three preachers. There are seventy Baptist churches in Wilkes county and 5,104 members; forty one of the churches and 3,321 members are in our Convention, so there is a regular Missionary (?) Baptist church for every 550 of the inhabitants. Can't you send some down this way? But, then, I guess Wilkes needs them. There are 225 distilleries in the county.

The center of population for the Baptist preachers of North Carolina is in Rowan county just west of Salisbury.

The county with the largest number of preachers is Wake with thirty-nine, closely followed by Madison with thirty three. Distribute them in Madison and there would be a Baptist preacher within less than two miles of every house in the county.

Our State missionaries are in fifty-four counties from the mountains to the sea. The largest number are in Edgecombe, Davidson and Ashe, they having five each, then Robeson and Stokes with four each.

There are as many missionaries in Ashe and Stokes, with twenty eight preachers besides, as there are in Dare, Tyrrell, Hyde, Washington, Martin, Beaufort, Green, Craven, Jones, Pamlico, Pitt, and Lenoir, with only two preachers besides. If the State missionaries were withdrawn from Ashe and Stokes, they would still have fourteen preachers each. If they were withdrawn from the twelve last named, the pastors at Newbern and Kinston would have each 6½ counties on his hands. We would have to import 180 preachers to have fourteen for each county.

Why this state of affairs? What is the remedy?

One cause is the population. We must place our missionaries in the growing centers where we can reach the largest number of people possible. The center and west are the growing sections. The movement in our State is from the lowlands of the east to the hill country. The census of 1890 shows a decrease in population in nine eastern counties, and only one western county, viz., Caswell. Roxboro, Burlington, Reidsville, Danville, and lack of good railroad facilities help to explain that. And the gains in the east were not very great. The largest gain was hardly 4,000, and few reached 2,000, and many smaller still, as Carteret and Hyde, 1,000 each; Craven, 804; Dare, 535; Pasquotank, 350; Currituck, 271; Pender, 46, and Green, 2. Place these over against such gains as Alamance, Catawba, Cleveland, Guilford, Randolph, Rowan and Wilkes, with 4,000 each; Madison, 5,000; Richmond, 5,700; Mecklenburg, 8,500; Forsyth, 10,000, and Buncombe more than 13,000, and a reason is seen for placing missionaries in the west.

But a curious feature of it is that Richmond county, whose increase was 5,700 with only three preachers, should have only one missionary, while Ashe, whose increase was only 1,191 with already twelve preachers, should have five.

And Mecklenburg, whose increase was 8,500 with five other preachers, should have only two missionaries, while Stokes, whose increase was 1,846 with sixteen other preachers, should have four.

And Forsyth, whose population increased at the rate of more than 1,000 each year with only one preacher, should have only three missionaries, while Davidson, just south, increased only 1,369 in ten years and with seven other preachers, has only five. These are all in the west. And how is it that Edgecombe, whose population decreased by 2,065, has five missionaries, while there are four counties near by without either an ordained pastor or missionary, though they increased in population?

Another reason for the condition of affairs is the Negro population. The white population is largely in the west. There are sixteen counties in the east in which the Negroes far outnumber the whites. In the west nearly all of the Baptists are whites, and in the east they are divided. If you take it whites and blacks, you will find that there are as many Baptists in the east as in the west. A county with a population of 30,000 in the east really has about 15,000 whites, and often less. Take Halifax, for instance, with 30,000 in round numbers. But there are only 9,000 whites. It is not fair, then, to compare the white Baptists of Wilkes with its 23,675 inhabitants with the white Baptists of Halifax or Warren where the Negroes outnumber the whites more than two to one. In Wilkes there are only 1,824 Negroes, and they have two Baptist churches. According to white population, Halifax has one preacher to every 1,000 people, and Wilkes has one to every 1,000 with four left over—not far ahead, you see.

But I selected Halifax, esp cially to bring out another point. Counting Negroes and whites in Wilkes there are forty-three churches, and 3,500 members; but Halifax has sixty seven churches and 11,663 members. And the value of the Baptist church property of the Negroes in Halifax is exceeded by the white Baptists in only two counties, viz., Wake and Buncombe. We have 6,448 white Baptists in Wake county, our stronghold, but there are two counties in eastern North Carolina that have more Negro Baptists. There are twenty counties in the east that average more than 4,000 each. If the white Baptists are in the west, the Negro Baptists are in the east. So here is one reason why there are so few white Baptists in the east is that most of the Baptists are Negroes as is also the population.

But we have not as many missionaries in the east as we ought to have.

And it should be borne in mind that among the whites in our eastern counties are many people who hold doctrines somewhat similar to ours; people who practice immersion, reject infant sprinkling, and are, for the most part, congregational in polity.

The Original Freewill Baptists are in eastern North Carolina. Of their 133 churches in North Carolina, only ten are west of the A. C. L. Railroad. And they have only 417 members out of a total of 10 224 in the State. Except one church in Chatham with thirty members, there is not another west of Wake, which has only three with a total membership of eighty.

But the Baptist Church of Christ is altogether in six counties of the west, viz., Alexander, Davie, Iredell, Surry, Wilkes and Yadkin. They number only 650 members, however, in all, and Pitt alone has over a thousand more Freewill Baptists than that.

Of the Anti mission or Hardshell Baptists, the west has a small majority, there being twenty-three more churches west than east. And then the Old-Two Seed In The Spirit-Predestinarian Baptists are all in Forsyth, Stokes and Surry, but they have only nine churches and 188 members.

Of the Christian Connection, who largely practice immersion, reject infant baptism, &c., the east and west have about an equal share, the Southern branch predominating in the west, the other in the east.

But of the Disciples of Christ, the east has a big majority. They are represented in nine counties west and twenty five east. West there are twenty four churches, and east 100. Beaufort county has a thousand more members than all of the nine western counties together, and Lenoir and Washington have each more by 200. Beaufort, Hyde, Lenoir, Martin, Pamlico, Pitt and Washington are full of Disciples, having more than half of their North Carolina churches and members.

The Dunkards are in the west; those in our Convention being in Ashe and Alleghany and numbering only four churches and 295 members.

So it is seen that although our preachers are in the west, there are still large numbers of people in the east who hold to doctrines somewhat like ours, and were they not on the ground their adherents would naturally be Baptists. The eastern counties are not so bad off as one might suppose. Take the average number of church members in the forty-three eastern counties, including Wake and the remaining fifty three western, and the percentage of church members compared with the population is about forty-four per cent. for the east, and forty per cent. for the west. There are among the forty three eastern counties eighteen, whose percentage of population that are church members goes higher than fifty, while only nine of the fifty-three western counties have over half of their population in some church. The most religious spot in North Carolina is the south eastern section. New Hanover and Brunswick each have over half their population in some church, while the percentage of religious population of the neighboring counties is as follows: Sampson 39, Duplin 32½, Bladen 37½, Columbus 37½, Pender 70.

Many in the east who would be Baptists are in other churches whose doctrines in many respects closely resemble ours.

The Facts.

The Treasurer's report in this paper shows that only $5,456 35 of the $15,000 needed this year for State Missions, has been received. Therefore $9,543.15 must be secured in the next forty five days for this work, or the Board will have to report a debt to the Convention in Greensboro. The attention of every pastor, church, mission society, and friend of State Missions is called to this object, and their help earnestly asked at this time.

I am just this morning in receipt of a check for $50 00 from Bro. D. L. Gore of Wilmington. If those who can, would send checks for such amounts as they could give to this work, and the pastors and churches would do what they can, every dollar of the needed amount would be secured by the first of December. Let us have your aid, brethren.

The Union Association.

The Union Association met with Mondoy Branch church, Union county, Thursday, October 10th. The church is situated eight miles east of Monroe, on the Carolina Central railroad, in the midst of a community of well to do people. The church was easy of access, and the crowd was large from the beginning, every church being represented the first day. Two churches were added to the Association, the number now being twenty-nine.

This Association is composed of good, earnest Christian people, who seem to want to know and do the right thing. It is true they have never been educated to give to the different objects as some Associations, but all they need is to learn their duty, and none, I believe, will adhere more closely to that duty.

Bro. E. C. Moore preached a timely and interesting sermon from the text, "Search the Scriptures." Prof. H. C. Copple of Rock Rest was Moderator, and Bro. T. W. Mauss was Clerk.

The first subject discussed was periodicals. The reading of the letters from the churches showed that our Baptist papers are not read as they should be in this Association. So after the subject had been very well discussed, the RECORDER representative received quite a nice list of subscribers.

Friday at 11 o'clock Dr. C. Durham preached one of the most powerful sermons on Missions I ever heard. Pledges were taken for the different kinds of missions.

At this period of the meeting your correspondent had to leave, with regrets. Other subjects were still to be discussed, and all the brethren seemed greatly interested.

Rev. Jas. R. Richardson is the pastor at Meadow Branch, and a happy one, too. His people love him, and he loves his people. He has a congregation of young people unexcelled. While there I didn't see a single boy smoking cigarettes, but all the young people gave the best of attention to the work of the Association. I was told that not a single young man from this neighborhood has ever become a drunkard.

Steps will be taken to establish a school of high grade in Union Association under a board of trustees. Such a move I think is wise.

We were glad to see old father E. L. Davis present. He is the oldest Baptist minister in the State, having preached nearly sixty years. He is now eighty two years old. He has been a power for good in the world; and as the physical man grows weaker the spiritual grows stronger.

Missionary Meeting.

How God has led us through the past in missionary work, will be illustrated by map at the Y. P. Convention. It will be shown how God has honored Baptists, and how abundantly he has blessed our efforts in mission work. It will be a study in the history of Baptist missions that will tell to the future of our churches. Send the young people to the Convention.

Labor Statisticians in Convention.

BY ROB'T E. LACY.

The Convention of Labor Statisticians met in the rooms of the Commercial Club, Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 18th. Col. Carroll D. Wright, U. S. Labor Commissioner, is president. The association was eminently wise in this selection, as he has devoted a quarter of a century to the study of economic questions and statistics, and is not only able, but absolutely honest and fearless, being in my humble opinion one of the most useful and able men in the Union. His talk on "How far the Statistician Should Go in Seeking Ozone," was the feature of the meeting. The address by Mr. Wadlin, Commissioner of Massachusetts, was both interesting and instructive; so also was Prof. Folwell's. He is a professor in the State University, which has 2,500 students. Mr. L. G. Powers, Commissioner of Minnesota, was elected Secretary. The greatest compliment I can pay him is to wish he was Commissioner of old North Carolina. Minnesota is very fortunate in being able to have him, and the value of his work cannot be estimated.

The meeting was a success. We compared notes, discussed methods, means, what we are doing and what we hope to do. We discussed the gathering of statistics as a scientific question, as a study for advanced scholars in social economy, as a philanthropic question; the good it is doing in educating the "purse-proud" and arrogant up to their duty to their more unfortunate fellowmen; to the understanding of the duty the State owes its citizens, and that there is no "private map" or even private business which is free from the State's control if her children are likely to suffer thereby; to educating the factory employee up to the fact that he has some tangible connection with and interest in the government, and thereby keep him from getting soured and naturally drifting towards anarchy.

We also considered the long hours, and the age at which children should be allowed to work. All through the meeting I could not help wishing that every North Carolina preacher, teacher and manufacturer we o present. I was the only Southerner except Mr. Lee Meriweather, Commissioner of Missouri, a young lawyer who has written several books on European travel and who was one of the brainiest men present.

I tried to explain that we were such good people in North Carolina we did not need the labor legislation which the great hustling dollar-seeking North does; but I felt quite small when the finances of each State were discussed. The Commissioner of New York complained that he could not do the work as it should be done with only $30,000; this did not include his $3,000 salary, or in fact any salary. Col. Horne, Commissioner from Connecticut, reported that his salary was fixed at $3,000, and that of his chief clerk at $1 800, but said that there was no appropriation, and that the State allowed him to draw what he needed without any limit. I think he said he never went over $20 000, and so on. There was no State which does not pay the chief clerk as much as the Commissioner from North Carolina receives. All the Bureaus have other duties besides collecting and collating figures.

The Commissioner of Massachusetts takes the census, and has 1 000 agents in the field. The Commissioner of Minnesota has mine and factory inspections, and sees that the law concerning the guarding of machinery and that of allowing children to work before a certain age (unless they can produce a certificate to the effect that they have attended school at least twelve weeks during the year) are fully enforced.

This work of making history for the masses and turning on the light concerning the condition of the wage earners is assuming gigantic proportions. Almost every foreign country, the United States, and thirty-four of the States have these bureaus. They are doing a grand and noble work, and in spite of those who are opposed to anything that looks to improving our race (if such improvement means a lessening of their dividends), it will eventually be given wider scope.

It is to be hoped that our next Legislature will consider the question of the age when children should be allowed to go to work, and the equalization of the number of hours during which people both young and old should be engaged in labor. It depends on the nerve-destroying quality of the work how long a person should be on duty. For example, a train despatcher with a head full of trains wastes more vital energy in eight hours than a man at manual labor does in fifteen; again an engineer on a "flyer" is more worn out and broken down with six hours than even his fireman who does all the manual labor and is in the cab with him is in ten hours. Children should not be allowed to go to work at any kind of labor that confines them within walls until they are twelve years of age, and those between twelve and fourteen should be required to have a certificate showing that they have been to school at least twelve weeks during the year. This question is of the greatest importance to the future development of our people. Broad minded men want data, figures and facts to examine and find out what is needed and what is not, and the place to come for such information is the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

A patriotic legislator should look over the entire State and see whether these people need any law or not. Now he is too often influenced by what comes under his personal observation alone.

Of course this work will be opposed. Is there anything good that has not been opposed? Those that oppose it are generally moved by the same spirit that caused Demosthenes to stir up the people against Philip.

As I will not be Commissioner after this term, I desire to say that it is a shame that this office, the peculiar property of the great mass of our people, should suffer so for means to properly do the work. The salary of the Commissioner should at least be on a par with that of a railroad Commissioner, instead of that of the clerks of the other departments. The Railroad Commission is doing a good work, but it is material-looking after the dollars—while the work of this office is far greater, as it is not only educational, but really tends to improve our breed, and keep down friction and unrest, and convinces the world that labor and capital are allied and not antagonistic. Salaries are entirely too low. It is discriminating against the poor. A man has to have other means and take too large a part of his pay in honor for a poor man with ability enough to fill the place to accept it.

Notes from Rev. J. N. Stallings.

Dear Recorder:—Please allow me space for several items:

1. I baptized two, both from Methodist families, at Eaton's church on the third Sunday in September. Others are reading the Scriptures with reference to duty and will follow soon.

2. The churches at Eaton's and Farmington have redeemed their pledges to the Orphanage, the former sending eight dollars more than their liberal pledge of fifty dollars, and the latter, with a membership of about one third of the other, sending twenty dollars, the amount of their pledge. I hope that Jerusalem and Mocksville will soon follow this example of their associates. None of these churches, though they do as well as or better than the average church, are coming up to duty in other respects. Our annual Orphanage picnic greatly stimulates the Orphanage work. If Robeson, Cleveland, Granville, Wake and other counties which contain a great many Baptists, would organize annual picnics, the Orphanage could be greatly enlarged and well supported. Will not the brethren in the counties named and in others try it?

3. The churches generally are behind with their financial obligations. Why? Because their members do not obey the command, "Let every one of you lay by him in store as God hath prospered him"—whenever one receives any thing, and so is prepared to give it when needed. Let the command be faithfully obeyed, and there will never be lack at the proper time. What part is to be laid aside? The Scriptures I think, teach one tenth, at least. If any will not lay aside that much, let them lay aside some part; if any will lay aside more, let them not fail to do it. This rule of the Bible faithfully followed by all will give every pastor his money when due, and meet every obligation to the poor, to the Orphanage, to Missions, to Wake Forest, to the Seminary, and to the Baptist University for our daughters. Why not do it? The Lord put it into the hearts of his people to obey him in this as in other respects!

4. Every true Baptist, whether educated at Wake Forest or not, rejoices at the prosperity of the College. The large numbers of the Law Class fully justifies the establishment of that department. Does it not suggest the wisdom of establishing a Medical Department also? Why not give those who expect to make medicine their life work an opportunity to lay the foundation at our College? I see no reason why a Medical Department should not succeed as well as that of the Law. Besides it would help the College in a general way, as the Law Department has. [There is at Wake Forest a course preparatory to the study of Medicine.—EDITOR RECORDER.]

5. Our Union Meeting at Society was an improvement on any Union held since I have been in the Association. There was a larger attendance of ministers and delegates, and a spirit of work was manifested. Three newly organized churches were received into the Association at its recent session—all the result of preaching "in the regions beyond" or "round about." I have been cultivating two points in the afternoons from two of my churches, which I hope will develop into churches after a while. Our ministers and brethren will continue this work during the ensuing year.

6. There are four academies of high grade in Davie county in charge of Baptists. Prof. Minor conducts Cana Academy; Prof. Foster, Fork Academy; Elder B K Mason, Advance Academy, which enables him to preach there and at other weak churches, which otherwise would probably be without a pastor. Your correspondent remains on this field by teaching, aided by his daughters at Jerusalem. J. N. STALLINGS.

Liberty Union.

Dear Recorder:—The Liberty Union met with the Oak Hill Baptist church, on Friday, Sept. 27th, at 11 a. m. Introductory sermon was preached by Elder J. M. Hilliard. Intermission.

At one p. m. the Union assembled. The election of officers resulted in the selection of Bro. James Smith as Moderator, and Bro. John R. Miller, as Clerk.

The queries were ably discussed with the best of good feeling.

The delegation was larger than usual, eighteen churches being represented. The preaching was good, and the Spirit of the Lord manifested his presence in all it it was done.

Rev. J. B Boone of the Baptist Orphanage was present and added much to the interest of the meeting. The collection on Sunday for State Missions was $10 59

The church and community amply entertained the Union, the church was greatly strengthened and revived, and the pastor encouraged and made happy.

The Workers Die, the Work Goes On.

Dear Recorder:—So quickly following my last letter I have to write again that we have been under the shadow of death. Sunday, 3:00 a. m., Sept. 1st, our brother and late pastor, Wong Yer San, died of consumption. This brother, too, was one of Dr. M. T. Yates' theological class. When I came to China he was preaching as an evangelist and teaching a day school. My first attempt to preach in Chinese was with him in the street chapel where he lived. A year or two after old pastor Wong Ping San (a different family) died, this man was called to the pastorate of our native church, in which capacity he served three years. Early in this year he was engaged again as evangelist and day school teacher. He came out at night to help in those meetings we held in April and May. He took cold, and his disease of years' standing, perhaps, took on a violent rapid form. In June he was released from his work and asked to come and occupy a room in my yard.

We gave him medical aid, and Mrs. Bryan and Mrs. Tatum gave him nourishing food, but the disease could not be arrested.

In his life and death he gave us good hope that he was a servant of God. Friday night I talked with him and we had prayer together. After I went his wife says he slept. In his sleep, after the Chinese manner of address, he said, "Teacher Tatum, look! is this a multitude of the redeemed?"

Sunday morning he called his wife and told her the Heavenly Father was going to call him to go, that it was all peace with him, but that he was sorry for her.

By the grace of God he was what he was.

Yours fraternally, E. F. TATUM.

Letter from Mrs. Lillie Wright Chastain.

Three days ago was the seventh anniversary of my arrival in Mexico, and as I sit by my little fire to-night (for the afternoon has been damp and rainy) after an unusually busy day, my heart goes out to God anew in gratitude that he has let me serve Him in my chosen way these seven years. With so many blessings has He crowned my humble endeavors, that with David I can say, "My cup runneth over."

When we came to this field four years ago, no suitable place could be rented for home or church services. We lived almost a year in one room and that without windows or floor. Now we have a pretty church and a comfortable home. Then the people shunned us, going on the other side of the street to avoid meeting and speaking to us. Mr. Chastain was taken ill of typhoid fever, and came near dying, and I had not a single friend on whom I could rely, and no doctor to be reached nearer than thirty-five miles distant. At the first service, a woman of rank, who stood outside the door, called out during the preaching, "Kill the man; away with the Protestants." To day, that very woman is our friend, has done me numerous favors, and calls on me to visit her in time of affliction.

Our church roll is not extensive, for death and removal have caused many names to be erased, but we have large and attentive congregations, and a wonderful spirit of liberality throughout the country. Several candidates have been baptized during this year, and there are still others awaiting the ordinance. Our Sunday-school is well attended by both children and grown people.

There is, too, a day school connected with the Mission enrolling some eighteen pupils. This is taught by our native man and woman worker and myself, each giving a stated time to the work. The children have learned, in addition to the usual branches, much of the Bible by heart.

At the last meeting of my weekly Woman's Meeting, more than thirty were present, and many took part, leading in prayer, reciting portions of Scripture or giving a bit of personal experience or advice.

More homes are open to me than I have time to visit. So I lift up my heart to-night in gratitude to God for the measure of success he has granted his unworthy servant. But there is still much to be done, not only in this one town, but all over Mexico for the Master, and those of us on the field realize more than those at home how important is the work being done by the Woman's Missionary Union.

The Mexican Mission at large feels an interest in Madero Institute. When I was in Saltillo last month, I found the teachers of the Institute somewhat discouraged that so few professions of faith had been made by their pupils during the present term. At the beginning of the session, few besides the charity pupils were members of the church, but a gracious revival is going on in Saltillo, and seventeen of the pupils of Madero Institute professed faith in Christ this very week. We thank God and take new courage. I am sure that you sympathize with the teachers in their joy. With sincere regards,

Your sister in Christ,

Life Among the Indians Long Ago.

Dr. V. M. Metcalfe of Hopkinsville, Ky., one of the editors of the Youth's Advocate, a Sunday-school paper of very large circulation, has given these reminiscences to The Indian Helper:

"I have all my life loved the Indians. Among the most pleasing remembrances of childhood are my playmates—many of whom were little Cherokee Indian boys and girls. My father moved from Kentucky to East Tennessee in 1835, and settled in Hiwassee Valley among the Cherokee Indians. These Indians were very friendly; many of them had married into some of the best white families in the country. I remember well the names of the Rosses, Donleys, and Smiths. My father owned a cotton factory, saw mill, carding machine and grist mill, besides a small store. I have seen hundreds of Indians sit with their red blankets closely drawn around them of a warm summer day, watching the mills, strange things to them, while waiting to have their corn ground. Their little children and their dogs would often attend them, and I became very fond of playing with them. Of course, the boys and girls were not dressed like our people, yet I learned to love them because they brought me bows and arrows, nuts and pretty skins of wild animals. At last the time came for them to be taken to their reservation in the far off west. My eldest brother, Thomas Metcalfe, and his father in law, Gen. John Smith, were appointed as government agents to conduct them to their future home. They did not wish to leave their beautiful Hiwassee. I remember many touching scenes that occurred while they were being forced away from their beautiful hunting ground. One old man lived near us who had a large family; he came to my father almost daily to get him to intercede with the Great Father at Washington to let him stay; but he told him he was powerless and could do nothing for them. The day came for them to move. It was a sad day for us all. My father and mother were always kind to the Indians and had won their hearts. They did not want to move away from such kind neighbors, but they had to go, as the government had so determined. As the long train of wagons was passing our home, I shall never forget the cursing of some and the weeping of others. As the old man and family already mentioned were passing, they stopped, and my mother filled their sacks with cakes and good things to eat on their long journey. The old man bowed himself to the ground and wept like a child, while the women and children all cried and begged to stay near us. Myself and little brother went with them as far as the big hill that overlooked the valley. Here they had a big cry again as they took the last look at their beautiful valley. My little heart was almost broken to part with these friends, and to see them so much troubled by being taken against their will, from such homes among the mountains and valleys of their own Hiwassee."

Beulah Union.

The Union Meeting of the Beulah Associational was held with Lee-Bethel church. Devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. C. R. Taylor.

The Union was organized by electing Bro. T. K Glenn, Moderator, and Geo. M. Burton, Clerk.

In a brief speech, Bro. Glenn stated the object of the Union.

A resolution was passed, recommending vacant places in the bounds of the Beulah Association for our missionary to visit and try to establish mission stations, subject to the approval of the Executive Committee.

A resolution was passed requesting the Executive Committee to meet at Shiloh on the second Sunday in October.

After discussing the desirability of the Baptist churches in Person county joining the Beulah Association, the Chairman appointed Wm. M. Faulkner, Dr. J. I. Colman and George M. Burton to correspond with them, asking them to bring the matter before their churches.

It was recommended that Rev. D. J. Harris, Rev. J. E. Armstrong and Rev. C. R. Taylor be appointed a committee to arrange the program for the next Union.

Committee on place for next Union reported Yanceyville Baptist church as the place, and the fifth Sunday in December and Saturday before as the time.

Thus ended a pleasant and we hope a very profitable Union.

Atlanta Exposition.

THE "CHICAGO OF THE SOUTH."

The most important event of the current year to this country, and especially to the South, and still more especially to the city of Atlanta and the State of Georgia, is the Cotton States and International Exposition which was formally opened at Atlanta, Ga., on the 18th day of September, and which will be closed on the 31st day of December.

That a Southern city of about 110,000 population should have the enterprise and public spirit, not to say the temerity, to undertake, almost single handed, an enterprise as wide in its scope, so mammoth in its proportions and requiring such a vast outlay of money as to richly entitle it to the designation of "International," in the face of a universal commercial depression and financial panic, and that Atlanta, Ga., which was left but little more than a heap of ashes and smouldering ruins, with its population of 10,000 scattered and homeless by Sherman's army, and when it took up its famous "March to the Sea," should be that city, it is not surprising that the first suggestions of such an enterprise were received with general misgiving and that even the Southern States and cities counselled against it, and were slow to come to the assistance of a sister city in an undertaking which at such a time was regarded as hazardous in the extreme and too mammoth to promise even a measurable degree of accomplishment.

A visit to Piedmont Park, however, about two miles north of the center of Atlanta, will dispel every doubt of the realization of a degree of success surpassing the most sanguine expectations of the projectors of the Cotton States and International Exposition.

There is an appearance of solidity, grandeur and beauty in her public buildings, her hundred churches, her seminaries, colleges, numerous public school houses, her Henry Grady Hospital, her stores and private houses, suggestive of abundant building material near by, and looking away to the east, fourteen miles across the foothills, the famous Stone Mountain looms up, a solid mountain of granite, where immense quarries are operated now, but where, thirty one years ago, grim visaged war held sway and thousands were slain, and their blood trickled over the rugged, granite sides of Stone Mountain.

In looking over these lovely hills and valleys, clad in the gladness of Southern verdure and, yielding abundantly to the hand of the happy husbandman, it is difficult to realize that it was ever the theater of war, and that the soil was literally soaked with fraternal blood.

In such an undertaking the question of transportation is one of natural prominence, and every person in anywise interested in this exposition, every person proposing to become an exhibitor or a visitor has doubtless propounded the inquiry, whether the Southern railroads are equal to the emergency of handling the enormous travel and traffic to and from Atlanta during the period of the exposition. This question of course has long since been answered to their satisfaction by the Committee on Transportation of the Atlanta Fair; but for the benefit of many who acquired their knowledge of the railroads of the South during a period of ten or fifteen years succeeding the close of the war, perhaps it will be well to say that no comparison can be well drawn between the miserable apologies for railroads in the South during that period, with the really splendid roadbeds and equipment and service of the present.

Atlanta is essentially a railroad city and a great railroad city, having roads, and good ones, radiating to every section of the country. But without considering any of the others, there is one system fully capable of handling expeditiously, comfortably and satisfactorily, all the travel and traffic to and from the exposition from any and every direction, and that is the great combination operated by a single management, with headquarters at Washington, D. C., under the name of the Southern Railway.

One of its lines has it northern terminus at Washington, and over it is operated a fast through service in connection with the Pennsylvania Railroad from New York, through Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington and Atlanta to all parts of the South and Southwest, including New Orleans and points in Florida, and which makes the run from New York to Atlanta in 24 hours. Not only so, but its connections in other directions enable it to give the same first class service to passengers from the West and Northwest.

So important is this great railroad system to the success of the exposition and so hearty has been its interest in the undertaking and its co-operation with the managers of the exposition, that it has been accorded exceptional privileges and will be the only road having tracks in Piedmont Park, which will enable it to land passengers from any direction, without change of cars, either in the Park or in the Union depot in Atlanta, as they may prefer.

The Southern Railway has always manifested the most generous interest in every enterprise or effort to promote the welfare of the South, and will make a most interesting exhibit in a handsome building which it has erected in the fair grounds, consisting of specimens of the mineral and other products of the South and illustrative of the marvelous improvement in railroad construction, operation and architecture in this country.

We have been doing this class of work for more than twenty years, and are familiar with the proper arrangement, and with the names of the brethren, &c., and when we print them the work is not only well done, but the Minutes are correct.

It would be better for all the work if the Minutes of all the Associations were printed at one place.

NEWS SUMMARY.

North Carolina.

Mr. D. T. Swindell, a prominent merchant of Raleigh, died last Saturday morning, the 12th, at 9 o'clock. He kept what is popularly known as a "Racket Store." He has been a very successful business man, commencing his career in Washington, N. C., his native town, on 1st 1860 he located in Raleigh, and at his death was at the head of one of the largest business houses in Raleigh, and was fifty one years of age.——The State Fair will be held in Raleigh Oct 22-25, Railroad fare is one cent per mile.——The Charlotte Observer of the 12th notes several tests of the financial prosperity of our people, viz., first, the summer excursions, of which there never was so many, and all were largely patronized; secondly, the churches, which have drawn large crowds; and thirdly, and the best gauge of all, is the school attendance. Judged by the last mentioned standard alone, our contemporary says that North Carolina was never so prosperous before.——The residence of Capt. W. T. R. Bell at King's Mountain was consumed by fire Oct. 10th, caused by a flying spark from a chimney. The building was insured for $2,900; loss, between $2600 and $3000.——Acetylene is the name of Maj. J. Turner Morehead's new illuminant, manufactured only at Spray, N. C. The Acetylene Gas Company of Philadelphia has been organized, and 5,000 shares at $25.00 per share, offered for sale by the company, were readily taken, half to be paid down, and the other half when called for by the company. Bidders offered $25 per share, so anxious were they to take stock in the enterprise. It is said that this light will convert night into day!

In General.

U. S. Attorney General Harmon, in response to a letter asking if it would be unlawful for American citizens to express sympathy for the Cuban insurgents in public meetings, says that while there is no law to prevent our people from speaking their sentiments on any subject, yet the expression of such sentiments in public meetings would be discourteous in spirit towards Spain, a friendly power, and tend to embarrass the U. S. government in its determination to fulfil its treaty obligations. It is stated on the authority of a dispatch from Madrid that the U. S. government has urged on the Spanish Minister at Washington the necessity of prompt and vigorous action on the part of Spain to crush the rebellion in Cuba. But the truth of this statement is doubtful. The dry season has now commenced in Cuba, and armies can move more readily; and it is published that Spain will put forth at once the effort to suppress unruly Cuba. There is much sympathy felt for the Cubans in this country.——Gen. Wm. Mahone of Virginia died in Washington City Oct. 8th. He was stricken with paralysis, about a week preceding his death. He was near sixty-nine years of age, and was surrounded by his family in his dying hours. He graduated at the Virginia Military Institute in 1847. He was a brigade commander of the Confederate forces, and his achievements brought him great military fame. Since the war he has been very prominent in Virginia politics, and was a member of the United States Senate for six years from March, 1881, to March, 1889. At one time he was wealthy, but died, it is stated, possessed of a small estate. He was buried at Petersburg, his old home.——Cotton goods have advanced, evidencing that the cotton crop will be short. Manufactured products of wool, hides and leather have declined in price, principally owing, it is thought, to abatement of orders.——The superintendent of the Boston and Maine Railroad has issued a circular to the employees of the road forbidding their use of tobacco while on duty, and on trains and in stations with a badge or uniform on while off duty.

Scuppernong Union.

The Scuppernong Union Meeting met with the church at Columbia the fifth Sunday and Saturday before in September. Rev. John Shaw preached the introductory sermon. We had a good and profitable meeting. Then we had preaching Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday following. Rev. Josiah Elliott assisted Rev. John Shaw, or Rev. John Shaw assisted Rev. Josiah Elliott, I know not which, in preaching. The Lord was present, and as a result there were twenty one accessions to the church, none of the converts being younger than fifteen years.

By the way, Rev. Josiah Elliott and Rev. John Shaw are no ordinary team.

Cost of Endowment Insurance Reduced.

For about ten years the old Union Central Life Insurance Company has been maturing and paying the full face of policies, for which they charged the insured the same as other first class companies charge for policies due only at death. We paid over $125,000 of these last year, and they did not have to "die to win."

We have for many years made the highest interest and lowest death rate, and by these points of successful management, we can do much more for our insured than any company.

Any other company known to me ever matured a life rate policy and paid it off before death. Why pay a high price for endowment insurance when we give you endowment insurance at the cheap life rate? Agents wanted.

A strike of 1,500 engineers threatened a Scranton.

Opposed to the General Program for Unions.

Dear Recorder:—There are at least three very formidable barriers, in my opinion, to the scheme suggested by you for our Union Meetings:

1. Our work is already, like our government, showing tendencies too strongly inward a centralized power—the few over the many. This is not only contrary to Baptist principles, but it is also the greatest foe to the highest development of our forces.

2. It takes the responsibility from off the local community. I admit that there is an evil—a giant evil—in the present arrangement, but I am far from believing that its remedy lies in having all the programs arranged by a "central committee" for the whole Convention. This violates the very foundation principle of development. Instead of taking responsibility off, lay it on, and the development will be more marked and healthy. If our Union Meetings would be more careful about who compose their committees of arrangements and programs, the matter would adjust itself. I have seen some of the most pious, learned and devout men in the State get out the poorest programs.

3. The needs are not the same in every particular throughout the State. You seem to think that the programs now have almost a similarity in some cases, even in the wording. If this is true, then that which you seek is already in vogue, and yet you confess to its utter failure; consequently it is only one point gained in a "central committee", to-wit, the quality of the program, and making it absolutely uniform. There are some questions which most vitally concern the denomination at large that should be discussed at all the Union Meetings in the State. It is also true that there are local needs to be met, of which a "central committee" would be almost wholly ignorant. Such needs can only be met by some one who studies them, and adapts queries and speakers to them.

These are some of the things I think about this matter. Fraternally,

M. A. ADAMS.

The Free Masons of Mississippi have taken a stand which we hope all their order will adopt. They have made a rule that "no Mason, either as principal, agent, employee, or in any other capacity, shall sell intoxicating liquors to be used as a beverage, and the penalty thereof shall be expulsion."

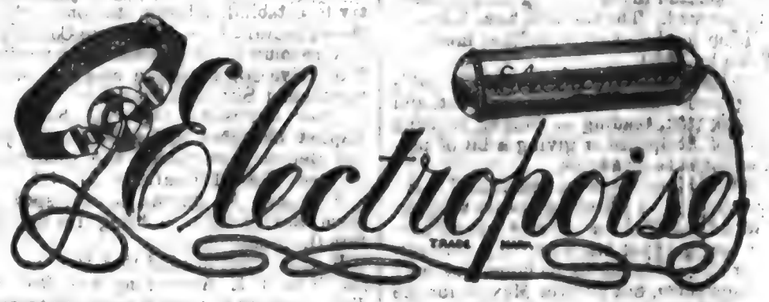
HORRIBLE SORES
WHICH CAUSED THEM.



Traveler Henry Hudson's Experience.
"Among the many testimonials which I see in regard to patent medicines performing cures, cleansing the blood, etc., none impress me more than my own case, and I conscientiously believe it to be my duty to let people know it. Twenty years ago, at the age of 18 years, I had swellings on my legs, which broke and became running sores. Our family physician could do me no good, and it was feared that the bones would be affected. At last, my good old mother urged me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I took three bottles, the sores healed, and I have not been troubled since. Only the scars remain, and the memory of the past, to remind me of the good Ayer's Sarsaparilla has done me. I now weigh two hundred and twenty pounds, and am in the best of health. I have been on the road for the past twelve years, have noticed Ayer's Sarsaparilla advertised in all parts of the United States, and always take pleasure in telling what good it did for me."—HENRY HUDSON, James Smith Woolen Machinery Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

Saved by a Star.

HOW A YOUNG WOMAN'S DEATH WAS PREVENTED.

GIVEN UP BY SEVERAL PHYSICIANS—READ AN ACCOUNT IN THE WASHINGTON STAR OF A NEW MEDICINE—IT SAVED HER LIFE.

From the Star, Washington, D. C.

Mr. E. L. Violland, who resides about three miles from Vienna, Va., is one of the best known and most prosperous farmers in Fairfax county, and the helpless condition of his daughter, Miss Birdie, now just budding into womanhood, for four years previous to the beginning of the use by her in January last of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, was the subject of general comment and regret among all who were acquainted with the family.

"I have no objection whatever," said the young lady, "to telling what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me." Since I began taking them at the first of the present year. Nearly five years ago, (we then lived in Washington City) I was taken with the grip. My parents at once summoned the best medical aid and although the physician did all in his power to cure me I gradually grew worse. Fearing that I was going to die, a second physician was summoned in consultation. A little after this I became somewhat better but the improvement did not last long. Then I had a relapse and following this was perhaps, if possible, worse than I had been in the first instance.

"I grew better and again became worse several times during a long period and my parents, as well as myself, arrived at the conclusion that I must soon die. As a last resort we decided to remove to this farm hoping that the change would do me good, and we then left the city. At this time I could not walk without assistance. I was affected with the most disagreeable tickling sensations in my feet and hands. My whole system was in disorder and I was thoroughly run down.

"As soon as we got into our new home a physician of the neighborhood was sent for and he and another doctor, who succeeded him in the care of my case, prescribed for me for a long time, but nothing seemed to do me any good, and my parents and myself despaired that I should ever be well again.

"One day during the latter part of December last, my father in reading The Star noticed that some wonderful cures had been made by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. He called my attention to the published certificates and we were both of the opinion that The Star would not print such certificates even as an advertisement unless they were genuine, and my father the next day went to Washington where he procured half dozen boxes of the pills. I began to feel something better before I had finished taking one box, and by the time I had used the six boxes was a comparatively well girl. I then went out carriage riding but unfortunately the pills broke throwing me out, and the hoof attached to a buggy which was following, stepped on my head before I could either get out of the way or be assisted to rise. I was badly hurt and a doctor had to be called in to sew up the wound. The doctor also gave me a mild tonic, but I did not relinquish for a day the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills which I am still using and I am now enjoying the best of health and can walk any distance I desire without suffering any fatigue."

Mr. Violland who was present during the interview said he could endorse all that his daughter had said, and that he had heard the Pink Pills are good also for rheumatism, with which he is a sufferer and for which he intends to begin using them at once.

The foregoing is but one of many wonderful cures that have been credited to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Diseases which heretofore have been supposed to be incurable, such as locomotor ataxia and paralysis succumb to this wonderful medicine as readily as the most trifling ailments. In many cases the reported cures have been investigated by the leading newspapers and verified in every possible manner, and in no case has the least semblance of fraud been discovered. Their fame has spread to the far ends of civilization and there is hardly a drug store in this country or abroad where they cannot be found.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effect of la grippe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions, all forms of weakness either in male or female. Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price, 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

Work in Summer Meetings.

Dear Recorder:—I commenced my meeting at Cool Springs church the first Sunday in August, which continued seven days. I was aided by Rev. J. M. Henly, now at Wake Forest. Though young in the cause, yet he did some good preaching. We were were greatly blessed. Three professed faith in Christ. There were several penitents during the meeting. The church was revived as it has not been for years. It pleased the Lord to meet with us, and we ascribe all the praise to him.

I went from Cool Springs to aid Bro. G. W. Harman in a meeting at Rocky River. Bro. Harman is one of the best preachers I know for his advantages. We had the presence of the Holy Spirit with us. Eight professed faith in Christ. "It was good to be there." The church was greatly strengthened. We bless the Lord for his goodness, mercy, and wonderful works to the children of men.

From Rocky River, I went to Mt. Vernon Springs, four delightful days of summer retreat, to aid Bro. W. H. H. Lanham. We had there also the power and demonstration of the Holy Spirit. It pleased the Lord to bless his holy Word. It proved to be the power of God unto salvation to those who believed. We were made to rejoice, because sinners were brought, under the influence of the Holy Spirit, into the fold of Christ.

We commenced our meeting at Siler City on the second Sunday in September. I was aided by Bro. M. A. Adams, the gifted and talented pastor of Reidsville church. Bro. Adams, though comparatively a young man, possesses rare abilities as a pastor and as a preacher. He preached some of the finest sermons I ever heard. We have not had such plain, simple, gospel sermons in our church before. The church was much revived, and I believe elevated to a higher plane of spiritual living and activity. This church is one of the most prosperous churches in the Sandy Creek Association. Bro. D. L. Webster is our Sunday school superintendent, and a good one, too. He is energetic, active, zealous. No church could be inactive with such a layman. Would to God that more of our churches had live, energetic, active laymen to spur them up! We thank God for those we have.

I go to Liberty Sunday to engage in meeting. May the Lord bless our labors there!

Yours in His Name,

H. G. HORNER.

From Ruin to Prosperity.

Seven or eight years ago, Oxford Female Seminary reached a high degree of prosperity. But in reaching this prosperity the President, Prof. F. P. Hobgood, worked himself well nigh to death. His health broke down completely. For two or more years, he had to give up every kind of work. The school passed into other hands. The new management was bad in the extreme. The school went down. The teachers left, the students went home, the school property was seized for debt. The school was regarded as a hopeless failure. But at this dark hour Prof. Hobgood's health began to improve. He soon regained more than former health. He looked with sadness on the wreck of his once flourishing school. Great as the task was, he resolved to gather up the fragments and rebuild the school. Difficulties, from which ordinary men would have shrunk, stared him in the face. During his long sickness there was not only the loss of his earnings, but a heavy debt incurred for medical treatment. Then, too, the school furniture had been taken for debt under the former management, and could only be replaced at a heavy outlay of money. But bravely he dared all these difficulties, and went to work to re-establish the school. Just as he began this herculean task, the money panic set in, and a dark cloud of despondency overshadowed the country, and all kinds of business began to languish.

But the school was started, and by economy and hard efforts it was pulled through the first year. And though the panic still prevailed, the second term was greatly in advance of the first. And now the school has reached a higher degree of prosperity than ever before attained.

Prof. Hobgood has labored long and hard to regain what was lost. We congratulate him on his success. He easily ranks among the best educators of the South. The appalling difficulties he has surmounted, the faith and work by which he has achieved his present success entitle him to a still more liberal share of school patronage. There are hundreds of bright, promising girls who ought to be in school, but are not. It is the sacred duty of parents to send them, if it can be done by any possible sacrifice. Do not wait for new schools to be established, but fill to overflowing the good schools we already have.

A FRIEND.

October 3, 1895.

Pounded.

Dear Recorder:—I wish through your columns to thank the members and friends on my field for the way they pounded me. I must say I was hard hit, and each lick (pound) was so nice and so highly appreciated I feel that the pastor might be strong enough to receive a pounding weekly. My work seems to be moving on nicely with plenty to do. Truly the word is work. Glory to God that we can enjoy such a blessed privilege as to work for him. Will be a meeting at Milton next month, and will have Dr. T. B Tames of Danville, to conduct it for us. Oh, my God, open the doors of his storehouse and shower the blessings down upon us.

Yours fraternally,

JOS E ARMSTRONG.

Chronic Malaria,

A VERY PREVALENT DISEASE FOLLOWING THE HOT SUMMER OF 1895.

The continuance of hot and dry weather is sure to produce the prevalence of chronic malaria. The past summer has been exactly suitable for the production of a great deal of malaria. Even in localities where malaria has been previously unknown, many cases malaria are developed. This form of malaria is distinguished from the old-fashioned fever and ague by the insidiousness of its attack and the difficulty with which it is cured. It does not come on quickly, like chills and fever. The symptoms pester and provoke sometimes for several weeks before the patient is made sick enough to take medicine.

Slight, chilly sensations, cold, sweaty spells, frontal headache, biliousness, furred tongue, bad taste in the mouth, sticky mucous in the throat, constipation, languor, etc.

A medical treatise on chronic malaria will be sent free by the Peruna Drug Manufacturing Company of Columbus, Ohio. This book is a complete guide to the prevention and cure of malaria in its various forms. Peruna has long since been recognized as the only infallible cure for the chronic form of malaria. While quinine has become the standard remedy for acute malaria, commonly called fever and ague, many people have found by bitter experience that it will not cure the chronic form. Peruna cures these cases promptly and permanently.

DIED.

COWELL—Died at his residence in Camden county, N. C., Tuesday, Oct. 1st, Dr. W. H. Cowell, aged sixty-four years. Dr. Cowell could never see his way clear to unite with the church, but when passing away said to his sorrowing family and friends, "Weep not for me; I have no fears about the future." He will be missed in all this community.

R. R. OVERBY.

PEARCE—Bro. J. S. Pearce died March 17th, 1895. He was born and raised in the county of Gates, and was seventy-five years old when the Lord called him to his reward. In early life Bro. Pearce made a profession of religion and united with the Baptist church; and well did he exemplify the religion of the blessed Master in his every-day life. For several years he had been a member of the church at Eureka. His seat is now vacant; but we sorrow not as those who have no hope.

On Sept. 9th, 1895 Sister Elizabeth Pearce (the widow of Bro S. J. Pearce) was called to her reward by the Master, whom she delighted to serve while she was living.

Sister Pearce was a little older than her husband, being in her seventy-seventh year when the Lord said to her, "Enough, my child; come home." This aged couple of God's saints lived a long and happy life together, and they are together in the better land. They leave behind several children.

W. P. JORDAN.

COOK—At her home near Magnolia June 29th, 1895, after being a great sufferer for eighteen months, Mrs. C. A. Cook committed her spirit into the hands of Him whom she had trusted for forty-two years. She gave her life to Christ when fourteen years old, and joined Wells' Chapel church, which was named for her father, David Wells, and who was so long pastor of that church. She married Bro. C. A. Cook and moved near Island Creek church, where she united some years ago. She was faithful to her church, loved God's word, and realized in trying to keep it there was great reward.

Sister Cook was a dear lover of the RECORDER. While on her bed suffering almost death, she would read her religious paper. So patient was she in all of her sickness any one might see she bore the mark of her Saviour. A consecrated Christian, a loving mother, a devoted wife, has been taken from earth. She leaves a husband, seven children, and many friends, to mourn her death. May God bless the bereaved family, is the prayer of her pastor,

A. J. TAYLOR.

WOODSIDES—There passed to the glory land just at 4:25 p. m. Sept. 27th 1895, from his home in Brunswick county, Bro. John W. Woodsides, after an illness of two weeks. This brother's death is one of the surest bereavements that has befallen his neighborhood. Friends on every hand join the sorrowing family in their loss as a common one. In duty he never was found wanting, but was always zealous in whatever trust or occupation placed. In his home he was a devoted son of a widowed mother. Seven years ago he married Miss Mary Anders of Bladen county, and as ever a devoted son even so was he a devoted and affectionate husband and father. Of course he was a loved and honored citizen. He was a faithful member of the Southport Baptist church, joining in full manhood. Bro. Woodsides was a man that disliked everything that was for a show, and influenced by a popular excited sentiment. It was so with him in his religious life. He meditated well, formed his own sentiment, and on a bright Sabbath morning, as Bro. Bullard entered the church he made known his desires to join the church and be baptized that same Sabbath day, which was done.

He was one of the best men I ever knew. Brother Bullard, his pastor, says of him, that he was the most conscientious and honest in his convictions of any one he knew of.

Blessed memory! What an encomium! We shall miss him. May his cherished memory, with the many bright promises of God's word, help to assuage the grief of his loved ones and dispel the clouds from their pathway.

D. I. WATSON.

Tributes of Respect.

God in his inscrutable wisdom has seen fit to remove from our church and Sunday-school our much beloved brother, James A. Phillips. He professed faith in Christ a number of years ago, and was one of the constituent members of State Line Baptist church. Bro. Phillips was a great sufferer for some little before his death, but bore it all patiently and cheerfully being fully resigned to his Master's will. While the death of such a brother is a great loss to us, we bow submissively to his divine will, knowing and believing that he doth all things well; therefore Resolved 1. That in the death of Bro. Phillips our Sunday-school loses an old and faithful member, one whose seat was rarely ever vacant.

2. That State Line Sunday-school extend to his bereaved family its heartfelt sympathy.

3. That these resolutions be spread on the record of our Sunday-school to his memory.

4. That the secretary of this meeting transmit a copy of these resolutions to the family of the deceased, and that a copy be sent to the BIBLICAL RECORDER for publication.

Love's Millionaire.

I say: "The world is lonely;
The hearth at home is cold,
And sad is life in child and wife
When life hath little gold."
But soft her arms steal round my neck—
My comforter so dear:
And "How much do you love me?"
And her sweet voice answers clear:

"I love you, I love you
A hundred million—there!"
And then I'm poor no more—no more,
For I'm Love's millionaire!

Then sweetly seems the breaking
Of Poverty's sad bread,
And roses bloom from out the gloom
And crown her curly head.
And if sometimes a tear will fall
My dreaming eyes will fill,
Her soft arms steal around me,
And she whispers tweetly still:

"I love you, I love you
A hundred million—there!"
I weep no more: God help the poor!
I'm Love's own millionaire!

A Brown Leaf.

In the woods to-day a leaf fluttered down,
It was wrinkled and old and bent and brown,
But it met the wind and began to play,
And I watched it until it whirled away.

And I could but wonder, when time and grief
Should have made me old and bent as the leaf,
Would my heart be as young and full of glee
As the brown leaf playing in front of me?

The Visitor in Pink Silk.

When I was a little girl,—I hope I have a big crowd listening to me, with clean, smiling faces and Sunday go to meeting clothes on, sitting row upon row on Sunday school benches,—when I was a little girl, there came into our country neighborhood a family of rich people, who lived in more style than I had ever heard of.

I was allowed to go with my mother when she went to call on the Pages, and was delighted to find in the family a little girl about my own age, whose name was Fenton. I did not see her, however; for she was just getting over the mumps, and my mother did not want me to take the disease.

Mrs. Page promised that Fenton should return my visit as soon as ever she was well; and I went home much impressed with the butler's brass buttons and silver bowls on the board.

One bright summer day, some weeks after this visit, I was enjoying myself very much playing in our back yard with our washwoman's daughter, when I heard my mother's voice calling: "Constance, O Constance! Come here my daughter!"

"Bother!" I said to myself in a very naughty tone. "Now I'll have to go and learn that old geography lesson."

"O Conny, beg your mother not to make you!" coaxed my little visitor.

"Well, you come and beg for me," said I, with sudden craftiness; for I had observed that my mother, who was gentle to every one, was especially kind to those who were called "the working people."

So we left the happy sand pile on which we had been sliding, and I hurried Delia into the sitting room to find my mother. She was there, and with her was a very fine looking maid, in muslin cap and apron, and my new neighbor, Fenton Page!

My, but I was abashed! She had come to spend the afternoon, and the maid said she would come back for her at six o'clock.

I can't help being amused now, as I look back at that utterly dejected little self, in a dark calico dress, sore needed, with a brown linen apron, none too clean or smooth from sliding down the sand pile.

But there was no help for it, so Delia and I carried her off to the sand pile. There we came to a full stop, for clearly no girl in a pink silk dress could play in the sand. Then I took her to the flower garden, but she did not know pansies from tulips. She had never planted a seed or watched a rose bloom in her life. I showed her my little fluffy chickens, but she was afraid of them. Think of being afraid of chickens!

At last I took my finely dressed visitor up to my play-room, but she didn't seem to care for my dear dolly, because the red had come off her cheeks. She said she had sixteen dolls at home, and one could talk and one could walk.

At last I sat down on the floor and gave up the job. "What do you play at home," I asked, "if you don't have chickens nor flowers, nor birds nor sand piles, and if you are tired of dolls and don't like to read!"

"I dress up and walk out, and go to dancing school, and visit the other girls, and go to shows and things," said the city child, smoothing down the pink silk.

At last six o'clock came, and with it the stately maid; and my visitor minced away under her lace parasol. I felt like a prisoner set free, and Delia and I tore back to the sand pile.

"I never want to see her again, never!" I exclaimed.

But the next morning early back came my visitor. This time she wore a pink lawn and a white sunbonnet.

"Mother says I can slide on the sand hill," she cried as soon as she came in sight; and of all pleased girls she was the most delighted. She got them to give her a little garden at home, too; and we worked in it together.

I soon found that all God's little girls love his birds and flowers and chickens when they have a chance, and when they are not too much dressed up; and I was entirely cured of coveting my neighbor's imported buttered silver bowls when I found that being tied up in fine clothes went along with these things.

"When we have little girls, Delia," I said, "we mustn't ever dress 'em in pink silk dresses."

"Nor white lace parasols!" said Delia, with a little sigh; for Delia admired my visitor very much.

"No indeed!" I answered positively. "If we do, they will never learn all the beautiful near-the-ground things that God means us to play with. I s'pect he just made little chickens and bluebirds for us, and hid the violets in the woods so we could have fun hunting them. My! ever since that first visit it has almost made me sick to see a piece of silk!"

"Well," said Delia, reluctantly, "if you think my little girls cant have both. I guess I won't dress 'em in pink silk!"—Elizabeth P. Allan, in the Presbyterian.

"Social Treating" Custom

Mr. Perry was a Southern gentleman, exceedingly polite and a very temperate man. One day he met an acquaintance, who called out: "Halloo, Perry! I was just going to get a drink. Come and take something."

"Thank you," said Perry. "I dont care for anything."

"But," persisted the other, "come in and take something, just for sociability's sake."

"I want to be sociable," answered Perry. "I am anxious to to be sociable, but I can't drink with you."

"All right," growled the friend. "If you don't want to be sociable, I'll go without drinking."

The two men walked silently along for a minute or two, the sociable man in a state of great irritation, until Perry suddenly halted in front of a drug store.

"I am not feeling well to-day," said he, with a pleasant smile, "and I think I'll go in here and get a dose of castor oil. Will you join me?"

"What!" exclaimed the other. "A dose of castor oil!"

"Yes, I'll pay for it."

"Ugh!" cried the sociable man, with a wry face. "I hate the stuff."

"But I want you to take a glass of oil with me, just to be sociable, you know."

"I won't do it."

"Indeed, my friend," said Perry, gravely, "your sociable whiskey is just as distasteful to me as my oil is to you. Don't you think I have as much reason to be offended with you as you with me?"

The sociable man saw the point; and it would be money, health and morals saved if the lesson could be firmly implanted in the mind of every young man in the land.

At Your Own Door.

Sophia had been praying for twelve years to become a foreign missionary. One day she had so prayed, and the Heavenly Father seemed to say:

"Sophia, stop; where were you born?"

"In Germany, Father."

"Where are you now?"

"In America, Father."

"Well, are you not a foreign missionary already?" Then father said to me: "Who lives on the floor above you?"

"A family of Swedes."

"And who above them?"

"Why, some Swiss."

"Who in the rear?"

"Italians."

"And a block away"

"Some Chinese."

"And you have never said a word to these people about my Son? Do you think I will send you thousands of miles to the foreigner and heathen when you never care enough about them at your own door to speak with them about their souls?"

Human life is held too cheaply when the individual who needs a tonic for his system, seeks to cover his wants by purchasing every new mixture that is recommended to him. Remember that Ayer's Sarsaparilla has a well earned reputation of fifty year's standing.

What All Boys Should Know

Don't be satisfied with your boy's education, says the School Supplement, until you are sure that he can—

Write a good, legible hand.
Spell all the words he knows how to use.
Speak and write good English.
Write a good social letter.
Write a good business letter.
Add a column of figures rapidly.
Make out an ordinary account.
Deduct 10½ per cent. from the face of it.
Receipt it when paid.
Write an ordinary receipt.
Write an advertisement for the paper.
Write a notice or report of a public meeting.
Write an ordinary promissory note.
Reckon the interest or discount on it for days, months or years.
Draw an ordinary bank check.
Take it to the proper place in a bank to get the cash.
Make neat and correct entries in the day book and the ledger.
Tell the number of yards of carpet required for your parlor.
Measure the pile of lumber in your shed.
Tell the number of bushels of wheat in your largest bin, and its value at current rates.

If he can do all this and more, it is likely he has sufficient education to enable him to make his own way in the world.

If you have more money and time to spend upon him, all well and good; give him English, literature, science, and the various branches of a liberal or a technical education.

IT IS time some of the papers that have gotten into the habit of filling up their columns with remarks and rumors and editorial protestations about the outrages of the Turks upon the innocent, defenceless, long-suffering and Christian Armenians, were confessing that they do not know anything about the matter. In truth, none of us know much. Several times official news of a massacre (we do not know how many) of anywhere from 8,000 to 20,000 Armenians, and less bloody reports, have come thick and fast without ceasing. The last we heard, however, was that the innocent Armenians themselves were parading in arms in Constantinople and threatening to do no end of killing, and that the Turks had attacked them again and killed first 2,000, then 1,200, then 500, and finally 150 of them, which last number will stand a week or more probably. That there has been bloodshed in Armenia, that the Turks do persecute them, is about all we know, and about all anybody else who reads the papers could make affidavit to.

As long as bloody news from Armenia is a high-priced commodity in the news market, we may expect to get more or less sanguine and conflicting reports; but in a little while correspondents' eyes will turn elsewhere, and we can get clear and accurate accounts of what has happened.

A FEW months ago New York City and State was "bossed" by Croker; he was overwhelmingly defeated last year, and in place of the old "boss" arose Platt, who is scarcely better than his predecessor. It seems that the people of New York cannot get along without a political boss of one stripe or another. This is pretty much so in all countries which are not absolute monarchies. The people vote, parties go up and down, office holders go in and out, but some one always rises superior to the crowd and becomes dictator. Sometimes he is a worthy man. There was Vance. But more frequently power makes him vain and covetous, and flattery or money or hope of more power overcomes his good impulses; so that, as in New York, between political bosses of either party there is no choice. This state of affairs would not last long if the people were educated and incorruptible; and to educate and morally strengthen them is the one way to escape bosses and corrupt leaders.

A NEWSPAPER cannot be responsible for its advertisements. The most it can do is to refuse to publish advertisements which its manager has reasonable grounds to suspect of deceit. But very often a manager is utterly at a loss to form an opinion of an advertisement. It may look unreliable, but the advertiser may have good standing in the trade. When this is the case, the manager has to leave the matter with the readers of his paper. There was a time when advertisements partook of the character of the paper in which they appeared; but this is no longer so. Advertisements stand on their own merits, and the fact that they are in a religious paper signifies only that the manager of the paper thinks they are fit to be published, and has no reason to say they are fraudulent. No one can tell whether a patent medicine advertisement is reliable or not—until he has tried it. That some patent medicines have been taken by sick people who soon got well is a known fact; but while this may be sufficient ground for a manager to put an advertisement of it in his paper, it is not sufficient for him to recommend it. He would more likely consult his physician, should he be sick.

ALMOST every man, woman and child, white or black, belongs to an organization of sons or daughters of somebody or other. There are the sons of the Revolution, the daughters of the same, the knights of Dixie, the sons of Ham, the colonial dames, Daughters of Dixie, and so on and on. All of them are growths of an inward hankering for a name, a desire to be set apart and above the rest of folks when there is no reason for it. There is money in it for the officers, and they furnish the steam to make the organization a success, while the poor fellows whose fathers were really distinguished men, furnish the material to work on.

Our country was settled from England, not by her aristocracy, for it had no reason to emigrate, not by her lower classes, for they were not able to emigrate, but, thank God, by her everlasting middle class, her backbone and ours, the common people who left their native land for freedom's sake. What a shame it is that the progeny of this people should now ape the aristocracy of England, and that others of them should be trying to divide themselves off into a despicable aristocracy of their own by organizing exclusive orders in the high name of patriotism!

THE daily press stands up (easily indeed) under no little severe abuse for publishing disreputable news to the exclusion of industrial and educational affairs. There are papers in which it is hard to find anything but scandal and accounts of crimes. There are others whose columns are filled with politics. And there are others of all kinds—one we knew of—it is dead now—which made a specialty of publishing government observations on the weather. It seems to us that there are varieties enough to meet the wants of all classes, the "Daily Rebuker" for grumblers, the "Criminal Gazette" for people whose intellectual appetites are depraved, the political paper for politicians, the weather report paper for those people who are always taking offence at something the editor has or has not said about them and their relatives, there are trade journals for people who are interested in commerce and industries, and there are educational journals for people who want them. A paper that would suit all these classes is an impossibility; and as long as these classes exist (i. e., until the millenium) there is no use trying to say what kind of paper they shall read. But that the good and worthy papers which do exist are well supported should be the care of good and worthy people. Here in North Carolina we are in the beginnings of many things—in nearly everything.

AFTER all the warnings of last year, football men in the colleges are starting out on another campaign without removing the objectionable features of the game. Several players were killed outright last season, and many severely injured. But this seems to have had no effect. We have always thought that college faculties know more about the value of foot-ball in athletics than outsiders; and we have insisted that the question of permitting students to play it should be left with college faculties. Certainly this is the reasonable view to take, for no parent would entrust the education of his son to a faculty which he could not permit to govern him in athletics. It is evident to the public, however, that the average faculty is in favor of the game; and without going further, parents are rising up to interfere, and many are of course going to the extreme of opposing not only modern foot-ball, but all other athletic contests. But faculties in daily contact with a hundred or more boys recognize the fact that they must have a certain amount of exercise in order to do the best work and maintain their health, and they also recognize a class of students in every college who will not take exercise just "dry so"—like so much medicine. There are laws of physical growth which must be observed. It is the function of a well-ordered college to send out graduates in possession of bodies "improved relatively as much as their minds are supposed to be." So physical culture is essential. Foot-ball is not necessarily included in physical culture, however, and while it has been a game that every one could approve, it has not been in late years; and if college men refuse to remove the objectionable features, faculties should promptly put an end to it.

DR. J. C. HIDEN makes the remarkable statement that the late Prof. John Hart of Albemarle Female Institute, Va., "was the first teacher that ever organized a scientific course of 'English' for any school in this country," and he goes on to say: "What English I know I picked up. In 1860, there was no college in this country where anything like an adequate knowledge of English could be had." If the Baptists of North Carolina will grasp the opportunity to endow Wake Forest's Royall Chair of English, we promise them that Prof. Sledd will conduct a course of English second to none.

Outline of Pastoral Work

Pastors should be busy men. Of all the callings in life the pastorate demands the most faithful, earnest and unceasing work. Ministry means service; and the ministry of the gospel is a service which lays claim to the constant use of the entire man—physical, intellectual, social and spiritual. The number and variety of discourses, the multiplicity of social and pastoral duties, the steady acquisition of biblical and general knowledge, added to the burden of household and business cares, render the life of the earnest clergyman one of intense and incessant activities.

To perform these onerous tasks easily and well, the preacher must have system in his work. In this way alone can he hope to achieve immense feats of labor. Not an hour must be lost. Every effort must be well directed. The threads of a wise system must be interwoven with our daily actions, or they will unravel. System is the fleetest servant of toil and the strongest ally of purpose. It is indispensable to the most thorough work and to the widest usefulness.

The suggestions here made are merely suggestions—they form no iron clad rule. Each man must decide upon the plan of work best suited to his nature and his surroundings. Still, what follows may be helpful in serving to indicate and encourage systematic work.

WEEKLY PROGRAM.

It is often wise to map out on Monday morning the work of the week. Of course only a rough sketch can'd be given, embracing the main points deserving attention. These self assigned lessons should relate first of all and directly to the Bible, but secondarily to social and general culture. Perhaps the program for one week would be similar to that here given:

1 Visit fifteen families.
2 Study "Regeneration" in Strong's Theology.
3 Get up two sermons and prayer-meeting talk (naming subject of each)
4 Read Romans and learn all available facts about author, date, design, circumstances
5 Memorize Psalm 23 John 1: 1—18, and thirty lines from Shakespeare.
6 Read "Locksley Hall," by Tennyson, sermons by Andrew Fuller, and a portion of "Adam Bede" by Elliot.

This outline of a week's work is beyond the capacity of some men, under that of others; but any one can see that while it is to be regulated according to the tastes, time and talent of each individual, such a course persisted in from week to week would greatly enlarge one's supplies, and develop and strengthen his powers.

DAILY PROGRAM

A program of daily work varies according to seasons, circumstances and personal preferences. The following may serve to illustrate a general outline for the day:

6—8: Bath, light exercise, breakfast.
8—1: Study.
1—2: Dinner and correspondence.
2—5: Pastoral work.
5—7: Reading, recreation, supper.
7-10: Miscellaneous study.

The essential features of the plan are that eight hours are given to sleep, five to study and at least three to pastoral work. The first of the study hours should be used for private devotions, and several minutes' rigid study of some worthy book; these will prepare both heart and mind to get the most out of the next four hours, which should be given entirely to sermon preparation. Meetings, calls and entertainments will sometimes interfere, but the night hours may be devoted to general and special study. Of course both ends of the day should be hemmed with private or family devotions, or both.

SOME GENERAL SUGGESTIONS.

Adopt a definite plan of work and adhere to it.

Allow nothing unimportant to occupy the time set apart for study and pastoral work

Do not visit or receive calls on Sunday, except in urgent cases. This for both physical and moral reasons.

Never attempt to prepare and deliver more than three discourses a week. This work, if properly done, is a heavy physical and mental strain.

Rest absolutely Saturday afternoon. Your powers should be free from exhaustion, fresh and vigorous for the duties of the Sabbath.

Select subjects for the weeks discourses on Monday, if not earlier; the varied experiences of each day will then furnish valuable ideas and assistance.

Put the strength of your thinking each week into one sermon; the other can be composed of materials lying near the surface. Better do your very best on well-studied, strongly constructed, admirably expressed sermon, than dissipate your energies over three or four sermons with poor arrangement, ill chosen language, and limited ideas.

In short, take good care of yourself and your work. Give your body a sufficiency of refreshing sleep, invigorating exercise, nutritious diet, and helpful relaxation. Discipline your mind with rigid study and cultivate your powers of original thinking. Above all, see that your heart is in deep touch with the truth, in vital connection with the Holy Spirit, and in full sympathy with your people. Then work without fear and leave the results to God. M.

Where Are Our Preachers?—(Concluded.)

BY REV. B. W SPILMAN.

A STUDY IN STATISTICS.

Another reason for so few preachers in the east is the suicidal indifference on the part of our people both east and west. Lack of information and selfishness are the prime causes of the indifference. Our people in the west where Baptists are apt to have an idea that the State is so strongly Baptist that there is no special need to exert themselves to evangelize North Carolina; it is already evangelized. They know in a general way that there is much land yet to be possessed in eastern Carolina, but they say let the Baptists in eastern Carolina do it as we did. And why do we not do it? We in the east are able, abundantly able, to provide Baptist preaching for every community in our section. We are saved ourselves, but we are unwilling to spend any of our time or money to give the blessings which we enjoy to others. Many Baptists are idolaters. They would be insulted were they told so. The heathen bows before idols of wood and stone, and burns paper money to his god; we have our little household gods of silver. These images are made in Philadelphia and have a curious legend on them: "In God we trust." Yes, the god of Mammon. The need is before our eyes, but a great, big, bright, round silver dollar is before each eye, and we see no need—and that is why we sit still and lose golden opportunities. Is it true?

I look at the minutes of the Atlantic Association, column State Missions. Newbern, Goldsboro, and Kinston stand well up in the column, $450, $120 and $75. But look again, and thirteen churches with not one cent reported for State Missions. 5 more with from $1 to $1 50; 9 from $3 to $5; then follows $6, $8, 2 at $10 and $11 80, and 2 at $25; and that closes the list. "By their fruits ye shall know them."

And then another reason why we have so few workers in this section and an over supply in others, is the fact that many Associations do their own work. The money that they contribute goes to their own sections. While they are already overstocked with preachers, they employ yet others to do the work that could be so easily done by the pastors.

I have in mind a case in which a field already paying its pastor $350, was aided by the Association, and the pastor was paid $100 more to preach at a school house one Sunday afternoon in the month only three miles away. He was an unmarried man. The neighboring county had one Baptist preacher. He had a wife and several children, and supplied several out-stations, for which he received nothing, and his salary was $500.

And then it should be borne in mind that many of the large number of Baptist preachers in the west are like many of our other Baptists. Just as the father of the little boy who, upon being asked if his father was a Christian, replied, "Yes, but he aint workin' at it now."

In some of the counties there are as many preachers as there are churches, and the churches have preaching only once a month! So the western counties make a big show with numbers, but if you left out the men who spend all of their time in the ministry and take into consideration the proportion of white population, the east is nearly as well supplied as the west.

It should be borne in mind also that the location of State missionaries was the location of their homes, not their field of labor. In some cases, a missionary is reckoned from a certain county when his work is in an adjoining county.

Sometimes a county is reckoned to have no Baptist preacher, when a preacher from another county visits them as a regular pastor of some church.

But we have not enough men. Some of the causes have been pointed out. What is the remedy?

The establishment of Sunday-schools in neighboring communities to the churches already established, at which the pastor can hold a week's meeting during the summer, and eventually get a foothold. Look to Scotland Neck for a pattern.

Sunday afternoon preaching helps this work as well as the establishment of Sunday schools.

Let the pastors speak to their churches on the matter and get them to lift up their eyes upon the field white unto harvest at their doors. Increased interest, activity and contributions would be the result.

And above all, let us pray to this end. That is the Master's remedy. "Pray ye the Lord of the harvest that he will send forth laborers into his harvest."

North Carolina is a great State—a great Baptist State—greater in its possibilities than in its achievements. The land is being developed.

We have fewer foreigners than any State in the Union. We have fewer Catholics But they are coming. Let us have our forces ready, so that we may meet them when they come.

We have plenty of preachers and plenty of Baptists. We are, according to the census of 1890, the second Baptist State in the United States. The opportunity is ours. Will we use it?

Howe'er it be, it seems to me
'Tis only noble to be good,
Kind hearts are more than coronets,
And simple faith than Norman blood.

How to Infuse the Missionary Spirit Into the Minds of Children.

A Paper read by Mrs. Mamie Hatcher before the Sandy Creek Sunday-school Association at Jonesboro, N. C.

1st. A preparation of the heart, as an auxiliary to successful mission work.

2d. How the teacher may interest the children on the subject of missions.

3d. The children at work.

The spirit of missions is the spirit of our Saviour, the very nucleus of true religion.

What is the one thing needful to place the world into the hands of Christian people that the climax of mission work may be reached? It is love, unselfish love for our fellowmen. What is unselfish love? It has nine ingredients, viz., patience, kindness, unselfishness, courtesy, humility, generosity, good temper, gentleness, sincerity—nine gems. One has truly said that "like death, unselfish love levels all ranks, and lays the shepherd's crook beside the sceptre." Even the vilest sinner has been helpless in trying to resist it, for it being the Christian's armor, it overcomes everything, acquiring strength as it proceeds. It illuminates our path with beautiful torch-lights lit from the one Great Light, whose lengthening rays extend far beyond us in front, behind, and on either side, brightening the despairing face, and warming to action the frozen hearts around us.

Without the preparation of unselfish love in the heart, we are not equipped to go out on the great ocean of time, and watch for the shipwrecked vessels loaded with living freight, the immortal souls of dying men and women. We must study humanity in all its phases, with its weaknesses, both in home and foreign lands, disrobing our hearts of all selfishness, placing thereon the shield of faith fastened by the plain, simple bands of unselfish love, with clean hands, breathing one prayer for Divine help, and Jesus will stand beside us, whispering "Love suffereth long and is kind." Within those dear hands bruised for our transgressions, he will gently place our own, saying "Go out quickly into the streets and lanes of the city, into the highways and hedges and compel them to come in," for "whosoever doth not bear his cross and come after me cannot be my disciple." And Jesus said, "Go, teach all nations"—not one must be forgotten—all must be loved, all must be taught the gospel.

We must learn the great lesson of pity before we can rightly and acceptably walk in the good steps of Jesus. "In his love and in his pity he redeemed them." Isa. 63: 9. You see that love came first, then pity, then the healing of the nations.

Charity—which is pity through love—is the capstone of all the Christian graces; without it, religion is like a temple of clay where the soul has vanished.

Oh, how very essential it is to a broad and successful Christian work that "we know more of each other," as we pass down the journey of life with its struggles, its fears and temptations, its heart breaking cares and its strife! What an obstacle in our advance on the foe is the fact that "we view things alone on the surface, for few of us glory in sin." And go where we may, we'll find that "an unruffled face is no index to the fires that rage madly within." Even the man that walks proudly by us with wealth, honor and title "oft carries dread secrets within that render existence a curse, dread secrets that scar his soul over of crime, or misfortune, or worse."

Let us place upon our hearts the chaplet of unselfish love. Then we may with divine help reach the hardest heart. If we as laborers in the vineyard of the Lord go often to him, the Friend of sinners, the great example for us, learning the sweet lessons of love and sympathy for fallen humanity, we will not be the man or the woman to sneer at our sister or brother, whom sin has abandoned to poverty, misery and tears. Let us, with Christian prudence and Jesus as our pattern, lose no time in rescuing such pitiable creatures from the clutches of Satan.

Surely, if the King of kings, our Lord and Master, could wash his disciples' feet, we ought to be willing to do everything that love or duty requires. Let us fear no evil, for where he leads we may follow, and he will strengthen and protect us.

To approach anywhere near the climax of mission work, there must be many willing laborers of as many different temperaments, who will study and measure the many different characters, with and for whom they are working, remembering that a tonic for one may be a narcotic for another. "Be ye wise as serpents and harmless as doves."

Dear teachers, when you gather a class of children and teach them about Jesus, you are then and there a missionary doing missionary work.

That Sunday schools naturally have an affinity for the cause of missions, is proven by the fact that those who have the anti-missionary spirit also have the anti Sunday-school spirit. But let us as Sunday-school teachers remember the old adage that "a workman is known by his chips." "By their fruits ye shall know them." Here is a good resolution for the teacher: "I will so arrange all matters that I may use one day in each week on which to visit the children of my class and their parents." Ten minutes is sufficient at each place, if rightly used. Just stay long enough to convince the parents that you love them and their

The Biblical Recorder.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 23, 1895.

J. W. BAILEY, - - - - - EDITOR.
J. C. CADDELL, AGENT AND CORRESPONDENT.

Some one says a good paper is like a good association: To enjoy it to the fullest you must begin at the beginning, take a front seat (i. e., keep paid up), and miss nothing.

It is idle, to say the least of it, to debate the advisability of evangelization of China and all the other heathen lands, whether conditions are favorable or not. God says "Go!"

The advisability of "candidating" or "sampling" in the ministry is a matter of personal discretion. If we were a preacher we would make a rule in the beginning never to occupy a pulpit with a view to a call. A body of people cannot form a just opinion of a man from hearing him preach twice. And it strikes us that the man who goes "candidating" either knows this or is a very near-sighted brother.

Let State Missions be the watchword from now till Convention. Any one who reads Bro. Spilman's article in the RECORDER of last and this week will perceive that $30,000 could be expended every year to advantage.

If we do not raise the $15,000 required for this year's work, a debt will be reported, and that will be a hindrance to us in going forward. We cannot afford to stand still at this stage of our work anywhere, and least of all in the far reaching foundation work of State Missions.

The American Baptist Publication Society has sent out some admirable books in the last two years. Their latest, and perhaps their best publication, was sent us last week —Systematic Theology and Ecclesiology, by Prof. Henry G. Weston and Prof. Johnson of Crozer Theological Seminary. We hope to offer a review later. If the Society will keep up to the standard of "The Argument for Christianity," "Life of Martin B. Anderson," "Papers and Addresses of Martin B. Anderson," "Life of Judson," "Ministry of the Spirit," we Baptists will soon have an unrivalled literature.

If EVERY pastor will take this motto, "By the help of the Lord, no debts on our work this year," our Conventions in December and May will be the brightest we ever had. To say this, is to suggest that the responsibility for debts on our general work rests upon the pastors. This is in one sense so, in another it is not. A pastor is responsible for every failure to do his best, like any other man; and if by failure of pastors to do their best to arouse their flocks to the needs of the work, debts are incurred, then those pastors are responsible. But each member is individually responsible; for the Bible is so plain on the subject of sending the gospel, and there are so many other ways of learning our duty in the matter that no one can plead ignorance as an excuse.

HERE in North Carolina in the last several weeks we have had a brilliant demonstration of the ability of "enterprising" papers and thoughtless preachers to "make mountains of mole hills." A statement by a public speaker of utterly no possible consequence has been taken up, magnified, written about, preached about as though all eternity were involved, and all of it has accomplished nothing; the returns will not pay for the wear on the types, unless notoriety has increased in value of late.

It is not surprising that "enterprising" newspapers made capital and political thunder out of such utterances, nor that a sensational preacher used them for a "sermon" theme; but we are surprised that respected and usually thoughtful men seem willing to put their denomination in a defensive attitude in a profitless dispute with a politician.

If any man can persuade the Baptist people of North Carolina that the churches of which they are members, and over whose actions they have full and untrammeled control, are unjust, are on the side of human slavery, or are in any other way unworthy of their membership, for one we say, let him do it. But in the name of common sense and the dignity of God's own institution, brethren, let not our churches to be involved in a profitless dispute with politicians and notoriety-seekers. The idea of a divine institution concerning itself with (not to say defending itself from) strictures that every little fellow in the land would make, if it were promised him that they would bring him as much notoriety as this man has gained.

THE "TROUBLE MAN."

This is the name of the expert employed by telephone companies in large cities for tracing and correcting difficulties. Wires are frequently broken or crossed or uninsulated. When, for any reason, communication from point to point is interfered with, when lightning, wind, or fire have wrought damage, the trouble man is in demand. By his knowledge, experience, and dexterity, he is usually able very soon to put everything into good running order again.

The name and mission of this useful member of society suggested to us, the first time we ever heard of them, the work of a true pastor. For is it not his peculiar function, his sacred duty, his blessed privilege, to be a trouble-man,—to find and remove causes of trouble? Blessed is that undershepherd of the flock who has the wisdom, the delicate tact, the loving tenderness to enable him to succeed.

Wisdom, tact, and tenderness, will surely all be needed by the successful trouble-mender. Imprudence or unsympathetic harshness may not only make the trouble bigger, but also hurt the bungling mender. He who deals with live wires, if he is not careful, will set the house afire and get his own fingers burned. But when the trouble healer knows that communications are broken, that there are alienations, discords, strifes, his duty is clear. He must do his best to bring about reconciliation and restore fellowship. And if he shall wisely choose his opportunity and go forth from his closet to embrace it, good results will be sure to follow. He will find out that, not only hereafter, but here and now, "blessed are the peacemakers."

In quite a different sense it will always be the privilege of a true pastor to be a trouble-man with the bereaved, the suffering, the storm-beaten, of his flock. The first tidings of any kind of trouble will be enough to summon him to the point where his advice, sympathy, or consolation may be needed. It may be the counting room where failure threatens, the jail where accusation frowns, the bedside where suffering lingers, or the open grave around which mourners weep. When there is trouble in the home, the faithful trouble-man will wish to be there too.

Nor will his coming be vain. Who is there who cannot recall some memory of the benediction of a pastor's presence in hours when the skies were darkened and all sweetness and hope seemed to have faded out of life? His gracious bearing, full of sympathy and of true dignity, his fitly chosen words, full of his Master's wisdom and touched with his own emotion, his prayer, earnest and yet in tender accents, made the trouble-man more than welcome. The help rendered by him, when hearts were sore and homes were shadowed, plucked away the sting from criticism for years afterward. Even a poor sermon did not seem altogether dry and dull if it were preached by the trouble-man.

And in still another sense our evangelical expert will make trouble as well as heal it; or, rather, will cause trouble in order that it may be cured. We sing, "Twas grace that taught my heart to fear, and grace my fears relieved." Just as surely as conviction always precedes sound conversion, so surely will our trouble man, if he be wise in soul winning, arouse sleeping consciences and wound self satisfied hearts. This he will do in private interviews as well as in public ministrations. A skilful surgeon knows that he must often make a fresh wound before he can heal a deep and malignant sore. And he to whom is committed the shepherding of souls should seek to cut deep, using an instrument in his possession which is sharper than the razor edge of an old Roman sword. He will go without a summons and, like his Master at the well, will give his best to a single auditor. We know a man whose heart and life had been all wrong for years. He carried an experienced old trouble man with him in his buggy several miles to an association. Before that ride was ended, with skilful, faithful surgery, he had been cut to the heart. Godly sorrow began to do its work. On the homeward way the trouble-maker became the trouble-helper, and had the more pleasing, but not more important, task of applying the balm of the gospel. Had he waited to be sent for, or had he relied only on his public preaching, his reliance and waiting might both have been vain.

Blessed is that pastor, we say again, who has the heart power, the zeal, the prudence, the tact which are essential to the work of a successful trouble-man.

WHILE no little stress is placed on the need of an educated ministry, not so much is said in behalf of an educated laity which is just as desirable. In fact an educated laity will make an educated ministry absolutely indispensible.

COMPARATIVE ATTENDANCE AT OUR EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS.

In reply to inquiries, we have received the following from educational institutions in this State: At Guilford College (co educational) 144 pupils have entered. The number last year this time was 115; total enrolment last year 150. President Abernethy writes from Rutherford College that they have enrolled 101 young men and 55 young women, which is a fine showing, considering that the death of the late president made this year's opening uncertain. Elon College has enrolled 115. Enrolment last year this time 96. Total enrolment last year 190. Prof. Atkinson writes, "Hardly a doubt but that we will reach 140 or 150 this session." Wake Forest College has enrolled 240. Enrolment last year this time 200; total enrolment last year 219. Chowan Baptist Female Institute has enrolled sixty-seven students. Last year the total enrolment was sixty-one. The patronage of this institution consists almost entirely of boarding pupils. The enrolment in Oxford Female Seminary is 95, fifty of these being boarders in the Seminary—a few others boarding with relatives in town. The total enrolment last year of boarding pupils was 87. President Dred Peacock of Greensboro Female College writes, "Last year this time we had registered a hundred and twenty one students; this year we have one hundred and thirty with prospect of an increase of six or eight more before Christmas." Rev. Bennett Smedes, Principal of St. Mary's School, Raleigh, writes, "There were entered at St. Mary's Oct. 1st, '94, and Oct. 1st, '95, about the same number of young women, 140 for each date. In making our statement we include only our regular pupils." President Winston's official statement, sent out about the time the foregoing letters were written, shows that the total enrolment in the Collegiate, Law, Normal, Medical, and Post graduate Departments, of the University, was 506; the number of students in the college department being 296. Last year the total enrolment was 471; 317 being in the college department. The number of students at the A. & M. College, Raleigh, is 180. We understand that the enrolment at the State Normal and Industrial School reached the limit last year and this. While the general increase is doubtless very gratifying to our readers, we know they will be especially pleased to see that our own institutions, Wake Forest especially, make a splendid showing. We do not know why our inquiries sent to other institutions have not been answered.

NEWS NOTES.

....Our Western North Carolina Convention is in session this week at Bryson City.

....Rev. R. E. Peele will not get to the Seminary this fall, but will remain in the work in North Carolina.

....Rev. C. M. Billings of Greenville and Rev. Thos. Carrick of Lexington are holding a meeting at Pactolus.

....The next step forward for our State to make is the establishment of a reformation for youthful criminals.

....President Harper of Chicago University is now delivering a series of lectures on the "History of Prophecy."

....Rev. H. H. Mashburn of Wake Forest College succeeds Rev. J. E. Smith as pastor of Pleasant Grove church near Creedmore.

....We are under great obligation to Bro. J. W. Burchett for representing the RECORDER at the Ashe and Alleghany Association.

....We have received from Rev. J. H. Hildreth of Wilmington a paper-bound book containing twenty revival sermons and some essays.

....It is well to bear in mind that Bro. Spilman's article is based on 1893 and 1892 statistics, and therefore shows the conditions in 1891 and 1892.

....Everything points to a successful meeting of our young people at Greensboro. The committee which has it in charge is making considerable preparations.

....Rev. G. T. Watkins and Rev. H. T. Williams have been holding a meeting at Ai, Person county. Bro. Williams will begin a revival at Roxboro the second Sunday in November.

....Rev. J. W. Little, a Baptist minister of this county, is going to engage in evangelistic work. He has ordered a tent and will pitch it in Monroe in the near future.—Monroe Enquirer.

....Miss Leslie Pleasants, of the Western part of this State, who had intended joining the Gospel Mission workers in China this fall, has been obliged, on account of ill health, to abandon her purpose.

....We are ready and willing to help our brethren push the RECORDER. If the paper's friends will make an effort this fall, the result will go far toward enabling us to mature plans for a better paper next year.

....The freshman class at Harvard this year is far larger than that at Yale. As Harvard has for several years been falling behind in foot-ball and base-ball, this seems to contradict the statement so often made that these games are a great help to colleges. Parents are asserting themselves.

....At the Atlantic Baptist Association, held last week in Kinston, the night session Wednesday, Oct. 16th, was given to State Missions. The meeting was held in the Methodist church, and the Episcopal rector made a speech.

....Dr. N. B. Cobb will be very much obliged if the clerks of Associations will send him immediately copies of the latest associational minutes they have on hand. He wants them to get information for the Baptist Almanac and minutes of Convention.

....President Strong is publishing in the Examiner another series of articles on "Monism." His first series failed to find acceptance in this part of the vineyard, and the prospects of the second are not hopeful. In the first place, his vocabulary is beyond most of people.

....Rev. R. D. Cross of Lexington succeeds Rev. J. B. Boone at Windsor. Bro. Cross has studied at our Southern Baptist Theological Seminary three years, where he won the esteem of both faculty and students. He is well fitted for the pastorate which he is about to undertake.

....Rev. W. H. Reddish writes from the Seminary: "We have 256 students now, and new ones coming in every day. We have fifteen from North Carolina, and one more will come. Great preparation is being made for the Mills meeting, which is to begin here next (this) week."

....Pastor S. J. Porter writes from Newbern: "Our work in the Middle St. church church is moving along nicely. Have just attended a good session of the Atlantic Association at Kinston. Dr. Durham's speech on missions was fine." We can promise our readers an excellent sermon from Bro. Porter soon.

....For many years it was the custom of the late Rev. A. J. Gordon, D. D., to preach during the summer vacation at the church at New Hampton, N. H., the home of his boyhood. Mrs. Gordon has done this service the past summer.—Christian Advocate (Nashville). If this did not come from a most trustworthy contemporary, it would be hard to believe.

....The Religious Herald may be added to the list of papers well disposed to Southern organization of our young people. It calls the movement "our orphan child." It looks now like all the State papers save the Evangel will join in to make the organization a medium for training our young people for the strengthening of our churches and the glory of God.

....Large crowds greeted Rev. Dr. Blackwell of Elizabeth City every night last week at the Baptist church. The good he did here will be seen in days to come, if we are to judge from the close attention he received from our people. He is a power for good, and if only those who hear him would follow what he tells them, how much better off they would be.—Eastern Courier, Hertford.

....Rev. J. N. Stallings, assisted by Rev. C. S. Cashwell of Hickory, are conducting a series of meetings at this place at present, and it is the pleasure of the large and attentive congregations to hear some most excellent sermons. The debt which has been hanging on our house of worship has been removed and the house comfortably seated, so we are now glad to have all our friends visit us in our newly seated house.—Jerusalem cor. Davie Times.

....Bro. J. C. McMichael, editor and proprietor of the Christian Index of Georgia, died October 15th at his home in Atlanta, Georgia, after an illness of several weeks. Bro. Michael was connected with the Index a quarter of a century or more, but had been editor only four years. In this time, however, he brought the paper to the front. He was loved and honored by his Georgia brethren for his faithfulness and zeal as a Christian worker.

....Since the Ram's Horn has made such a hit with its short, incisive and not always orthodox paragraphs, it has a whole regiment of imitators who are rendering the paragraph business nauseating with their weak attempts at saying sharp things.—Baptist Banner. And the same may be said of the thousands of pusillanimous fellows who imitate Sam Jones and other financially successful sensationalists.

....Bro. A. W. Perry sends us a good list of names and check for the money, and writes: "I was appointed by Maple Springs church to look after the RECORDER and its interests. I have been looking after renewals and new subscriptions, and you will find below the names of renewals and new subscriptions." If every church would do this, our denomination in this State would be the best informed and most responsive to the needs of the cause in the land.

....The Independent gives the following figures, showing the increase of the different denominations in the United States for the last decade: Regular Baptists, 1,132 753; Methodists, North, 532 941; Methodists, South, 379 976; Presbyterians, North, 214,-625; Disciples, 291 051, and Episcopalians 189,896. It thus appears that the actual increase of the Baptists was much larger than that of any other denomination, and nearly as great as the increase of Methodists, Presbyterians and Episcopalians combined.

....A Christian who stands up strongly for his denomination does so at the risk of being roundly denounced and accused of all kinds of motives. Baptists are used to this treatment. Recently some papers have been circulating an abusive attack on Bro. Durham. It was no worse, however, than Prof. Mabry made on Dr. Taylor last year in the Charlotte Observer over an assumed name; no worse than the same professor insinuated of President Kilgo of Trinity a few weeks ago in the News and Observer, no worse than two distinguished lawyer-politicians said of denominational colleges and their friends in June at a banquet at the State University. Such abuse will do no harm, but rather binds the friends of Christian education closer together.

....Here is a very sound sentiment from a young Seminary man who was located in North Carolina: "I would rather not have a field for full time with one church, but about two churches; so I can have more time for general preparation. Dr. Broadus used to say, 'Brethren, spend one-third of your time in general preparation.' A young man is preparing for a life time work, and should do much reading."

....Dr. Simms was given a short vacation recently to go back to Old Virginia for a few days outing, and when he came back he found his people had put a telephone connection in his house; so now he will not have to walk so much. Bro. Simms is a pastor indeed; always on his feet and with his flock. We do not wonder that they take such good care of him. Last Sunday the Tabernacle pulpit was filled by Raleigh's foremost working laymen, Bro. Broughton in the morning and Bro. Pullen at night. Each had a good audience.

....We heard with deep regret of the death of Bro. Wiley G. Ferebee of Belcross. Just in the prime of young manhood, he had taken a leading place in our denomination in the East, and was giving promise of large and distinguished usefulness as a citizen and as a Baptist. For a young man, full of life, he was unusually loyal to his church and zealous of her interests. Naturally he had many warm, loving friends. Bro. Ferebee graduated at Wake Forest several years ago. We look upon his death as a blow to his community and a loss to our interests throughout the State.

....What a pity many preachers will not learn that "drawing" the people is no part of their business. They are to faithfully preach the gospel and God will do the drawing. "No man can come to me, except the Father which hath sent me draw him," the Master said. And he said also, "And I, if I be lifted up, will draw all men unto me." If preachers will but lift up Christ faithfully, there will be no trouble about the "drawing." But alas! many stop to think "how can I draw?" and, lowering Christ, they go to entertaining the people. Such preaching does not long attract and would not save men if it did.—Western Recorder.

....Baptists still have an enormous amount of missionary work to do in enforcing the truth of the separation of Church and State. The present discussion as to Sunday laws in New York State shows that many good men are basing their argument for strict Sabbath observance on religious grounds. Now, no Baptist who is loyal to his own principles can do that. If the sanitary, industrial and moral arguments for Sunday laws are not sufficient, then we ought not to have them. If Presbyterians or Episcopalians have a right to enact laws, the sole justification of which is that they harmonize with their religious beliefs, then Roman Catholics have a right to do the same. Protestants cannot assume rights which they deny to Roman Catholics or Jews or Buddhists. A fundamental principle of Baptists obliges them to stand just as firmly against distinctively religious legislation which is in accord with their own convictions as to contend against that religious legislation which violates them.—Watchman.

....Rev. John A. Wray is well pleased with his new field, Milledgeville, Ga. It seems to us that Georgia has been getting right many of our preachers lately. The welcome given Bro. Wray is described by the following from the Milledgeville Record: "Rev. John A. Wray, the new pastor of the Baptist church, and his family consisting of a wife and child, arrived in the city last Tuesday. They were met at the depot by Capt. C. W. Ennis and Hon. R. N. Lamar, on behalf of the church, and escorted to the parsonage. Mr. Wray preached his first sermon Sunday morning and made a very favorable impression on a large congregation. On Sunday night the Methodist and Presbyterian churches were closed to give their pastors and congregations an opportunity to unite with their Baptist brethren in extending to the able young divine a hearty welcome to our city. The church on this occasion was crowded to its utmost capacity by our citizens of all denominations. Music was the subject selected by the preacher for his discourse, "They sang a hymn." His hearers were charmed by his utterances, and yielded themselves to the sweet influences inspired by the tender and uplifting sentiments so beautifully expressed and went home charmed with the new preacher."

....A committee of the National Congregational Council has recommended the following as a basis of Christian union: 1. The acceptance of the Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments inspired by the Holy Ghost to be the only authoritative revelation of God to man. 2 Discipleship of Jesus Christ, the Divine Saviour and Teacher of the world. 3 The Church of Christ, which is his body, whose great mission it is to preach his gospel to the world. 4 Liberty of conscience in the interpretation of the Scriptures and the administration of the Church. A comparison of this statement with the Lambeth Chicago proposal of the Episcopalians, which made the Church, the Creeds, the Sacraments and the Historic Episcopate fundamental, puts in a salient way the contrast between the two theories of the Church. The Episcopal theory is that the Church is a body that traces its ancestry through its bishops to the Apostles, and that its beliefs are unalterably fixed by the Councils of the undivided Church. The Congregational view is that the Church is composed of disciples of Christ, irrespective of their relation to the Apostles; that the Councils of the early Church had no right to interpret the Scriptures that does not reside in the Church of to day, and that the creeds have authority over faith, which authority belongs only to the Word of God. The claim for liberty of conscience put forth by the Congregationalists finely emphasizes an essential divergence between the Prelatical and the Congregational churches.

....The following newspaper despatch describes the most significant action of the week in the Episcopal Convention at Milwaukee: "When the house of deputies of the Episcopal Church assembled Oct. 17. Chas. T. Mallory, of Milwaukee, started the business of the day by calling attention to the fact that in a majority of the churches the fonts were not of sufficient size to permit of candidates for baptism being dipped in accordance with the rubrics relating to baptism. He, therefore, advocated the adoption of a new canon making it the duty of every parish to provide a font of sufficient size to permit of the baptism of infants, making it unlawful for a parish to continue the use of a font too small for this purpose and providing that before the end of the year 1900 each church and cathedral shall have placed therein a font or baptistry of sufficient size to permit of the dipping of adults. A two-thirds vote was necessary for the introduction of a canon and the house refused to entertain the question." The last sentence implies that a majority of the delegates were in favor of the motion. At any rate it is acknowledgement that the Episcopalian form of baptism is wrong. No doubt those who opposed it, did so because passage of the motion would have been confession that sprinkling is wrong.

....We clip the following from a recent issue of "The Two Republics" of Mexico: Rev. R. J. Willingham, D D, of Richmond, Va., who is the correspondent secretary of the Southern Baptist convention, and the Rev. W. D. Powell of Toluca were accorded an interview with the president of the republic, Gen. Porfirio Diaz, yesterday afternoon. They were accompanied by the Hon. Matt T. Ransom, United States minister to this government, and the audience was an enjoyable one from every standpoint. The object of the meeting was for the purpose of ascertaining a matter of the utmost importance to all unincorporated associations. Dr. Willingham, acting under instructions from the convention, had come to Mexico fully empowered to have all the church property in the country deeded to the native congregations, thereby giving them absolute liberty in the matter and affording them the opportunity of selecting Mexican pastors if they so desired. But the chief executive informed them that the only legal manner of effecting the transaction would be for one individual to hold the property in each case in trust for the Foreign Mission Board, adding furthermore, that as a means of greater security the individuals holding properties under such conditions should be made to give mortgages on the same to at least four members of the Board.

ASSOCIATIONS.

EASTERN.

A nice rain came the night before the Association met. No wind, no dust, the air pure and sweet, the people came in carts, wagons, buggies, and on foot. A number told me they came as far as thirty miles, reaching the church for prayer meeting at 9:30 a. m. People blessed with good, level roads, possess a great advantage over those who live in a rough part of the country and are not able to go long journeys to attend meteings of this sort.

A spirit of work seemed to pervade the minds of the representatives of the many churches of this Association.

Bro. Swaim of Wilmington, who was elected Moderator for the first time last year, was again elected without opposition. Bro Herring was re elected Clerk, and Bro. F. A. Fennell was continued as Treasurer.

Bro. Oliver did not reach the Association in time to preach the missionary sermon; so this duty was performed by Bro. O. P. Meeks, the pastor at Clinton. He is a clear, strong preacher, and fully sustained himself on this occasion.

The introductory sermon was preached by Bro. A. A. Butler. The effort was well received, showing as it did faithful preparation and an honest purpose to energize the work of the Association.

Bro. Durham made one of his strongest speeches for missions, and this was followed by an earnest appeal by Bro. L. R. Carroll in behalf of the mission work of the Association.

We think there is to be a general revival of work along all the lines in this body.

This is getting to be the finest trucking section to be found anywhere in the State. Strawberries grow in Duplin in their greatest perfection, and this, added to the fact that the farmers were getting better prices for cotton, is telling on the work of the churches and the Association.

Bro. J. B. Brewer was present in the interest of Murfreesboro, which already has some fine testimonials in the persons of the young ladies from this section who have been educated at this institution. Many were disappointed at not seeing a representative from Wake Forest College.

The Female University has some of its most valuable friends in the Eastern Association. The speech of Bro. W. B. Oliver on this subject was one of the finest and most inspiring addresses we have ever heard on the subject of female education. We hope that Bro. Striegfield may continue to be as fortunate in the selection of his representative.

The speech made by Bro. C. G. Wells, Principal of the Warsaw High School, contained just the idea we have wished to see put in practice by men in charge of academical schools. His effort is to make his course of study embrace just as few studies as is consistent with first class work; in other words, to intensify rather than multiply studies, and do his own legitimate work and not attempt to trench upon what properly belongs to the college. Bro. Wells is a quiet, unobtrusive sort of man, but he is to be heard from and appreciated both as a preacher and teacher.

Nobody except probably Bro. O. P. Middleton, who had only a few days before gotten married, enjoyed the meeting of the Association more than did the representative of the RECORDER. Twenty years ago he played schoolteacher in this same neighborhood, and the cordial welcome he received showed that his old patrons had either forgotten or else forgiven him for his shortcomings in the school-room.

Thursday evening I am off for the

which is in session more than three hundred miles away. Railroads are great things, and so are annual passes. But for the former, the mission work, education, and the general interest of our meetings, would of necessity be circumscribed within narrow limits; but for the latter, the appearance of the RECORDER representative, would be like angels' visits, "few and far between."

The Sandy Run is fast growing to be one of our most active Associations.

Bro. A. P. Hollifield, the Moderator, fills the chair with his avoirdupois, and spreads his good nature and kindly greetings over the entire delegation.

There are more speaking brethren in this Association than any body of its size in the State. The "furriners" don't have a monopoly here by a large majority. The churches all increased their pledges over those of last year.

The brethren had a spirited discussion on State Missions, and pardoned Bro. Durham's absence on the ground that some other Association needed him more than did the Sandy Run.

The churches, after pledging for Foreign Missions, took a general collection for Bro. G. P. Bostick. The brethren of this Association love and honor Bro. Bostick, and while they do not agree with him in his methods of work in China, still they gave liberally of their means to help out his support.

Many were disappointed at not seeing a man from the Orphanage, yet this interest was cared for, as it always is in this Association.

And now it is Saturday night, and we will step over to Wake Forest 950 miles, spend the last half of the night, and hear Brother Gwaltney preach at 11 o'clock Sunday a. m.

Monday night at 7:30, Dr. Mitchell and the writer took our places at the supper table of Dr. R. H. Lewis in Kinston, N. C. The Doctor was at the train to meet us. My stay is of necessity short, yet the kindness we find in homes like this makes life worth living, though lived largely on the road.

The attendance on the session of the

was the largest for several years. The churches were all represented, and five new churches came for membership.

The Association presented the unusual situation of meeting without either Moderator or Clerk—Bro. Ford, the last Moderator, having left the State, and Bro. Williams, for many years the faithful and efficient Clerk, having died within the last year. It was a real satisfaction to see with what promptness the entire body turned to Dr. R. H. Lewis for its Moderator. The scholarly bearing, kind spirit and judicial rulings of this veteran of the school room, evidenced from first to last the wisdom of this action of the delegates.

Bro. J. A. McDaniel made a pass at doing away with the reading of church letters, but the brethren decided to hold to the custom for a year longer at least. We hope Brother McDaniel will not be discouraged: it will come in the not distant future.

After the discussion of the subject of Periodicals, the report on Ministers' Relief Board was taken up, the report being read by Bro. J. W. Rose. Bro. J. C. Whitty proposed a collection, which was taken, amounting to $8 50.

The much vexed question of an Executive Committee or not was discussed and postponed till Wednesday for a fuller and we trust a final hearing.

Bro. Jas. Long, the new pastor at Goldsboro, preached the introductory sermon, in the place of Bro. J. D. Moore, the appointee, now at the Seminary. Bro. Long's subject was "Love, the constraining power in the Christian's life." He is a vigorous preacher, and shows the best preparation for his work.

A delightful feature of the session was the beautiful rendition of a solo by Sister M. B. Thomas, "the sweet singer from Virginia." A brother present, who is opposed to solos, has consented to modify his opinion.

Tar River Association at Wilson, N. C.

How memories of the past come crowding upon me, as I am invited to take a seat in the Tar River Association convened in its sixty-fifth annual session in the new Baptist church at Wilson, N. C.

Bro. N. L. Shaw of Warrenton is Moderator; E. E. Hilliard of Scotland Neck, Vice-Moderator; A. G. Willcox of Halifax, Clerk and Treasurer.

The ministry is represented by Dr. J. A. Mundy of Wilson, A. G. Willcox of Halifax, J. W. Powell of Edgecombe, J. R. Pace of Whitaker's, G. M. Duke of Franklin and Nash, W. V. Savage of Tarboro, W. B. Morton of Louisburg, I. S. Boyles of Wake Forest, Dr. R. T. Vann of Scotland Neck, J. D. McLeod of Washington, Junius W. Millard of Henderson, Rev. C. M. Billings of Greenville, and Rev. W. A. Ferrell of Snow Hill.

Dr. Durham has just made his speech on missions and taken the cars for another Association, and the brethren are wiseing up their collections for missions.

Four new churches have been received into the body, $1,927 pledged for Associations; $260 for Education Board, and $1,891 sent up in cash by the delegates for the various objects of the Association and Convention.

As I sit here and look upon the genial faces of the Moderator and Clerk, and the faces of distinguished men in the audience and among the delgates, my mind wanders back to thirty-five years ago when the church at Wilson was organized in the court house with eight members, and I was set apart the same day to the full work of the ministry by a presbytery consisting of J. B. Solomon of Warren, J. G. Barkley of Halifax, Henry Petty of Greenville, Geo. W. Keese of Goldsboro, and W. H. Lacy, returned missionary from Africa.

Keese, one of the loveliest of Christian gentlemen, a native of Richmond and a graduate of Richmond College, died in the pastorate of Goldsboro, and I was called to succeed him. Lacy died soon afterwards in Virginia. Barkley, the oldest of the presbytery, still lingers on the threshold of eternity. Solomon, now an old man, revisited the State from the far West a few years ago, and was warmly received at Wake Forest and at other places in North Carolina and in Virginia where he was pastor of Leigh Street church during the war. Richmond has always been fond of our North Carolina men. They have had John Kerr, Robert B. C. Howell, A. M. Poindexter, J. B. Solomon, Theodore Whitfield, W. L. Wright, and perhaps other North Carolinians to fill important pastorates in that historic city.

There is George W. Blount, the first male member added to the church after its organization, whom I baptized during the war. He sent to Goldsboro for P. D. Gold, then pastor at Goldsboro, to baptize him, but Gold could not come, and I went in his place. Since Gold has repudiated his own baptism by being re-immersed by the Hardshells, Bro. Blount is rather glad the exchange was made. His house was my home during the session of the body, and no better hospitality is dispensed in the city than that tendered by this Past Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Masons of North Carolina.

Among other social pleasures enjoyed during the Association was a visit to the home of Ex-Judge H. G. Connor, one mile in the country. The Judge is the happy father of eleven children and one grandchild. He has a lucrative practice in the courts and is very highly esteemed for his social and moral virtues.

The Orphanage was represented by Rev. J. B. Boone, the General Manager. The cash collection was more than $100.

Dr. John Mitchell made an earnest plea for the young preachers at Wake Forest and received fourteen dollars in cash.

Rev. A. G. Willcox read the report on Aged Ministers' Relief Board. Cash collection ten dollars.

Rev. G. M. Duke reported on Obituaries; T. J. Taylor on State Missions; W. V. Savage on Associational Missions; E. E. Hilliard on Sunday-schools; W. B. Morton on Home Missions; W. C. Allen on Periodicals, and Vernon l'Anson on Foreign Missions. The several writers spoke to their own reports. Bro. Millard was substituted for Bro. Morton and made an excellent speech on Home Missions.

The next session will be held at Poplar Springs church, Tuesday after the first Sunday in October. Rev. J. K. Fant of Littleton to preach the introductory sermon.

NOTES

The church at Wilson was organized in May, 1860, by the missionary of the Pamlico Association in the court house. As soon as they were organized they resolved to unite with the Tar River. The Wilmington and Weldon Railroad was then the boundary line between the two Associations, and all the territory from the W. & W. R. R. to the sea-coast was in the bounds of the Pamlico Association.

At that time we had no church at Weldon, Enfield, Whitaker's, Tolsnot, Rocky Mount, Mt. Olive, Scotland Neck, Williamston, Hamilton, Snow Hill, Columbia and Plymouth. Goldsboro and Kinston were mission stations, and the one missionary of the Pamlico was an itinerant with ten counties in his field that required him to be traveling and preaching every day in the week as well as Sunday. For this vast amount of traveling and preaching he received $300 a year.

Catawba River Association

Dear Recorder:—This Association convened with the Morganton church Oct. 10.h. It was a treat to some of us to see the beautiful, tasteful and well arranged new church house. It is to be hoped none of the membership will worship their house more than they do their Saviour.

The annual sermon was preached by Bro. Mull.

Bro. E. A. Poe was elected Moderator, and Bro. R. L. Moore was re elected Clerk. These brethren make good and efficient officers.

Owing to the serious sickness of the wife of Bro. J. H. Hoffman, the former Moderator, he could not attend, and we all missed him much.

Bro. M. M. Landrum of Marion was present, and took an active part in the discussions.

Bro. Johnson, editor of Charity and Children, was present in the interest of the Orphanage paper and the Orphanage. He made a good impression for himself and the objects he represented. About $200 was pledged for the orphans next year with money on hand sent up by the churches.

Bro. Durham came on Saturday, and in the afternoon spoke ably, encouragingly and entertainingly on State Missions. It was his first visit to this Association, and he made a fine impression. He got a cash collection and about $100 pledged for State Missions.

Bro. J. S. Gwaltney represented the RECORDER, and Bro. H. M. Croom the North Carolina Baptist.

The writer could not remain over Sunday and cannot say by whom the preaching was done, except that Bro. Durham was to occupy the pulpit of the Baptist church.

From Rev. Jno. E. White.

Dear Recorder:—From week to week as I have read our religious papers I have been silently and charitably encouraging the conclusion that a brother ought not to be always putting his name to a newspaper letter for the fun or fame of it and never unless he has something to say. And even when he has something to say, if by any ordinary means he can cap the restless craving of his "pent up Utica," ten to one he had better do it.

If speech is silver and silence golden, the newspaper garrulousness is brass.

Now I ought to be sure that in saying this, I am not pronouncing my own condemnation. I think I am sure. I feel as the Psalmist did when he said, "Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies. Thou anointest my head with oil. My cup runneth over." For during the past month the Lord has been gracious to me. I have been in the valley, but now am in sight of the top, thank God!

I guess the difference between the older preacher and us who are young is chiefly in this, that with him discouragement does not necessarily follow the absence of immediate results from his preaching. He has learned to labor and to wait. I have been thinking I expect far too much, that the walls of Jericho ought to tumble down at one shout, and therefore, when they have refused to do it, I have been a little despondent.

But let that go. I am not despondent any longer. There have been showers of blessings. September is my month of happy experience. My grip on God is strengthened, and there are no longer clouds about my head. First of all,

PLYMOUTH.

During the first of the month at the call of the brethren, I went over to help them. The point was three miles from Plymouth, "the regions beyond." So you can put me down on that list, please. By the way that "regions beyond" business was not such a new invention as some of the brethren wanted us to believe. I have an idea that there are hundreds of brethren who have been going to "the regions beyond" nearly all their lives—without any pledge in the paper to advertise it.

At this point near Plymouth, Bro. Jack Bryan, one of Christ's best men in this country, has been at work twelve months. Here I went, and for three days I had a new experience. I ran for the first time full tilt against the rock of inborn and intrained prejudice—Campbellites and Hardshells. After three days of it, I felt considerably flattened—cold, cold as a polar mountain—not a single response to invitation or appeal. But do you know I believe that even polar mountains have fires at the base, and this untoward, irresponsive audience evidently had a heart. I didn't know it when I left there—but the news came a few days later that four of the number had given themselves to Christ and Bro. Matthews had baptized them. The site has already been secured and in a little while there is going to be a church. I have arranged to go over again in two weeks and spend a week.

MACEDONIA.

This church is five miles from Edenton. I have been preaching for them every fourth Sunday afternoon since January. We commenced a meeting there Tuesday after third Sunday. The weather was exceedingly hot, crowds large and house small. But God's glory for four days came upon that house, and what did we care for heat! It was a case of inspiration overcoming perspiration. There were twenty-nine conversions and restorations. On Sunday afternoon, in the broad bosom of the Chowan, I buried eighteen in baptism.

EDENTON.

On Tuesday following we began our meeting in Edenton. Now Edenton is not the wickedest town in North Carolina. But it lacks a great deal of being the godliest. It seems that for several years it has been difficult to have a revival of religion, and it was commonly reported to be an impossibility. Let it be said that is never true of any place. I don't care how cold the Christians nor how rampant sin, revival is not impossible so long as God is on his throne. It has been proved here that God's Word faithfully preached and God's Spirit relied on, will bring revival of churches, reconsecration of Christians and conversion of sinners.

Beginning Wednesday, we had Rev. W. P. Hines of Virginia with us. You recall that this brother held a great meeting last spring at E. City. Dr. Blackwell then said that he had worked with nearly all the evangelists, and that in all-round capacity, Bro. Hines was the best he had seen. I have not had so much experience, but I can say this, that Bro. Hines possesses greater power to bring men to Christ than any man I have ever heard. He is a master in the management of a meeting. In all the twelve days he was here, preaching twice a day, he neither did nor said an objectionable thing. He is not a great preacher as I have been in the habit of estimating preachers, nor a great speaker, but he is a great winner of souls. How does Christ measure preachers anyhow? He preaches plainly, is unsparing in denouncing popular vices, makes his invitations sufficiently rigid and yet sufficiently simple, and has no passion either for counting mourners or money. He is all in all such a man and such a preacher as any of us will love and commend. It would be omitting an important element of his power not to speak of his singing. He sang "Throw out the life line" one night, and as I felt the impressive gospel truth of the song binding its sweet and clinging arm about my own heart and the hearts of the congregation, I thought "that is preaching the gospel." He organizes the whole congregation into a choir. Out of the fullness of my heart a great deal more would easily come in praise of this dear brother. But he needs not that men should praise him since God knows him so. He goes next to Immanuel church, Richmond, Va., and then to Chattanooga, Tenn., to the church in which will be held the next session of the Southern Baptist Convention. He was with us for twelve days. From the first service to the last the interest was unabated. The whole town has felt a moral and spiritual uplift.

Our church is in better condition than it has ever been. I do not expect the reaction which often follows such meetings, for there has been no excitement.

There were sixty eight professions. We received forty-four for baptism and eight were restored. There are several to join Sunday. My people are happy and I am happy. A revived Christian spirit in the town—a reconsecrated church membership, a loving and united people—are preachers underpaid? Not much.

Yours, JNO E. WHITE.

Echoes from East Durham.

Have received eleven into the fellowship of East Durham church since last notes—five by baptism and six by letter.

Had a good Union Meeting at Yates' the fifth Sunday in September. It was well attended, and the brethren seemed to be in the Spirit. The next session of the Union goes to Cedar Fork, in December next.

The work on the First church is progressing. The brethren are looking forward to the completion with much pleasure.

"I say it with all reverence, but God can't use a discouraged person."—Rev G. J. Dowell, in introductory sermon before Mount Zion Association. Likely Bro. Dowell spoke from experience. Any way, it is hard to move without spirit and without hope. We had a very pleasant, and, we trust, a profitable session of "The old Mt. Zion." While we found ourselves still in debt to our missionaries, the debt is not so large as it was at the session of 1894. The delegates seemed to be of a hopeful disposition, too, going to come out of debt in a few more months; and to this end the most of them were willing to pledge another extra dollar or two.

Some changes are taking place as the work progresses. We see the need of two more preachers in our Association. The work at West Durham has grown so rapidly this year, under the fostering care of that faithful preacher and worker, Rev. J. F. MacDuffie, as to call for two Sundays and a man to locate among these people.

Then, the brethren are trying to locate a man at Hillsboro, and make up his field from surrounding churches. So the work goes on, and we praise the Lord for his goodness.

Olive Branch and Roberson's Grove will change pastors another year. East Durham has recalled her present pastor.

Meeting at Rock Spring.

Dear Recorder:—I commenced a meeting at Rock Spring church, Franklin county, on the fifth Sunday in September. The Lord graciously manifested himself to the people. The church seemed to be much revived, and thirty-two persons professed faith in Christ.

Thirteen were added to the church by baptism and three restored. Others will probably join the first Sunday in November. Some will join other churches.

Bro. D. D. Edwards of Morrisville assisted in the work. He preached the pure gospel with earnestness and power of the Spirit to the acceptance of the people.

Yours in the work,

W. H. EDWARDS.

A GOOD RECORD can be made by some member of every Baptist church in North Carolina, who will undertake light and desirable work of representative character. Representatives, male or female, must be commended by their pastor as worthy and energetic. For further information address (enclosing 3 cent stamp) "Box G, Raleigh, N. C."

Send applications as soon as possible, as only one member in each church can be engaged.

Cost of Endowment Insurance Reduced.

For about ten years the old Union Central Life Insurance Company has been maturing and paying the full face of policies, for which they charged the insured the same as other first class companies charge for policies due only at death. We paid over $125,000 of these last year, and they did not have to "die to win."

We have for many years made the highest interest and lowest death rate, and by these points of successful management, we are doing more for our insured than any company.

No other company known to me ever matured a life rate policy and paid it off before death. Why pay a high price for endowment insurance when we give you endowment insurance at the cheap life rates? Agents wanted.

children. Read a few passages of Scripture and pray with them. Talk freely, invite the parents to come to Sunday school with their children, and do so in such a genial way that they can't say "No." If there be any difficulty in the way, remove it, if possible. When you are interested in Sunday school work, you will become interested in missions.

Did you ever notice the grapevine sending out its tendrils, which gradually fold themselves around an object, the vine following in the same direction and being upheld by the same object? There is a lesson for the superintendent. If your Sunday meets in the morning, inquire if there be any section in reach where they have no Sunday-school; invite your teachers and your young people to go with you and visit that section, having made an appointment for a Sunday afternoon. Meet in some private house, if there be no other accessible. Dress plainly and act plainly. Sing, pray and talk with them, adapting yourselves to the surroundings. If you will take along the chapel of unselfish love, using each ingredient as you need it, they will want you again. Very soon you may organize a mission Sunday school, and after a while a little church will spring up—all the result of the young tendrils going out to seek a new field. Take Jesus and his disciples for your models, as they went into the waste places to comfort and teach the needy, organizing churches, &c. Organize Sunday schools, because, generally speaking, that is the entering wedge for a church.

The superintendent and teachers should make a special effort to interest the whole school as to the home fields. Write to Miss Fannie E. S. Heck, Raleigh, N. C., for a few copies of a leaflet from her pen entitled "Her Father's House," which gives a description of the privations and sacrifices of those noble men and women, who are suffering untold agonies right here in our home lands. Also get the leaflet entitled "Our Frontier Missionaries" by Dr. I. T. Tichenor. Pass these leaflets around for every man, woman and child to read. Interest them in foreign fields. Try to impress the fact that our mission Sunday-schools and churches are stakes driven down at home to hold the cords that stretch far across the ocean to foreign lands. Take home to your own hearts the sweet assurance that you, as faithful Sunday school workers, are lengthening the cords and strengthening the stakes of the Redeemer's kingdom in the earth. I am truly anxious that the superintendent should endeavor to adopt the following plan, viz: revive the old monthly concert of prayer for missions at the week night prayer meetings, when some mission field is talked of and given to. By all means urge each teacher to take some missionary paper.

If you have not a library in your Sunday-school, don't delay that important work. Begin at once by purchasing a few volumes at a time, and don't fail to introduce some missionary book for the grown members of the school, such as the lives of Judson, Carey, Robert Morrison, Livingston, &c.

Before a superintendent or teacher enters the Sunday-school room, he should go to his closet and there alone plead for that religious sunshine with which Jesus, our sympathising Saviour, fringes our every cloud. Give to your class the brightness of your faith in God. Wear a smile, even the gladsome trustfulness of childhood. Seek your joy in communicating joy to your pupils.

In conclusion, I wish to confine my remarks more directly to the great work the children are doing, and how we may use them to the glory of God.

In Sunday-school we have under our care material, of which must be built the churches of Jesus Christ during the generation that comes after us. The efficiency of the churches depends largely on how the material is moulded and shaped. Therefore Sunday-school teachers cannot be too painstaking in trying to instil into the minds of the children the missionary spirit, that the power of good may be increased at home and abroad.

Dr. Bell, Secretary of the Southern Baptist Sunday-school Board, says that the leading idea around which the child's mind crystallizes, is the missionary spirit. He illustrates thus: "Rock candy is made by melting sugar, and then putting a string down into it, and letting it crystalize around the string." Then we should let the mission idea down into the minds of the children, and let them crystallize around it. How can this be done? In many ways:

1. The teacher should try to bring the foreign fields as close home to the children as possible, dispelling the idea that the heathen are some strange, dreadful creature, and teach them that they are people just as we are—many of them little boys and girls—and that we would be just as they are if we had never heard of Jesus.

2 In order to increase their love and appreciation for the missionaries and their work, you might name the classes of the Sunday-school after some missionary. The teacher, or some member of the class, should correspond occasionally with the missionary for whom the class was named. Let the answer by the missionary first be read to the class and then to the whole school. This plan be pursued with great success. I have named my class for this year the "Bryan Class."

3. Give one collection in the month to missions and encourage the children to earn a penny a piece for the collection, if no more. If they cannot make the money, let each bring an egg, and have a basket on the desk to receive these offerings.

4 Have a few bright mission stories in the library for the children to read. If any school is not able to purchase books for the children and will state that fact to the American Baptist Publication Society, asking [illegible] contribution in the way of books, they will present you with from twenty five to thirty volumes, you paying the express.

5 Observe Mission Day in the Sunday-school. This occurs in September. A program will be sent free by the Sunday school Board, Nashville, Tenn.

6 In selecting new song-books, keep in mind missions, and choose the one that has some bright missionary hymns. Go back also to the good old fashion of having children learn hymns "by heart" as our grandfathers used to say; teach them 'Greenland's icy mountain," "The morning light is breaking," and others that make our hearts beat high with hope and expectation. A whole school can be easily taught a hymn by writing one stanza each Sunday on the black board.

Letter from Virginia.

VIRGINIA BAPTIST GENERAL ASSOCIATION—WAKE FOREST AND RICHMOND COLLEGES—FEMALE SCHOOLS—BAPTIST ORPHANAGE—BIBLICAL RECORDER, ETC.

Our Baptist General Association will hold its annual session this year at Petersburg, beginning Nov. 15th. The place of meeting being so near the line, it is hoped that we shall see among the visitors, friends from the Old North State. We are looking forward to a great meeting. Oh, that it may be great for its spiritual power and blessing! Some proposed changes in policy and other interesting questions will come up for consideration.

The good news concerning the large attendance and general prosperity at Wake Forest has rejoiced the hearts of many in Virginia. You will be glad to hear that Richmond College has an unusually large number of students, and is moving out under its new plans and administration upon a great career of usefulness and success.

Our female institutions of learning are all doing finely, and some of them, notably Hollins Institute and the Woman's College, have drawn pupils from a number of States.

God's blessing has been upon the Baptist Orphanage of Virginia from its very inception. Definite action to inaugurate the enterprise was taken at our General Association in 1889. The year after this, the location (Salem) was decided upon, plans of buildings and general organization were adopted and a superintendent (Rev. G. J. Hobday) elected. And now the thing concerning which there were thoughts and writings, speeches and prayers, has actually come to pass. The beautiful buildings crown the majestic site, and sixty happy children, once thrown upon the cruel mercies of a cold world, are sheltered from the howling wolf and pitiless blast. But we have to remember that constant, unremitting interest, manifested by prayer and giving, is the price of the future success of all our benevolent and missionary undertakings. Let us all be up and doing, for "the king's business requireth haste." What we do for ourselves and families may pass away, what we do for Christ will last forever. I neglected to mention that the new cottage, the gift of the Schmelts brothers, and the workshops, are approaching completion, when there will be room for fifty more children.

Tidings came from every part of the State of great revivals and many additions to the churches.

I have been reading the RECORDER for years. It was never better, brighter and more adapted for usefulness than now. The son seems to have inherited his father's editorial genius, and Bro. Caddell's communications grow more and more sprightly.

Mention is made of an aged sister in Buckingham county, who has been reading her religious paper for fifty years, that when sick recently, she said: "The only things I mind about dying are giving up reading the Herald and going to Sharon church." Doubtless the RECORDER has readers who love it equally well. With love to all my friends and brethren in the State where I spent eight years of my life, I am yours, is prevalent at all seasons of the year, but can be avoided largely when they are properly cared for. Infant Health is the title of a valuable pamphlet accessible to all who will send address to the N. Y. Condensed Milk Company, N. Y. City.

J. B. TAYLOR.

Sickness Among Children

Notes from Ashe and Watauga Counties.

Dear Bro. Bailey:—Needing a little rest and wanting to visit relatives, I left home Sept. 24th to spend a few days in above counties. The weather was extremely warm and the roads very dusty.

At Blowing Rock things looked a little desolate, the large throng of summer visitors having gone. At this place there are several elegant hotels and a number of private boarding houses. Bro. T. N. Corpening, a member of Flat Top Baptist church, is proprietor of the Watauga hotel, and has had a very prosperous season. If any of our Baptist people should decide to go to Blowing Rock, I would advise them to stop with Bro. Corpening.

Crops in these mountain counties are fine. The hay crop was never better, and fine fruit in an abundance. The price of live stock is advancing, and these servants of the Lord will soon have something to put into his treasury.

In Watauga I passed two beautiful new Baptist church houses, Mt. Vernon and Laurel Springs.

Bro. J. L. Sherwood has recently held good meetings with two of his churches, Brushy Fork and Three Fork. He was assisted by Bro. David Kitzmiller of Tennessee. Bro. Kitzmiller is a strong preacher.

Boone was in mourning over the death of R. L. Council. He was an excellent young man. He died of consumption. Bro. Sherwood was to conduct the funeral services the day I left. I had the honor of uniting him in marriage some years ago.

The appearance of Boone is greatly marred by the disastrous fire a few months since, in which our Bro. W. L. Bryan and Bro. Yarboro were the only sufferers. Bro. Bryan is clerk of Boone Baptist church, and the entire church records were lost in the fire. Bro. Yarboro, who has been teaching in Boone, and who lost all his household effects with some money in the fire, has gone to Buncombe county to teach.

I spent one day in Jefferson, and found Judge Bryan and Solicitor Spainhour holding court. The court was absorbed in the trial of the Eller-Latham homicide, which occurred last April. Some one killed Latham and threw him in the river. Eller, a young man nineteen years old, was arrested and sent to Winston jail for safe keeping until this term of the court. On the witness stand Eller denied killing Latham, but the State produced an almost unbroken chain of evidence pointing to the guilt of Eller. I felt very sorry for the young man, and could not refrain from wishing that he had sought the religion of Christ early in life, so as to have had its restraining influences. There is no telling where, or into what, the world, the flesh and the devil will lead us unless we have the power of God to keep us. Most people think religion will be a good thing to help us die, but we all need it to help us live right. It is said John Bunyan once saw a man going to the gallows, and exclaimed, "There goes John Bunyan but for the grace of God."

In one particular, Jefferson is a beautiful little town. Main street is wide, and has four rows of shade trees almost, or quite, touching each other, making the street look like a magnificent shady bower. Bro. T. M. Duncan is pastor of the church at this point. He is serving five churches, and is one of the most active pastors in the county.

Ashe is a great Baptist county, having three sects of Baptists, Missionary, Antimissionary, and Union. There must be, in all, some thirty five or forty Baptist preachers in Ashe county. It is to be regretted that some of the younger preachers do not prepare themselves more fully for their life-work. Some of the preachers and churches are strong advocates of foot-washing as an ordinance of the church, but not very zealous for the extension of the Master's kingdom in the "regions beyond." This is naturally a fine section, with many good people, but it needs development. It is a pity our Baptist people are not united; if they were, they would be a power for good. As it is it will be a long time before our Baptist Zion will be what it ought.

Prof. W. H. Peeke, who makes a specialty of Epilepsy, has without doubt treated and cured more cases than any living Physician; his success is astonishing. We have heard of cases of 20 years' standing cured by him. He publishes a valuable work on this disease which he sends with a large bottle of his absolute cure, free to any sufferer who may send their P. O. and Express address. We advise anyone wishing a cure to address, Prof. W. H. PEEKE, F. D., 4 Cedar St., New York.

I send designs to any address free of expense. In writing for them, always give age of deceased and some limit as to price. All work warranted first-class and entirely satisfactory.

The Yates Memorial.

Only six weeks remain of the time set for raising the Yates Memorial Fund of $1,000 extra to be used in sending out a new missionary to China. How goes the work in your society? Is every woman working to crown this effort with success? If any are not interested in this undertaking, we commend to them especially the reading of the following letter from Mr. Bryan.

How small the work proposed seems to that of the one of whom he writes. Let her noble deeds stir us to more worthy endeavor that we, seeing her good work, may glorify our Father which is in heaven.

If we can send farther one ray of the Christ light reflected from her life, great is our privilege and happy are we.

SHANGHAI, CHINA.

Dear Sister:—I appreciate the confidence you display in writing to me to assist you in writing of Mrs. Yates, but regret my inability to do the subject justice. I was in Chinkiang most of the time, and hence was not thrown into the closest contact with her. She left for the United States soon after we moved to Shanghai, and we never saw her again. The mail, too, leaves to day, which gives me but little time to think over the matter.

I will not write a finished article, but simply give you some rough notes.

Soon after her death I wrote a short article on her as "Mother Yates." As I today think of her in her different relations, and the different aspects of her character, and try to give expression to the impression which she made upon me in one sentence, it occurs to me to say this: She was a quiet, irresistible, everlasting force. She moved quietly, but she moved along with an influence that was not only irresistible, but that will never die. Her standard was high almost to a fault. She found it hard to sympathize with those whose standards were low.

She also brought this same high standard to bear on herself, and sometimes doubted because she could not always reach her own high standard.

She was wise and discreet, and especially noted for her common sense. We all sought her advice, and tried to follow it. She was decidedly a missionary, and grew more and more so the longer she lived. Among her last words to me, which I now remember, were these, "The older I grow, the more of a missionary I become." The very last letter I received from her was about the work. She was deeply concerned about the work; it was not making the progress which she desired. I learn from Mrs. Seaman that up to within a few days of her death she would have the women around her to come in and read the Bible with them.

As a worker she was very quiet about it, trying to conceal what she did rather than make it known. There was no trumpet flourish about anything she did. In fact, I think she was too quiet. She wrote but little to the papers, not because she was not able to write, but because she had an aversion to making her work public. She spent thousands of dollars in mission work, and never reported any of it, even to the Board. Her whole desire seemed to be to work noiselessly. She did, perhaps, her best work in living Christianity in her home life. Her servants loved her, and remained with her many years. Her home was a model of neatness and cleanliness, and yet it was accomplished (a difficult thing in China) in a quiet way without any seeming friction.

I have heard her speaking of the fact that it was difficult to get the Chinese women to be gentle and kind in the home life. She did her best by example as well as by precept to bring them to this, and from what I see of our Christian women, her work was not in vain. She carried on a school, paying all its expenses herself, just back of the church, for many years, and while the result fell far short of her desires and standard; yet we live to bless her for the help thus given to our work in the number and character of the women in our church. She was too old to do much active work among the heathen women when I came to China, but the large percentage of women, and good women, among our members, shows that she worked, and that well and wisely. Our Christian women are above the average in Christian character. The proof of this is seen in the fact that all denominations seek to secure our Christian women as helpers, teachers, matrons, Bible women, &c. A number of our women fill responsible positions in the work of other denominations, despite their close communion, so-called.

Mother Yates' influence was seen, too, in the love which our women have for our church. They work for others to make a living, but hold to their faith.

She made many contributions to our work, but always on condition that we were not to mention it. Several years ago while we were working in Chinkiang, she paid nearly a thousand dollars on our house. When this money was not needed to rebuild the house after the riot, she added another thousand to the first and built the present mission house in Soochow for Brother and Sister Britton. She was not satisfied with that, but said to me one day, "If you can think of any way in which I can spend some money for the Lord, you must let me know." We afterwards moved to Shanghai, and she offered to pay my salary, and would have done so, but there came a request from two churches in Kentucky to be allowed to pay it, and she yielded to them, but said, "The Board shall not lose anything by it, for I will pay that amount to the work in other ways." As usual she enjoined upon me not to mention it. She has left us now, and I think I may be allowed to mention it.

Bro. Tatum and myself went around to see her one day armed with arguments to get her consent to open a new station at the East Gate of the city. She listened to our arguments a few minutes, and then with a merry twinkle in her eye, said, "Why are you trying to convince me? Go and enlarge your work." Next day she sent me a cheque for $300 00 to pay all the expenses. Bro. Tatum tells me this morning that just before she died she sent him a cheque for enough to pay the expenses of this new station for nearly two years. To use Bro. Tatum's words, "Though she is dead, she is still paying the expenses of the East Gate work."

Last night I preached to a large audience drawn in by Mrs. Bryan playing the organ given to the church by Mother Yates. She lives in our work, in our hearts, in our homes, in our music, but best of all, in the sweet music of a hallowed and never dying influence.

I wish I had time to write of her in her relation to missionaries and children. We called her "Mother Yates," and our children will never forget "Grandma Yates."

We decided in our mission meeting on Saturday night to ask for another man as a memorial to Doctor and Mrs. Yates. We believe this would be their desire if they were alive. May God guide and help you all in this matter.

Sincerely, R. T. BRYAN.

Indian Legend of the Moon.

Here is a peculiar legend of the Indians, as told by the Rev. Mr. Cook, the full blooded Sioux, who is the ministerial representative of the Episcopalian denomination at Pine Ridge Agency, says the Omaha Bee The legend, which was related to the Indian children at the agency, was of their forefather's belief as to the cause of the disappearance of the moon. He said the belief was that every time a new moon appeared it was a signal for all the mice in the country to gather themselves together in one spot. When they assembled, they separated in four great armies. One army went to the north, another to the south, a third to the east, and a fourth to the west. These armies of mice traveled until they reached the point where, from the place of starting, the heavens seemed to touch the earth. Then they climbed up the sky until they came to the moon, which by this time was what we call full. All of the four armies then commenced nibbling at Luna, and when they had eaten her all up, the mice would scamper back down the heavens to the earth and wait for her to show herself again, when the journey and nibbling would be repeated by the mice. And this is what the Indians of early days believed was the cause of the moon growing old and finally disappearing.

The Moqui Indians of Arizona possess an antidote against the venom of the rattlesnake, which is used in their horrible "Snake Dance." "The secret of the mysterious antidote used by them is supposed to be known to only three of the tribe, namely the high priest, the neophyte, who is in training to inherit that office, and the oldest woman. In the event of the death of any one of these three, it is imparted to a successor, and under any other circumstances its betrayal is punishable by death. Every year, three days before the great day of the ceremony, the participants enter upon a strict fast, during which the secret decoction is freely administered, and the rattlesnakes are captured in large numbers from the desert. At the appointed hour, on the fourth day, the dancers seize a snake in each hand and rush to join the dance, at the conclusion of which the reptiles are restored to freedom."—Home Mission Monthly.

Meetings—Ordination.

Dear Recorder:—The week after the second Sunday in August we had a meeting at Beulah, in which Bro. W. P. Jordan did the preaching and did it well. The large crowds on Thursday and Friday and the rain on Saturday seemed to operate much against the success of the meeting. Six were added to the church by baptism.

The week after the third Sunday in September we had a very precious meeting here at Reynoldson. Bro. Josiah Elliott did most of the preaching. Dr. Owen of Portsmouth, Va., was with us Friday and Saturday, and rendered efficient service. The church seemed to be revived. Fifteen were added by baptism and one by restoration. Another was received for baptism, but owing to sickness has not been baptized.

ORDINATION.

At the call of Reynoldson church, a presbytery consisting of Elders A. E Owen, D. D., Josiah Elliott and W. B. Waff, met Friday, September 20th, for the purpose of examining Bro. M. O. Carpenter preparatory to his ordination to the full work of the ministry. Dr. Owen was made chairman of the meeting and W. B. Waff secretary. The deacons present were invited to sit with the presbytery. Bro. Carpenter was examined on his Christian experience, call to the ministry, the doctrines of the Bible, the ordinances, church government, etc. The examination being perfectly satisfactory, it was decided to proceed with the ordination. Saturday morning Dr. Owen preached the sermon from 1 Cor., 3: 22—"The gift of the ministry to the church." The ordaining prayer was made by Bro. Elliott, and the charge delivered by W. B. Waff. The presbytery then gave the hand of fellowship, and Bro. Carpenter pronounced the benediction. The service, throughout, was very tender and impressive. Bro. Carpenter has a fine school here, and is also serving Beulah church. One or two more churches, I hope, will call him for next year.

W. B. WAFF, Secretary.

Reynoldson, October 9, 1895.

From Bro. D. L Gore.

I heartily approve of your editorial on "Dropping the Cable." That is along the line of annual and anti annual calls for pastors. I think, as a rule, the pastors want indefinite calls,—some for life. The laymen want annual calls. But two of the best pastors in the State, and by the way, very successful men in their line, to-wit, R. E. Peele and Josiah Elliott, favor annual calls.

Concerning the Ministers' Relief Board, I would ask, is there a man who has a soul that would not help worn-out preachers and their wives when the subject is presented to them properly? And a pastor who is too delicate to mention and press the subject is off his base. It surely is more blessed to give than to receive. Any one who works six days to the week will always have some to keep and some to give, and the more they give, (within bounds) the more they will have. D. L GORE.

Our Seminary Letter.

Dear Recorder:—The North Carolina boys held a short meeting in my room this morning, and they came in reading the RECORDER which had just come.

All were eager to hear the news from their own State, so everything else must be second to reading the RECORDER. As usual, views were exchanged about the paper and many complimentary remarks made as to the paper and its young editor. Among the nice things said, some one remarked that Dr. Whitsitt said the RECORDER was one of the best denominational papers in the South.

All of the doubts and fears as to the future of the Seminary were removed when the session opened with 220 students, this being more than had ever been here before at the opening. There was not only a great increase in numbers, but the quality of the men is equal to the number. Of the great number of new men who were here at the opening, there were only eleven who were not college men. There are now 257 students here.

Dr. Harris is demonstrating the fact that he can teach Polemics and Biblical Introduction as well as Greek.

Dr. Kerfoot is attending the Texas State Convention this week.

All of the professors are in good health and high spirits for the hard work before them.

All of the rooms in the dormitory are filled, but new rooms are being fitted up, so there will be rooms for all who come.

We were glad to hear the encouraging account Bro. Collum gave of the work at Wake Forest, the large number of students, and the interest in the study of the Bible. Bro. Collum says there are fourteen young ministers in the senior class. I wonder how many of them will come here next year?

There are fifteen North Carolina boys here: C. H. Durham, Asheville; R. G. Kendrick, Roanoke Rapids; W. M. Murray, Biltmore; C. J. F. Anderson, Carthage; J. J. Douglas, Carthage; W. H. Reddish, Nenue; J. D. Moore, Globe; J. D. Robertson, Cool Springs; W. R. Collum, Weldon; R. M Farthing, Sweet Water; W. H. Sledge, Leaksville; T. H. Plemmons, Lester; J. L. Martin, Hamptonville; T. D. Myres, Mitchell; N. J. Mason, Rockingham.

If there are any others who are thinking of coming, we all join in saying come now.

CLERKS —OF— ASSOCIATIONS

will find it to their advantage to get the Minutes of their Association printed by us.

We have been doing this class of work for more than twenty years, and are familiar with the proper arrangement, and with the names of the brethren, &c., and when we print them the work is not only well done, but the Minutes are correct.

It would be better for all the work if the Minutes of all the Associations were printed at one place.

Clerks will do well to send us their Minutes.

Atlanta Exposition.

THE GATE CITY OF THE SOUTH—SPLENDID RAILROAD FACILITIES.

The natural fertility of the soil, vast mineral resources, abundant water power, salubrious climate, and above all the industry, enterprise and national spirit of her people, richly entitle Georgia to be termed the Empire State of the South, and her capital, the city of Atlanta, from its geographical position and the fact that it is a center from which railroads radiate to every section of the country, is aptly named the Gate City of the South.

Atlanta is a beautiful, thriving city of more than 110,000 population, rich in factories, mills, large wholesale and retail stores, electric street railways, electric lights, splendid water works system, fine hotels, elegant residences, spacious, well kept and beautiful parks, paved streets and unsurpassed school and sanitary systems, grand public buildings, everything, in fact, necessary to constitute an ideal city and indicative of that thrift, vim and enterprise of her citizens, which has won for their city the cognomen of the "Chicago of the South," and from present indications, in a very few years it may properly and rightly be designated its metropolis.

Such is the Atlanta of to day, risen from its ashes, brushed off the tears and thrown aside the hates and prejudices engendered by the terrible conflict of arms that raged in and around her and left her desolate indeed, which holds out her hospitable arms to all the world and invites to the Cotton States and International Exposition to be opened on September 18 next and continue until the last day of the present year, a period of 105 days.

This great undertaking has received the indorsement of the General Government, Congress having appropriated $200 000 for a building and exhibit. The building was designed by a Government architect and will have a floor space of 65,000 square feet. The Government exhibit will represent all its departments and will be in charge of gentlemen selected because of their special qualifications and valuable experience acquired at the Columbian Exposition at Chicago, and these gentlemen have severally promised at the Atlanta exhibit shall in every respect equal if not excel that of the United States at Chicago.

Besides that of the United States and the several State and other buildings, there will be twelve principal structures, as follows: Manufactures and Liberal Arts, Fine Arts, Agriculture, Auditorium, Administration, Fire, Machinery, Mineral and Forestry, Negro, Transportation, Electricity and Woman's. The general style will be Romanesque, and architectural effects will be produced by outline and proportion rather than by ornamentation, and they are well calculated to impress the beholder with their simplicity, stability and adaptability.

In regard to transportation, particularly by rail, in no respect has the South shown her recuperation from the devastations of war and the general prostration incident to a sudden and complete revolution in her labor system, by the abolition of slavery, than in the improvement in her railways, not only in roadbed, motive power, equipment and speed, but in the combination of independent roads into a great trunk system under a single management, which affords facilities for travel and traffic of a character equal to the best in the country. Such is the great system now operated under the name of the Southern Railway, which, like the branches of a great tree, reaches every part of the South and Southwest, with connections to every part of the East, West and Northwest, which is to the entire southern section of the country what the Pennsylvania and New York Central, for instance, are to other sections.

The Southern Railway, therefore, will afford the fullest and best facilities to visitors to the fair, whether from any part of the South, from the East, West or Northwest, without change of cars, and without the annoyances incidental thereto, and will land them either in Atlanta or in the fair grounds, at their option, and at the lowest rates that may be established.

Standing in Piedmont Park and looking up to the crest of the hill at the grand Auditorium, with its great seating capacity and lofty tower, holding the largest chime of bells ever set up in this country, surrounded by evidences of a new and brighter era of progress and development for the South, remembering that the ground upon which we stand is hallowed by the blood of the thousands who here fell battling for and against the Union, where the arts of war, illustrated by intrenchments, breastworks and rifle pits, have happily been replaced by those of peace and progress, one instinctively turns to the emblem of his country's greatness and sovereignty, gracefully and proudly floating over the picturesque and beautiful scene, feels a thrill of enthusiastic patriotism and rejoices that all sectional lines and prejudices are obliterated, and that the South is henceforth to be a potent factor in the progress in agriculture, the arts, sciences and literature of this great republic, a progress that has been the marvel of the civilized world.

Imagination can then well picture the exposition in full progress, and people from every section of our own, and other countries happily commingling in the beautiful enclosure. He can hear the strains of sweet music from Sousa's and Innes, and from the renowned United States Marine Band, led by its incomparable conductor, Fanciulli, in the Auditorium, feel the air vibrating with the harmony of the chimes that, but awhile ago, trembled with the thunder of hostile artillery, hear the hum of labor saving machinery, the roar of railroad trains, and see on minarets, towers and gables the flags of all nations paying homage to the glorious Stars and Stripes proudly floating from yon Goddess staff. At such a moment one fully realizes what it is to be an American; to be a participant of this great Republic, a government of, by and for the people, which knows no North, South, East or West, but a homogeneous whole, leading all nations in the betterment of the conditions of human life, and in the march to a higher, grander and nobler civilization.

The Armless Wonder.

He uses the harmless wonder, Pearline, for bathing. A teaspoonful on the sponge or wash rag is enough. You'll find the directions on every package. Try it. It's as clean and refreshing as a Turkish bath—almost nothing to pay—no danger, no more than with good soap—but there's no soap as good. It does more, it's more effective—in the bath as in everything else. And it washes everything—in hot or cold, hard or soft, salt or fresh water. It makes no difference if you use Pearline. In the laundry and for house cleaning Pearline makes a saving of dollars for every penny of its cost—every grocer sells it.

Beware Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you, "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, do the honest thing—send it back. 191 JAMES PYLE, New York

J. Stone Recovering.

OWES HIS HEALTH TO DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS FOR PALE PEOPLE.

From the Star, Gainesville, Fla.

The many friends of J. Stone, of Palmer, Fla., will be pleased to know that that estimable old gentleman, who has for years been a great sufferer from rheumatism, is recovering. At one time it was impossible for Mr. Stone to use his right arm. The gentleman in question was in the city yesterday, and when asked by a Sun man to give some reason for his recovery, he said:

"Well, sir, you will not believe me perhaps, but my recovery is due to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I think them an excellent remedy and must accept this opportunity, if you will permit me, to advise all who suffer as I have done to try them. I'll guarantee relief. Two years ago I was suffering from rheumatism; you know what condition I was in. I read an article in a Christian paper of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and I took seven boxes of them. The result was more than any human being could have expected. I grew better fast.

"Someone then advised other medicine, saying that I had taken enough of the pills. I heeded the advice and the result was I grew worse again and lost the use of my right arm. I could not move it a particle. Eight weeks ago I commenced to take the pills again and now I can use my arm without any pain whatever. They are a wonderful pill and I drove several miles to-day to purchase another box of them.

"I wish you could publish the following affidavit I swore to. I ask this of you as a means of displaying my gratitude as well as to endeavor to save some other poor sufferer."

The Sun man consented and the following is the affidavit which the happy man swore to yesterday before J. C. B. Koonce:

The above was sworn to and subscribed before me this 21st day of May, A. D. 1895.

[SEAL.] J. C. B. KOONCE, Notary Public

The Robeson County Union.

A thing worthy of emulation by every Association in the State is the example of the Robeson County Union Meetings in discussing some practical phase of education at each session. The Institute at Lumberton with its ever growing interest and efficiency is but the earnest of these efforts. And still better, it affords an opportunity to present the claims of Christian education in four different sections of the Association every year. This keeps the matter alive in the hearts of the people, and parents are stimulated to provide education for their children and many an ambitious youth takes fresh courage and renews his effort to secure liberal training for his life work.

These meetings are generally well attended by the pastors and representatives of the churches and already Robeson county is taking the lead in school interest at home as well as in support and patronage of our Colleges.

It was our privilege to be present at the late fifth Sunday meeting, held with Ten Mile church, and take part in discussing the query, "Is it our religious duty to educate our children?" Good speeches were made to the question by brethren A. R. Pitman, M. L. Kesler and L. Johnson and it was closed by an earnest prayer, lead by brother Pitman, for the success and development of all our Christian Institutions.

Whether it would be wise for all our Unions to discuss the same general program at their quarterly meetings, as suggested by a recent editorial in the RECORDER, the writer is in serious doubts, but we are satisfied that some phase of education should claim the attention of the brethren at each session. Will not some one in each Association urge the necessity of this work, at such a time as this? It is fundamental, practical and Christian.

is now without a pastor, but it is safe to say that such a flock will not be long without a shepherd. They are all grieved at the loss of Bro. Johnson, but when it was seen that God was leading him away they submitted to the change without a murmur. Bro. Johnson leaves friends wherever he has labored. Many hearts follow him with tender interest as he turns to a new field.

OUR EFFORT FOR WAKE FOREST

in this Association has so far been very gratifying. Back Swamp church in subscriptions to the Royall Chair leads and country church we have met. This church is now pastorless. Bro. Johnson served it in connection with the Lumberton field. Many young men in Robeson county are preparing to enter Wake Forest College.

In another article we may have something to say of the Robeson Institute at Lumberton. We need fifty such schools located in different sections of the State.

This has been a good month for the endowment of the College.

OUR UNION MEETINGS.

I have been very much interested in your editorial on this subject. The suggestions given are capital. I believe uniformity of topics would accomplish much for the State at large and would give unanimity of action on many questions. This would do away with many theoretical discussions which are simply a waste of time and thought. I have come to the conclusion that the best course to pursue in our Union Meetings is to keep before the people denominational issues and work. Let the brethren discuss the various phases of Missions, Education, Benevolence, Doctrines, Christian character in its bearings upon church influence. Then let Saturday afternoon be given to Sunday-school work and Chautauqua or Institute work conducted so as to develop these departments. Such meetings can be made great aids to the Associations and strong supports to church work. The devotional spirit should prevail in every session. Every thing should be conducted in the simplest manner and every effort made to bring out home talent. Some of the best meetings I have ever attended have been the Union Meetings.

THE SOUTHERN B. Y. P. U.

This is the new organization in connection with the Southern Baptist Convention. I don't know what I think about it. I am of the opinion that we are getting too much organization in the Baptist denomination. We shall soon have as many methods and as much machinery as Methodism. These methods and the machinery are kept up at great cost and there is a corresponding lack of funds needed to carry on our great mission enterprises, and many of our brethren are thrown in debt to get means to keep up the march, and their characters suffer in the community in which they live. For my part I am inclined to think that we are organized too much, and need to cut off rather than add to. If the wise brethren think best to have a Southern B. Y. P. U., I am ready to contribute my strength to make it a success, yet I believe for the present we are getting along very well without it. Too much machinery will weaken us; we need to perfect that we have before we put in more. I comfort myself with the thought that the Lord can overrule all mistakes, even though we may wander in the wilderness of difficulties.

LOCAL NEWS.

Our congregations are very large, the people are kind and the outlook is hopeful. As in every place, there are difficulties and disagreeable things to contend with here, but the church is as good as the average church in the State, in some respects above the average. Our great trouble here is the liquor traffic. I have never seen looser views with reference to the curse than I find among Christian people in this country. Many of the houses in which liquor is sold are owned by professing Christians; very many professors patronize the bars, and church officials are frequently seen under the influence of whiskey. The red light of the dram shop is reflected in many of the noses of the church members in this section. I hope the day is not far off when things will look different.

Fayetteville church will withdraw from Robeson Association at its next session and co-operate with the Cedar Creek until the question of another Association is settled. A building committee has been appointed by the church and Sunday school to consider the enlargement of the seating capacity of the Sunday school room and church to accommodate the crowds which attend the services.

The prayer-meeting is very largely attended, and along all lines of work our interests grow.

Next week the Presbyterian Synod will meet in our city.

The RECORDER improves with age. The paper is always full of interest to me. May the subscription list never grow less, but enlarge as the days go by.

Fayetteville, Oct. 12, 1895.

The New First Baptist Church, Durham.

The improvements in the First Baptist church, Durham, N. C., will be as follows:

An addition on the south side. This addition will be circular in shape and divided by a movable partition, one-half being a permanent addition to the main auditorium, and the other half being capable of being so used by removing the movable partition. A gallery will be placed over the last named half. There will be in front a ladies' parlor, a short piazza and a smaller tower, all on a line with the present front of the building. The present front tower will be made 130 feet high, and this as well as the whole building will be covered with slate. The second window of the tower will be a handsome rose window. On the north side the wall will be taken out to make room for the pulpit and baptistery, and on this side will be built two dressing rooms and a pastor's study. The wall where the pulpit now stands will be taken out and replaced by a movable partition so as to throw the present infant class room into the audience room when necessary. The old gallery will be removed as well as both staircases in the vestibule. The ceiling of the addition will be the same pitch as the old building, and the acoustic properties of the enlarged building will be excellent. There will be a rise in the floor of the addition as far back as the partition. The regular auditorium will seat 650 and the entire seating capacity when all parts are thrown open will be 1,000.

The main entrance will remain where it is now. There will be three entrances to the building. The building when completed will present a very handsome appearance, and will provide a splendid auditorium and ample Sunday-school accommodation. The total cost of the building completed will be about $20,000.

From Rev. C. B. Justice.

Dear Recorder:—Through the kindness of Dr. Skinner, I have enjoyed the pleasure of reading his book, "Sermons, Addresses and Lectures." I feel that I have been helped by it. There are a number of good things in it, presented in that interesting style peculiar to the Doctor.

I am well pleased, as is every one else whose opinions I have had an opportunity to know, with the present management of the RECORDER. Col. J. C. Tipton, editor of the Rutherford Democrat, told me some time since that he regarded the RECORDER as being the best religious newspaper coming to his office.

During the past summer I held meetings at Mountain Creek and Pleasant Hill churches. As a result of the meeting at the former place, there were twenty additions by baptism, and at the latter there were seventeen. I also baptized five at this place during the spring and summer.

I had with me in these meetings a part of the time Bro. W. H. Davis of Wake Forest. I found him to be a brother of lovable spirit and with more than ordinary preaching ability. I trust we shall be able to locate him with some of the churches in the Green River Association when he is through College.

We closed a very pleasant and I trust profitable session of our Association on the 6th inst. Pledges were taken for Foreign Missions amounting to $344. The Association agreed to raise $250 for State Missions, $100 for Home Missions, and $100 for Ministerial Education.

Dr. Landrum was again elected Moderator, and presided with his usual ease and dignity. The Doctor is a model presiding officer. Yours, C. B. JUSTICE

From the New Carthage Pastor.

Dear Recorder:—I look forward with much interest to your weekly visit, and there is always an "aching void" when I am away from home and do not find the paper, so dear to me from earliest recollection. It has visited my father's home ever since I can remember any paper, and it has all the time improved on acquaintance. I think there are two copies coming to the house at which I am boarding, but I must have another come to me.

I am pleasantly located at Carthage. I have been here very little yet, as most of the summer has been spent "on the wing." I have helped in several meetings, all of which I have enjoyed very much. Last week I was with Bro. H. H. Lawhon at Sandy Branch in Chatham county. Good interest was manifest from the very first. There were several professions of faith when I left Friday night, and Bro. Lawhon carried on the meeting through Sunday. He writes me there were several more professions. We were greatly encouraged by the visible results, and sincerely believe seed were sown, the fruit of which is yet to be seen. Quite a number were inquiring the way of life when the meeting closed.

I reached Saturday night and preached my first sermon for this people Sunday. The number and interest in the congregation both morning and night were very encouraging. I feel sure I shall enjoy the work here with this warm hearted, co-operative people to stand by me.

May the Lord direct both pastor and people is the humble prayer of

Your brother in Christ,

JOHN R. MOORE.

MARRIED.

MAULDIN—HAWKINS—On October 16th, 1895, in Mocksville, N. C., by Rev. Chas. A. G. Thomas, Mr. Guy E. Mauldin of Washington City, D. C., and Miss Pearl Hawkins of Mocksville, N. C.

DIED.

BROWN—Died at Amity, N. C., on Sept. 23d, 1895, Miss Jennie Brown. She was a consistent and devoted member of the Baptist church for twenty-six years. She was sixty-seven years old on the 22d of August.

Oh that we could all die the death of the righteous, and our last end be like hers.

J. A. B. GOODMAN.

POINDEXTER—Died Sept. 27th, 1895, of typhoid fever, near Huntsville, Yadkin county, N. C., Miss Sallie M. Poindexter, at the age of nearly sixteen years.

She was, even from her childhood, unusually affectionate and obedient, as well as lovely in person and disposition; and as she grew older she lost nothing of these admirable qualities, but rather became more the cherished friend, not only of her young associates, but of the older people as well.

She became sick while absent at school, but was brought home, where she could have the tender ministrations of those who loved her most. "Death loves a shining mark," and he came and laid her stricken form in the grave to await the resurrection morn, but her spirit went to God who gave it.

M. BALDWIN.

BASS—Horatio Bass died at his home in Chowan county October 4th, in his seventy-fourth year. I can truthfully say he was a helper in every good work. For nine years I have been his pastor and have never known him to shirk duty. He was always ready to do his part in the Lord's work. The Sunday-school, prayer-meeting, and all other meetings where the Lord's people met to do good, was his delight. He had taken and read the RECORDER from its starting. Yeopim church and community, the preacher and loved ones, will miss him. Four children, with a host of friends, are left to weep. A good man has gone.

A. W. B.

Hertford, N. C.

BURRUS—Died at Boonville, Yadkin county, N. C., Sept. 21st, 1895, Miss Iris Burrus, aged twenty-two years. Her parents, Bro. J. G. and Sister Bettie Burrus, live in Rockford, Surry county, N. C. At the church at Rockford, where she was a member, the burial services were held by Rev. E. J. Adams on Sunday, the 22d. The remains were tenderly buried in the churchyard by loving hands in the midst of many admiring friends and bleeding hearts. It was a sad time, made doubly so by sympathy for our brother and sister J. G. Burrus and family.

Sister Burrus professed faith in Christ and was baptized into the fellowship of Rockford Baptist church in her fourteenth year, and had lived a true and consistent member ever since. At school she was submissive and industrious, and a favorite. As a teacher she was successful and her services in demand.

She served as post-mistress at Rockford for several years, where everything was kept in order and safe. She was faithful in every department of life.

But at home she will be so sadly missed. She was so kind to her only two brothers and one little sister; so dotingly fond of her kind parents. She was the light and joy of her home. Her young lady friends loved to visit her, because she was so kind and entertaining. She was beautiful in life—she was beautiful in death. She was beautifully robed and laid in a neat and highly ornamented casket befitting her personal worth and loveliness.

Thus has passed away a beautiful life. Her sun has gone down while it is yet day. She did not live long, but she lived well—not a blot or blemish on her character—a lady in the highest sense of the term. I have known her all her life and learned to love her as a faithful servant of Christ.

As an old member and deacon of the church in which she was a member, I wish to dedicate these lines as a last tribute to her memory.

W. M. NORMAN.

VEAZEY—Bro. Alfred M. Veazey was born July 25th, 1819, and died Sept. 12th, 1895, in the seventy-sixth year of his age.

Fifty years ago he professed faith in Christ, and became a church member. He was a faithful member and an honored deacon of Concord Baptist church, Granville county, N. C., from the organization of this church. Bro. Veazey was noted for the quiet, easy, sensible manner in which he moved among his fellow beings, and performed his duties as a man and a Christian. He easily ranked among the best of church members. His church and his pastor always sought his advice in all important matters. He was a man of more than ordinary mental ability. His neighborhood, church and Association delighted to honor him. He was once elected moderator of the Flat River Association, but feeble health kept him from attending its meetings after that time. He was devoted to the BIBLICAL RECORDER. He paid for it, read it, and commended it for fifty years.

Bro. Veazey was a well rounded Christian. He loved and helped all our Christian enterprises.

His church, community and family will miss him very much. But his work and sufferings are ended, and God has taken him to the rest and reward of the faithful.

"Servant of God, well done;
Rest from thy loved employ;
The battle fought, the victory won,
Enter thy Master's joy."

A Failure.

He cast his net at morn where fishes toiled,
At eve he drew it empty to the shore;
He took the diver's plunge into the sea,
But thence within his hand no pearl he bore.

He ran a race, but never reached his goal;
He sped an arrow, but he missed his aim;
And slept at last beneath a simple stone,
With no achievements carved about his name.

Men called it failure; but for my own part
I dare not use that word, for what if Heaven
Shall question, ere its judgment shall be read,
Not "hast thou won?" but only "hast thou striven?"

—Kate Tucker Goode.

What it Costs.

Six hundred million every year
For whiskey, brandy, rum and beer.
And wherese'er this stream doth flow
Are crime, poverty and woe.
Oh, who shall stay this darksome river?
Must this black tide flow on forever?
Or can we hope with mortal breath
To stay this mighty tide of death?
A living rampart must oppose,
True men, brave hearts, are sturdy foes,
While prayers in clouds ascend to heaven,
And God's own help is freely given,
"All things are yours," victorious faith
Will turn away this tide of death.
The prayer and promise he has given,
His will be done in earth and heaven.

The Liberty Bell.

Independence Bell, or "The Liberty Bell," as it is commonly called from its Revolutionary associations, and the unconscious prophecy placed upon it when it was made, is the property of the city of Philadelphia, which acquired its title to it by a sale made by the Commonwealth, in 1816, of the State House and all its grounds, buildings, and appurtenances, including the bell, furniture, and all other property belonging to the State House, the whole being purchased by the city for the sum of $70,000. The seat of government had previously been removed from Philadelphia to Harrisburg in 1812. The bell had been made by Pass & Stow in 1753 for the Provincial Assembly of Pennsylvania, by whose orders it was hung in the State House steeple on June 7, 1753. It was hanging there twenty-three years afterwards, above the Continental Congress sitting in the room below, and rang out a joyous peal when the signing of the Declaration of Independence was announced from the State House steps.

I cannot help remarking here that, in view of the condition of the country in 1753, the legend then cast upon the bell, taken from the Book of Leviticus, and having a direct reference to the Year of Jubilee in the Jewish Commonwealth, "Proclaim liberty throughout all the land unto all the inhabitants thereof," seems now, looking back upon the surroundings of that day, to have been not only a remarkable coincidence, but also a silent and involuntary prophecy of coming events. For it must be remembered that in 1753 the colonies were all reposing confidently in the lap of Great Britain. No whisper of disaffection or disloyalty to the mother country was anywhere heard. The only alarms of war which then arose were occasioned by the bloody incursions of the French and Indians upon our borders—a strife in which the British soldier and the American loyalist stood side by side, incurring the same perils and undergoing the same hardships.

The Liberty Bell had been hanging two years in the State House steeple before Braddock's disastrous defeat in 1755, and in the winter of 1756, following that event, Washington, then commanding the Virginia militia, as he rode down Chestnut Street on his memorable midwinter journey from Mount Vernon to Boston, to confer there with the commander in chief of the British forces in the colonies upon the military affairs of Virginia attended by his escort of Virginia officers and his family servants, all well mounted, and arrayed in handsome liveries just ordered from London, heard without doubt its peal of welcome as he passed the State House on his way to his quarters, for he was even at that time, although it was twenty years before the War of Independence, and he at the age of twenty-four, the most popular hero in all the colonies, fresh from the distinction he had won in the disastrous campaign against Fort Duquesne.

The bell, fortunately, is not made of fine china, but is a solid mass of over two thousand pounds of metal, and has endured for nearly one hundred and fifty years, although several times sent on such patriotic journeys, the only injury it ever experienced being when it was cracked while hanging in its accustomed place in the steeple, and being tolled on July 8, 1835 as a mark of respect to the memory of John Marshall of Virginia, the Chief Justice of the United States, then lying dead in Philadelphia. If it was to become mute forever, it was not an unfit occasion for it to become so when the great Chief Justice—the expounder of the Constitution, the comrade of Washington, and the last of his intimate public friends—lay dead in the shadow of the steeple where it was hanging. It can never be more mute than it is now, even if it should make an annual journey around among the old Thirteen, stirring up everywhere as it goes the memories and the patriotic impulses which are inseparably connected with its history, and which themselves can never grow mute.
—Judge M. Russell Thayer.

Misquoted Lines.

It is a peculiar faculty of human memory to misquote proverbs and poetry, and almost invariably to place the credit where it does not belong. We give below a few familiar expressions that are generally misquoted:

Nine men out of ten think that "The Lord tempers the wind to the shorn lamb" is from the Bible, whereas Laurence Sterne is the author. "Pouring oil upon the troubled waters" is also ascribed to the sacred volume, whereas it is not there; in fact, no one knows its origin.

Nothing is more common than to hear—

"A man convinced against his will
Is of the same opinion still."

This is an impossible condition of mind, for no one can be convinced of one opinion, and at the same time hold to an opposite one. What Butler wrote was eminently sensible:

"He that complies against his will,
Is of his opinion still."

A famous passage of Scripture is often misquoted thus: "He that is without sin among you let him cast the first stone." It should be 'Let him first cast a stone."

Sometimes we are told, "Behold how great a fire a little matter kindleth!" whereas St. James said, "Behold how great a matter a little fire kindleth!" which is quite a different thing.

We also hear that a "miss is as good as a mile," which is not as sensible or forcible as the true proverb, "A miss of an inch is as good as a mile."

"Look before you leap," should be, "Look before you ere you leap."

Pope is generally credited with having written—

Immodest words admit of no defense,
For want of decency is want of sense, though it would puzzle anyone to find the verses in his writings. They were written by the Earl of Roscommon, who died before Pope was born.

Franklin said, "Honesty is the best policy," but the maxim is of Spanish origin, and may be found in "Don Quixote."—Ex.

A Question of Atmosphere.

Said a mother one day, very wearily: "I am worn out with responsibility. Everything I do may be the wrong thing for my children; everything I fail to do may hurt them and hinder their development. Sometimes, with the poor passionate mother whom Zangwill describes so finely in The Master, I feel inclined to 'throw up the position.' Not to destroy myself—far from it; but to stop living every hour of the day with my children's welfare as a direct and imperative object; to stop watching every word they say, and every step they take, and every breath they draw. I have very little comfort with my children, yet I love them to distraction."

"Yes," answered a wise old woman, who had placidly played the part of the listener to this monologue—"yes, dear, I've noticed that you have a hard time of it; and certainly the children, poor things, have not an easy one. Children never have an easy time when their parents regard them chiefly as clay to be moulded, as instruments to be played upon. The fortunate children are those who are brought up with a large admixture of wholesome neglect."

"But, dear lady," said the mother, "am I to pass over Harry's quarrels with Ned, and Ned's tale telling, and Leila's gusts of rage, and her sister's tendency to be late and lazy, as though the four children were admirable in conduct? They ought to be admirable; they've been reproved enough; but they have a happy faculty of forgetting even punishment. I wish I could be a trifle easier and less anxious about their morals and manners."

"If," said the other, "you could only realize that home training is largely a question of absorption, of imitation, of unconscious assimilation, you would have fewer moments of sorrowful uncertainty. Your own general temper, your face, your tones, the pretty gowns you wear, the gay little songs you sing, and the stories you tell at twilight, the tender brooding that is never absent from your loving heart and from your manner, these are the things which educate your children. They resist positive orders, and are sometimes rebellious in their hearts when commands are given brusquely and enforced with sternness, but no child resists the sunshine. Praise is worth more than blame in bringing up our little ones, and reward outweighs penalty."

Editor Religious Opinion, Baltimore, Md., writes: We take pleasure in saying that your Japanese Pile Cure has been used in our family with good results, and we will do all in our power to promote your interests by highly recommending your medicine to our friends and readers. A Cry in the Night
A Mother Wakes to Find Her Little One Strangling.
SHE SAVES ITS LIFE BY THE PROMPT USE OF Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

The following is but one of many testimonials, showing the great value of this emergency medicine: "One of my children had Croup. The case was attended by our physician, and was supposed to be well under control. One night I was startled by the child's hard breathing, and on going to it found it strangling. It had nearly ceased to breathe. Realizing that the child's alarming condition had become possible in spite of the medicines given, I reasoned that such remedies would be of no avail. Having part of a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in the house, I gave the child three doses, at short intervals, and anxiously awaited results. From the moment the Pectoral was given, the child's breathing grew easier, and, in a short time, she was sleeping quietly and breathing naturally. The child is alive and well to-day, and I do not hesitate to say that Ayer's Cherry Pectoral saved her life."—C. J. WOOLDRIDGE, Wortham, Tex.

THE Exposition at Atlanta, Ga., which was opened Sept. 18th, to continue 105 days, has just gotten well under way. It is in no sense an international affair, nor is it an American exhibition. It is undoubtedly the best exposition of the South that has ever been made; and as such it is doubly profitable, showing the South to Southerners and to Northerners in such a way as to encourage the former and excite the admiration and win the confidence of the latter, who, we are glad to say, are coming in large numbers.

Three cities contended for the Columbian Exposition. Atlanta alone, of all the cotton States had the confidence, the energy and the ability to plan and bring together a display of Southern products, resources and possibilities worthy of the name. The city is ideally placed for such an achievement, and she is made of the stuff that attempts great things without fear. Her title as metropolis of the South is henceforth clear. It is based not upon aristocracy, not upon a war record (though that were sufficient), but upon thorough, out-and out Southerness—live, forever in the van, in business to the brim, yet refined and unaffectedly stately.

The Philadelphia Centennial Exposition was confined to one building; the Columbian filled up twenty or more; the Cotton States alone display their wealth in twelve; but there is not a foot too much room in the 189 acres contained in the Atlanta grounds. For, while there is no crowding, the spacious buildings are alive with easy going spectators, who find it quite as much as they are equal to to satisfactorily see the exhibits in three buildings a day. Indeed, a North Carolina editor did go through every building in ten hours, as a woman would go through a paper back novel; but we cannot commend his example, save only to those who desire a vast and chaotic impression of plenty of everything with knowledge of nothing. Details make up expositions, and without them the sight-seer is scarcely better off than at the beginning. And for this reason the most and best a newspaper can do is to persuade its readers to go and see.

It is remarkable that there is nothing of extraordinary pre eminence in this exposition. One cannot say which is the most instructive building, or which is the most admirable exhibit in a certain building. It is all good, thoroughly good; we are proud there are no freaks or crowd drawers. That the agricultural exhibit is not so magnificent nor so varied as one would look for in a region so given to agriculture, is suprising; but there is sufficient of display and variety to amaze one from other regions. It is more remarkable that the machinery building makes a show of life and progress, of flying bands, whirling wheels and busy men, with a din of many noises, spinning, weaving, manufacturing, that would have sounded strangely in a Southern city a few years ago. There is prophecy in every wheel, there is hope in every worker's heart; the sound of the voice of the new South cannot be mistaken. There is stillness enough in the minerals and forestry building; but its wealth of display, fine marble and granite veins, tall shafts of coal, blocks of iron ore, collections of jewels and precious metals, speak no less unmistakably for their silence. And the trees, fit for building and carving and manufacturing, all too good to be used for fuel, their very variety and abundance, we fear, will lead many to recklessly underestimate their value.

More hopeful still one grows as he goes. Coming into the Negro building, we face a statue of a negro with broken chains hanging from his wrists, no longer in slavery, but not yet free. On either hand there are handsome crayon, pastel and oil portraits; inventions of negroes; samples of domestic accomplishments, agricultural, etc. But by far the most interesting is the educational department, in which we see the work that negroes are doing and what opportunities they have. We were particularly impressed with the idea Spelman University is developing so successfully, of training negro women to nurse in sick rooms. It seems to us they ought also to be trained to nurse children.

We are not through half the buildings, though we have been flying through those mentioned; there is yet the transportation and the electrical, both of which are disappointing, since they of all others ought to have made most wonderful exhibits. And the Georgia manufacturers', like the Georgia agricultural, must be regarded as not so much a part of the general exposition as a large State fair all by itself, and very creditable.

But the woman's building is a gem. There are colonial things, just such as you would expect Southern women to bring out and show, instead of present day achievements. And there is art, embroidery, needle-work, and all that sort of thing. There are happy babies down stairs who are being taken care of while their mothers fly around; and there is a cooking school across the way—a delightful place for a tired woman to profitably rest, and not a bad place for a tired man to "nose about" in. And, alas, alas, there is a freckled being in skirts up stairs with a twang in her voice, who meets every woman with, "Are you a professional woman? If so, please sign here." A likeness of Susan B. Anthony hangs over the registry book, with a bill which she is said to have "lobbied through Congress." We can feel it in the air that we are compassed about by "woman righters," and we get further.

The largest building of them all is the Liberal Arts. To go through it is like taking in a town (in a woman's sense of the term). There are dry goods, table-ware, jewelry, statues for ornaments, school exhibits, (and splendid they are), candy, and everything else. There was method in placing it next to the woman's building and making it so large.

The Government exhibit is worth the trip to Atlanta, unless you live nearer to Washington. Every youth in the land ought to see it at one place or the other—Washington, if possible.

And then the art building. There is art enough in the woman's building; but here is more. We liked all the pictures, but didn't pretend to know the makers of any of them. It was astounding to hear so many ignorant-looking folks using artists' names as they would their second cousin's. To one who humbly looks on there is inspiration that does not fail; but the noisy crowd who look in their catalogs to see what the artist was driving at, and finding it, chatter away as though they told the fellow how to do it—they ought to be ruled out.

We have made the round. There are several State buildings very handsome; there is a Confederate relic room that might be worth a long journey, but which is not worth a walk up the hill; there is the "Midway," sad blot upon the Exposition; there are rich exhibits of liquor-dealers which count sadly against the whole. There is a ball-room up stairs in the New York building, to be used by a club after the Exposition is closed; and we were told that the women' building would be occupied by a men's club. A contrast for you!

By night the grounds are a wonderland. Thousands of brilliant lights outlining the buildings, the statuary as it comes into view under the restless searchlights, the boats on the lake, the music away on the other side, the fantastic capering on the platform under the red lights far down at the foot of the lakes against a background panorama of Chinese and Japanese gunboats; and then terrific booming of cannon, explosions of mines, great clouds of smoke and shouts of soldiers in mock sea battle, all enchant the onlooker, and he is astonished to find it quiet and dark again as he turns homeward.

We went to Atlanta by contract with the Southern Railway. This system has done much for the success of the Exposition by making a fine exhibit of its own (perhaps the best show at all for our State); and it is now doing more by offering ample and unsurpassed accommodations to those going to Atlanta. The Railway is magnificently equipped, and is ably manned. Its route is unsurpassed, and its facilities most ample.

Let us say a word as to expenses. Our actual expenses at Atlanta, including three meals on the way and one coming back, paying a dollar a day for a room, ($3 50 a day will cover board and room)—staying from Saturday night until Wednesday night, were twelve dollars. A gentleman and lady went, took meals together, otherwise having same expenses as we, on a net expenditure of $31.70. We can say from experience that over $15 00 for one person or $25 00 for two sharing meals, after railroad tickets are paid for, is extravagant.

Duties of Church Members.

BY REV. JNO. S. HARDAWAY.

In a former article published some time ago in the RECORDER, I tried to show that all Christians should be church members, and what motives should actuate them in the choice of a church. I think it well to call attention to some of the duties of church members. Membership in the church of Jesus Christ carries with it serious obligations. It is no light thing to be numbered among his people. Yet many thoughtless persons assume these obligations lightly, and live oblivious of them.

(1) Surely it is the duty of church members to be present at public worship. By public worship I would include the Sunday-school and prayer meeting, as well as the regular Sunday preaching services. Some church members look upon a Sunday-school as not being church work, and they feel that if Bro. A. wishes to conduct a Sunday-school he is at liberty to do so, but they themselves feel no shadow of interest in it. The great Sunday-school work of to day would cease forever, if it had to be carried on by them. So with the prayer meeting; there are many who undervalue and despise it. If Paul could say to those who ate without due consideration the Lord's Supper, "For this cause many are weak and sickly among you, and many sleep," may we not say the same thing to those who despise these spiritual privileges?

It is every member's duty to be present at all the stated services of the church. Unless hindered providentially, each one should be there. Nothing should be allowed to interfere with our rule of attendance. We should say with the Psalmist, "I was glad when they said unto me, let us go into the house of the Lord." We should teach this duty to our children as one of the solemn duties of life. Any one that uses his eyes can see that there is a growing looseness among church members as to the duty of attending church.

I have no hesitation in saying that if a church member habitually absents himself from the house of God when he can attend, he ought to be told his duty by the church, and if he still refuse to attend worship, he should be excluded from fellowship.

(2) Every member of the church should contribute of his means toward the support of the church. Each man should give according to his ability. This is God's rule, and we easily perceive that it is right and good. But human nature is so weak, imperfect and sinful, that we fall short of the divine requirement in this as in other respects. Hence it is that we give, not according to our spirit of liberality, and interest in the Master's cause. The result is, many that have much, give but little; and many that have little, give nothing at all. It is just to add, some with much give liberally, and some with little give even above their power.

The church should call upon each member do contribute to her support, and she should be so serious in her call that if a man give nothing, he would need to show cause why he did not give. If he cannot give anything, he is worthy of the church's assistance and should be helped.

(3) It is the duty of each member of the church to keep the rules of the church Every member of a Baptist church comes into the church of his own free will and accord. No one forces him in, and no one compels him to remain in. When he comes in he virtually binds himself to abide by the rules of the church. To wilfully break the rules of the church into which one has voluntarily gone, is an act of most reprehensible character. High integrity would require a man to withdraw from a church before he knowingly violated the rules. Perhaps many do it thoughtlessly; still

> "Evil is wrought by want of thought,
> As well as want of heart"

(4) It is the duty of each member of the church to promote its peace. "Be at peace among yourselves," says the Apostle in writing to the Thessalonians. All differences among brethren should be adjusted by their brethren, and not become the source of unseemly wrangles in courts or church conferences. I do not believe it right or scriptural for brothers in Christ to go to law. See 1 Cor. 6: 1—8.

Sometimes a church trial may be necessary for the glory of God, and we must needs endure it for his sake, but ordinarily it is for the glory of the Devil. It would be well for all of us to receive Paul's advice, "If it be possible, as much as in you lieth, live peaceably with all men;" and I will add, especially with them that are of the household of faith. O, that God would give us all a sacred jealousy for the peace of Zion!

There are many, many other duties a Christian owes to his church to which I have time only to allude. He should honor and uphold the officers of the church. He should love them and yield them reverence for their work's sake. He should never criticise and censure them thoughtlessly. If they are unworthy of the trusts reposed in them, then let them be removed from office; but when there is no complaint against them, there should be no attempt to injure them in the estimation of the church. A church member owes it to his church to be interested in its welfare, and to work to promote it.

Whatever is of concern to the church should be a concern to us all. We should pray for God's blessing continually, and then we should be faithfully at our post, doing what our hands find to do, for the good of the church and for the glory of God.

Were all the members of our churches mindful of their obligations to the church, and were they concerned to meet those obligations in the fear of God, it could be truthfully said of God's Zion to-day, that she is "fair as the moon, clear as the sun, and terrible as an army with banners."

The Tithing Heresy.

BY A. L. VAIL.

The report of the committee on tithing that was adopted by the Southern Baptist Convention at Washington strikes me as one of the most remarkable jumbles of Judaism and Christianity that ever issued from so orthodox a source. I use the word "jumble" respectfully and kindly, but also deliberately, because it exactly expresses my judgment of the document. The two systems, Judaism and Christianity, are sandwiched, mixed, jumbled, from beginning to end of the report. If a part of it could be disentangled and set out by itself it would be first class Christianity, and equally the remaining would be straight out Judaism. Some suspicion of this, in spite of repeated protests to the contrary, seems to have been in the mind of the committee or the author or authors. These repeatedly assure us that the law of tithing is the law of God for the Christian, but they concede and affirm that it is not written in the New Testament. They say that the tenth is demanded by law, to withhold it is sacrilege, that therefore we never really give anything till we go beyond that; at the same time they assure us that "grace demands more than law," etc. They affirm that "tithing equalizes," and then a few lines later they announce that "giving that costs little is worth little," leaving us simple-minded people in a strait betwixt the two statements, not knowing how to harmonize them; for the tenth given costs the rich little or nothing, but it costs the poor very much, which, by one of their principles, the Christian places very different values on the tenths, but by the other, the Judaic, equalizes them.

The report says: "That the early church observed the law of the tenth is evident," but its silence concerning the sources of that information leaves us sadly afloat because those sources have been altogether concealed from us. I believe that the only scriptural statement we have of the proportion given by "the early church" is that at one time some of them gave all they had. Ananias and Sapphira gave only a part—not specified, possibly a tenth—which seems to have caused them some little embarrassment. There may be a process of "the higher criticism" or "the inductive method" or some other modern contrivance by which the committee finds the law of the tenth in this instance, but I don't know what it is. Again, the report says: "Is it not amazing that we Baptists, who are so loyal to God's word, should be so careless as to the plain teachings of the eighth, ninth and sixteenth chapters of 1 Corinthians? The law of the tenth makes the Lord a partner with us all in our business and a partaker with us in all our incomes." There seems to be no logical connection between these two sentences thus brought together unless the law of the tenth is affirmed in those chapters. But the first two of them are concerned chiefly in declaring the Christian's freedom from Judaic regulations and the apostle's liberty in Christ, with nothing about proportionate giving, while the last lays down a law of giving as follows: "On the first day of the week let each of you lay by him in store according (to the law of the tenth?) as he is prospered." These and other indications seem to sustain the impression that the report was not exactly pure of its own consistency. That, however, may be a mistake, for while consistency is always a jewel, there are differences of taste in the jewelry business.

We not talking "just to hear ourselves talk." This is a serious matter. The report under review was adopted with substantial unanimity by the Southern Baptist Convention, which we have been accustomed to regard as the very prime depository of gilt-edge orthodoxy. If it is going over to the Jews, where is the hope for the rest of the world! We are, therefore, concerned to call attention to the position taken by the Convention in adopting it.

And now, declining all enticing leads into extended discussion, let us come down closely on that passage in the report that most distinctly expresses the fundamental error by which all this heresy of the tithe is sustained. It is on page 4, as follows: "To say that the tithe is Judaistic and not Christian does not meet the case. The Christian's giving begins where the Jew left off. Unrepealed Judaism is essential Christianity." I do not wish to be offensive. I am after the truth and not the brethren, except incidentally. But if the reader will fix his attention steadily on those last two sentences for a little while, I think he will discover a very remarkable, if not astounding, deliverance to go forth from the Southern Baptist Convention. View them in three ways.

First, consider the first one of them alone. "The Christian's giving begins where the Jew left off." Where did the Jew leave off? Somewhere toward a third of the way through his gross income. First, he must respond to the law of the tenth for a specific purpose; then beyond he encountered other claims, more or less rigorously obligatory, until he had reached that limit. The report teaches generally that the law of the tenth is binding on the Christian to begin with, after which his real giving begins; but at this point it affirms more than that, for it says that Christian giving begins where the Jewish left off. Where that is may be uncertain, and it is of no consequence now to investigate details, but it is out beyond the tenth somewhere, in the neighborhood of a third or a fourth. Now, if the Southern brethren put that sentence into practice, give as well as the Jew did, and then some more beside, I am sure the treasury will be full. Bro. Willingham can send out his hundred missionaries, and all the other secretaries have a grand jubilee; but it looks like some of the brethren would become bankrupt in the process, unless they hold up on tobacco and other delicacies tighter than they ever have?

Second, contemplate these two sentences together: "The Christian's giving begins where the Jew's left off. Unrepealed Judaism is essential Christianity." It may be that these two sentences can live together in peace, but I don't know how. Do you? The first says that all of Christian giving lies beyond, in additional to, Jewish giving; but the second says that unrepealed Judaism is of the essence of Christianity. This last declaration is evidently addressed to the tithe law, which is claimed to be unrepealed Judaism, and therefore binding on Christians. So, then, we have here these two things made essentially identical and essentially separated at the same time. This may not be the meaning designed, and I do not wish to misrepresent, but it is the only result I can get out of the words, whether taken by themselves or in the light of the whole paper.

Third, take the last sentence and weigh it carefully. "Unrepealed Judaism is essential Christianity." That is quite epigrammatic, and it is equally erroneous. It seems to me to mean that whatever of Judaism has not been repealed by the New Testament becomes an essential part of Christianity, not optional or incidental, but obligatory, essential, without which one is not thoroughly a Christian, and this is an application to the details of Judaism, such as the tithe. Do you believe that? Your reply may depend, should depend, on what is meant by "unrepealed." There are at least two ways in which one law or system may be repealed by another; first, by positive enactment, and second, by elimination or exclusion; that is, to apply to the cases before us, Christianity may repeal an element of Judaism by a positive declaration to that effect, or it may announce a principle or law or method that so essentially antagonizes the corresponding element in Judaism as to necessarily exclude it, so that one cannot accept the new without thereby rejecting the old. If we mean "repeal" in the first sense, much of Judaism has not been repealed. The tithe has not, as have not the Sabbath laws about how far we go and what we may do, as have not a multitude of Mosaic enactments, as have not the Judaic identity of Church and State and natural inheritance of the kingdom of God; much of the whole material system, covering the ground in all its flight, abides and is ours essentially. But in the other sense Christianity repeals Judaism root and branch, except certain declarations of the nature of God and man that are the same in all eras and all worlds. "Render unto Cæsar the things that are Cæsar's and unto God the things that are God's" annihilates that identity of Church and State which existed in Judaism, just as 2 Cor. 8: 12-15 abolishes every system of uniformity in giving, transferring the determining consideration of equality in prosperity; the tithe and everything of its nature departs, while in its place comes equality based on all elements entering into the prosperity of the life—not simply income, which is only one of them. That is the New Testament law, repealing the whole Jewish law, and that is the law that the Southern Baptist Convention should affirm.

If I understand this report generally, and this sentence particularly, they make Christianity an annex of Judaism and Jesus Christ the residuary legatee of Moses. But Christianity is an independent establishment and Jesus Christ is the original, sole authority in Christendom. No Christian law comes across lots from Judaism, but every Christian law comes straight down from heaven with Christ, who was in heaven while he was on earth, who is above Moses, as the builder is above the house he builds, who rolled into one bundle all the authorities of the olden time and affirmed his own independent supremacy over all. So, then, the way to put it is not "unrepealed Christianity," or that re-affirmed Judaism is Christianity, or any part of it, but that what the New Testament of Jesus Christ declares is Christianity, whether it was or was not in Judaism or anywhere else. The Christian who understands himself does not do anything because it is required by the Old Testament, and not refrain from doing anything because forbidden by it. As authority for a disciple of Christ, Moses is as dead as Julius Cæsar. Certain fundamental principles are the same in Judaism and Christianity. Historically, Christianity flows out of Judaism, but authoritatively it is essentially and completely distinct from Judaism. Heaven pity the Baptist who has to go back to the law of Moses to get his benevolence

J. C. CADDELL, AGENT AND CORRESPONDENT.

STATE MISSIONS, $6,480.44 raised; $15,000 the mark set. Time remaining, thirty-five days. Can we make the mark? With God's help let us try.

WE LAY before our readers the report (abridged) on Tithing, adopted by the Southern Baptist Convention at Washington; also a review of the report. Other communications will follow, "Give as you love and as you are loved," as the report says, is good measure. We wish it had said no more.

THERE is nothing connected with the State Fair to give it claim to that title except the $1,500 appropriation which it draws from the State treasury.

Year after year have we hoped to see a general exhibition of the State's products, but as often have we been disappointed, seeing only a few small exhibits of domestic character, some agricultural display from farms run for the pleasure of it, some sorry horse-racing more or less marked with jockeying and gambling, and over and above them all a herd of fakirs with catch penny stands and shows of lewdness and vice, disgraceful to a civilized community.

-Set the evil done by the "shows" on the grounds last week over against the good done by the exhibitions of stock and domestic products, and there is no comparison.

We were told that the most disgraceful shows on the grounds drew the largest crowds, composed mostly of school-boys of Raleigh and young men from the country. It is no defence to say that the Fair authorities know nothing of the character of these shows. They are not new institutions. It was the authorities' business to know.

The truth is, the shows were licensed because they paid the price per foot for the ground they occupied.

If the State Fair stood alone without fakirs horse-racing, gambling and dancer, under the present way of doing things it would not have one hundred patrons. But if these evils were removed and an effort made to get together an exhibition of State products that would excite our pride and command the admiration of strangers, we would have an occasion every fall worthy of the countenance and the support of the State, and would win the approval of constantly increasing attendances.

But as it is, the Fair is not only unworthy, but disgraceful.

WE ARE glad that North Carolina is one of the States, perhaps the only State, in which the plans of co operation between the American Baptist Home Mission Society and the Home Mission Board in instructing the colored people, are to be first tried. The people are ready for work of this kind, and we can say, without assuming to anticipate the action of our Convention, that the efforts put forth will be heartily seconded by Baptists in general.

Our State is an especially good field for the beginnings of this work because of the success of Shaw University.

The plans of co-operation are simple. The American Baptist Home Mission Society, the Home Mission Board and the Baptist (colored) State Convention of North Carolina are "regarded as co ordinate bodies, and all work undertaken under this plan of co operation shall be with the concurrence of all." "Each organization shall be responsible only for its proportion of the expenses."

"There shall be one General Missionary, and not to exceed four district missionaries;" the former to receive not more than $1,000 a year and $250 for traveling expenses, the latter each to receive not more than $500 with $100 for traveling expenses. They shall make reports to all three bodies. Their salaries and expenses shall be borne as follows: For the first year, one-third by each organization; the second year, two-fifths by the State Convention, (colored), and the other three fifths equally by the other bodies; third year, one-half by the Convention, and the other half equally by the other bodies.

This plan has not yet come up for the approval of our State Convention; but it will come up at Greensboro. It has already been adopted by the American Baptist Home Mission Society, the Southern Baptist Convention, and the North Carolina Colored Baptist Convention adopted it heartily last week, being the first colored body to do so.

In the details of the plan we see that the "Ministers' Institutes," as they have been called, are to be called hereafter New Era Institutes. They will be held semi-annually, and the plan is for fifty-two meetings a year. A three years' course is published for these institutes to follow. It is a good course, but it will be hard to follow.

OUR NEW MEMBERS—AGAIN.

In a recent editorial we submitted some thoughts in regard to the training of the numerous members who within the last few months have been received into our churches. The great importance of the subject will be a sufficient apology for adverting to it again.

What are the facts in regard to these new members? They made—for the most part in protracted meetings—profession of religion. The doors of the churches were opened. A few questions were asked and answered. The motion to receive was put and carried. The new converts were baptized. They are now church members.

Many of these will grow in grace and knowledge. Others will always remain dwarfs. Some will make useful workers. Others will fall back and continue in sin.

Are the churches and pastors doing all that is possible to stimulate and restrain and indoctrinate and train these members? If not, how can they do more?

It occurs to us to say that perhaps sufficient emphasis is not laid upon the covenant relations into which one enters in becoming a church member.

When a man becomes a member of one of the worldly organizations, great or small, beneficent in aim, or literary, he not only pledges himself to the general purposes of the society, but takes upon himself certain definite obligations. With more or less of ceremony, formality, and ritualistic solemnity, he makes the most binding promises.

The churches of Jesus Christ are organized, as we believe, on a divinely given plan and model. The wisdom of this plan, as shown in its simplicity, is marvellous. Faith in, love for, and obedience to, a common Lord constitute a sufficient basis of union and ground for fellowship. One simple, but profoundly significant, rite is the only outward act of initiation.

What we want to insist upon is the fact that, while the joining of a church of Christ is a simple act, when compared with joining a worldly society with its secrecy, its regalia, its forms of sonorous words, it imposes far more definite obligations and implies more binding promises.

Statements in detail of what is expected in a church member are not read or repeated to each member. This would involve the repetition of a large part of the New Testament. But every man, woman, and child who has intelligently joined a Baptist church—and there is no room in a Baptist church for any others—have implicitly but actually entered into a most solemn covenant to obey these requirements.

Perhaps we are in danger of taking too much for granted at this point. To "join the church" is now very common and very easy. May it not be that, because this is so, some enter into this relation of transcendent dignity and importance with very inadequate comprehension of its significance and obligations?

If what has been written, so far, be recognized by our readers as containing any elements of truth, the first thought suggested to them will probably be that great care should be exercised—perhaps more care than is usual—in the reception of new members. And in this thought we would heartily agree. If possible, more instruction should be given as to the significance of church membership and more insistence should be laid on what it involves.

We would not make joining the church a less common occurrence. Would that it were more common, provided that the candidates be converted. We would not make it difficult. But we do believe that, as applicants stand at the threshold and knock for admission into our churches, they should be informed with great tenderness, but with great plainness, that it is no light thing to be a church member; that the obligations assumed are strongly binding and are of the utmost solemnity.

This, however, is not the special point that we are urging now. It is too late to do this with our new members. They have crossed the threshold and are already within the pale of our churches. But it is not too late to instruct them as church members and to lay emphasis upon the relations into which they have entered.

These relations involve duties which should be impressed upon, and privileges which should be made known to, each new member.

Every member ought, according to his ability, to contribute to the expenses of his church and to the several objects of the Convention. Ought not all to be distinctly informed that this will be expected of them?

If a Baptist church be a workshop rather than a hospital, then there is some specific work to engage the interest of every heart and the energy of every hand. Each new member should be told, "To every man his work," and his own should be indicated to him.

A faithful, vigorous church will exercise discipline over all its members. We usually think of new members as being only the objects of, rather than helpers in, discipline. But in this mutual watchcare they should be not merely passive but active factors. Ought they not to be informed that co operation in this regard is expected of them?

Church membership, rightly understood, implies a stronger bond of union, a tenderer tie, than is known in any human organization. And each new member should very early be made to learn the sweet significance of Church Fellowship. This can be revealed to him, not by any didactic methods, but only by experience,—by actual contact with the warm currents, the genial glow, of Christian love manifested by the older members.

STATE MISSIONS IN NEED.

Corresponding Secretary Durham has been confined to his bed about ten days with an intensely painful attack of muscular rheumatism. His physician assures us that he is not in danger, but no one can say when he may take up his work again.

This sickness coming just at this time will prove a blow to our State Mission work, unless the pastors and the people rally to the cause. Contributions for State Missions are over $8,000 behind, and the time is short.

The State Board of Missions and Sunday-schools met Friday and called on the following brethren to represent the work at the Associations named:

Revs. C. W. Scarborough and L. M. Curtis, with the Chowan.

Revs. E. N. Gwyn and J. J. Caudle, with the Elkin.

Rev. J. W. Suttle and Bro. E. F. Eddings, with the Stanly.

Rev. J. A. Campbell, with the Little River.

Revs. D. J. Clark and J. M. Register, with the Bladen.

Revs. T. J. Cobb and J. W. Tuttle, with the Columbus.

Bro. E. K. Proctor, Jr., with the Robeson.

We are sure these brethren will do their part; but the deficiency is so great that it will be necessary to call on our churches throughout the State to take collections as soon as possible.

There are difficulties; but let us rise above them. God reigns. His work must go on. Let prayers go up from every sanctuary; let contributions pour in upon our Treasurer.

QUERY.

Dear Bro. Bailey:—Please answer through the RECORDER the following:—

Has a church the authority to try a deacon for misconduct in their usual conference as other members, or must he be tried by a presbytery of deacons and ministers appointed for that special purpose?

A BAPTIST.

The church itself should try him. It certainly has authority; and there is no reason why he should not be tried in the usual way.

ORDINARILY it would not be necessary to correct the scandalous reports circulated in regard to the retirement of Prof. Bemis from Chicago University faculty. The course of Prof. Bemis himself since his retirement has shown his unworthiness. He was engaged for a certain time; that time expired, and he was no longer connected with the University. He is an able man, but a poor lecturer in the class room. Mr. Rockefeller has nothing to do with Chicago University. When he was invited to take a more active part in its policy, he refused. We have John A. Broadus' word for it that Mr. Rockefeller is a good man. We know the directors of Chicago University would not allow any man to dictate to them.

THIS is the time of the year that our friends have found it easiest to increase our subscription list. We are anxious to make a big step forward between now and January 1st. Will not our pastors help us out, or if they have not time, appoint some one to make a canvass of their flocks?

We are cutting off many unpaid subscriptions, after patient waiting. A religious paper has to be run on business principles, and we look forward to having a list that is kept paid up.

A new name sent now with two dollars for one year or one dollar for six months will get the paper the balance of this year free; that is, we will count the year or the six months from January 1st. Our "trial trip" of nineteen numbers for fifty cents still holds.

If pastors will send us names of members who ought to have the RECORDER, we will send them several numbers. Much good can be done in this way.

There is need for a better informed membership in our Convention. If the pastors will co-operate with us we will supply it more and more each year.

NEWS NOTES.

....Rev. J. R. Moore of Carthage made us a pleasant visit last Saturday. He is much encouraged in his work.

....Pastor Thomas of Fayetteville is seeing the Atlanta Exposition. He will make his trip profitable to his people.

....We were glad to have Rev J. F. McDuffie of Durham in to see us last week. He is hoping to see the people aroused for Ministerial Relief.

....One of our active Yadkin county laymen, Bro. A. S. Spear, came all the way to the Fair last week. We were glad to have him in our office.

....We regret to hear of the death at Forestville of little Gertrude, infant daughter of Brother and Sister L. N. Chappell, the returned missionaries.

...."Yes, sir, the College is doing well; the boys are further advanced in their books and the institution is running easier than in some years," said Prof. Carlyle in reply to our inquiry last week.

....Wake Forest boys will rejoice to hear that Butler's Analogy is undergoing revision. Mr. Gladstone is doing the work. It is to be hoped that he will make the grand old work easier to get into.

....The West Virginia Baptist Convention met last week. The State Mission Board reported receipt of $2 664 10. During the year the debt of $1,297.58 of last year was increased to $1,621.35.

....The pupils of the North Carolina School for the Deaf and Dumb, situated at Morganton, are publishing a neat weekly paper, The Kelly Messenger. Prof. Goodwin is conducting this institution with distinguished success.

....Rev. W. V. Savage of Tarboro has accepted a call to preach at Rocky Mount at least two Sundays a month. Tarboro and Rocky Mount thus have for their pastor one of the most vigorous of the younger preachers in our denomination.

....President and prime mover of the W. C. T. U., Miss Francis Willard, has declared for free coinage at 16 to 1. The W. C. T. U. with woman suffrage and free coinage is following fast in the course that has taken away the force of the Prohibition party.

....Buie's Creek Academy has grown so that Bro. Campbell is adding another building of two stories. His patronage now reaches into twelve counties. We need as many schools of this kind as the State will hold.

....Rev. N. S. Jones left Monday for Alabama to stay a month. His post office is Evergreen. We are glad to know that Bro. Jones will remain at Salisbury, where he has been so useful throughout a pastorate of five years.

....Our church at West Durham has called Rev. W. A Smith for two Sundays a month. Bro. Smith is a graduate of Wake Forest, and has been preaching and teaching with good success since he entered the ministry. The Lord will bless his work in Durham.

....We were glad to have Rev. J. G. Pulliam of Smithfield in to see us last week. He and Bro. W. P. Exum of Goldsboro made their trip to Raleigh more profitable by going to see Shaw University, through which President Meserve is always glad to show visitors.

....Bishop Atticus G. Haygood, the best known of bishops of the M. E. Church, South, has suffered a severe stroke of paralysis, and is not expected to live. He is fifty-six years old. His affliction is a loss to the cause of Christ in our land. Too late he has discovered that a man can work too hard.

....A church was organized as Patterson's Station, six miles from Shelby on the 18th inst. The members of the presbytery were: Elders T. Dixon, P. R. Elam and J. D. Hufham with deacons Samuel Wilson and E. Roberts. The new church has thirty-five members. Bro. M. L. Putnam is clerk.

....Rev. W. H. H. Lawhon, of Lawhon, made a visit to the RECORDER office last week; also Bro. C. C. Cheek of Ore Hill, Prof. W. L. Poteat, Prof. F. P. Hobgood, Bro. Williams of Williams Mills, Bro. W. A. Smith of Cedar Rock, Rev. J. F. Davis, Polkton, Mrs. M. C. Goodman, Mrs. J. E. Efird of Goodman.

....Wake Forest College steps into line with a rule forbidding students to play football except on the College grounds. This may seem hard to the boys, but in a little while they will know that it is not. Last year forty-three men were killed in the game in four months. Only twelve men were killed in Spanish bull fights in the entire year.

....The editorial which appeared in the RECORDER some weeks ago is bearing fruit among the Associations. Already a number of them have decided to abandon the useless and tedious habit of reading the associational letters, and in others the subject has been discussed, and it is only a matter of time when the best plan will prevail in all our meetings.

....Rev. J. E. Hocutt of Nashville, N. C., was a welcomed visitor in our office last week. He reports progress in his section—one of the hardest in the State, by the way, being saturated with "that worst of isms, hardshellism." Bro. Hocutt is one of the pastors who commends the RECORDER to his people every time he meets with them, and his work is telling for good.

....Rev. W. A. Smith of Cedar Rock writes: "Our meeting at Rehoboth church (Nash county) was a glorious success. The church seemed greatly revived. Upward of forty professions. Twenty-eight were baptized and two restored. The Lord was with us in convicting and converting power, and men not only professed Christ, but brought forth fruits meet for repentance."

....Richmond, Va., has made an offer of $150,000 to secure the removal of Union Theological Seminary from Hampden-Sydney, Va., to Richmond. The North Carolina Synod at Fayetteville last week voted for removal. West Virginia and South Carolina have also voted for removal.

....Bro. W. H. Sledge, superintendent of Seventeenth and Main Mission, Louisville, has just closed a two weeks' meeting in the neighborhood of his school. Bro. T. T. Martin did all the preaching. There were some twenty or more professions of faith.—Seminary note in Western Recorder.

....Prof. Carlyle of Wake Forest was in Raleigh Saturday. He had to come on his bicycle on account of the inconvenient railroad schedules. It seems to us that the far-sighted and courteous officers of the S. A. L. would offer the public better service along the Raleigh and Gaston—something like the old "Shoo fly" trains, morning and evening.

....The Robeson, Eastern, Sandy Creek, Union, Sandy Run, and South Fork, either have or are taking steps to establish associational schools within their bounds. Some of these, the Robeson Institute and the Warsaw High School, are already in active operation, and will serve as a stimulus to other Associations which have not yet engaged in this most important denominational work.

....Rev. A. C. Kendrick, D. D., professor of Greek in Rochester Theological Seminary, died at Rochester, Oct. 21, after a lingering illness. He had been professor of Greek in this institution since 1850, and was well known throughout the Baptist denomination by reason of his distinguished career as a teacher, and also as author of several valuable works, his latest being the biography of Martin B. Anderson.

....We thank Rev. J. R. Pace for the following: "We are having a good meeting at Hickory Baptist church, Nash county. Five professions yesterday and four to day. The meeting will continue several days longer. We expect to trouble the waters in a few days. The writer is doing the preaching. —In the RECORDER of Oct. 16th, "Rev. J. R. Pace recently closed a very successful meeting in Rocky Mount" should have been Battleboro.

....I believe that the B. Y. P. should be given a day during the State and Southern Baptist Conventions, making each session a day longer than at present. The Union Meeting is a North Carolina peculiarity. Its purpose is to benefit the locality at which it meets. I think a local committee and the pastor of the church at which the Union meets know what is needed better than anybody else. They should prepare programs. —B. W. Spilman.

....We are glad that it was not a Baptist that threatened the Mormons in Wake county, which only gave them ground to cry persecution. No doubt they are like the Seventh Day Adventists in that they would rather be persecuted than not. None but weak-minded fellows will gratify them, however. Persecution proved such a success (in the long run) for Baptists, that it is often feigned now by denominations that have no other way of getting sympathy.

....A good brother writes from Greensboro, Oct. 21: "Yesterday was a beautiful Sabbath, but the day was not brighter than the faces of those who bade welcome to our new pastor, Rev. Livingston Johnson, who preached with the power of the Spirit, impressive and forceful sermons morning and night. We think the cause here has a brighter outlook than ever before, and our people seem willing to work shoulder to shoulder with the pastor for the upbuilding of the Master's kingdom."

....Tennessee Baptist State Convention week before last is pronounced by the Baptist and Reflector to have been a really great Convention. Here is a summary of the Treasurer's report: Ministerial Relief, $96 64; Ministerial Education, $1,771.83; Orphans' Home, $5 328.39; S. S. and Colportage, $3,045 49; State Missions, $8 584 93; Home Missions, $5,354 01; Foreign Missions, $7 054 58; total, $31,229 69. The State Mission Board employed 43 missionaries, organized 28 churches, baptized 602, and built 12 houses of worship. The State Board reported without debt for the first time in years. Let us work and pray that ours may also report without debt.

....The reading of the State Mission report, with the statement that it was out of debt, had an inspiring influence upon the Convention. Some one said that that was the finest report which the State Mission Board had made to the Convention in years. It was an interesting discussion also of the subject which we had. Secretary Holt deserved and received many congratulations upon his fine report.—Baptist and Reflector, Oct 24, on Tennessee Convention. Brethren, you remember how inspiring the hopeful report of Bro. Durham was last year. Let us make a good pull and a long pull and a pull altogether, and bring our Secretary with joy to Greensboro, to read a debtless report. We can do it, God helping us. DO YOUR PART.

....Rev. Geo. W. White writes: "I have just closed one of the best meetings at Greene's Cross Roads Church, Bertie county, I have ever witnessed. Rev. Dancey Cale of Potecasi, N. C., assisted me. Rev. Josephus Tynch, Bro. John C. Mizell and Bro. B. Craig, two young brothers studying for the ministry, were present and helped also. Bro. Cale has great power in proclaiming the gospel. He is indeed a zealous man. There was the most intense feeling while he was preaching I ever witnessed. May God bless him in his work wherever he goes. Sunday following I baptized twenty-eight as the result of the meeting, three being restored. I have been pastor there this makes two years, and will accept the call for next year." We have been informed that Bro. White will shortly enter Wake Forest College, but this will not make it necessary to give up his work.

....Professor and Mrs. Bush, Evangelist Gales of the Episcopal church, Rev. L. G. Broughton, Mr. J. E. Schoolfield, Methodist lay evangelist, Rev. Clarence Strouse, Methodist evangelist, and Dr. A. C. Barron of the Evangelization Society, are in "a work of grace" at Roanoke, Va. Dr. Barron writes to his paper, The Evangel: "The town seems full of evangelists and preachers, and possibly, if I had known as much, I should have hesitated about coming. But I did not know, and am here doing my best. I certainly need, and solicit, the prayers of every reader."

....Rev. Henry Sheets is still actively engaged with revivals on his field. Last week at Waughtown he held a good meeting without assistance; and was expecting brethren H. A. Brown and M. A. Adams to aid him this week at New Friendship. "We always have three sermons a day at this place, and hence invite two preachers." Bro. Sheets is looking forward to a busy year; he has five churches. Having recently accepted care of the Valley church near Kernersville, he will preach five sermons every time he goes to Kernersville.

....Dr. J. B. Richardson, who has been content to use his splendid endowments, both by nature and mental training, in the work of a country pastorate, never loses an opportunity to utilize every possible agency to elevate and build up the Baptist cause. Last week at Concord a board of trustees was appointed to establish a school of high grade for the boys and girls of the Mecklenburg and Cabarrus Association. Bro. Richardson is not one of the trustees, but behind it we see the working of his conservative energy and judicious plans.

....Rev. A. A. Butler, to whom we are much obliged for representing the RECORDER at the Cedar Creek, writes: "The session of the Cedar Creek was a good and profitable one. Rev. J. W. Cobb preached the introductory sermon from Amos 4: 12. It was good. Rev. R. A. Hedgpeth was elected moderator, and Bro. R. D. Melvin clerk. Rev. W. R. Johnson preached the missionary sermon. The writer preached on Friday. I was with the Brooklyn saints of Wilmington yesterday, October 20th, and preached for them both morning and evening. There is a bright future for the church."

....Dr. Wm H. Whitsitt gives his approval to the proposed organization of the Southern Baptist Young People by signing a call addressed to the friends of the Southern Baptist Young People's Union in Kentucky. The following is the last paragraph of the call; it ought to be addressed to all Baptists: "Finally, we entreat that fervent prayer shall be made for the blessing of God upon the convention, that the Holy Spirit may preside over its deliberations, and that whatever shall be done or decided may be shaped in such a way that all shall redound to the glory of God, through Jesus Christ our Lord."

....The colored Baptists of North Carolina, representing 38 Associations, 1,150 churches, 600 ordained ministers, and 120,000 members, met at Oxford in annual convention last week. The session was a good one throughout, we learn from President Mcserve of Shaw University. The plans of co-operation in work among the colored population were adopted and the Convention pledged to do its part, as stated in our editorial notes. The body also nominated the missionaries provided for in the plans: Rev. C. S. Brown, Winton, for General Missionary; Prof. Vincent of Raleigh, Bro. Maloy of Wilmington, and Bro. Whitted of Warrenton for District Missionaries. Dr. Marsh, President of our Convention, made an address which was warmly received.

....At the Minneapolis Episcopal Convention the following report was made on the state of the church: Since the last conference, in 1892, ten bishops have died and fourteen have been consecrated, four of whom went into missionary duty. The church has now 70 bishops, 4,514 clergymen, 567 candidates for lay orders, 190,820 baptisms in the past year and 131,473 confirmations. There are now 618,500 communicants, 5,117 church edifices and nearly 500 institutions of a benevolent or educational character. Contributions from all sources had reached $38,000,000. Dr. Duncan showed that the body of communicants is growing more than the number of the clergy. The increase in the triennium has been 65,791, while the list of priests has grown but 157, a fact attributed to "insufficiency and diminution of stipends." The income for the three years was $35,000 less than for the preceding period.

....If we thought it would do any good, we should like to say again what we have said several times before. We wish it could be so arranged that our Associations would not meet at the same time with others. This last week there were no less than six Associations meeting in the State at the same time, while frequently there are as many as two or three or four meetings the same week. . . . We are perfectly aware of the fact that it is almost useless to say anything upon the subject. Several years ago we suggested that each Association should appoint one of its members to act with the representatives of other Associations as a committee to arrange the schedules of meetings of the Associations more conveniently than at present. We found that every Association in the State was willing to it, provided that Association should keep its own time.—Baptist and Reflector. The same is true of North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia. It is almost enough to make a Baptist editor envy his Methodist brother whose dates are fixed by bishops. But the RECORDER is fortunate in having good friends who always come out for it when its editor or representative is not present.

Let every pastor beg his people to give to State Missions now. The need is urgent.

ASSOCIATIONS.

MECKLENBURG AND CABARRUS.

This Association is one of the smallest in the State. It met this year in Concord, and the attendance was thinner because of the fact that the meeting was held in a town instead of in the country. Bro. Alderman and his people were delighted to welcome the brethren and visitors who came, and the most ample provision was made to take care of the brethren, their teams, &c.

The work at Concord has moved on slowly for several years, nevertheless it has moved, and the debt on the church has been gradually lessened each year. Bro. Alderman has been faithful and wise in the work he has done in Concord. We noticed the amounts reported in the church letters were liberal for the strength of the membership.

Dr. T. H. Pritchard was, for the first time in his life, made Moderator of an Association. This, however, is easily accounted for by those who know that Dr. Pritchard has always been reserved for his peculiar fitness for participating in the discussions on the floor. The fact that he was Moderator did not deprive the Association of speeches on the various subjects before the body.

Bro. I. W. Durham was again elected Clerk, and Bro. Henson, the former Treasurer was retained.

Bro. Boone was in the section where he worked in the early years of his ministry. A number of the old brethren were glad to shake his hand after years of separation; and in behalf of his work at the Orphanage, the brethren gave him a cordial welcome, and we think showed a substantial interest in the support of the institution. We are glad to notice that the Sunday-schools are to participate more actively in the support of this work.

In addition to Bro. Durham's speech on missions, the brethren were delighted to hear him again on the subject of general and ministerial education. The interest on this question is greater among Baptists than ever before. This Association will establish within the next year a school which will serve as a feeder to Wake Forest and to our Baptist female schools in the State.

Hoping to reach the Piedmont for Saturday, I take my leave of the brethren on Friday night. A considerable portion of the work of the Association is yet to be done. The night sessions are well attended by other denominations, many of whom had no idea as to what a Baptist Association was like.

It would be exceedingly fortunate if the next Convention could in some way provide for the balance of the debt on the house at Concord, and let the brethren there pay what they do each year on this debt to the pastor and objects of the Convention. The brethren here are heartily tired of paying interest, while they would cheerfully pay this amount and more, too, to the support of their pastor and for the general purposes of the church. J. C. C.

CALDWELL.

This Association met with Lower Creek church Thursday before the third Sunday in this month. All the churches were represented by messengers or letter but one. The annual sermon was preached by Bro. J. M. Shaver of the Alexander Association.

The body was permanently organized by the re election of brethren J. V. McCall, Moderator, and A. E. Nelson, Clerk.

The following visiting brethren were present: L Farthing of Three Fork Association; J. L. Shinn and William McCall of the Catawba River; C. S. Cashwell and D. P. Pridgen of South Fork; and C. C. Pool, J. M. Shaver, S. A. and W. E. White of the Alexander.

Bro. A. Johnson, editor of Charity and Children, was present in the interest of his paper and the orphans. He was given an hour Sunday morning to tell the people about the orphans, and he did his work well. The people gave him a cash collection with many subscribers to his paper, besides promising to send grates of apples and potatoes to the Orphanage. We all fell in love with Johnson.

Bro. Cashwell ably represented State Missions and preached a capital sermon. We regretted that he could be with us only one day. He captured the Association. We regard him as one of the best preachers in the State.

Bro. Bridgers spoke for Home and Foreign Missions and preached two good sermons.

Bro. Peterson was present in the interest of the N. C. Baptist. He is a good brother and we hope did well for his paper.

The writer, upon very short notice, represented the RECORDER, and did the very best he could for the dear old paper. Many of our people will continue to take the RECORDER in preference to any other paper.

Bro. J. A. White of the Taylorsville Collegiate Institute spoke for education. His school is very prosperous, having an enrolment of about one hundred. He hopes to reach 175 or 200 in the spring session. The Association adopted his school for higher education. Bro. White preached an able sermon on Sunday at 11 a. m.

The Association agreed to do Associational mission work this year in connection with the State Mission Board and to try to help the Board also.

Brethren I. W. Thomas, F. P. Moore, J. L. Beach, J. B. Moore and Joseph Powell, Jr., were appointed an Executive Committee for the Association.

The Treasurer of the Gospel Mission reported about $140 as passing through his hands for Bro. W. E. Crocker the past year. Our Association has helped and will continue to help both the Gospel Mission and also the Foreign Mission Board. There is no friction. Every one is left to the exercise of his choice.

The next session will be held with Conway's Chapel, ten miles west of Lenoir, at some time of the year.

We regard this as the best session in the history of the Association.

I was about to forget to say that Brother Isaac Oxford was present in his eighty fifth year, whole and hearty, and took an active part in the work of the Association. He is the Associational historian, and may he be spared to write its history for many years yet. JOS. POWELL, JR.

Lenoir, Oct. 20, 1895.

PIEDMONT.

It was my privilege to attend the first session of the Piedmont Association after its organization, which met at the Liberty church last week.

I am pastor of two of the new churches which came into this body, Ramseur and Franklinville, and this, among other things, prompted me to attend its session.

I was highly gratified over the promising outlook of this body and of the very harmonious and spiritual character of its meeting. The speeches were of a very high order, and cheerfulness and hopefulness seemed to be impressed upon every heart. I don't think I ever saw an Association start off with greater promise and such marked liberality as characterized this meeting. More than eight hundred dollars were pledged for the various objects.

There are now thirteen churches which have come in, and more will likely do so as time rolls on.

The Association wisely put in as Moderator, Bro. R. W. Brooks of Greensboro, who is a wide awake, aggressive layman. It also selected a good Executive Board by putting on it some of the best business men in the churches.

The Baptists at Liberty and the citizens of the town very handsomely entertained the Association. The Baptist church, as often is the case, is badly located. It does seem that of all people the Baptists make more blunders in this than any others. They seem to have a fondness for getting off out of the way. I do wish that something could be done to remedy this evil.

I am now at Mt. Hermon, Rockingham county, aiding Bro. W. H. Wilson in a meeting of days. The outlook is not promising, owing to the very busy time with farmers.

We had a good meeting at Sharon in this county week before last with eleven accessions by baptism.

Bro. L. Johnson, the new pastor at Greensboro, entered upon his work there Sunday last. Greensboro seems to be on a new boom, as quite a number of new buildings are going up.

I forgot to say the Piedmont Association agreed to employ a man for all his time and to cultivate thirteen mission points in its bounds. Yours for the Master,

S. F. CONRAD.

Attention, Delegates to the Baptist State Convention.

As we have every reason to believe the attendance will be unusually large at the coming session of the Convention, and as the Young People's Baptist Union convenes the day before, we ask all the churches who send delegates to the Y. P. B. U., to also appoint the same delegates (if practicable) to represent their churches during the meeting of the State Convention.

Homes can only be provided for delegates to the State Convention, Y. P. B. U. and W. M. S.

Visitors can get reduced rates at the hotels and boarding houses. Delegates desiring homes must send their names and post-office address (plainly written) to the Chairman Committee on Hospitality at least ten days before the Convention convenes, otherwise we cannot provide entertainment for them. Please address all communications to

A New Church.

We organized on the fifth Sunday in September, at the Falls of Tar River, the North Rocky Mount Baptist church. Rev. J. A. Munday, Rev. J. W. Powell, with brethren Noah Biggs, E. E. Hilliard, G. W. Blount and G. L. Parker were with us. We organized with sixteen members and immediately after the organization, two were received for baptism.

At night three deacons for this church and three for Rocky Mount church were ordained in the Rocky Mount church.

North Rocky Mount church was admitted into the Tar River Association which met last week at Wilson, with eighteen members, a good Sunday-school and a weekly prayer-meeting. They have just bought a new stove.

Mr. J. H. Ruffin has been very kind, and has recently painted the church at his own expense, besides giving twenty-five dollars.

There are six families in the church. I am making an effort to get the RECORDER into every family. Fraternally,

J. K. HOWELL.

To the Churches of the Southern Baptist Convention.

At a session of the Georgia Baptist Young People's Union held at Macon, Sept. 17th, the following resolution was passed:

"Resolved, That it is the sense of this Georgia Young People's Convention that the cause would be greatly advanced by the organization of a Southern Baptist Young People's Union, auxiliary to the Southern Baptist Convention. We therefore request the following brethren from this and other States to take this matter under consideration, and if it seems wise to them, and any others they might consult, to issue a call for a meeting of delegates from Baptist churches within the bounds of the Southern Baptist Convention to meet at a suitable place and time for the organization of such a Southern Baptist Young People's Union:

Alabama—B. D. Gray, L. O. Dawson.
Tennessee—Geo. A. Lofton, R. R. Acree.
Kentucky—Wm. H. Whitsitt, Carter H. Jones.
Arkansas—J. P. Eagle, W. E. Atkinson.
Texas—B. H. Carroll, A. B. Miller.
Missouri—W. R. L. Smith, G. W. Hyde.
Virginia—Wm. E. Hatcher, F. C. McConnell.
North Carolina—C. Durham, T. H. Pritchard.
South Carolina—E. J. Forrester, J. W. Perry.
Georgia—Henry McDonald, J. B. Gambrell, James H. Kilpatrick, J. B. Hathorne.
Florida—N. A. Bailey, Malcolm Mc Gregor.
Mississippi—J. K. Pace, H. F. Sproles.
Louisiana—D. I. Purser, W. S. Penick.
Maryland—C. F. Gregory, J. C. Davidson."

We have most heartily accepted the duties thus asked of us and, after consultation, we deem it wise and for the best interest of our cause to call such a Convention for the purpose of organizing a Southern Baptist Young People's Union, auxiliary to the Southern Baptist Convention.

We therefore appoint Nov. 21 and 22 as the time, and the First Baptist Church, Atlanta, Ga., as the place for holding the meeting.

We therefore invite your pastors and representatives from your Young People's Unions or Organizations and from your membership generally to meet on the above dates, beginning at 7:30 p. m., Nov. 21st, to form a Southern Baptist Young People's Union, auxiliary to the Southern Baptist Convention.

Signed by B. D. Gray, Carter H. Jones, C. Durham, Henry McDonald, H. F. Sproles, J. C. Davidson, L. O. Dawson, W. E. Atkinson, T. H. Pritchard, J. B. Gambrell, D. I. Purser, Geo. A. Lofton, G. W. Hyde, E. J. Forrester, J. B. Hawthorne, W. S. Penick, Wm. H. Whitsitt, F. C. McConnell, J. W. Perry, J. K. Pace, C. F. Gregory.

Brother Stringfield at a Primitive Baptist Association.

Dear Recorder:—I have been noticing for years in the statistical tables that along side the Missionary Baptists we number the Hardshell or Primitive Baptists, the Free-will Baptists, &c., and make haste to say that there are so many Baptists in the State. This leaves the impression upon the other denominations that we put them (the Primitive Baptists) down as being closely related to us in doctrine. I used to think so, but am very far from thinking so now. For my part, I object to claiming them as relations in doctrine.

For the first time I attended one of the Primitive Baptist Associations to-day, and heard their doctrines discussed fully and at great length by those held in reverential regard by their people. The most intelligent one of the preachers said that professing Christians were divided into three classes: first, Predestinarians; second, Arminians; third, Universalists. After showing us the importance of sticking to the Bible, he began to dispose of the doctrine of Universalism. This he did in a jiffy. Next on hand was the doctrine "from Armenia"—Arminianism. To the delight of the large audience he showed the inability of man to do anything about or connected with salvation, abusing the idea of a man being loved into the kingdom of grace by the overcoming love of God. By the time he had done with this I felt quite chilly, notwithstanding the fact I was seated in the hot sun.

The next in order was the discussion (?) of the doctrine of predestination. Having grown eloquent by this time, he had great freedom and boldness in the denunciation of (1) repentance as a condition of salvation; on account of the fact that repentance was "so imperfect," it was a stick too rotten to depend upon; and (2) our salvation did not depend upon the gospel, for he had met a man who had been saved twenty years before he heard of the gospel. He gave thanks that the same provision had been made for the heathen that had been made for infants. It was not wonderful that he made many eyes unaccustomed to tears to moisten as he told us about the dear sweet babies that were in heaven that had never heard the gospel, and of the thousands of heathen for whom God had made special provision. He won all hearts as he told us that he felt sure of awaking in the likeness of Jesus, &c.

It may be a little off the subject, but I beg to say that I was never more anxious about institutions of learning for the mothers of our land. O. L. STRINGFIELD.

A GOOD INCOME can be made by some member of every Baptist church in North Carolina, who will undertake light and desirable work of representative character. Representatives, male or female, must be commended by their pastor as worthy and energetic. For further information address (enclosing 2 cent stamp) "Box G, Raleigh, N. C."

Send applications as soon as possible, as only one member in each church can be engaged.

Baptist Work in Tennessee.

Dear Recorder:—I think many of your readers will be interested in a short account of the Baptist work in Tennessee. So I write a few notes.

The Baptist State Convention met in the hall of Carson and Newman College, Oct. 16. This College, located at Mossy Creek, has a large number of students, and its influence is broad and wide. A fine building has lately been erected and the College is well supported in East Tennessee.

The Convention was organized by the election of President J. T. Henderson as Moderator, and J. D. Anderson as Clerk. The remainder of the organization was hastily completed, and the Convention went to work.

The report on the Orphanage was not very encouraging. This work is new in this State, but has slowly gained a strong place in the affections of the people. A debt of about eight thousand dollars on the home was reported, six thousand of which was secured on the floor of the Convention. It is hoped to remove the whole indebtedness by Jan. 1, 1896, and thus save the expense of an agent in the field.

The report on State Missions was probably the best in the history of the work. No better Secretary than Dr. A. J. Holt lives, and he has done his best during the past year. The debt was paid and more work done than ever before. The work is just becoming well organized in this State. There are 118,000 Baptists, and about 35,000 contribute to the various objects of the Convention. Drs. J. M. Frost and G. A. Lofton made strong addresses along this line. Dr. Holt has written a beautiful hymn, "Old Tennessee," and it was sung during the discussion on State Missions. The destitution in Tennessee is appalling. One million lost in Tennessee! We have forty-three missionaries, and need five hundred. The work will probably be increased.

The report of the Sunday-school and Colportage Board was excellent. W. Y. Quisenbury is the efficient Secretary. Seventeen colporters have been employed, and much other work has been done. Many think this should not be a separate work from the State Board, but this Board has done a wonderful work. It is said that there are 100,000 families in Tennessee without a Bible. The discussion was lively, and the policy of the Board will likely be changed from high-pressure collections to systematic organization of the work.

The report on Foreign and Home Missions showed an increase of contributions from this State. Tennessee, during the past year, gave $7,000 to Foreign Missions. Drs. Willingham and Tichenor spoke on the work of their respective Boards.

The subject of education has never received the attention in this State that it has in North Carolina. The denomination has two colleges and the number of students is divided; or rather, East Tennessee supports Carson and Newman, West Tennessee supports the South Western University, and Middle Tennessee largely supports Vanderbilt University. This is to be deplored, but it is the present condition here. As Dr. Lofton well said, "All Gaul is divided into three parts; so is Tennessee."

But this report is long enough. The general opinion is that this is far the best Convention in the history of the Baptists in this State.

May God bless you and your editor.

Sincerely, J. S. COFFEE.

Debt on our mission work means delay. When our State is growing as it is now we cannot lose a day.

The Harvest Continues.

Dear Recorder:—On the first Sunday in this month, I closed a very successful meeting at Rolesville, Wake county. Twenty-one made professions, thirteen of whom I baptized, and others are waiting.

I have held good meetings with all my churches. At Wake X Roads twenty-one were baptized, one was restored, and three more are waiting.

Our meeting at Harris' Chapel resulted in seventeen professions, nine were baptized, and one was restored.

I was aided in all of these meetings by Bro. E. J. Harrell, a young minister at Wake Forest College, who will graduate next June. And I wish to say that he did as good work as I could desire of any one. He is earnest, faithful and consecrated, and the churches were all well pleased with him.

Mt. Hebron was also blessed by a revival, which resulted in nineteen professions of faith, and I baptized fourteen. Bro. E. S. Pierce of Gates county aided me in this meeting. All these churches have been much revived. Yours in Christ,

M. B. PERRELL.

Franklinton, Oct. 14, 1895.

It is a good plan to have some one appointed in your congregation to act each Sunday and ask for a contribution for these missions.

to its best, or even to start it! If he cannot get his hand as deep into his pocket at Calvary as at Sinai, he may better locate at Sinai and join the Jews. To suggest the tenth in giving as a good working basis for many people is all right; but to affirm it as the law of God for all Christians, or any of them, is all wrong—the tithing heresy.—Western Recorder.

What Kind of Offering?

A large number of people, even Christian people, act as though they thought that almost anything offered to the Lord in sacrifice or for service, is acceptable to him, and that he will graciously bless them for it. But this is an egregious mistake. Read what God said to the Israelites: Ye brought that which was torn and the lame and the sick: thus ye brought an offering; should I accept this of your hand? saith the Lord.

The Lord did not say that they did not bring enough. The quantity was probably sufficient, but what contemptible quality it was! It was a downright insult to their Lord. Beasts which they had no further use for—too poor to be of any real value to themselves, or to any one else, they offered to God, foolishly supposing that he would accept such an offering. But God would not accept it. They might lay their offering upon the altar in a very religious manner; they might utter very pious language in presenting their gifts; they might devoutly ask God to bless it and bless them, but all would be of no avail. Indeed, they were cursed for their insolent offering, and the Lord told them so. Now, it makes a very great difference with God whether we offer him that which is the best we have, or the poorest that we possess. He demands healthy, whole offerings at our hands. He wants the best of our powers, clean and consecrated, for sacrifice and service. If we offer him the leavings he will not only not accept them, but he will curse us for thus insulting him. It is vain to attempt to get first class blessings from God while we hand out to him our third-rate offerings. He keeps close account of our dealings with him. What kind of offering do you give God? C. H. WETHERBE.

Christianizing Education.

Perhaps no truth is taking a stronger hold of the thoughts and consciences of men to-day than that Christian principles should be applied to the whole domain of human life. It is not enough for a Christian to conform his private life to the law of Christ, he should conduct his business on Christian principles. His social and corporate and political relations are to be dominated by the rule of Christ. We have begun to see that we are to work for a Christian literature, a Christian art, and a Christian ideal of government, as well as for Christian conduct in purely personal relations. When a dozen men unite themselves together in a business corporation, they are just as much bound to conduct that enterprise upon Christian principles as though the business were the sole property of any one of them. A clear moral vision repudiates the maxim that corporations have no souls; and the public conscience is awakening to the fact that a combination of men has no right to do what it would be wrong for one man to do. This conception of obligation is steadily making its way in the business world, and, in spite of all that is said of oppression and fraud, it is probable that business, on the whole, has never been conducted in more honorable ways than it is in this year of grace.

But, strangely enough, among some of those prominent in educational matters, there has been a tendency to make the influence even of the denominational college less "unequivocally Christian" than it has been, and to do this in spite of the fact that among large classes of our people there has been an insistant demand that the education furnished by the State should be more distinctively religious than it has been. It is not our present purpose to inquire concerning the causes of this drift in educational matters. By some it is uncharitably and unjustly, we believe, traced to indifference on the part of educational authorities to the things of the spirit; by others to the endeavor of these leaders to broaden the constituency of their institutions, and by others still to the conviction that the aim of a college is to promote learning, and not character.

The point which we wish to enforce is that, if it is a worthy ideal to Christianize commerce and politics and literature and art, it is pre eminently a worthy ideal to Christianize education. Our colleges are fashioning the leaders of the future. Their influence is not at all measured by the number of those they train in proportion to the whole population. They are the fountains of intelligent leadership in every department of human effort.

We do not claim that Christianity should be taught in institutions supported by public taxation; but those fostered by Christian churches and sustained by Christian people have a supreme duty to the kingdom of God and the Christianization of our civilization to make their influence not simply unquestionably but distinctively Christian.

We are not ready to accept the position which President Harper maintains, that a university is not under the same obligation as the college to train its students in character. But, however that may be, if our colleges are not to contribute their direct and enormous quota toward propagating Christianity, then in our pseudo liberalism we are not only neglecting our own resources but handing them over to the opponents of Christianity.—Watchman.

Keep your conduct abreast of your conscience, and very soon your consciences will be illustrated by the radiance of God.—W. M. Taylor, D. D.

Beside the Still Waters.

Psa. 23: 2—"He leadeth me beside the still waters." Literally, "waters of stillness," whose quiet, steady flow invite to calm repose. It would seem such are to be put in contrast with wild, rough, boisterous streams on the one hand, and the stagnant, offensive, slimy pools on the other. Waters of rest and quiet and peace! Waters in rich abundance—"it is the still water that runs deepest." How frequent and how striking the comparison of spiritual blessings to water!

1. Thirst of soul. We all know what it is to have deep and quenchless thirst of soul. We are full of longings, desires, dreams, hopes, plans. Our hearts beat in earnest aspiration after high, true, noble things. The great and ceaseless struggle of human life is for happiness. "How can I be happy?" is the question of every heart. Oh! the yearning of these throbbing hearts within us!

2. The world does not satisfy. And, this world with all its fleeting joys and empty pleasures, its work and rewards, its ambition and honors—all it can ever afford does not and cannot satisfy these restless, longing human hearts of ours. No, no, we are created with souls within us that are to live forever in bliss or misery. These yearnings of our inner and heart life God implants and they are to be satisfied only with the things of God. Our soul hunger is to be supplied by soul food.

3. Jesus, the Good Shepherd, satisfies. Even our temporal blessings become dearer to us when we are living to the honor and glory of Christ. It is only the Christian who truly enjoys the things of this life. Every temporal good is sanctified to the child of God. But, think of the satisfaction of soul Jesus gives. I know it. It is my own experience I speak. He lifts up the burdened soul, gives new life and new views of life, makes us to see things about us as transitory and the things to come as real and everlasting.

Come, dear reader, to Jesus and test his power to satisfy your soul with that water, which he alone can give, and which shall be in you "a well of water springing up into everlasting life." O. C. P.

Rev. Wm A. Whitescarver Dead.

One of God's choicest saints and Virginia's honored preachers, Rev Wm. A. Whitescarver of Waynesboro, Va., died on Friday night, Oct. 11th, 1895. He had early training under Dr. Wm. F. Broaddus, and then assisted him in his school. At Rector College he continued his course of study, and finished it at the University of Virginia, where he was the room-mate of Dr. John A. Broadus, whose sister he married. He has given some valuable reminiscences of Dr. Broadus' early life and as a youthful teacher. One child, the fruit of this early marriage, and the mother, too, died after two years. Mr. Whitescarver then became pastor of that excellent community, the Fork Union church of Fluvanna, and enjoyed a prosperous experience of seventeen years. Here he married his lovely and accomplished wife, Miss Perkins, whose intellectual and spiritual gifts, with those of her husband, have impressed themselves on two children—one the Professor of Mathematics at Hollins Institute, and the other the wife of Dr. Thomas Hume of the University of North Carolina. God spared him to his eighty second year in the full possession of his powers to the last and of his physical strength until a few years ago.

Mr. Whitescarver loved to preach the gospel and illustrated it by a daily and consecrated life. His wife early became an invalid, and his skilful patience was needed for thirty years in daily attendance on her. He accepted the trust with serene cheerfulness and Christian self-denial, and sustained her with chivalrous devotion. His presence was a heavenly benediction and a constant witness to the reality and sweetness of religious experience. Surrounded by his family, in perfect consciousness and sacred calm, he fell asleep in Jesus. The pastor spoke at his funeral of his walk with God and of the attractive and uplifting influence of his noble life. One of his last words was, "How happy I have been. Yet I have not been what I ought to be. 'I shall be satisfied when I awake in Thy likeness.'" ***

Good News From Mexico.

It is always a time of great joy when we go up to our Annual gathering which occurred this year in Saltillo on Sept. 26. For three days we conferred together regarding the best methods of evangelizing Mexico. No one can eliminate the hard work required and all plans are attended with perplexing difficulties.

Some are radicals, some conservatives and some intermediates. At times the discussions are quite animated but there is remarkable unanimity in all our conclusions.

We enjoyed the presence and counsel of Dr. Willingham. We discussed some important measures and he had been requested to meet with us.

A glorious revival had just swept over Saltillo. All the boarders with one single exception have professed faith in Christ. I think that all have expressed a desire to be baptized and unite with the church.

There were no charges of fields. One missionary resigned. We need re enforcements. Who will come to help us cultivate the waste places?

A large number of baptisms reported from the different fields. It was recommended that the editor of our Sunday school paper should not follow the International lessons but should take some book of the Bible for continuous study. We have tried this plan before with gratifying results.

THREE GOOD BOOKS.

"A Mexican Rancho," by Mrs. Duggan; "Mercedes" by Miss Hale, and A Quaint Spinster by Miss Russell, all of whom have been missionaries in Mexico at Guadalajara and other places, should find thousands of readers who will be delighted with each book.

We reduced our appropriation for last year very materially.

The Orphanage Not Worthily Supported.

Dear Recorder:—I noticed recently in Charity and Children a brief report of the proceedings of the late session of the Sandy Creek Association, in which occurs the following relative to the Orphanage:

"The Orphanage holds a warm place in the hearts of the brethren of the Sandy Creek," &c. "The report was held over until Saturday, and from Bro. Durham's speech one would suppose he was General Manager—it was so earnest, clear and strong. A collection amounting to $23 00 was taken up," &c.

And this, too, in a county where not a reference to hard times was heard! While I make no comment or adverse criticism on this liberal and generous collection from the large assemblage of churches, I want to say that if Bro. Durham will come down here once each month and make a speech to our Sunday school (to say nothing about our church) just half as earnest, clear and strong as he did to the Sandy Creek brethren, I will guarantee that our Sunday-school alone will exceed this liberal collection, and you can hear the hard-times cry every day.

I can't see for my life why our Baptist brethren throughout the State, many of whom live in ease and luxury, can give such meager support to such a noble and worthy institution as our Orphanage at Thomasville. The support it now gets is not worthy of such a denomination as we claim to be. "SCOTLAND NECK"

Woman's Missionary Department.

Edited by Miss FANNIE E. S. HECK, President of Woman's State Central Committee of Missions, Raleigh, N. C.
Corresponding Secretary of Central Committee, Mrs. J. A. BRIGGS, Raleigh, N. C.

SUBJECT FOR OCTOBER: INDIANS.

"We have waited for Him and He will save us." Missionaries in Western Arkansas, Indian Territory and Oklahoma, among the whites and Indians, 70; churches and stations, 848; baptisms, 1,591; Sunday-schools, 60; teachers and pupils, 2,043.

Study Topics.—Their past history. Their past possessions. Their past sufferings. The past injustice of the white man's dealings with them. The present status of Indian Missions and governmental control. The present transition stage and opportunity. The future of the Indian.

As more and more our thoughts and hopes center around the Yates Memorial Fund, which we trust is so soon to be successfully completed, the characters of these two great missionaries stand out before us like towering beacon lights, steadily shining in the midst of darkness. Below we quote a poem which seems to us most truly and beautifully to describe the life and character of Matthew T. Yates. Well may we say, Thank God for such a man to point us out the way to save the lost millions of China.

THANK GOD.

Thank God! He sometimes makes a man
On such a large, commodious plan,
So clothed with every grace and power,
So rich in Godhood's holy dower,
That all are proud to own a place
In such a highly favored race.

Thank God! He sometimes lets a soul
Become so free from sin's control,
So purged of earthly stain and dross,
Removed so far from Eden's loss,
That like cathedral windows dight
Down through it shines a heavenly light.

Thank God! He grants to some below
Great deeds to do, deep things to know;
To win the cause of human rights,
To lead the race to grander heights,
And show how noble life may be
When it fulfils its destiny.

DURHAM, N. C.

My Dear Miss Heck:—The Mt. Zion Association met Oct. 8-10, at Bethesda church, near Durham. The first day, Tuesday, the Moderator, Bro. Horton, announced that there would be a meeting for the ladies at the school house near by, or the purpose of discussing the importance of organizing Woman's Missionary Societies in the different churches of the Association, and of an Association Missionary Union to meet with the Mt. Zion Association each year. The meeting for the ladies was announced again Wednesday morning.

At two o'clock the ladies at the school-house. It was filled and there were many who could not be accommodated for want of room.

The meeting was called to order by Rev. W. C. Tyree. "I save my life for thee" was sung, after which, Rev. R. Van Deventer addressed the ladies on the importance and necessity of woman's mission work, and gave them a short history of missionary societies in North Carolina. We enjoyed his talk very much.

Brethren Tyree and Van Deventer returned to the church where the Association was in session, and I was called to preside as chairman of the meeting. Miss Mittie Carlton was made Secretary.

Representatives from Societies in the Association were called for and names taken. First church, Durham, Second church, Durham, and Mt. Pisgah Missionary Societies were the only Societies represented.

There were a number of ladies from other churches present, but not from Societies. I talked to this class as best I could and tried to induce them to undertake this work for the Master. I read them your letter sent the Societies, and distributed helps for organizing and a constitution for Societies to several who said they would try to organize them in their churches.

Mrs. O. C. Horton read the letter from Mrs. Chappell.

We were then led in prayer by Miss A. Cheek of Durham.

The letter from Mrs. Britton was read by Mrs. George J. Dowell.

Hymn, "Nearer, my God, to thee," was sung.

I told the ladies about the Yates Memorial Fund and asked for contributions to this object. Several said they would try to raise something for it.

A suggestion was made that a committee be appointed to ask the Association to endorse and encourage the Woman's Societies and endorse the Associational Missionary Union. Mrs. W. C. Tyree, Mrs. George J. Dowell and Miss Amanda Cheek were the committee appointed. This was presented to the Association and voted upon by a rising vote and carried unanimously.

Hope we can organize next year and meet every year in the Associational missionary meetings. This would be an inspiration to all the women who love the Lord to do more for his cause.

I trust much good will result from this meeting. I think the Yates Memorial Fund will be a grand success.

MRS. H. P. MARKHAM.

KINSTON, Oct. 16, 1895

My Dear Miss Heck:—I must write a line to let you know the result of our meeting this afternoon. We raised ten dollars for the Yates Memorial, with a few others to hear from.

Mr. Porter from Newbern, the returned missionary, gave us a stirring talk.

Our little Society has received fresh zeal and courage, and will go to work, I am sure, with new energy. Pray for us.

Please send us the name of a frontier missionary who needs help.

Alaska Indians.

"Al-ak-shak," a "great country." It is well named, is it not, when you could put all the States north of Tennessee and east of the Mississippi into it, and the length of coast line is nearly four times that of all the rest of the United States. The part we hear most about, however, is only the little strip of islands and coast in the southwest. All our mission work is here except the school at Point Barrow. Now take your Home Mission map and see how tiny this part seems compared with the immense stretch of country above and beyond. Much of this area is said to be only fitted for reindeer pasture; the ground is covered several feet deep with rich, nutritious mosses, their natural food.

The climate of southern Alaska is mild, "the winter of Kentucky and the summer of Minnesota," the forests would supply the world with lumber, there are mines of gold, copper and coal, and the finest fisheries known.

The natives are a tall, strong race, bright and keen, very different from their cousins in Greenland. They are divided into tribes, all speaking dialects of the same language, and the tribes divide again into families. These are named from the animal supposed to be their first ancestor, as the bear, fox, whale, raven, crow, eagle. They do not marry into their own family, a Bear marries a Whale, or a Raven a Fox, but a Raven never marries one of the same "totem."

The "totem" is the coat-of-arms and is carved on the canoes, the wooden bowls and spoons, everywhere about the house.

The largest and strongest tribes are the Thlinget, Hydahs, and Chilcat. The Hydahs are called "the bull dogs of the Pacific"; they did not fear to attack even war vessels, and were a terror to their more quiet neighbors. They are noted for their skill in carving, their totem poles being sometimes sixty feet high. They are great gamblers; a man will often lose not only his slaves, but all his wives and perhaps his children at play. The Chilcats are traders, carrying goods to the interior and exchanging them for furs, and a white man never gets the best of them in a bargain, unless he makes them drunk.

You see the Alaskans differ much from our western Indians. They are ready to work and trade, quick to learn "white man's way," and eager to be like "Boston man," as they call all Americans.—Over Land and Sea.

Will Miss Charlotte Dane of Sandy Grove church, Bladen Association, send her address to Miss Heck, that missionary literature may be sent her. Letters addressed to Clarkton fail to reach her.

The vast stride that has been made in the circulation of the Scriptures and evangelical literature may be estimated from the report that more Bibles have been printed and circulated in the past twelve months than were produced in all the years previous to 1880. Portions of the Scriptures are now provided for nearly all the races on the globe.

If we do right, God will see to it that we come out right.

Green River Sunday-school Association.

The Green River Sunday school Association met with the Whiteside Valley Baptist churches Sept. 26, 1895. The success of the meeting was ensured in its making Rev. M. M. Landrum, Moderator.

Failing to have the proceedings of last meeting published, the committee on program was not aware of their appointment. Therefore, the Moderator proceeded to appoint a committee on program, who selected the following queries and speakers to open the discussion:

1. What kind of a man should be superintendent or teacher of a Sunday-school? Speakers, J. M. Tracy and N. C. Lovelace.
2. How can we infuse life into a Sunday-school and keep it there? Speakers, A. L. Rucker and M. M. Landrum.
4. Should Temperance be taught in our Sunday-schools? Speakers, W. M. Whitesides and J. M. Taylor.

This program being adopted, we began to discuss the queries in their order. After being fully discussed by I. M. Tracy, M. C. Lovelace, Z. T. Whiteside, J. M. Taylor, H. K. Corn, C. B. Melton and M. M. Landrum, agreed to answer the first query by saying: A Christian man whose life comports with his profession.

The choir sang that beautiful song, "Seeking the lost."

Adjourned to 10 a. m. to-morrow.

Our little church being situated in the midst of the grandeurs of nature, one could not spend the evening carelessly. To the west about two miles is the celebrated pools; one mile further west is the well-known Chimney Rock Dome and mountain; one and a half miles to the northwest is Bald Mountain with Rumbling Caves reaching far into the mountain. Amid such scenery as this, Col. Ingersoll might have been made to exclaim, "Surely there is a God."

Next morning the Moderator read Philippians, second chapter, and the body joined in prayer, Rev. Elbert Jackson leading.

Brethren H. K. Croom, I. M. Frady, Z. T. Whiteside and Joseph Freeman discussed the second query and gave it this answer: By studying, working, talking and praying for it and giving to it.

At 11 a. m. Rev. M. M. Landrum preached a very interesting sermon from 1 Cor. 11:3.

After an intermission of an hour, the body assembled. The colporter who had been doing work for this body made his report, which was adopted.

After remarks and explanations, agreed to continue this work, and the Clerk was appointed to bring this matter before the Green River Association.

Before going into the discussion of the other queries, agreed that the next session of this body be held with Cooper's Gap Baptist church, commencing on Friday before the fifth Sunday in December, if the weather admits, and if not, then on Friday before the next fifth Sunday, with H. D. Harrell to preach the introductory at 11 a. m. on Friday.

Brethren Z. T. Whiteside, J. C. Price and M. H. Justus were appointed to arrange program for that meeting and have it published in the RECORDER.

The third query was discussed by brethren A. L. Rucker, M. M. Landrum, Joseph Freeman, N. C. Lovelace and Elbert Jackson, and answered by saying: Everybody, and especially parents.

The fourth query was discussed at length by brethren M. M. Whiteside, J. M. Taylor, Elbert Jackson, N. C. Lovelace, S. E. McFadden, H. K. Corn, B. T. Wilson, S. J. Gollins, I. M. Frady, Jerry Jackson, M. M. Landrum, Z. T. Whiteside, A. L. Rucker and N. B. Hampton, and answered thus: Yes, by all means.

On Sunday morning, Bro. A. L. Rucker addressed the children at length more than once, and also the parents.

Rev. M. M. Landrum delivered one of his ablest sermons from "What think ye of Christ? whose son is he?" Followed by a collection to aid in painting the house of worship at this place, amounting to $10.

After an hour's intermission, Rev. Elbert Jackson delivered an impressive discourse from "Set thine house in order, for thou shalt die and not live."

After remarks by the Moderator, the body adjourned. M. M. LANDRUM, Mod.
W. M. WHITESIDE, Clerk.

Questions Answered.

Dear Recorder:—By request, I ask permission to answer the following questions in your paper, which, however, I thought to be fully understood by all Baptists:

1. What is the status of a member of a Baptist church to whom a letter of dismissal, good for three or six months, has been granted, but who has failed to deposit it with another church? Has a church granting such a letter the right to exclude such member from the privileges of said church, or to treat or consider such member as excluded, after the time of letter expires, or until charges are prefered against him?

The letter with clause, "good for three or six months," makes the letter void after that time if not deposited with another church, and the member remains amenable to the same church, and unless charges against him are preferred he is still a member in good standing, and entitled to all the privileges of such church until charges are prefered against him; and to treat him as an excluded member is in violation of Baptist usage, as found in the New Testament.

Should the church desire or deem it its duty to get rid of such member for offences committed since granting the letter, charges should be prefered against him and he be dealt with in the regular way; otherwise I should say it would be a violation of our usage as found in the New Testament to deny him any privileges allowed other members.

I hope this will be sufficient, and if in error, I would gladly be set aright.

Fraternally. J. W. POWELL.

THE PRIZE BABY OF KANSAS CITY MO.

Cured of Disfiguring ECZEMA By the CUTICURA REMEDIES

Our baby when three weeks old was badly afflicted with Eczema. Her head, arms, neck, limbs, and nearly every joint in her body was raw and bleeding when we concluded to try CUTICURA REMEDIES. We began with CUTICURA (ointment) and CUTICURA SOAP, and after the first application we could see a change. After we had used them one week some of the sores had healed entirely, and ceased to spread. In less than a month, she was free from scales and blemishes, and to-day has as lovely skin and hair as any child. She was shown at the Grange Fair, and took a premium as the prettiest baby, over sixteen others. MRS. A. MRS. PARK, 109 Bellevue Ave., Kan. City. Sold everywhere. POTTER DRUG & CHEM. CORP., Boston.

will find it to their advantage to get the Minutes of their Association printed by us.

We have been doing this class of work for more than twenty years, and are familiar with the proper arrangement, and with the names of the brethren, &c., and when we print them the work is not only well done, but the Minutes are correct.

It would be better for all the work if the Minutes of all the Associations were printed at one place.

Clerks will do well to send us their Minutes.

LEDBETTER—HOLLINGSWORTH—On Oct. 23d, 1895, at the home of the bride in Fayetteville, N. C., by Rev. C. A. G. Thomas Mr. W. B. Ledbetter and Miss Bessie Hollingsworth.

WOMBLE—EDWARDS—On October 16th, 1895, at the residence of the bride's father, J. J. Edwards, near New Hill, N. C., by Rev. J. M. Holleman, Mr. A. Thomas Womble and Miss Carrie L. Edwards, all of Wake county.

DIED.

WALKER—Bro. A. B. Walker, Sr., aged sixty-three years, passed from labor to reward October 11th, 1895. Bro. Walker had for many years been a faithful and consistent member of the Missionary Baptist church at Carr's Chapel in Caswell county. He was buried at Carr's Chapel Oct. 13th, 1895. He leaves a brother, a sister, two sons, a daughter, and many relatives to mourn their loss. May the love of God comfort and sustain the bereaved ones. THOS. W. STROWD.

SAWYER—William Cartwright Sawyer, youngest son of Jeremiah and Mary E. Sawyer, departed this life at Elizabeth City Oct. 18th, 1895, aged two years and eight months. This was an unusually interesting and lovable child. His bright spirit forms a precious jewel in the temple of our God. Faith has reason to be thankful that another soul is safe in the Father's arms. Those who loved this beautiful child believe, and falter not. C. S. B.

LAYDEN—Amanda Layden, beloved wife of J. C. Layden, died in Elizabeth City Oct. 6th, 1895, aged seventy-three years. Mrs. Layden confessed Christ and was baptized some thirty years, but never united with any church. She held firmly to the principles of the Baptist church. She died in the full assurance of faith. She leaves many to mourn the loss of a friend outside of her immediate family. C. S. B.

MITCHELL—Sister Mary E. W. Mitchell, wife of our venerable Bro. W. W. Mitchell, was born April 11th, 1824, departed this life Sept. 28th, 1895. Hers was indeed a beautiful life, full of labor and love. Her death was but the laying aside of the labors of life to enter the joys of heaven. At a very early age she professed faith in Christ and united with the church, and from the day of her baptism until her death she was an active and devoted church member, always in her seat, unless hindered by God, and even in her extreme illness the cause of Christ seemed to be uppermost in her thoughts. On Saturday morning, Sept. 28th, surrounded by her loved ones, she quietly passed away. It was beautiful and touching to see with what fortitude and Christian courage her aged husband bore her death. He may truly be numbered with the faithful. Though great sorrow has come upon him, yet his trust in God is sublime.

Sister Mitchell leaves three brothers, all of whom are prominent men in the Baptist denomination—the beloved Dr. John Mitchell, who is one of the best known and best loved men in North Carolina; Bro. J. W. Mitchell is a leading Baptist in the Chowan section, a man with spotless character and loved by all who know him. The other, Bro. W. H. Mitchell of Franklinton, is not known to the writer, but he feels assured that he is a leading member of his church.

Sister Mitchell leaves five children, a number of relatives, and a host of friends, to mourn their loss. Her aged husband has the sincere sympathy of the entire community, but he "sorrows not as those that have no hope." B. CRAIG.

A Poultry Division at the Experiment Station.

The N. C. Experiment Station has added another division to the several already in operation, which will be known as the Poultry Division. Among the specific studies for this division will be, first, to ascertain the best breeds of poultry which can be recommended for different sections of the State, how to raise them economically including the best treatment for diseases and insects, and how to prepare and ship to market all poultry products. It will be the endeavor to foster the industry in North Carolina, so that a profitable and financially paying business may be inaugurated in any locality or on any farm. As but little capital is required, the returns for the investment should always be large.

The Station proposes to publish educational bulletins to bring the matter before the attention of the people of the State, and to extend such knowledge to all who raise poultry, as would be of benefit in the management, preparation, and shipment to market. The poultry manager in charge of the Poultry Division of the Experiment Station will be Mr. F. E. Hege now of the Riverside Poultry Farm of Newbern, N. C. He will enter upon his work on December 1st, on the farm of the Station adjoining the State Fair Grounds.

The raising of poultry and poultry products for market (in North Carolina) is susceptible to great extension, and the new department by the Station will, without doubt, contribute largely to that end, and will prove, consequently, of great and far reaching value.

Don't Go to Chicago on an Ox Cart?

I want two first class hard workers on a liberal contract, to represent the Union Central Life Insurance Company as Special Agents. Give references and age when you apply.

Our new policies express greater and more advantageous guarantees in proportion to cost than any Company. So men of energy and backbone find it easier to sell our plans. No extra charge for insuring ladies.

We put all the possible attractive features in our life with annual dividend as well as all other plans, and the Companies that boast that they give the insured no greater guaranteed advantages than they did years ago are as far behind as he who to day starts to Chicago on a wagon or even an ox cart.

Our assets are over $14,000 000. Give me your age and investigate our insurance. It will really pay you.

PERFECT HEALTH

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

"For eight years, I was, most of the time, a great sufferer from Constipation, Kidney Trouble, and Indigestion, so that my constitution seemed to be completely broken down. I was induced to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and took nearly seven bottles, with such excellent results that my stomach, bowels, and kidneys are in perfect condition and, in all their functions, as regular as clock-work. At the time I began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla, my weight was only 129 pounds; I now can brag of 150 pounds, and was never in so good health. If you could have seen me before and again after using you would want me for a traveling advertisement. I swear by Ayer's, and believe this preparation to be the best in the market to-day."—S. P. SMITH, 312 Poplar st., Towanda, Pa.

"I have used Ayer's Sarsaparilla for general debility, and, as a blood-purifier, find it does expressly as is claimed for it. I consider it unsurpassed as a cleanser of the blood."—S. J. ADAMS, Ezzell, Texas.

ONE GIVES RELIEF.

Farmer Bailey's Escape.

And The Rare Experience of John A. Loftin.

A HAPPY RELEASE AFTER BOTH HAD ABOUT GIVEN UP.

From the Caucasian, Clinton, N. C.

We have been reliably informed that J. F. Bailey of Warsaw, Duplin Co., N. C. had been cured of consumption, and sent a reporter to see him and make a report, believing that the facts would be welcome to many readers of this paper. We found Mr. Bailey strong in the belief that he had had consumption; though his physician, Dr. W. P. Kennedy, stated the case in a little different way. The doctor said:—

"Mr. Bailey was suffering from overwork and chronic malarial poisoning, with some of the symptoms of chronic rheumatism and a general run down condition of his system.

"Boils prevented him from work a part of the time. Bronchitis and spitting of blood were sources of great annoyance to him."

It is probably true that the doctor was correct, though without doubt Mr. Bailey would eventually have gone into consumption, as this disease frequently follows the symptoms and conditions above given. He was thoroughly cured, however. Mr. Bailey said to the reporter:—

"In the spring of '94 I began farm work. Soon I found my health failing and a hacking cough my constant companion.

"I grew so weak that I could no longer work. My cough became so severe that I was unable to sleep, and I was constantly spitting up blood. My physician could give me no relief and I continued to grow weaker and weaker. I had well nigh given up all hope of living, much less being stored to my usual strength when a friend called my attention to testimonials as to the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I at once left off using the medicine prescribed by my physician and began to take the Pink Pills. I felt the good effects of this wonderful medicine within three days. In less than two months time I was a well man, and three boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did the work."

"Is it any wonder" queried Mr. Bailey, "that I sing the praises of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills when they have done so much for me? But for the timely use of them I would to day be in my grave and I want the world to know of their incalculable value as a medicine."

The reporter having heard that Mr. John H. Loftin, of Warsaw, had been cured of rheumatism by the use of three boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, interviewed him with the following result. Said Mr. Loftin: "I suffered intensely with rheumatism for ten months. I was entirely helpless for two months. I tried various remedies but none of them did me any good. Having heard of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and their wonderful curative powers, I procured a box and began the use of them with wonderful effect. In two week's time I was able to leave my bed, and in a few months time I was able to do manual labor. From helplessness to manual labor is my experience, and I attribute this great benefit solely to the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are for sale by all druggist, or may be had by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., for 50 cents per box, or six boxes for $2 50.

Dr. Parkhurst's Advice.

The first and fundamental thing that the home has to do for the child in the way of education is, then, to help make of him a little moral vertebrate, writes the Rev. Charles H. Parkhurst, D. D., in a vigorous article on "The Training of a Child," in the Ladies's Home Journal. There needs to be developed an osseous shaft running up and down him that shall form the axis around which his growing personality shall gather itself in compactness and fixity. That will make the boy mean something, and make him mean more and more till the end of time, and clear on into eternity. It is the only thing that will make him worth calling a personal integer.

To learn to obey is the hardest even as it is the most valuable lesson a child can ever acquire. It is not only valuable for what it is in itself, it is also valuable for what it serves as the basis of. One of the first things told us of Jesus has to do with this same matter. It is related to us that He was subject to His parents; and the narrative immediately goes on to remark that He grew in wisdom and in favor with God and men. The close juxtaposition of the two seems calculated to teach that obedience was the seed kernel out of which His intelligence and holiness waxed.

A Billion Heathen.

We are apt to think of the world as being almost converted to Christ, but the following figures will dispel this delusion: The population of the earth is estimated at 1,500,000,000, distributed as follows: Europe, 381,200 000; Africa, 127,000 000; Asia, 864,000 000; Australia, 4,730 000; America, 133,070,000; total, 1,500,000,000. The leading religions are represented by the following figures: Protestant Christians, 200,000,000; Roman Catholic Christians, 195,000,000; Greek Catholic Christians, 105,000 000; total Christians, 500,000 000 Jews, 8,000 000; Mohammedans, 180 000,000; heathens, 813,000,000; total non-Christians, 1,000,000 000.

When we remember that many of the so-called Christians, in the judgment of charity, are a long ways from Christ, and that heathenism, Mohammedanism, and Romanism stand as a solid wall against Evangelical Christianity we can see something of the task before us.

The Southern Baptist Convention's Report on Tithing.

Great as has been the success of the Convention for the past fifty years, her discouragements and struggles have at times been such as to test the faith and endurance of her most faithful friends and staunchest leaders in the very crucible of financial embarrassments, so great at times as to almost paralyze the work of the Convention. These oft-repeated embarrassments were not caused for want of numbers nor for want of wealth. We have the numerical strength, the intelligence, and the wealth. These oft-recurring embarrassments, are evidently the natural results of our defective financial system.

Your committee believe that full relief need not be hoped for until our church members individually and voluntarily adopt the scriptural systematic plan of paying to God at least one tenth of his income. Then we believe the means will be available "for all the purposes of Christ's Kingdom."

WANT OF SYSTEM.

God has not left our giving to mere caprice, to give as much or as little as we please, or when we "feel like it." God's Word as to giving is as plain as it is respecting the duty of praying. The law of the tenth was a fact in Eden. Like that of the Sabbath, it antedated by centuries the Sinaitic code. By its reannouncement at Sinai it had given to it all the force of a moral institution. It was no more an original part of the Abrahamic covenant and the Mosaic law than was the Sabbath. The tenth was the recognized minimum of the Jews' offering to God; the maximum was left to the Jews' gratitude and sense of obligation, but to deny the tenth to the Lord was sacrilege.

Can a Christian be less liberal? Is the religion of the Cross less generous than that of the altar?

If the amount of the Christian's offering is made less specific in the New Testament than was that of the Jew in the Old Testament, it was because the Christian is not under law, but under grace, because he is a child and not a servant; but does love ask less than duty demands? Grace demands more than law. The tithe was God's before all else; then, added to this, came the higher law of the gospel, which is, give as you love and as you are loved. No other condition can regulate our free will offerings. The law of the seventh of our time for God does not exhaust the time we should give God, nor does a tenth of our income exhaust our duty to give.

In observing closely the methods adopted by the Christian world in raising money for religious purposes, and also the results of these methods, we are convinced that the only way to equalize our contributions, the only just plan for rich and poor alike, is by the system of tithing. The observance of this law seems to have been essential to the spiritual and material prosperity of Israel. If it is not given to us as a positive law, it is so strictly enjoined upon God's people in the Old Testament that we think we cannot disregard it. Our Lord alludes to tithing in his rebuke to the Pharisees: "These ought ye to have done," etc. (Matt. 23: 23.) Abraham gave Melchizedek a tenth of the spoils he had captured.

At Bethel, Jacob makes this vow: "Of all thou shalt give me I will surely give a tenth unto thee." (Gen. 28)

All the tithe of the land, of seed, of fruit, of herd, and of flock, was "Holy unto the Lord." "Thou shalt truly tithe all the increase of thy seed that the field bringeth forth year by year, that the Lord thy God may bless thee in all the work of thy hand which thou doest." During the prosperous reign of Hezekiah he commanded that the portion of the priests and Levites should be given "that they may be encouraged in the law of the Lord"; "and as soon as the commandment came abroad the children of Israel brought in abundance the first fruits of corn, wine, and oil, and honey, and of all the increase of the field; and the tithe of all things brought they in abundantly." When Hezekiah questioned the priests Azariah said: "Since the people began to bring the offerings into the house of the Lord we have had enough to eat and plenty left, for the Lord hath blessed his people, and that which is left is this great store." When this command was obeyed with gladness, prosperity followed. "Honor the Lord with thy substance and with the first fruits of all thy increase, so shall thy barns be filled with plenty and thy presses shall burst out with new wine." Giving all the tithes was a condition of material as well as of spiritual prosperity. The tithe was paid before the free will offering was acceptable. If a tenth was the smallest portion that was required of God's ancient people, surely more is required of us who live under the gospel dispensation. When Israel had failed to bring in tithes, and instead of giving the best brought the sick and lame of the flock, God entreats them, saying: "Return unto me and I will return unto you, saith the Lord of Hosts. Yet ye have robbed me in tithes and offerings."

"Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now herewith; saith the Lord of Hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven and pour you out a blessing that there shall not be room to receive it. And I will rebuke the devourer for your sakes and he shall not destroy the fruits of your ground; neither shall your vine cast her fruit before the time in the field, said the Lord of Hosts; and all nations shall call you blessed, for ye shall be a delightsome land, saith the Lord of Hosts." Malachi 3: 10 to 12

God intends money as a blessing to us. Alas, that selfishness should so often turn it into a curse. It is the unexceptional testimony of every Christian who has closely observed this system that God has abundantly blessed and prospered him. The nine-tenths will yield far more than the whole, if the one tenth is given. "He that soweth sparingly shall reap sparingly. Give and it shall be given unto you; good measure pressed down and shaken together and running over shall men give into your bosom. For with the same measure that ye mete withal it shall be measured to you again."

THE OLD AND THE NEW TESTAMENT SCRIPTURES AFFORD A PERFECT SYSTEM.

Is the law of the tenth binding upon the Christian? Has the new testament repealed this law? Is the sense of Christian gratitude less than was that of the Jew? Or can the duty to give more than the Jew gave justify us in giving less? The law of the tithe, like that of the Sabbath, has passed into the larger meaning of Christianity.

That the early Church observed the law of the tenth is evident, as it is that the early Christians gave more than a tenth.

To say the tithe is Judaistic and not Christian does not meet the case. The Christian's giving begins where the Jew left off. Unrepealed Judaism is essential Christianity. When Paul wrote, "Every man as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give; not grudgingly or of necessity (i. e., of compulsion), for God loveth a cheerful giver," he no more abrogated the law of the tithe than did Moses, when, as God's mouthpiece to Israel, he said, "Bring me an offering: of every man that giveth it willingly, with his heart, ye shall take my offering." These were free-will offerings after the tenth had been given. The Jew found no difficulty in obeying this law, nor did the early Christians; then why should we refuse to make the tenth our point of departure in our benevolence?

Is it not a shame that so many Christians should substitute for the divine law, schemes that belittle Christian beneficence, make the Church of Christ a whining mendicant and disgrace Christ's cause by such miserable compromises with the world as fairs, festivals, suppers, and the like? Let us insist upon methods approved by God's Word, and have done with plans of mere convenience. It is high time that we should understand that the manner in which we get money for Christ's cause is more important than the amount we get. Tithing equalizes. It neither exempts the rich, whose incomes are large, nor the poor, whose incomes are small. Both are placed upon the same level, for the tenth of the rich is no more than the tenth of the poor. God thus denies to none the joy of this service. God will sooner or later blow upon a fortune secured by robbing him! It is only as self supplants God that giving is a drudgery. Giving that costs little is worth little. But does the New Testament command us to give a tenth of what we receive? No; neither does it say how much we shall trust Christ! Why should it? Jesus puts us, as his followers, upon our honor. If love commands less than law, it is because it expects so much more. We are sons and daughters of God, not slaves and serfs! What duty can be more plain, simple, just, and practical than God's law of the tenth? All can give a tenth, no matter how poor. Is not this law as important now as it ever was? Consecrating wealth is concentrating power. If a tenth of the Jew's income and a seventh of his time was not too much to ask of him, is it too much to ask of the Christian? Is ours a lower standard than was the Jew's? Will the Christian excuse himself for what was robbery of God in a Jew? The tenth is sacredly God's before aught is claimed for ourselves or for others.

This is benevolence. Is paying the preacher, is paying pew rent, benevolence? No; no more than paying your doctor or your house-rent is benevolence. It is simply honesty. If our people would adopt God's law of the tenth for a few years for benevolence, they would have done with the present haphazard, slipshod way of giving. Were God's plan ours, there would be an end to to the present shameful advertising of the indifference and poverty of our churches. If we would have the New Testament blessing in giving, we must have the New Testament consecration. Why not be as sound and scriptural in our giving as we are in our articles of faith?

Is it not amazing that we Baptists, who are so loyal to God's word, should be so careless as to the plain teachings of the 8th, 9th and 16th, chapters of 1st Corinthians? The law of the tenth makes the Lord a partner with us in all our business and a partaker with us in all our incomes.

The Scriptures make the plan of giving as plain as the plan of salvation, and for our fidelity to God in this duty he holds each of us personally accountable.

We think the law of the tenth lies at the basis of Paul's injunction to the Church at Corinth:

"Upon the first day of the week let every one of you lay by him in store as God hath prospered him," and let every Christian vow unto God as Jacob did, "And of all thou shalt give me I will surely give the tenth unto thee;" and then our system of giving for gospel purposes will be as perfect as the law of the Lord is perfect. This plan, adopted in the spirit of true worship, would, we are sure, be acceptable to our Heavenly Father.

All the obligations of our churches and of our boards would thus be met, we believe, with promptness and without embarrassment. In the course of a few years every destitute place in the bounds of the Convention could be occupied, and a thousand of new missionaries could be sent out to reinforce our active laborers on every field at home and abroad.

Your committee recommend the adoption of the Tithing System, and that our several State Conventions, District Associations, the Pastors, Churches and Missionary Societies give earnest heed and active co operation in their efforts to educate our people in paying systematically to God not less than one tenth of their income. [Signed by the Committee.]

Elder John Summey in Meetings.

Dear Recorder:—October 6th found me with Elder M. J. Leach at Center Cross Baptist church in the southeastern corner of Randolph county, N. C., engaged in a meeting, which has continued nine days, resulting in a glorious revival of pure religion, in which many souls were convicted and a number saved from sin. I don't think I ever was in a meeting when the church seemed to forget everything but the meeting, the glory of God and the good of souls as in this one.

Center Cross is a small mission church in a good neighborhood with a good working membership, and soon will be self-supporting.

The pastor was taken sick the evening of the 10th and returned to his home where he is taking some needed rest. The writer continued the meeting, and on Sunday morning, the 14th, we all met on the bank of Little River, a beautiful water, and the writer and ten happy candidates went into the river and he buried them in baptism, from which they rose praising God.

We then returned to the church where the new members received the hand of fellowship, after which the writer lectured to the church on its duty to the new members, and their duty to church and pastor.

Thus closed one of the most pleasant meetings of my ministry. I gave this week to the Lord, yet in spite of all the good brethren gave me $4 60

A few words about my Worthville brethren, sisters and friends. Worthville is a town of about 350 inhabitants in Randolph county on Deep River, two miles east of Randleman, N. C. In many respects it is one of the best towns for liberality I ever was in. It has more religious service than any other town of my knowledge to its numbers. The attendance is always good and behavior excellent. It has only one Sunday-school that is very largely attended. This is owing to the fact there is only one church house in the town. Our present number is about thirty eight, all good, earnest, faithful working people. They pay my salary every month, have pledged twenty dollars or more to the objects of the Convention, and will pay it. Besides this, they are always giving to the poor; and on Saturday night, the 19th, as I walked in church, good Deacon Jackson presented me with a good silver watch, hunting case, Elgin movement. Every now and then I find a new paper coming free. May God bless this town and people. Thanks, brethren. Yours,

JOHN A. SUMMEY.

Brother pastor, say a word for State Missions next Sunday; and give your people an opportunity to contribute to this most important department of our work.

Oct. 27, the center buildings of the University of Virginia were destroyed by fire. Estimated loss is more than $300 000. Rebuilding will be commenced at once.

We've Always Been Provided For.

"Good wife, what are you singing for?
You know we've lost the hay;
And what we'll do with horse and cow, is more than I can say;
While like as not, with storm and rain, we'll lose both corn and wheat"
She look up with a pleasant face and answered low and sweet:
"There is a heart, there is a hand, we feel but cannot see,
We've always been provided for and we shall always be."

He turned around with sudden gloom.
"She said, "Love, be at rest,
You cut the grass, worked soon and late, you did your very best—
That was your work; you've naught at all to do with wind and rain,
And do you doubt that you will reap rich fields of golden grain,
For there's a heart and there's a hand we feel but cannot see,
We've always been provided for, and we shall always be."

"That's like a woman's reasoning, we must because we must."
She softly said: "I reason not; I only work and trust.
The harvest may redeem the hay; keep heart whate'er betide,
When one door shuts I've always seen another open wide.
We've always been provided for and we shall always be."

He kissed the calm and trustful face; gone was his restless pain
She heard him with a cheerful face go whistling down the lane
And when about her household tasks full of glad content,
Singing to time her busy hands as to and fro she went:
"There is a heart, there is a hand, we feel but cannot see;
We've always been provided for, and we shall always be.

Days come and go; 'twas Christmas-tide, and the great fire burned clear,
The farmer said: "Dear wife, it's been a good and happy year;
The fruit was gain, the surplus corn has bought the hay, you know."
She lifted then a smiling face and said: "I told you so.
For there's a heart and there's a hand we feel but cannot see;
We've always been provided for, and we shall always be."

The Dead Line in Farming

In farming there is a certain outlay in the form of labor, food, investments in stock, implements, etc., essential to cultivating any given piece of land. This is necessary expense. The profit on a crop is what the crop brings over and above this necessary outlay. The dead line runs along the limit of necessary expense. If, in any case, the crop does not come up to this limit, the farmer falls below the dead line, and is a loser.

Traveling, as I do a great deal, and noticing the farms as I go, nothing has struck me with more unpleasant surprise than the great amount of farming under the dead line. Tens of thousands of acres of land are cultivated every year which is in such a run down condition that it is certain before a furrow is run that the yield will not pay the expense of the cultivation. The farmer faces a loss from the beginning, and yet goes on as if impelled by fate.

Calling the attention of a farmer to the condition of a certain piece of ground, which lay under the dead line obviously, and explaining the expense in detail, when I came to the cost of labor he justified himself by saying: "But we do the work ourselves; we never pay anything for labor"

His family, in appearance, justified the thought that some men are very thought less of their loved ones. The working man's labor is his capital, and he should no more put it out on land which will not yield a profit than a bank would lend money to a man who will not pay it back with interest. There is not a particle of doubt that $1,000,000 a year, in good hard work, is thrown away by Georgia farmers, on ground which lies on the wrong side of the dead line.

Before planting any piece of ground a sensible farmer should cultivate on average seasons, and see whether there is any profit for him in cultivating that land. The remedy for this waste of farming under the dead line, is fertilizers; and the best fertilizer is brains. Brains, rightly used, will convert run down fields into fruitful farms. Farmers need to be as thoughtful, intelligent and progressive as any other class of citizens—J. B. Gambrell, in Southern Cultivator.

God And The Sinner.

But they say God is angry with the sinner. Of course He is. Why, if my two boys fell into bad ways, I'd be angry with them, because I love them. If I didn't love them I wouldn't care what they did. Your child has the smallpox. Don't you hate the smallpox, though you love the child? Of course you do. God puts your sin behind Him. I am so glad of that word. If He put it behind me, some little devil would be sure to find it and trouble me all the time. Then He puts the sin in the depths of the sea, not on the surface where it might float around like a cork, but in the depths, and if some little devils try to find it, they'll get drowned, sure.—D. L. Moody, in the Homiletic Review.

Wrong doing always begins with wrong thinking.

Editor J. L. Montgomery of the Marshall (Ill.) Democrat states that for many years he suffered untold agony from dyspepsia. At last he began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and by the time he used six bottles, he was as well as ever. Cures others, will cure you.

The End of Uncle Joshua's Search.

I ain't a going to die this time, docter," said Uncle Joshua, feebly; "I ain't found the silver yet."

"What silver?" the doctor questioned, thinking the old negroe's mind had already begun to wander.

"Marse John's silver. 'Fore he went to the war, me and him buried it. Marse John was killed, and when the war was over, I had disremembered where we'd hid it. I've dug 'bout all over the plantation, but I can's find it no whars." Here the old man's voice failed him, and he was silent for a time, then he continued: "There was old missy's jewelry too. She died a long time ago, and now thar ain's nobody left but Miss Emma She's married, an' so poor she's takin' boarders. Marse John's child takin' boarders!" and a tear rolled down the old man's cheek. "No, doctor, the good Lord ain't a going to take me, fore I 'member 'bout that thar silver."

This long speech seemed to quite exhaust the old negro's strength. He dozed and awoke suddenly, exclaiming, "Oh! the walls—they are all shinin', gold and silver, and thar's a stone jes' like the big one in missy's breastpin." Then his eyes rested on the doctor. "Yes, I remember," he said, and with a glad smile on his face, Uncle Joshua died—Sel.

Be Courteous.

What is courtesy? It is genuine politeness. And what is politeness? It is not a fashionable bow, a graceful wave of the hand, a beautiful smile, or an eloquent "How do you do, sir." All this may exist without real politeness.

Yes, you may be assured that not every well dressed gentleman, with superb personal appearance, euphonious speech, and elegant form, who bows and gestures, and smiles so charmingly, is a truly polite man.

Real politeness is free from deception. But multitudes who have a high reputation for politeness are no better than nodding, simpering hypocrites, they feel nothing of what they so profusely exhibit.

Genuine politeness is a kind and honest heart, manifested in kind and honest speech and conduct. Hence, that which is most essential to true politeness is to feel kindly, and act accordingly.

Politeness, courtesy and agreeable manners are all the same thing: and they all imply delight in the happiness of others, and a disposition to do to them as we would wish them to do to us. Hence, politeness is properly regarded as a Christian duty.

It is accordingly, directly enjoined in the Bible, "Be courteous, be kindly affectioned one to another with brotherly love, in honor prefering one another." "Bear ye one another's burdens." Do good to all men as we have opportunity." This subject has far higher importance than most persons imagine. Are not agreeable manners worth having? And if a person does not possess them, is it not well that he should take a little pains to acquire them?

Certainly it is. No one has any right to be indifferent to those traits of character or conduct by which he may contribute to the happiness of his fellow creatures, or do that which he knows will wound the feelings of others; and yet how often has the want of courtesy and kindness in our feelings and manners given pain to those with whom we have associated?

Who does not like to see a coach-driver, a railroad conductor, a farmer, a mechanic, as well as a merchant, a lawyer or a minister pleasing in his address and obliging in his manners? Depend upon it, courtesy is worth a thousand times more than it costs. It costs only a little patience, love and self control; and, as to its worth, let it be remembered that the success of hundreds is merely the result of agreeable manners flowing from benevolence of feeling—while multitudes fail chiefly from want of such manners—Sel.

A Commonplace Life.

The trouble is with you, my dear girl, that you count little things as of no worth. Where we have one great renunciation to to make we have a thousand little ones, and life, which you are inclined to call commonplace, is not so, for every day can be made rich in beautiful deeds. God, who is just, is merciful, and when temptation comes to you, even if you fail, He remembers that you tried to do what was right, and so is tender in His thought of you. There is not one of us who achieves, even for one day, what we long to. But, my dear, we can always try for it. We can be ready for the trouble that is before us and equip ourselves by prayer and good thoughts so that we can meet it bravely, and, possibly, overcome it. Of course, that is what we wish to do, and yet if we are not strong enough, if we fall by the wayside, we must get up and try again, and keep on trying. That, in itself, will give us strength. And as the years go on and youth belongs to the past, it will always, because of this trying, be easier to do that which is right and merit "that peace which passeth all understanding."—Ruth Ashmore, in Ladies' Home Journal

Every age and every nation has characteristic vices, which prevail almost universally, which scarcely any person scruples to avow, and which even rigid moralists but faintly censure. Succeeding generations change the fashion of their coaches, take some other kind of wickedness under their patronage, and wonder at the depravity of their ancestors.—Macaulay.

INCONSISTENCIES IN OUR EDUCATION

The office of Censor is not to be desired. The fault-finder is never a welcome guest. To a generous spirit it is more pleasing to approve than to disapprove—to point out beauty rather than ugliness. And yet, he who loves his neighbor cannot be silent, when the social machine is laying upon that neighbor burdens that are unnecessary, unreasonable and unjust.

Let us consider those contracts for the sale of cotton, not intended to be delivered by the seller to the purchaser, which have passed into our commercial language as "cotton futures." Let us consider them in the light of the open air exhibition which has been given us in New Orleans and New York.

It is conceded that the cotton crop of the present year will yield much less, in quantity, than the crop of last year. The producers were advised, when the season of planting began, to reduce the area of this crop, that the diminished yield might bring them better prices. This was done with unexpected unanimity. The seasons have been so far unfavorable that they have added greatly to the decrease in quantity. The producers enjoyed a reasonable expectation that this diminished yield might be compensated by a corresponding increase of price. This expectation was realized. The price advanced steadily and with equal step as the diminished yield became more and more an ascertained fact. The producer might rest content, whatever his disappointment, when he saw the produce of his toil pass into the markets under the equal and impartial law of supply and demand. But he is not allowed to remain content. Suddenly, as if stricken a blow in the face, he is told that he is the unwilling victim of a game of chance, whose furious excess and heartless consequence make the wildest orgies of Monte Carlo appear but trifles.

But this is not all. This loss of the innocent victim, hard and serious as it is, may be measured by the standard of money, and is the least significant consequence of the game of chance. Who can measure the full outflow of its influence and results? The press has given us scenic views of the game and the players. The Bull and the Bear have been brought, all too vividly, before our astonished eyes. We have not been advised, it is true, to adopt the colors of either one of these noble beasts; but the story of their combat has been told to us with such charm of language as to thrill, and, may we not add, fascinate us. What ambitious youth, with the fog of battle in his heart, under these seductive influences, can fail to be either a Bull or a Bear?

And yet we have been educated to believe and to hold that games of chance are wrong; nay more, that games of chance, in public places, are crimes, because they do violence to the peace and dignity of the State. We have gone so far, in our education, as to declare that the presence of a lottery ticket will pollute our mail pouches. We have driven from our midst those quondam caterers to our ruder taste, the cock fighter and the prize-fighter. We are improving in our education, and growing better as the years go by. We are becoming more sensitive to the deformities of crime. We no longer tolerate vice when it comes into our presence as a monster of "frightful mien." We require it to comb its hair and put on a decent dress.

But are we not inconsistent in our education when we drive from our midst the cock fighter and the prize fighter, and denounce as a criminal the man of cards who plays his game of chance before the public eye, while we repeat, with glowing phrase, the exploits of the man of "futures," who heralds his victories from the house tops? Is not "futures" a game of chance? Is it not played in a public place? Was there any privacy in the recent maddening game at New Orleans and at New York which has inflicted such mischief upon the toil of the producer? Is there any moral defence of this game of chance? Is there one single element of virtue in it? Is it not more fascinating, more maddening, more widespreading in its ruinous influences and results than all other games of chance combined? Apart from good morals, is it not against the laws of trade? Is it not conceded that it dominates the market and sets at defiance the equal laws that govern price? And yet when our keener sense of virtue recoils from its presence, we put on our softest gloves that we may not touch too rudely the rich drapery of its person. We shall remain inconsistent in our education until we learn to rate this gigantic game of chance with all other offences against the peace and dignity of the State.

CERTAIN men of the old and respected town of Beaufort, on our coast, have brought shame upon the town and the State by perpetrating frauds of deeply criminal nature upon insurance companies. They conspired to insure old and decrepit persons, some of them in their last days, and actually succeeded in collecting the amounts of the policies in spite of the extreme precautions taken by the companies.

A few men can bring shame upon themselves, and temporarily upon their town. None but unthinking or unfriendly persons, however, would suffer the crimes of a number of scoundrels banded together to reflect upon the entire community. But the community can bring shame upon itself and the State by standing between these men and the law.

We do not know how it came about, but the Judge of the Superior Court after the trial of two of these insurance swindlers had resulted in acquittals, himself remarked to the jury, "Gentlemen, the court is not responsible for your verdict;" and deciding to remove the rest of the trials to another county, said further, "If with the testimony furnished by the State in the two cases tried conviction cannot be had, I am satisfied Justice requires a removal." There are good people in Beaufort, no doubt, but it is a pity that they have not seen to it that they were represented in these trials. Every good man owes it to his own self respect and his fellow citizens to see that his town is not represented to the outside world as a city of refuge for swindlers and scoundrels.

THE Woman's Christian Temperance Union, which held its annual convention at Baltimore last week, has made a great ado over a "Polyglot" petition against intoxicating liquors. It is said to be a number of miles in length and to contain we do not know how many million names. It is the largest petition in the world. Miss Willard and Lady Somerset have travelled around the world with it. The making of it cost quite a sum. But in the name of common sense what good is it doing?

People have been petitioning about temperance and meeting and resolving for generations; many a man has made a mouthy martyr of himself howling on the subject. Editors have increased their subscription lists and been held up as heroes because bar-keepers abused them, without closing a saloon door or saving a single wretch.

Spectacular work amounts to nothing. We saw a sea battle the other day. Cannons never boomed louder, the clouds were never more lurid, waters were never more sanguine, and patriots never shouted more lustily. But no one was harmed. Not a boat was splintered, not a drop of blood spilt.

Much of Prohibition work is like a sham battle. The Prohibition cause is ridden to death by hypocrites who want office or to otherwise get a living out of the cause.

Meanwhile the churches of God must close the saloon. Christianity is the antidote. An enlightened membership that will withdraw fellowship from a drinker and refuse to vote for a saloon man, a working membership that will reach out in the fear of God to save the poor wretches, doing all in a quiet, Christ-like way, is the hope of the true friends of temperance.

Yes, legislation is necessary. But that is the last half of the battle. Honest hearts and Christian principles are the first half.

AT PRESENT it appears that nowhere in America, either in the United States or in Mexico, can prize fighters carry on their disgraceful business of pummelling one another and gambling on the result. Persistent efforts have been made to have the fight take place somewhere. Texas and Arkansas have been tried, Mexico resented the first overture, the Federal Government intercepted plans in Indian Territory, and it looks like the country at large is determined to prevent it. This is a wholesome sign of the times, which we hope is but a forerunner of a day when horse racing and other "sports" maintained for gambling purposes, are driven from the land.

Versions of the English Bible.

BY J. HENDREN GORRELL, PH. D.

The Word of God, apart from its sacred character, occupies a unique position among books in the wonderful history of its composition and preservation, in its influence upon literature and language, and in its widespread circulation among all peoples; the age of printing was inaugurated by the publication of the Bible; the versions of Luther and Wycliffe have determined more than any other agency the present character of the German and the English languages; and the best writers of all times have drawn no small part of their inspiration from the pages of Holy Writ. Leaving out of account the interesting story of the various Hebrew, Greek, and Latin versions, let us turn to the history of Bible translations in our own language. There is nothing that more clearly shows the essentially religious spirit of the English people than their devotion to the Word of God. From a very remote period in our history, the Bible has been rendered in our tongue, and at all times the English-speaking race has contended for the faithful interpretation of the Scriptures. This is shown by the large number of English versions of the Bible: from 1525 to 1850 there have appeared in the English language 1,159 editions of the Bible and 1,045 editions of the Psalms; and this is merely the external indication of the real good which has all the while been done in the hearts of the people.

Translation of the Scriptures into our language began very early. The Psalter is said to have been rendered into Anglo Saxon as early as 700 by Aldhelm, Bishop of Sherborne. The gospels were translated by an unknown hand about the end of the ninth century; and Bishop Ælfric, toward the close of the tenth, translated the Pentateuch, Joshua, Judges, and portions of Kings, Esther, Job, Judith, and Maccabees. It was with great reluctance that he was induced to render the Book of Genesis into English, for he was afraid that the polygamy practiced by the old patriarchs might be adopted among his people.

A long, dreary silence of almost four centuries now ensues. The older language, together with the Scriptures written in it, had fallen into desuetude; papacy had decreed that the Bible was to be read only in the Latin and by a select body of men who would interpret the text according to the strict canons of the church. Such was the state of affairs when Wycliffe, "the Morning-Star of the Reformation," set himself in sturdy opposition to this ecclesiastical tyranny; he labored amidst the greatest difficulties; he was deprived of his chair at Oxford, he was refused the right of preaching and was thwarted at every point by the clergy and the king, yet he crowned the labors of a busy life by giving to the people the Bible expressed in strong, clear, idiomatic English, the superior worth of which is evidenced by the fact that his language has been adopted in great measure by all subsequent revisers. The translation was made from the Latin Vulgate in 1380, and was revised by Purvey in 1388. It was most gladly received by the people, and copies of books, or of chapters, or even of a few verses, were scattered far and wide throughout the land, and worked out their mission of good. The influence of Wycliffe was not confined to England, but it penetrated into the minds of Germany and was the inspiration of John Huss and Jerome of Prague, who were martyred for the true faith at the Council of Constance.

For a century, Wycliffe's Bible was the only English version of the Scriptures. As printing had not yet been invented, the circulation was necessarily limited, and Catholicism was doing its best to suppress every copy. In the first part of the sixteenth century, however, there appeared the second champion for the spread of the English Bible among the English people. Tyndale, like his predecessor, obtained his classical training at Oxford. His efforts after a reform in the church led him to adopt the same means as Wycliffe, "for," says he, "I perceived by experience how that it was impossible to establish the lay-people in any truth, except the Scriptures were plainly laid before their eyes in their mother tongue," and "if God spare my life, ere many years I shall cause a boy that directs the plough to know more of the Scriptures than you do," addressing himself to the Romish clergy. To further his designs, he moved to London, but was so coldly received by those in ecclesiastical power, that he despaired of completing his work in England and embarked for Hamburg; he afterwards went to Cologne to have his translation printed by the celebrated presses of that city; even here he was pursued by the relentless opposition of the Catholics, and he withdrew to Worms where he finished his work, copies of which were transmitted into England in 1525.

Tyndale's version was much superior to that of Wycliffe; he made full use of the great advance made in the study of Hebrew and Greek during the fifteenth century and was not obliged to rely on the Latin Vulgate; he also showed his courage in the faithful rendering of ecclesiastical terms; as elders instead of priests; the congregation for the church; love for charity; repentance for penance; acknowledge for confess, &c; thus depriving the Catholics of their "juggling terms," as he said. There was naturally no little disturbance in England by reason of this translation; copies were destroyed whenever found and persecution was visited upon all who attempted to spread the truth among the people. Meanwhile new editions were constantly being printed in Antwerp and other continental cities, and London was flooded with copies of the Scriptures; Tyndale himself had also moved to the University-town of Marburg, and was employing his time in reformatory writings.

When Sir Thomas More, the well known author of "Utopia," was appointed Chancellor in place of the fallen Wolsey, he redoubled the persecution and issued in 1530 a manifesto under the royal seal inflicting dire punishments on all readers, vendors, and writers of heretical books, enjoining the destruction of these writings, especially Tyndale's New Testament, "the father of them." A faint glimmer of royal favor appeared during the brief reign of Anne Boleyn, but in the mean time a deeply-laid plot resulted in Tyndale's apprehension, imprisonment, and death at the stake on Oct. 6, 1536.

During this time of persecution, however, the Word of God grew and prevailed; the first copy of Tyndale's New Testament appeared in 1526, and in less than three years five editions were exhausted in England; two editions annually was the average up to the year of his martyrdom, which was crowned with at least nine or ten editions. A longing among all classes of people to have access to an English Bible was ever on the increase, so much so, that, when Tyndale's friend John Rogers brought out in 1537 the version of the entire Scriptures under the name of Thomas Matthew (hence called "Matthew's Bible"), Archbishop Cranmer urged its recommendation to Henry VIII. In less than a fortnight it was decreed that this Bible be published with the King's most gracious license, that "the same be set up in some convenient place in the church where the parishioners can most conveniently resort to the same and read it, and no man shall be discouraged from the reading and hearing of said Bible." By 1539, four editions of the entire Bible were exhausted, and "it was wonderful," says an old writer, "to see with what joy the book of God was received; everybody that could, bought the book and busily read it, and even little boys flocked among the rest to hear portions of the Holy Scriptures read." The Bible haters, however, made one more vigorous effort and so affected the King by their specious arguments, that shortly before his death he withdrew all these privileges; but the good seed had already been sown, and a rich harvest was slowly preparing in the minds of the people. At the same time a wonderful impulse to Bible study sprang up in Germany by the issuing of Luther's German Bible at Wittenberg in 1534.

Two years before the publication of "Matthew's Bible," Coverdale, a Cambridge man who had fled from England to avoid persecution, published on the continent a version of the Bible called "Coverdale's Bible." His style, although somewhat stilted, is fairly good, and the translation is in most cases correct, though he himself confessed that it was made only from the Dutch and the Latin. It was dedicated to Henry VIII, but never received the formal sanction of the King, though its circulation was permitted by him. In the course of a few years, it was wholly superceded by the greatly superior version of Tyndale already alluded to.

"Taverner's Bible" was merely a revision of "Matthew's Bible," made in 1539 by Richard Taverner, an Oxford man, at the request of Cromwell; it was licensed by the King but never attained great popularity, and was issued in 1551.

Cranmer had always been an earnest advocate for the thorough study of the Scriptures. In 1540 he had published, under his immediate supervision, a translation of the Bible with critical comparisons of the Greek and Hebrew texts; this is known as "Cranmer's Bible." Readings from the Vulgate are frequently introduced, indicated generally by means of brackets; in the Psalter, however, they are incorporated in the regular text, and it is this review of the Psalms which is still retained in the Book of Common Prayer used by the English Church. Another noteworthy feature in this translation is the abolition of the conventional terms of the Romish Church, after the example of Tyndale. In his efforts for the spread of the Scriptures, Cranmer was warmly seconded by the pious Edward VI, in whose brief reign there appeared four editions of Coverdale's version, two of Taverner's, fifteen of Cranmer's, and twenty-nine of Tyndale's—altogether fifty editions of the Bible.

During the troublesome reign of Mary, many of the exiles from England settled in Geneva, at that time the centre of Presbyterianism under the strong leadership of Calvin; scholarship was not wanting, and a vigorous movement was made to bring out an improved version of the Scriptures. This so-called "Genevan Bible" was published—the New Testament in 1557, and the entire Bible in 1560. This version was greatly in advance of all its predecessors; the New Testament was translated from Erasmus's excellent Greek text revised by manuscripts collected by Genevan scholars; more improvement still was made in the version of the Old Testament by reason of the wonderful progress that had recently been made in the study of Hebrew. The language moves along in an easy manner, not wanting in terseness, and deviating very little from, though by no means dependent on, Tyndale's version. An innovation which was very conducive to its usefulness consisted in the introduction by the translators of brief notes on geography, antiquities, and church doctrines. This was the first English version which used the division of the text into verses. Its amazing popularity is shown by the fact that copies of this version were printed and extensively circulated over thirty years after the adoption of King James' version, and altogether as many as 150 editions were issued. One of these editions, printed in 1560, had the following reading in Gen. 3: 7, "They sewed figge tree leeves together and made themselves breeches," and has been popularly called the "Breeches Bible."

The striking merits of the Genevan Bible was clear evidence of the need of a new version for general use in England, but the stern Elizabeth could not countenance a version made by Presbyterians; this undertaking was entrusted to Archbishop Parker, who introduced a new system of translation by sorting out the Scriptures into "parcels" and distributing them to fifteen learned men, mostly bishops. The work began in 1564, and in 1568 the "Bishop's Bible" was published. The Vulgate additions in Cranmer's version were dropped, except in the Psalms, to make it uniform with the Book of Common Prayer. A more serious defect consisted in the reintroduction of the Romish conventional terms which had been dropped by Tyndale and his successors; it is for this reason that these terms have persisted even in the present Authorized Version.

In 1582 appeared the remarkable instance of the Romish church actually setting about the translation of the Bible into the English tongue. This was not a change of principle but simply of policy, for it is expressly stated that this version was made merely to counteract the poison introduced among the people by the many Protestant versions. This version, which is still in use in Roman Catholic churches, is called the "Rhemish" or "Douay Bible," because the translation was made by some Oxford Catholics who had fled into exile at the accession of Elizabeth and were then residing at the Roman seminaries at Douay and Rheims. It is a slavish rendering of the Vulgate, and has few beauties of style to recommend it to the reader.

At the second meeting of the Hampton Court Conference, an assemblage of Episcopal and Puritan ecclesiastics convened by James I in the early part of his reign, Dr. Reynolds, a Puritan minister of Oxford, proposed that a new translation of the Bible be made, on account of the many errors contained in the previous versions. Reynold's motion was opposed at first, but James shrewdly saw in this a great opportunity to increase his absolute power, and it was not long before the royal approval was granted. A most elaborate system of translation was adopted; fifty-four scholars, selected from the Established Church and from the Puritans, were appointed to the work; these were formed into six companies, among which the Scriptures were divided. The King himself instituted a set of rules to be observed by the translators: that the "Bishops' Bible" be followed and as little altered as possible; that the old conventional terms used in this Bible be preserved; that the divisions of chapters and verses be not altered; that each member of the company must make his own translation; these are then to be discussed by all the company, and their combined judgment must be submitted to the whole body of translators. This stupendous work was begun in 1604. After the whole version had been completed after the King's directions, three copies were made and submitted to a committee of twelve, six of whom were selected from the translators, and six from learned ecclesiastics of England. A third revision was then made by the Bishops of Winchester and Gloucester, and finally the Bishop of London took it in charge and gave the finishing touches. The entire work was completed and published in 1611, accompanied by a servile dedication to the King, and was appointed by him to be read in churches.

The "Authorized Version" was obviously a great advance on the Bishop's Bible, for Puritans as well as Episcopal ecclesiastics had a share in the work, and all the treasuries of knowledge contained in the two great Universities were lavished upon it; but, on the other hand, the King paid jealous attentions that nothing should come into the work which should be detrimental in the least degree to the doctrines of the Established Church, and there can be no doubt that all the translators were ready yielders to the threats or blandishments of the Royal Majesty.

For a long time this version met with little favor; not a few scholars raised objections to the translations, and the Puritans obstinately clung to the old Genevan Bible; this opposition was so strong that in 1656 a movement was made for a new version; owing to the political disturbances of the time, however, this came to nothing, and gradually the Authorized Version won its way into the churches and into the hearts of the English people. "The plays of Shakespere," says Saintsbury, "and the English Bible are, and ever will be, the twin monuments of the perfection of English, the complete expressions of the literary capacities of the language, and the English Bible itself is probably the greatest prose work in any language."

It only remains to make brief mention of the "Revised Version" of 1880, for the several recent versions which have appeared in this country and in England have not yet met with sufficiently general acceptance to require notice. The Revised Version had its origin in action taken by the Convocation of the Province of Canterbury in February, 1870, and the work was begun in June of the same year; shortly afterwards the

J. C. CADDELL, AGENT AND CORRESPONDENT.

IT matters us if a man knows that certain members of churches drink it is his duty to talk with them instead of parading the fact in the papers. Moreover, a sweeping statement that members in a certain church drink whiskey, reflects on the church as a whole.

IT is one of those "pieces of human nature" that cannot be accounted for, that a man who cannot bear to hear his wife complain will revel in the chronic lamentations of incurably pessimistic newspapers, and will call an editor a coward if he prints a hopeful paragraph in preference to a pessimistic one.

ABUSES never go so far that they may not be stopped, although they are allowed to go on longer frequently for no other reason than that they have come to be common. Every one admits the need for reform in giving college degrees; it is as clear as day that they are given without regard to their real significance. Everybody knows it and jokes about it, but colleges and universities keep up the business, and the recipients are persuaded that they really do deserve "the honor," as their congratulating friends call it.

The time for joking has passed. Degrees can be made to serve a good purpose. It is wrong to destroy their usefulness. It is wrong to give a man a title when it is clear that it loses its meaning as soon as he uses it. Colleges have no more right to flatter and generate vanity and put good instruments to bad uses than any one else.

Degrees as an incentive to achievement have had no little to do with the making of men and the advancement of the learning of the world; and this is their function.

Our Board of Ministerial Relief is the youngest of our denominational boards. It has been in active operation four years, and has had twenty-one beneficiaries on its list. Its claims have never been adequately presented to the Baptist people of the State. It has had good men behind it from the beginning, but they have been compelled to do their work mainly through newspaper, circular and personal correspondence; and naturally they have not been able to enlist the sympathy of the people in general.

Only $366 has been raised this year. Fifteen hundred dollars could have been wisely used.

We hope a new day is dawning for this work. We have reason to believe that its claims are growing on the brethren; and we hope they will not delay to get the people informed on the subject. Collections for it ought to be taken in every Baptist church, and we hope many will be taken before the conventional year closes.

THE Religious Herald is entirely friendly to the proposed organization of the Southern Baptist young people, but thinks that the action of the Washington conference makes it wise for it to decline to join in any effort "for a conventional year at least." Our neighbor has a delicate sense of propriety.

The action of the Washington conference was determined not by opponents of young peoples' organization, but by brethren who desire us to accept the B. Y. P. U. A., which we never will in its present condition, and which the South never will accept. We regard this new effort as entirely different from the Washington conference. The conference was called admittedly to organize a Southern Union. It was frustrated. So sharp were the lines of the B. Y. P. U. A. forces, the Southern Union forces and the anti-organization forces drawn, that any kind of a decision then would have meant backset to the cause of the young people. We left Washington sure that organization of the young people was inevitable, and determined that if we had anything to do with it, it should be thoroughly Baptist, should be entirely under control of the local churches. We saw in this new effort the chance to effect such an organization as this. To let it pass would be to leave open the door for a flood of indiscriminate organizations and endless agitation.

The Southern Union of Baptist Young People is not a panacea. There are many churches that do not need organizations of any kind; there are some in which the young people at work in societies will do great good. As a general incentive to the organization of Young People's meetings where they are needed, we are in favor of establishing State and Southern organization.

MR. GREATHEART.

"Then said Mr. Greatheart to Christiana and to Mercy, 'My Lord has sent each of you a bottle of wine, and also some parched corn, together with a couple of pomegranates; He has also sent the boys some figs and raisins, to refresh you in your way.'"—Pilg. Prog., Part II.

Since the great multiplication of books it is hardly likely that the matchless allegories of the immortal dreamer, Bunyan, are as generally read as in former days. And it is not probable that at any time the Second Part of the Pilgrim's Progress has been as popular as the story of the earlier pilgrimage. This is not at all surprising, and yet some of the most valuable instruction is given, and some of the most interesting characters are portrayed in the less familiar Second Part. Among the latter is the faithful, heroic, and gentle guide, Mr. Greatheart.

He is described by Bunyan as a man of large knowledge, wide experience, and sturdy common-sense. His valor was proved by his bearing in the Valley of Shadows and by the slaying of Giants. But the characteristics which gave him his name were his gentleness of bearing and tenderness of speech. He is not called Mr. Largemind or Mr. Bighead or Mr. Strongarm, but Mr. Greatheart. As the authorized guide of a personally conducted party from the City of Destruction to the Land of Beulah, he is Bunyan's type of a Christian minister.

One need of the world now, as always, is Greathearts in the ministry. We encourage our young preachers to acquire knowledge and cultivate their intellectual powers. Those who seem worthy and are really indigent, we gladly assist to secure all the culture that colleges and seminaries can bestow. And so far from belittling the importance of the best possible education for our ministry, we would give new and added emphasis to the obligation which rests upon every preacher, old or young, to add to his knowledge and discipline his powers.

But all this will amount to absolutely nothing, so far as effectiveness in pastorate and pulpit is concerned, if heart power be altogether lacking. Of a minister of the gospel, above all others, is it true that he may have all knowledge and all eloquence, and yet, without the tenderness of love, be as sounding brass or a tinkling cymbal. Parched corn is not enough for him to bring to his flock, whether on week days or Sundays. The Lord would also have him be the bearer of pomegranates and wine, of figs and raisins.

Only a very patient and loving guide could ever have brought safely to the end of the journey such a motley party as was accumulated on the way. Mr. Standfast and Mr. Honest might possibly have made the trip by themselves. But Mr. Ready-to halt, and dear Mr. Feeblemind, and Mr. Despondency with his daughter, Much afraid;—they stood in need of constant encouragement and comfort. One cannot help admiring Mr. Greatheart's tender dealings with these rather humble people even more than the prowess shown in killing Giant Daspair and the strength displayed in pulling down the walls of Doubting Castle. And when, at the last, we read through our tears how, one by one, they all went through the river, singing, to meet the shining ones, we cannot but believe that this pastor has done a better work, as Mr. Greatheart, than if, as Mr. Greatmind, he had written a learned book.

If there be any moral or practical lesson herein, it lies on the surface and will reveal itself.

We have more learning in our pulpits than our fathers had. Have we as much of what they used to call "unction,"—that heart-power which comes from the anointing of the Holy Spirit? Perhaps so: we do not know. But we do know that tenderness is an essential element of success in proclaiming the gospel. Mr. Fine rhetoric may tickle our fancies, Mr. Funnyman may make us shake our sides, Mr. Sound-theology may (and ought to) confirm us in the faith, Mr. Exhortation may belabor us with loud appeals. And yet, somehow, the great depths within our natures, wherein lie the springs of action, are untouched and unmoved.

But, ah, when Mr. Greatheart preaches to us, it may be very simply and without much show of learning, our hearts begin to open, even as flowers open to dew and sunshine. His tenderness makes us tender. Pride melts away. Love, dove like, flutters into the heart. We want to shake hands with the man whom, an hour ago, we regarded with suspicion or enmity. We seem to be close to God, yet, somehow, we are not awed by the blaze of His holiness, but want to get closer and closer until, like tired children who have not done their best and are sorry for it, we can hide our faces in His bosom.

Whence comes this power of Mr. Greatheart to stir our souls so that they are melted into humility or uplifted with aspiration? Is it due to the tones of his voice? We think not. Is it because he relates pathetic anecdotes? He seldom does it. Does he stir our sympathies by wearing the mask of emotion? Never: he would not stoop to it.

But whence comes this gracious influence? Ah, it is because his heart is great and is full of genuine love and tenderness. He moves us because he is moved himself. He is moved himself because,—but we may not penetrate the seclusion where he has been closeted with God. We can only know that it is from our Lord himself that he brings us fruits and wine to refresh us on our way.

A NEWSPAPER correspondent sends the news from Raleigh to the Charlotte Observer that gambling was going on all Fair week in buildings on Fayetteville street. The Raleigh Press-Visitor says one of the gamblers with his gaming table never fails to put up at Raleigh Fair week, having long since become a familiar character. We too can hear testimony not at all contradictory. Not later at night than nine o'clock have we heard the voice of a pool-seller crying prices and asking for bids so boldly that any one walking the streets could understand his words. More than one person has told us that gamblers worked their games right in the heart of the city all the week, and that their victims were not a few. Yet the policemen are as innocent of these things (that is, to all appearances) as the youngest school boy in town. They are good on arresting a poor drunkard, but their prowess seems to wane when there is anything more serious on hand. If one of them should say he did not know gamblers were working over a certain saloon in the city, he could hardly be believed, since every newspaper man we have seen knew it; and the gamblers themselves were not at all careful whom they admitted. We sometimes think our policemen are laboring under the delusion that there is danger of an attack by an armed force from some unseen quarter upon the market-house; for never king's knights more zealously guarded a castle than they guard this building.

WEST CHOWAN ASSOCIATION.

This Association, whose strength and loyalty have become proverbial, met in its annual session last week with the Roxobel church, of which Bro. Cree is the beloved pastor.

The session was in every way up to the good record which this body has made in the years gone by. A mother never had a worthier daughter than the Old Chowan, from which the West Chowan was organized. Pastors in good hopes, workers themselves, and consecrated to the work; laymen (including the sisters) substantial, intelligent and zealous; nothing but good sessions could be looked for. The presiding officer, Dr. R. P. Thomas, is one of the smoothest moderators we have seen; there was not a hitch. And the clerk, Bro. W. C. Parker, whose experience of upwards of twenty years has made him a fixture, did his part as efficiently as ever, and we will look for the minutes shortly.

For several hundred yards as we walked from the station to the grove, where the people were eating, the woods were full of horses and vehicles, between 1,500 and 2,000 people, which is an average attendance, being on hand. It is very much to our regret that we could not get to Roxobel until the middle of the second day, though, being left over at Boykins, on the advice of a good brother we turned the intervening time to pleasant and profitable use by going to Murfreesboro, where we were delightfully entertained at the Institute. This was our first visit to this venerable institution, but we hope to have the pleasure of many another. When at length we reached the Association, it did not take us long to find the way through the crowd at dinner under the trees to Bro. Cree's hospitable home, where he and his wife were entertaining in true Scotch style. Here (not unexpectedly) we found Dr. John Mitchell and Bro. Caddell, who informed us of the proceedings of Tuesday and of Wednesday up to the dinner hour.

Rev. J. B. Boone preached the introductory sermon Tuesday morning, starting the Association off with a good tone. Immediately following, delegates were enrolled as usual and committee on credentials appointed. Organization was effected in the afternoon by election of same officers. Then the report on intemperance was heard and adopted. Report on periodicals is always given a good place by this Association, and it came next. Bro. C. W. Scarborough, many brethren told us, made a fine effort for the RECORDER, which Bro. Caddell followed with a good speech. If the number of renewals and new subscriptions stands for anything, the RECORDER never had a better hold in the West Chowan. Its friends are probably thicker in this section of the State than in any other; and not unnaturally one finds the churches active, pastors well paid and interests of the Lord's work well sustained.

The pride of the Chowan section is the C. B. F. Institute, and part of Wednesday morning and night was given to discussion of its interests. Bro. L. M. Curtis made the best speech at night ever made on the Institute, and it received the hearty approval of his hearers. He protested against sending girls away from the section for education, when as good opportunity at less expense and under better influences is offered at Murfreesboro. He also showed that the Institute catalog price for collegiate branches and music is the lowest of any high grade school in the State—$184 00. He was followed by Rev. J. W. Powell, who pleaded with all his earnestness for loyalty to our institutions. The speeches on the institution in the morning were by Elder T. T. Speight and Prof. John B. Brewer, but time coming short, a night session was given to general discussion of woman's education, over which Judge Eure presided with distinguished grace. The first speech was by Bro. J. Hartwell Edwards in the interest of the Female University, which he is engaged in putting before this Association. He was followed by brethren Curtis and Powell, as noted.

Reports on State Missions and on Education also came up Wednesday morning, and were informingly discussed by Elders Curtis and Scarborough, and Saunders and John Mitchell, respectively. Eight hundred dollars was reported for State Missions and eight hundred dollars pledged. Brother Mitchell's time was so limited that he had to omit remarks and take pledges for the Education Board, which made a good showing.

Bro. Boone was thoroughly at home as he came before the Association to speak for the Orphanage, after a report read by Elder Cree. He made a practical talk, which Bro. Craig followed with an earnest appeal; and on motion a collection was taken.

Rev. T. C. Britton of China spoke to the report on Foreign Missions. We heard Bro. Britton before the Washington Convention, but he made a better address on this occasion. He expects to return to China early next year.

Thursday the drought was broken, and the floods came. They did the world good, and there was thankfulness for it, even if the people were kept from meeting, and the last day's work made only a matter of routine. Only one session was held, and that was occupied with discussion on reports on Home Missions and Ministerial Relief.

NOTES.

We are under many obligations to Bro. Liverman and wife for kindly looking after us.

Every one was glad to hear of Bro. Durham's convalescence. It was regretted, however, that he was not present; for though his place may be filled in one sense, it cannot in many others, and the brethren missed him.

NEWS NOTES.

....All together for State Missions!

....Rev. A. C. Cree of Wake Forest has been called to our church at Chapel Hill.

....Pastor Simms of the Raleigh Baptist Tabernacle received one for baptism and two by letter Sunday.

....We are glad to note that Mr. Geo. W. Paschal has been chosen assistant in the Library of the University of Chicago.

....The fact that there will not be free entertainment to visitors at the Greensboro convention should not diminish the attendance. Greensboro welcomes everybody.

....Evangelist Fife is holding a meeting at Winston, which town it seems to us has more meetings of this kind than any other. It is not long since Rev. Sam Jones was there.

....Bro. Robt. D. Caldwell, Esq., Secretary and Treasurer of Robeson Institute, writes, "Robeson Institute is doing fine work now. There are more than 130 students entered."

....The Thirteenth Baptist Congress will meet at Providence, R. I., 12th to 14th inst. Prof. W. L. Poteat of Wake Forest College will deliver an address on "The Physiological Basis of Morality."

....Let us suggest that now is a good time for pastors to make up clubs of renewals and new subscribers to bring to the Convention. New names may be sent now and the money brought up to the Convention.

....Rev. Jonathan Wood has resigned the pastorate of Bryson City after a year's work. Bro. Wood has many friends in North Carolina, particularly in the Raleigh section, who hope he will remain in the State.

....Paying your pastor's salary is a business transaction, and you ought to regard it as much against your credit to neglect it as it would be to neglect any other obligation. Unpaid pastors are a reproach to their people.

....The success of brethren Pritchard and Pruett and their Charlotte co-laborers with their tent meetings in milling and manufacturing suburbs of Charlotte shows what can be done in the regions around many of our towns.

....Bro. A. Johnson, editor of Charity and Children, visited the RECORDER office on Tuesday last. He was here looking after the railroads which neglected to transport paper for Charity and Children, which, owing to said neglect, has failed for two weeks to make its appearance. There will be no delay hereafter in the publication of our contemporary.

....We have received the following tracts: "Our Fall in Adam and Our Greater Rise in Christ," by W. C. Taylor, Tyrone, Pa., price six cents. "These Forty Years, a New Year's Address," by Geraldine Guinness, relating to the China Inland Mission.

....The church at Jackson, Ga., has called Rev. G. W. Gardner during mutual pleasure. Bro. Gardner has been pastor of this church for two years and has done a fine work. He is much beloved by his church, by other denominations, and by the citizens generally.—Index.

....It is not the pastor's business to fill the church; he must try to fill the pulpit. It is the peoples' duty to fill the church. An active membership will do more to fill empty benches than all the ornaments of artists or music of singers or eloquence of orators.—Dr. J. W. Carter.

....We have frequently heard brethren say that they keep files of the RECORDER, and we have heard that some families have them complete. We can make it to the interest of any one having a complete file of the RECORDER for any year prior to July 30, 1873, (excepting year 1853), if he will inform us.

....We thank Rev. C. G. Wells for the following notes: A Sunday-school Missionary Day program was carried out by the Warsaw Sunday-school last Sunday evening. A good sum was realized for missions. Bro. L. R. Carroll is in a meeting at Willard this week. My New Hope congregation recently purchased an organ for the church.

....The First Baptist church of Durham will be ready for occupancy January 1st. It will be one of the handsomest church edifices in the State. Durham now has as many active Baptist preachers as Raleigh, (the number is six) which is to say, our neighbor has more Baptist preachers in proportion to population than any town of considerable size in the State.

....Secretary T. O. Fuller of the Baptist State Sunday school Convention (colored) has sent us a copy of the minutes of the meeting of that body at Warrenton Sept. 18–22. In the general statistical table it is stated that there are 408 officers and teachers in the schools reporting to the Convention, pupils 3460, volumes in libraries 1211, money raised $1169 72.

....The Rev. F. H. Martin, pastor of Calvary Baptist church in Scottsville, is conducting a series of revival meetings in the new Baptist church in Gilmerton, and has so far met with the most encouraging results.—Norfolk Landmark. We were told at the West Chowan that Bro. Martin is doing much good in revival work about Portsmouth.

....Rev. Thomas Dixon, Jr., delivered a magnificent lecture here last Friday night. We do not believe that he has an equal as a lecturer. His subject was, "The Woman of the Future," and he took the view which every reasonable man will take, that woman's place is the home. She cannot be too highly educated or too well trained; but she must not be "put down to the level with man."

....Rev. J. F. Tuttle preached his farewell sermon in the Baptist church here last Sunday. Mr. Tuttle's popularity, both as a minister and a Christian gentlemen, is not confined to denominational lines, and a general regret is expressed at his inability to preach the coming year. Rev. Mr. Byrd succeeds him, and will preach at the next regular appointment.—Clarkton Cor. Columbus News.

....Bro. N. G. Sloan, Bryantsville, Iredell county, writes that Revs. J. P. Gwaltney and W. J. Hopkins commenced a series of meetings at Damascus the first Sunday in October and continued until the Sunday following. Rev. C. C. Pool came in on Monday; he and Bro. Hopkins did most of the preaching. There were nineteen professions, and fifteen were baptized as a result of the meeting.

....Many pastors have been making good use of the dry spell by holding revival meetings. In recent exchanges we have seen mention of the following: Rev. S. F. Conrad and Elder Haymore of Mt. Airy at Fork church, Rev. G. H. Church at North Wilkesboro, Pastor O. C. Horton at East Durham, Revs. H. T. Williams and G. J. Dowell at Roxboro, Rev. R. M. Loftis at Walnut Cove, near Mt. Airy, which resulted in ten additions, Rev. J. A. McKanghan and Rev. Mr. Thompson of Missouri, at Tillery.

....There are 1,008 religious journals which have subscription lists aggregating over 5,000,000 names. This is an average circulation of about 5,000 each. That is very good, when all the circumstances are considered. The Christian Herald and the Sunday school Times are the two having the largest circulation. There are fifty German religious periodicals in the United States and eleven Swedish.—Western Recorder.

....Verily here is something new under the sun. A council met in New Jersey to consider the propriety of ordaining a certain brother, and after hearing the candidate's Christian experience, call to the ministry, and views of Bible doctrine, it was voted not to proceed to ordination. That little italicised word is full of hope! Perhaps, after all, it shall yet come to pass that councils shall be something more than mere committees to register a pre-determined conclusion.—Indiana Baptist.

....We dare say no church in our State has made more progress in the last year or two than that at High Point, of which Rev. R. W. Weaver is pastor. The pastoral year closed last Sunday, during which the church has raised $1,500, including $250 for the Female University. A missionary was employed, and a mission Sunday school sustained. A recent meeting by the missionary, Rev. Frank Fiddler, at Jamestown resulted in twelve conversions. The church received thirty-five members during the year.

....Mr. John D. Rockefeller, whose gifts to Chicago University have made him famous, last week gave that institution $3,000,000, one third paid in 1896; the rest before January 1, 1900, provided $3,000,000 is raised by other friends before that time. Previous gifts from this noble man to the University amount to $4,400,000.

....Rev. Mr. Church preached to the court house folks and others in the court house yard yesterday afternoon. He will preach on the streets every day this week if his health permits. The meeting at the Baptist church closed Friday night. There were thirty professions during the meeting. Ten persons were received into the church—six by letter and four by baptism. The latter were baptized at the Baptist church Sunday night.—Statesville Landmark, Oct. 25

....We were fortunate enough to have as companions from Raleigh to Warrenton on our way to the West Chowan, Rev. A. L. Stough and wife of Pineville. Bro. Stough was going to assist Pastor Taylor in a series of meetings with his Warrenton church. We are glad to have him this far up in North Carolina again; for although he still lives in North Carolina, his church is one of the best country churches in South Carolina.

....Rev. T. J. Hudson of Person county preached in the Baptist church Sunday morning and night. He sails for China on November 11th, and will at once enter upon the study of the language preparatory to active missionary work in the interior of that vast heathen empire. He is identified with the Gospel Mission.—Gastonia Gazette Bro. Hudson will receive support from Kentucky churches.

....The protracted meeting at Wakefield, in Wake county, under Rev. A. D Hunter, resulted in the addition of forty members to the church, thirty of whom were baptized on the fourth Sunday in October. It was a great season of grace. Bro. Hunter feels that the Raleigh work badly needs a man's whole time. As he is rather partial to country work, he intends living at home after this year and giving his time to country and village work.

....The statement in RECORDER of last week that there was only one building at the Philadelphia Centennial Exposition is not correct. There were several buildings, among them a beautiful art building which still stands; there was one main building. The Centennial came to pass when we were nearly three years old, and our impression in regard to the building was made by frequently seeing pictures of this main building, but of no other.

....Rev. W. A. Smith, who has accepted the West Durham pastorate for half of his time, devotes the other half to Ephesus church, about nine miles from Durham. This will make it necessary for Bro. Smith to give up Cedar Rock Academy the end of the fall term, for which he has built up a fine patronage and a good name since he graduated at Wake Forest in 1893. We are very glad, however, that he may now give his full time to his calling.

....Secretary Durham was able to get back to work last week. He is weak, but is free from rheumatism. He will have all he can do to attend to his office duties from now until the Convention meets, as his report must be prepared and a great many details be attended to. We hope the brethren and sisters will enlist themselves in the effort to pull up the hill in the remaining time and bring the Board to the Convention out of debt. Co operation of pastors and people just at this time will go a great way in this important work. Let us not have a discouraging report.

....Rev. J. W. Little's gospel tent arrived here a few days ago. It is 30x70 feet and will hold about five hundred people. He arranged to begin a meeting here at once, but will postpone it until the close of the revival now in progress in the Methodist church. The tent will be pitched on the Houston lot just south of the freight depot. Mr. Little has had remarkable success in revival work during the past few weeks, having recently baptized 135 persons in the fellowship of his churches. He will use the tent to conduct meetings in the country where there are no church buildings.—Monroe Journal.

....I must tell you that Dr. Mundy is just the same quiet, tireless, successful worker. Under God he has accomplished a grand work at Wilson; though he says nothing about it. I have recently been engaged in some precious revival meetings, and have rejoiced in seeing the saints edified and much people added to the Lord. We expect soon to hold a meeting of days in our home church, in which we have the promise of the efficient aid of Bro. "Bob" Peele, of Wilmington. May God bless the editors and all the readers of The Courier.—J K. Fant, Littleton, N. C., in Baptist Courier.

....About a year ago, Hickory Baptist church called Rev. C. S. Cashwell as pastor for half of his time. He accepted, came and assumed the duties of that responsible office. Under his care, the church has not only grown in numbers, but in efficiency. It's members are nearer united in "every good word and work" than when he took charge. Indeed, they are fast reaching that sphere of Christian duty when it can truthfully be said of them: "They are lively stones in the building," each doing his or part and that cheerfully. The Pastoral year having expired, the church met in Conference Monday night and, by a unanimous vote, recalled him for the same time, for the ensuing year, increasing his salary over last year, $50. He was sent for and asked whether he would accept or not. To the delight of the church he accepted. So Hickory church reipdoning her former pastor is now ready to begin the new Pastoral year with renewed Zeal and with higher and nobler aspirations than ever, in the work of the Master.—Hickory Mercury. We are glad to see this evidence of the deserved appreciation of one of our best pastors.

Attention, Delegates to the Baptist State Convention.

As we have every reason to believe the attendance will be unusually large at the coming session of the Convention, and as the Young People's Baptist Union convenes the day before, we ask all the churches who send delegates to the Y. P. B. U., to also appoint the same delegates (if practicable) to represent their churches during the meeting of the State Convention.

Homes can only be provided for delegates to the State Convention, Y. P. B. U. and W. M. S.

Visitors can get reduced rates at the hotels and boarding houses. Delegates desiring homes must send their names and post-office address (plainly written) to the Chairman Committee on Hospitality at least ten days before the Convention convenes, otherwise we cannot provide entertainment for them. Please address all communications to

DR. W. W. ROWE,
Chm'n Com. on Hospitality,
123 Price St., Greensboro, N. C.

Let every pastor beg his people to give to State Missions now. The need is urgent.

About the Convention.

Dear Recorder:—Let me say a few words about the approaching Convention:

The Baptist State Convention is getting to be a big thing; and its entertainment is no small matter. The pastor has been on the field such a short time, and his acquaintance in the city is so limited, that he can be of very little help to the church in the way of securing homes for the delegates. By complying with the following requests you can help us:

1. Don't send your name as a delegate unless you are reasonably sure that you will come. Brethren often have a very vague idea that they will attend, and send their names so as to make sure of a home in the event that they do go, thinking that if they do not go, no harm is done. But don't you see, brethren, the trouble is just the same, whether you come or not. We have to secure homes for all who send their names. Now if you expect to come, send along your names; but if there is only a bare possibility of your coming, don't send your name.

2. Let me emphasize the request of Dr. Rowe, viz., that your name be here ten days before the Convention meets. The "books will close" 25th of November, and unless your name reaches us before that time, we cannot promise to entertain you.

3 We can only entertain one delegate from each of the Young People's Societies and W. M. Societies.

We are going to do everything in our power for the comfort and pleasure of the delegates, and we ask that you help us as above indicated. LIVINGSTON JOHNSON.

Greensboro, N. C.

The Y. P. Convention Again.

Dear Recorder:—The brethren over the South are showing more interest in the Y. P. work. Of late Georgia has organized a State Union; there is a call for the purpose of organizing a Southern Union, Nov. 21, 22; at the late meeting of the Tennessee Convention a time was appointed to organize a State Union. Is it not time for us to act?

I hope the coming meetings at Greensboro will be of such a character that we will realize the importance of having them perpetuated.

Greensboro is not as large a city as her hospitality is abounding, but she has a generous welcome for the State Y. P. Conventions, and Woman's Missionary Union. Let us have a representative to the Y. P. Convention from every Union, Sunbeam Society and young people's prayer-meeting. I would suggest that so far as it is wise to do so, the churches appoint the representative of the young people as a delegate to the Convention, too. They need the help of the Convention, and the Convention will not be hurt by their presence, and it will greatly help the Committee on Hospitality.

Let the churches see that some young member is sent to this meeting.

R. VAN DEVENTER.

Burlington, Nov. 1, 1895.

A Proposition.

To the Baptist churches of the Atlantic Association specially, and of the State generally. Brethren:—In 1892 knowing the need of mission work in the Eureka section, and that the needed work could not be done on account of no house of worship and none nearer than fifteen miles, I secured a desirable lot in the little village and erected thereon a neat and comfortable building, 32x48 feet, this building when finished, together with the ground cost $628, of which amount I furnished $539.62, and in September, 1892, the trustees of the Eureka church gave me a note for that amount, which note I hold yet there never has been but about $35 paid on it.

I do not feel able to give this whole amount, but desire to make the following proposition. If the churches of the Atlantic Association or any other will raise and pay to me by January 1st 1896, $300, I will donate the remainder due on the note, and clear the church out of the debt, and if I should die before that date it is my will and desire for this proposition to hold good.

I regard Eureka as a good mission point, and one to which our people should look after, and could well afford to aid.

This proposition is made through the RECORDER at the request of the Moderator of the Atlantic Association.

Fraternally,

C. J. NELSON.

Goldsboro, N. C., Oct. 27, 1895.

Greeting from the Henderson Pastor.

Dear Recorder:—May the Henderson pastor be allowed to greet the brethren of the State through your kindness?

Back at last upon his native heath, he is beginning to feel once again the old-time stir of feeling, and his heart swells within him toward Carolina and Carolina's people. The grass may not grow so green here as in more favored sections, but there is no spot on earth where the hearts of the people are as green with perennial youth as are those of the Baptists of this old State. And, leaving the third person, I wish to say that I thank for their kindness all who have given me pleasant words of welcome to this section in which I find myself. Surely I could not have found a better place to stop in than Henderson.

I can say for the Lord's saints here that they love their pastor. But mind you, I am not presumptive enough to say that as to myself. I mean they love their pastors in general, and their former one, Rev. R. Van Deventer, in particular. By the way, I have a quarrel against that man, and as I wish to be open in all I do, I will have it out with him here in this public manner. I wish to tell him distinctly that he is too good a pastor. Why does not he have some mercy upon the every day man who he knows must follow him! This State would be eternally spoiled if he could go around and be pastor in each church in it for a while. I say candidly I know of no man in this or any other State who in all around pastoral ability can equal Bro. Van Deventer, if what I hear on every hand concerning him is true, and I know that it is.

The work here under the new administration (if this word be taken in a loose sense) is moving along as nicely as could be wished. It is my great pleasure to receive new members quite often, and occasionally to stir the baptismal waters. The church seems to be taking hold of the work quite willingly, and the pastor has learned to love them all for their many kindnesses.

We have suffered seriously from sickness and deaths this summer. Especially were we saddened by the death of Mrs. James H. Lassiter, who was eminent for her good works and her genial Christian piety. However, now that the cool weather is setting in, the health is better, and we are settling down to better work.

I was busy all last week in a meeting which I conducted alone in our mission chapel, three miles in the country. There are some local difficulties there, as everywhere else, but our hearts were made glad by a deeply felt interest, and a dozen or more open professions of faith in the blessed Redeemer. Three joined our church last Sunday, and will be baptized next Sunday morning. It is our hope to be able to organize a church at this point soon.

It was pleasant to meet the pastor of the Tar River Association at Wilson recently. The meeting was in every way a good one. We missed the RECORDER representative, and Dr. Taylor to speak for Wake Forest College. However, the representation was otherwise good, and different ones were found to take the places of these absent ones.

Speaking of Wake Forest reminds me to express my satisfaction at the excellent opening this year. While there not long since in attendance upon a committee meeting of the Alumni, everything seemed in a prosperous condition, and all were well and happy.

And speaking of Wake Forest, reminds me to say a word as to our Seminary at Louisville. A letter received from a member of the faculty, dated the 24th, says: "There were yesterday 269 men on the roll book, more than ever before. There is more enthusiasm among faculty and students than I have ever before seen. Every member of the faculty seems to realize that the blessings of God have brought greatly increased responsibilities and that he is determined to meet his part of it. The grade of students is very high. O Millard, pray God's blessing upon our beloved institution, that he will raise up men to endow it more completely and that he will fill the hearts and strengthen the minds of the teachers to meet the demands upon them!" All over our State are young preachers who ought to be in the Seminary. If they did but know what they are missing! Try, O my brethren, to put in at least one year in the near future at this the best Theological Seminary on the continent. I have in my possession a letter from a recent Wake Forest graduate who went to another Seminary, and among other things he says: "I expect to advise my Wake Forest friends to go to Louisville, though I am most thankful that I am here, and believe the training here is in no respect below the best. Louisville is spoken of more highly among the boys than any other Seminary, and Dr. Broadus is frequently quoted in the New Testament department." It means much when a man, though he thinks his own institution good, advises his friends to go to a rival one. Can we not see in all this the blessing of God upon the prayers and labors of the sainted Boyce, Manly, and Broadus? May God grant that through the years to come the influence of their blessed lives may linger around the place where their labors were!

And may God add his blessing to his work in our own State!

JUNIUS W. MILLARD.

A GOOD INCOME can be made by some member of every Baptist church in North Carolina, who will undertake light and desirable work of representative character. Representatives, male or female, must be commended by their pastor as worthy and energetic. For further information address (enclosing 2 cent stamp) "Box G, Raleigh, N. C."

Send applications as soon as possible, as only one member in each church can be engaged.

Let every Baptist rally for State Missions. The Baptist hosts can do mighty things in thirty days.

The thirty ninth session of the Western North Carolina Baptist Convention was held with the church at Bryson City, beginning Oct. 23, 1895.

The Convention re elected Bro. J. H. Tucker of Asheville, President, and Bro. R. A. Sentell, Secretary. O her offices were suitably filled from the representative brethren of the Convention.

A cordial welcome was extended to the new pastors in the Convention, viz., Rev. J. S. Felix, D. D., of First church, Asheville; Rev. Jonathan Wood, Bryson City; Rev. S. S. Gibson, Hendersonville; Rev. T. C. King, Morgan Hill, and Rev. I. T. Newton, Brevard.

After recognition of visiting brethren by the Chair, the report of the Secretary of the Board was read. The report showed an increase of work and results. Sermons and addresses, 1,060; religious visits, 1,326; prayer-meetings held, 159; baptisms by missionaries, 140; Bibles and Testaments sold to the amount of $466; total amount collected on field for book sales and general collections, $2,240 60; received from Home Mission Board, S. B. C., $600; from S. S. Board, S. B. C., $200; grant of books from A. B. Pub. Soc., $500; amount collected by Secretary on the field, $1,140 61.

Wednesday night, the report on Baptist Orphanage was read by Bro. J. W. Lawing. After remarks by Bro. Lawing, Rev. J. B. Boone, Superintendent of the Orphanage and well known to the people, addressed the Convention, explaining especially the present management of the Orphanage. The subject was further discussed by brethren S. C. Owen, T. Bright and others. Liberal amounts were pledged to this object.

Thursday morning devotional exercises were conducted by Bro. J. M. Hall.

The subject of Conventional Missions was discussed by brethren J. P. Herren, J. P. Morgan, T. Bright and others. Pledges and collections were taken for this work to the amount of $330.40.

The report on Woman's Work was read by Bro. A. I. Justice. The report was discussed by brethren W. H. Rich and J. W. Hall. A message from the Woman's Central Committee was read by Bro. S. C. Owen.

Thursday afternoon the report on Education was read by Bro. A. E Brown, which was discussed by brethren J. B. Boone, J. S. Felix, M. P. Matheny and others. A resolution, looking to the establishment of a school of high grade in the bounds of this Convention, was adopted.

Thursday night the annual sermon was preached by Rev. J. W. Leawing from Rom. 5: 21. A sound gospel sermon.

Dr. E E. Folk of Nashville, Tenn., presented the work and claims of the S. S. Board S. B. C. Remarks were made by Bro. S. C. Owen.

Friday morning at 8:30 o'clock the newly elected Board of Missions met and organized. This Board agreed to recommend Bro. T. Bright to the church and field at Murphy, N. C., at a salary of $600—$400 to be paid by the Board, $100 by the church, and $100 by the Association.

The Convention was called to order at 9.30 o'clock.

Report on Periodicals was discussed by brethren Owen, Morgan, Folk, Herren and others.

Report on Ministerial Education was read by Bro. A. E. Brown. Adopted without discussion.

Friday afternoon the report on Home Missions was read and discussed by Dr. Felix.

Report on Obituaries was read by Bro. S. C. Owen. Very tender reference was made to the life and death of Dr. D. B. Nelson and of Bro A. E Wright.

Bro. Owen calls attention to the importance of living faithfully and earnestly for God while spared to his service here. The brethren sang "Sweet bye and bye."

Bro. A. I. Justice read an interesting report of the history of the Convention.

The Board of Missions holds another session. Agreed to combine the work of the Corresponding and S. S. Secretaries.

Friday night the report on Foreign Missions was read by Bro. S. S. Gibson, and discussed by Bro. M. P. Matheny and Dr. Folk.

The Convention extended thanks to the good people of Bryson City for their kind and bounteous entertainment of the Convention during its three days' session. Remarks were made by several brethren expressing their appreciation of the treatment accorded to them in their homes. It was agreed by all that this session was one of the best in the history of the Convention,—good on account of the high order and hearty interest of all the discussions and the fraternal spirit which prevailed throughout; and good on account of the increasing interest on the part of the women of the Convention, and their resolve to do more and better work for the Master.

While singing "God be with you till we meet again," the brethren and sisters extended to one another the hand of fellowship with that interest which only Christians know.

Other matters received the consideration of the Convention, which will require too much space to mention.

Saturday, Rev. T. K. Brown preached at 11 a. m. and Rev. J. W. Leawing at 7:30 p. m.

Sunday, Rev. R. A. Sentell preached at the Methodist church, and the writer at the Baptist church, 11:30 a. m.; Rev. A. H. Simms, at the Presbyterian church, 8 p. m., and Rev. G. A. Bartlett at the Baptist church, 7:30 p. m.

The Royall Chair—Decisive Work Needed.

Rev. C. W. Blanchard, the Financial Agent Wake Forest College, writes about the Royall Chair as follows: "The time is now short till the meeting of the Convention at Greensboro. Shall we be able to report the endowment of the Royall Chair completed by that time? This is a crisis with us to secure the gift of the National Baptist Education Society. Who will follow the noble example of brethren R. L. and H. C. Bridges of Bladenboro in subscribing one thousand dollars to this good work, to be paid in three annual installments? If all who are interested will act at once we will take no risk. Many have promised to help, will they not put it into subscriptions within the next fifteen days? If you have no blanks you can get them by applying to me at Cary, N. C. May I not hear from a hundred brethren within the next few days?"

To The Pastors and Churches of North Carolina.

Dear Brethren:—You will be interested to know the condition of the treasury of your Foreign Mission Board, and therefore of the prospects for your missionaries on the foreign field. Receipts are coming in very slowly. At the present rate the income is not more than about half enough to carry the work of the Board on. We are earnestly desirous of avoiding a debt at the end of the Conventional year, special appeals, etc. Financially times are improving in the South. There ought to be a decided increase in foreign mission receipts. Last year from May to Oct. 15th North Carolina gave $3,032 57; for same period this year, $872 46. You see there is a decided falling off in the receipts from your state. Will not every lover of missions put his shoulder to the wheel? Will not each pastor push collections? Will not each treasurer remit promptly? Brethren, do what you can for your Board and your missionaries. Yours etc.,

Don't Go to Chicago on an Ox Cart?

I want two first class hard workers on a liberal contract, to represent the Union Central Life Insurance Company as Special Agents. Give references and age when you apply.

Our new policies express greater and more advantageous guarantees in proportion to cost than any Company. So men of energy and backbone find it easier to sell our plans. No extra charge for insuring ladies.

We put all the possible attractive features in our life with annual dividend as well as all other plans, and the Companies that boast that they give the insured no greater guaranteed advantages than they did years ago are as far behind as he who to-day starts to Chicago on a wagon or even an ox cart.

Our assets are over $14,000,000. Give me your age and investigate our insurance. It will really pay you.

operation of American scholars was solicited and companies were formed in this country to act with the English revisers. The principles of revision were as follows: to introduce as few alterations of the Authorized Version as possible in consistency with faithfulness; to make marginal reference of the adoption of a new text; and to seek for aid from divines, scholars, and literary men throughout the world. After the work had been completed, it was twice carefully examined and was three times submitted to the criticism of American scholars. It was ten and a half years from its commencement that the revision was at length published.

This version has numerous improvements upon that of King James. The revisers had the advantage of a better text to base their work upon; the Greek text, from which the former translations had been made, was in many respects untrustworthy; all the oldest and most important Greek manuscripts have been discovered since that time, and in many instances false readings have been avoided and a nearer approach has been made to the exact words and sense of the original. In many cases false renderings were knowingly made in the Authorized Version for the sake of giving variety to the language; these have all been corrected by the revisers. The poetical form of such writings as the Psalms and Proverbs has been retained and the old system of division into verses has been abolished. The Revised Version is undeniably the most faithful presentation of the Word of God that has yet been made to the English people, and its complete supercedence of the Version of 1611 is without doubt only a matter of time.

Our Georgia Letter.

Dear Recorder:—Some items from the Empire State may be of interest to your readers:

SORROW.

Just now our people are universally mourning the unexpected death of Deacon J. C. McMichael, the proprietor and editor of the Christian Index. I saw him only a few weeks ago, and he seemed to be unusually well and much stronger than he had been for some time. He had suffered for the past year or two from a dreadful spell of grip, and it seemed hard for him to overcome the effects of it. Early last spring he was forced to give up his work and seek the mild climate of Florida. Bro. McMichael was a noble man and a born newspaper man, as his success with the Index clearly proved. He brought the subscription list up to ten thousand, and greatly improved the paper. It is unusually popular in Georgia. He was a brave captain in the war, and carried to his grave scars upon his body as the result of wounds which he received while defending his country.

NORTH CAROLINA IN GEORGIA.

The tide seems to be turning in the direction of Georgia from the Old North State, and since Pastor White came to Macon, others have come. Brother Wray has been installed at Milledgeville, and I recently learned that Brother Jenkins had been called to the church at Perry. Well, we are glad to have them come, and bid them all a hearty welcome in the Master's name, and wish for them unlimited success. Brother White is only forty miles from me, and I am glad to report that he is doing well with his splendid church. May it ever be so with him, and all the brethren here and elsewhere.

ANNUAL CALLS.

I want to thank the RECORDER for the splendid articles it had some time since on annual calls. These calls are curses to the churches, and have done more to divide them and hinder their progress than almost anything else. Then it is humiliating to a Christian gentleman to have worthless fellows inquiring on the streets as to whether the church is going to keep their pastor another year or not. He must be put up every fall, too, and have sore heads shoot at him with a little paper wad and thus proclaim their independence. A splendid pastor told only this week that he was recalled to his church with but one dissenting vote, and that party had no more sense than to think that he could not stay unless the call was unanimous, so called to inform him that she had cast the vote, and to inquire what he would do about it. The annual call rages in Georgia, and as a result of it some of our best men are moving, not that they have been voted out, but the voting brother has unsettled them. So disgusted am I with it, that I told my splendid church here that I would not accept an annual call from them or any other church, and so on last Sunday they very cheerfully gave me a call for mutual pleasure. They proposed doing it one year ago, and had only one objector who was yielded to at the time, but he sees now that the indefinite call is best and is with his brethren. I am glad to know that other churches in Georgia are considering this matter, and our preachers need to come out like men and protest against it, which they are doing.

THE EXPOSITION.

You have been there, brother Editor, and so I need not say anything about it for your benefit. It is quite creditable, and the crowds are now getting better. I am only fifty miles from Atlanta, but I suppose people much farther away hear more about it, and think more of it than we do.

Working of Method in Giving.

Dear Bro. Bailey:—Among the many things for which I am grateful to God is that I had a Christian home in the mountains of Tennessee and North Carolina. The "old home" was on the line. (How dear to my heart that word old home is.) Though years ago I wandered from my native place, there is not a day that passes in my life but what the sweet memories of childhood and boyhood days come crowding into my thoughts. Though I am not a Southerner in residence, yet my sympathies and good wishes for the South are as ardent as they could be. The weekly RECORDER is a very welcome letter from home. God bless the RECORDER in its noble work!

This morning in my mail came the annual minutes of my old home Association. With eagerness I read its contents, even to the figures. While I rejoiced at the success attending the work of last year, I was really surprised to see that not more had been accomplished, especially along some lines; and along the line of probability of doing more for the Master, I wish to say a word.

In the Association to which I referred above, there are thirty-one churches, with a total membership of 2,476. I notice that the total contributions of all these churches to all purposes, including pastors' salaries, amounts to only $1 067 59, making an average per member of only a small fraction over 41 cents.

Now, only for the sake of a little comparison, let me tell you what my small young church, less than three years old, did last year. We have one hundred and forty-seven members, and last year they contributed to all objects $2,675 12. This does not include more than one hundred dollars raised by the Young People's Society. They gave on an average $18 19 per member, or nearly three times what the thirty-one churches gave.

Some one may say, "You must have some rich members." There isn't a rich man in my church. At least four of the churches in the Association to which I refer, each represents more money than my church. Then these being the facts as I know, there must be some reasons why the brethren there do not do more to send the gospel. I feel sure I have the key to the situation. There they have no system in their offerings. In many cases pastors accept charges without any understanding as to what they shall receive. "The laborer is worthy of his hire," if he labors. In this I believe the pastor to be at fault—they indulge the churches. If the pastors can live without salaries, well and good. God bless them in giving their services; but if they do not need, the missionaries at home and abroad, orphans, the poor, and the struggling students do need, and the churches should help these. It would be, as all know, a benediction upon the churches themselves to give as God prospers them. Remember God's challenge, "Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing that there shall not be room enough to receive it." God is always ready to do his part. Now the best way to do this is as the Bible suggests. "Upon the first day of the week let every one of you lay by him in store as God has prospered him." That is what we do. Every member, unless he is a pauper, is expected to give something every week. At the beginning of the financial year, each one pledges what he will do each week; hence we have been able to accomplish what we have done—comparatively little though it is.

Now suppose that each member of the churches of this Association of which we are speaking, should give five cents each per week—that is small, much less than they are prospered—the contributions would be $5,826.40 instead of $1,067.59.

The South, God be thanked, is a great Baptist country. Their possibilities are limitless, and it is my earnest desire to see them fully comprehend their possibilities, if they do not already bring into his storehouse, and then see an outpouring as has never fallen before.

It is in my heart to say more, but will forbear. Sincerely yours,

W. G. JONES.

Deacons' Meetings.

I believe that the deacons of all Baptist churches ought to meet frequently for the purpose of discussing, planning and commending such means as would be for the best interests of their churches. By reference to Acts sixth chapter, it will be seen that deacons were appointed to attend to the business matters of the church.

Sound but good business men are suitable for deacons. They ought to be men of good common sense—honest, earnest, impartial, consistent; loving the work of the church, and willing to do it. They ought to make every department of church work a careful, constant study. Then they should meet and discuss the best methods of church work. Nearly all organizations have a board of trustees, a board of directors, executive committees, &c., to plan, and manage, and advise.

Most of the troubles that disturb churches might be settled by the counsel and advice of a wise board of deacons. If a church has a pastor who is not suitable, the deacons should quietly assure themselves of the wishes of the church, and then say candidly and privately to the pastor, "We know the wishes of the church, and we think it best for you to resign." And then the pastor could quietly resign, and thus be saved the mortification and sometimes injury of being voted out.

And further, if deacons study the interests of the church as they ought, they will find that the church ought to do work that she is not doing; and they can devise and recommend plans to enter upon new and needed work.

I feel sure that deacons of many Baptist churches have come far short of studying, understanding, and doing the duties I understand to belong to their office; and therefore many churches have had troubles that might have been avoided, and have left undone much work that might have been done. Many deacons seem to think that their only work is to carry around the bread and wine at communion, which is but a little part of their work; but there is much important work they can and ought to do. Find out what it is and do it, and you will be happier and your church more prosperous.

"Who gathered these lillies?" asked the gardener, as he came into the garden, and found some of his fairest and loveliest lillies cut. "I did," replied the master. Then the gardener held his peace. Beloved, has the Master come into your home garden, and cut some of the fairest and loveliest lillies? If so, it is to transplant them into his palace garden. Well, let him have his way. How they will unfold their beauty in that bright eternal world.—Selected.

A Maine minister tells a good story of his experience with a quarrelsome choir: "One Sabbath they informed me that they would not sing a note until Brother ——, one of their number, left the choir. I gave out as the opening hymn:

'Let those refuse to sing
Who never knew our God,
But children of the heavenly King
Will speak their joys abroad.'

"They sang, and I was never again troubled."

How many a Christian pilgrim would never have seen anything of the spiritual manna and the spiritual stream from the rock, had God listened to him when, with fear and trembling, he besought him not to lead him into a desert.

This alone is true friendship: to see what is good deep down in another's soul, to help that upward into life, and enable it to conquer outward frivolity and evil.—Christian Register.

SUBJECT FOR NOVEMBER: AFRICA.

"O send out Thy light and Thy truth; let them lead me." Missionaries, 7; native assistants, 6; churches, 4; membership, 239; baptisms, 67; schools, 3; scholars, 87; Sunday school scholars, 140. Contributions, $214 45

Study Topics.—Fetichism. Struggle between Christianity and Mohammedanism. Struggle between Christianity and the Devil. Our early work. Our present work. Africa the Martyr-land. Our duty.

The Report of Our African Mission from May, 1894, to May, 1895.

Oyobomoshaw.—You will see that, as to baptisms, our work is increasingly prosperous. I think, too, that the Christians in all our churches have increased very much in spirituality and efficiency, and are much better able to stand alone than ever before. The steady aim has been to urge the native Christians on to self support and independent action, as well as aggressiveness in the work. All have not taken kindly to this plan, so the little that has been done has not been without some friction. But I think the progress made is gratifying.

The great loss our mission has sustained in the death of Brother and Sister Newton all know. Bro. Newton was a faithful, wise and aggressive missionary, and we find it very hard to get over his loss. Sister Newton was a comforting and encouraging spirit in our midst, and was very much beloved by the natives over whom she had great influence. God has taken them, but the work must not and will not stop.

As to our church in Ogbomoshaw, I can only say that it is growing in every way, and I think the growth is mostly solid, but it is far from what I could wish, and the actions (and want of action) of the members is often very discouraging. I have had a long struggle to get them to build a church house without the mission doing it all for them, but have at last succeeded.—O. W Smith.

Lagos.—(I have written of the joy we had in seeing some signs of the Lord's presence in the conversion of the heathen.) The work goes on. Glory to Jesus. I have no annual report beyond recording the faithful, plodding work of our native helper, James Odebay, who, when his allowance was stopped in March, last year, kept at his post, weaving cloth for his daily bread and preaching the gospel in the spare moments. His name should be coupled with mine when you revise the stations.—S. G. Pinnock.

Abbeokuta.—Our work was going on nicely from January to April 9th, when Bro. Stone received a letter from Bro. Newton calling him to come and station at Lagos, saying the church there needed a native pastor to help them. Bro. Newton wrote Bro. Stone to put his work at Ijai in my charge; then I could not do anything to my own work even. I asked myself, How must I manage to keep the work going in two stations without losing the interest of any? At last I came to this conclusion, that if the Lord heal me of my sickness, I shall try all my best with both stations. There is an excluded member who, when he saw that there was no one to gather our congregation together on Sunday, took the trouble to hold the services during my absence till I felt a little better; then I forced myself to do my duty at Ijai, but by that rashness I caused my complaint to get worse about three times. When I got well I tried all I could to keep Sunday-school and preaching at Ijai in the morning and preaching in the afternoon in my station. I have no bell to ring; I always use my mouth to invite the heathen to attend God's service here in the afternoon on Sunday. Prayer meeting is held here once a week and once at Ijai.—L. O Fadipe.

Abbeokuta.—Though Abbeokuta is one of our hardest fields, yet we believe it to be our duty to preach Christ to the people. The work is the Lord's and we are his workmanship. It is his to bless, and he has promised to do so.

The first quarter of this year was spent in Abbeokuta; congregations good, and composed of Christians, heathen and Mohammedans. Average attendance on Sunday preaching has been fifty; interest increasing among the people.

The women members of my church, headed by my wife, have made it their duty to visit some heathen houses once a week and have visited forty-nine houses and made talks to several Mohammedans and a good number of heathen people. They report their work to the church in their weekly prayer meetings. We think that the best way to reach the heathen women is to send our woman members after them. A great deal of good has been done by it in preaching Christ to them.

We have Sunday school every Sunday morning at nine o'clock. Nearly all of the members attend. At our Sunday school over three hundred cards have been distributed to the heathen children, people and Christians. These cards were kindly sent to us by Bro. Smith from Ogbomoshaw, and have proven to be the best means of drawing the heathen people and of teaching them the way of the Lord. The average attendance at Sunday school has been thirty. —M L Stone.

Heathen Chinese Children.

These are without the training that a loving mother is wont to give to her little ones. Obeying in love is a thing almost unknown to them. Their young minds are seldom impressed with the evil of wrong-doing; but on the other hand, sin in many forms is encouraged. Lying is regarded as right by the older people, and the vile and abusive language, so commonly used by the Chinese, is employed by the children toward parents, and is considered very amusing. Gambling is a common form of amusement for heathen children in China, and on the streets are often seen these little gamblers using up their leisure moments in this way. They know nothing of the Sabbath. No Sunday school bells call them in to an hour's study of God's word. The Bible is a book unheard of, and its beautiful stories, so eagerly listened to by children in this land, are not familiar to them. Jesus, the child's Saviour, is a name unknown. The heathen mother leads her child to the temple and teaches it to fold its hands and bow down to hideous idols, made of wood and stone, and teaches it to worship before the ancestral tablet at home.

A Word to the Girls.

The little leaflets for the girls of which you sent me a copy I enjoyed very much. I hope it will be widely circulated and do much good among the many girls idly waiting and dreaming of some grand opportunity to "do something and be somebody." It seems to me that now is the time for any and all of these dreaming ones to go to work for the Yates Memorial Fund. They will surely find it a great pleasure, and be much happier when they have done so. How glad I am that so much interest is being manifested in the memorial.

I trust the news of the distressing riots will not discourage any, for good and only good must come out of this for the cause of China. "The blood of the martyrs will be the seed of the church."

We have just had letters from China and Japan. All our missionaries were well except Mrs. Pierce, and she trusts she is well ere this. They have indeed been passing through the waters of affliction in Shanghai, but He has been with them, an ever present help in time of trouble.

I trust our dear sisters of the Missionary Societies have not attributed my silence to want of interest in them and their work. Hope yet to meet with the Societies that have requested me to do so. I would be glad to do or say anything I can to help on this good work.

Praying God's blessings on you and your work, I am,

Yours in Him,
MRS. L. N. CHAPPELL.

Forestville, N. C.

Since the above was written, Mrs. Chappell has herself been passing through deep affliction in the loss of her youngest child and the illness of her older child, brother and sister-in-law, with typhoid fever. Let us hold these faithful missionaries in sympathetic and prayerful remembrance.

My Dear Miss Heck:—I just can not help telling you about our box which was sent off last Tuesday to the Home Missionary in Indian Territory. It was valued at $45 00 and the freight on the one hundred pounds was $2 68. The express was so great that we had to send by freight, but the agent promised to keep a "tracer" after it and get it through as early as possible. If that box, dear sister, does the missionary no good, it did us a great deal of good to get it up. At first we had some opposition; some said it was too far, the box would never reach them, maybe he had more than some poor people at our doors, and perhaps after all there was no such man. But we worked and prayed until the Mission Journal came, and there was a letter from the very sister for whom we were preparing the box. We carried and sent it to the doubters; they laid aside all doubt and came to the front with might and main. Sister J. T. Morehead read the letter to the sisters at Spray where the factories are located, and very nearly all responded gladly. Seven widows gave 25 cents each, three maiden ladies gave a nice new quilt, some gave cloth, etc. At Leaksville proper the ladies gave money, cloth ing, a quilt (the latter given by another widow) and many articles of comfort. We took all the money collected to buy shoes, flannels, domestic, towels, sheets, woolen dresses, bodies and suits for the children. The young ladies and gentlemen of the church paid the freight. The children of the Sunday-school sent two beautiful quilts, toys and candy for the children. Oh, when we ladies who had been so anxious over the box met Monday to value and pack it, found a ready made suit for the preacher, a dress made by a lady for the wife, and more things than we had hoped for, we just had a little season of weeping and praising and rejoicing. Our prayers had all been answered and we were truly happy. Yes, that one hour of rejoicing more than paid us for our contributions, for walking to see the sisters and all. Those few who failed to give any thing are the only losers in this work. May Heaven bless you and Miss Armstrong for starting us in this work.

I must not fail to tell you that we hope to send in our contribution to the Yates Memorial by the third week in November. I will try to see that all the sisters who do not take the RECORDER read the letter in this week's issue concerning the work of "Mother Yates."

MRS B. W. RAY.

Leaksville, N C., Oct. 25

From Missionary Bostick.

Dear Recorder:—Our last mail brought the RECORDER, containing the news and accounts of the death of dear Bro. Bailey. No more now can we begin our letters, as so many had learned to do, "Dear Bro. Bailey." From away off here in the interior of this heathen land, I desire to express my own sense of personal loss, and also my sympathy for the brotherhood at large and especially for the family. I remember with tender feelings some of the late editor's personal kindnesses to me while I was missionary at Concord.

May the good Lord raise up the right man to take charge of the dear old RECORDER and press it on to all the usefulness in the Lord's cause that he desired for it. May its standard for the truth and orthodoxy never be lowered.

I have been thinking recently of how there is no loss in God's economy of things. He often snatches away from some important post some servant, who, from a human standpoint, can ill be spared, but there is always full compensation even in this world, though we may not be able to see it. I have been specially struck with this in thinking of the death of our dear Sister Fannie Knight King. Her death seemed such a loss! No better missionary was ever called to China than she was, and yet she was allowed to live here a little less than six years. But what are some of the first ripe fruits of her death! We were all made to desire a greater nearness to, and more efficient service for, Him whom she loved and served so faithfully. No doubt her death has had a like effect upon the native Christians at Pingtu with whom her missionary life was so intimately connected. But the greatest immediate apparent blessing in connection with her death is the greatly deepened spiritual life of Bro. King to whom it came as such a very heavy blow. He has in the past two months given some most excellent and helpful talks that were like the balm of Gilead. They came as the deepest experience of his bruised heart; and to one who had passed through a similar experience in China as I had, it was evident that he could never have given just these talks but for his recent very sore trial. It makes us sad to look upon the grave, all overgrown with grass but even even now we feel that we are getting compensation out of this sad affliction, and then, too, we know that we shall all gather soon "in the sweet by and by" and know even as we are known.

We do not cease to be grateful to God for the marvelous way in which all of us, who were exposed to the dreadful disease, have been preserved.

We have had some unusually heavy rains this summer, but not such hot weather as we had last summer.

We have all kept in pretty good health so far this summer, and are very thankful for it.

Had I carried out my plans last spring, I should have been about getting to the United States now, but the change wrought by Sister King's death made me feel that it was the will of the Lord that I should postpone, although my motherless little girl in Kentucky greatly needed me since the death of her grandfather last fall. I cannot tell now what I shall do, but am praying that I shall be led of the Lord. My health does not demand that I should go, but I feel sure that a trip home would greatly help me in that respect. But the thing that weighs most in my home going is to make some arrangements for my darling child.

You will have heard of the dreadful riots in west and south China since the war closed. Of the latter we have had no particulars yet, except that all the foreign men in one city were murdered, and the women and children brutally treated. It seems that those parts of China, at least, are taking the lessons of the war to heart but slowly. All is quiet here, and the people apparently friendly.

God bless the RECORDER. Thanks for its continued visits. Fraternally.

NEWS SUMMARY.

North Carolina.

The steamer "Commodore," detained at Wilmington for the supposed cause of having arms on board for the Cuban insurgents, has, by order of court, been discharged from custody as improperly seized. ——The News & Observer of Raleigh, this week, is putting three Mergenthaler type setting machines in its printing office. This addition will displace some six or eight hand compositors employed on the paper. ——Twenty-seven North Carolina teachers were at the educational congress in Atlanta week before last; ten of these were from the Raleigh public schools—Superintendent Howell and nine ladies. ——The amount paid out this year to the State pensioners is published to be $105 000, which is $5,000 over the amount paid last year. The total number of pensioners (soldiers and widows) is 6,143.

In General.

The South Carolina Constitutional Convention, Oct. 29th, defeated the woman suffrage proposition by a vote of 131 to 26. An attempt was made to commit the matter to the control of the Legislature, but that also failed; so there will be no woman suffrage in South Carolina by this Convention. The subject of suffrage is being considered, and it is probable that an educational qualification will be adopted—i. e., a voter must "be able to read the constitution in English print and sign his name." ——A Negro congress will be held in the Exposition grounds at Atlanta, Nov. 11-23 A military display by colored troops will occur during the sitting of the congress. ——Until the social season begins, President Cleveland and family will reside at Woodland, his country seat near Washington, going to the White House, however, whenever his presence is necessary. ——Two murderers were electrocuted in Dannemora, N Y, Oct. 29th. The time occupied in the electrocution was twenty two minutes. ——Judge Lochren, Commissioner of Pensions, in his annual report to the Secretary of the Interior, says there are 970,524 pensioners on the roll. He estimates that the $140,000,000 appropriation will pay the pensions for the fiscal year ending June 30th, 1896 ——A $250 000 fire occurred in Springfield, Ohio, Oct. 30th. The finest hotel in the city, some of the principal stores, and the Western Union and the Postal telegraph offices were consumed. On the same day, Columbus, Ga., had a $35,000 fire. One half of the loss was covered by insurance. The Girls' High School building and ten other buildings, including some handsome residences, were destroyed. ——A special to the N. Y. Herald says that on October 29th, Henry Hilliard, a Negro, was burned to death by a mob on a scaffold erected for the purpose in a public square in Tyler, Texas. The Negro had assaulted and murdered Mrs. Leonard Bell (white) on the day before, and confessed his crime. The husband of the murdered woman applied the torch, and thousands witnessed the burning. The flames were subdued a number of times, then allowed to flash up again, and in this way fifty minutes passed before death ensued.

PORTSMOUTH, VA., Oct. 31, 1895.

Vast problems, which have been uppermost in the minds of the citizens of the United States and other countries, and which are constantly finding their solution in almost everything pertaining to Agriculture, Manufacture, Electricity, Fine Arts, TRANSPORTATION, etc., are well illustrated at the

Cotton States and International Exposition

In the City of Atlanta, Ga.,

which is now pronounced to be in all of its Departments perfect and complete. Recognizing that this Exposition must result in great good, it being in every sense and desiring that the employees of the Seaboard Air Line shall reap that benefit, which should prove profitable alike to themselves and the Company which they serve, we beg to advise that all who have been in the service of the Seaboard Air Line for a period of three months or more, will be furnished with free transportation to Atlanta and return, upon application therefor to their superior officers, and when accompanied by a statement from such officer that such party or parties can be spared from duty without detriment to the Company's interests. Such request for free transportation may include the wife and dependent members of the immediate family of the Employee.

A Vast Educational Institution,

We appreciate that no large number can be spared at any one time, but during the continuance of the Exposition many may avail themselves of this opportunity, and the more that are able to do so, the better.

Applications to your immediate superiors should be made early, and they will receive the best possible consideration.

Acute Rheumatism.

From the Keowee Courier, Walhalla, S. C.

For several years Mrs. Mary Hunter, wife of Mr. William Hunter, of Mountain Rest, Oconee County, S. C., was a constant sufferer from rheumatism and could find no relief, even though she consulted the best doctors and tried every remedy prescribed by the most eminent physicians of the South. But she finally stumbled, as it were, on a medicine which wrought her cure in a simple, but nevertheless a most remarkable, manner. Such was her experience, and for the benefit of suffering humanity she consented to an interview touching her peculiar case.

"Yes, it is true that I had chronic rheumatism of long standing," said Mrs Hunter to a reporter, "and the most celebrated physicians of South Carolina could effect no cure. But I have been cured, and that completely." And she spoke the words with a bright smile and cheerful countenance.

"I am sixty-six years of age," she continued, "and about five years ago I began to suffer from acute rheumatism. The pain soon became constant, and for four years I could find no relief. I could not remain still in any position, either lying, sitting, walking or standing. There was no rest nor ease for me, and thus it continued until life itself became a burden. During these years I consulted several of the most capable and eminent physicians of our our State and took their prescriptions. But short and temporary was the relief afforded by any of them, and some failed to give any relief at all. The malady would return with accumulated force after every period of temporary suspension, and at last it seemed that my case was hopeless."

"About this time I received a letter from my sister, Mrs. Lucinda Stewart, of Texas, who wrote me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and she told me how much good they had done her. She had been sick for seven years, and had had two strokes of paralysis. None of the doctors of Texas could do anything for her, and her cure seemed impossible. But she was told by a friend to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and she at last did so. She wrote that she had taken only half a box when she experienced a decided change for the better, and soon she felt like a young girl again, and even though she was over forty years old. In a short time she was cured, and she is now enjoying good health.

"But, even after receiving that letter, it was some time before I consented to try the pills. I continued to receive treatment from physicians for a year or more, because I had little or no faith in patent medicines of any kind. But finally, being reduced to a dire extremity, and all else failing, I concluded to write for one box of the pills, and did so. Within a week after beginning to take them I commenced feeling better, and when the first box was used I ordered six boxes. But two more boxes effected my cure, and that permanently, too; for during the past year I have been entirely free from rheumatic pains, and count my cure complete. Since then I have given the pills to other members of my family, and in no instance have they failed to give speedy and permanent relief. I am convinced that the pills are all that Dr. Williams claims for them, and more, too. I cheerfully recommend them to all sufferers."

To confirm her statement of facts beyond all doubt, Mrs. Hunter made the following affidavit:

Sworn to before me this, the 9th day of May, A. D. 1895.

(L S) R. T. JAYNES, Notary Public.

Mrs. Hunter is well and favorably known, being the wife of one of Oconee's most successful and substantial farmers. No one can doubt her statement for a moment, and many of her neighbors, moreover, are cognizant of her remarkable cure.

Associations.

PEE DEE.

The Pee Dee Association met at Spring Hill, Richmond county, did its work and adjourned. I think I may safely say that no one who came, went or remained, but felt it "was good to be there." We of Spring Hill are now lonely and sad over the fact that our dear brethren and sisters, whose presence was a joy, are gone, but we are delighted at the work done for God.

All regretted the absence of Dr. Durham, and pray that his sickness may be rebuked, if it is the Lord's will, and that his clarion voice may be heard again ordering to the "charge and victory."

Dr. Mitchell, the "loved disciple," was here, and his presence and words were a benediction. To Dr. Tichenor and Dr. Mitchell, mighty men of God all aglow with love to Jesus, very much of the South's progress heavenward is due. Long may they be spared.

Rev. J. Q Adams of Wadesboro was chosen Moderator, and Bro. W. J. Matthews, Clerk. Both did their work well.

Since the days of Revs. John Monroe and Noah Richardson of blessed memory, we have not had an abler sermon on missions than we enjoyed on Sunday from the Moderator.

We had with us the inimitable Stringfield, for which I think the Baptist Female University will be some thousands the gainer.

Here, too, were Wells of South Carolina, Moore, Blaylock, Boyd and Wright, doing valiantly.

There were "noble women not a few." These had the Temperance and Literary Hall for their special missionary work, and allowed no living man but Adams within their doors. He came out, however, all the better, as his after sermon showed.

Lastly, but not least, the press representatives were here in force. The RECORDER, Charity and Children, N. C. Baptist, and Pee Dee Baptist, all had speeches; but, without disparagement to the others, we thought Charity and Children came out ahead.

Next year the Association meets with the church in Lilesville, Anson county.

Even this hard year the Pee Dee did nobly on all our objects.

May the next Association be as pleasant as this. Truly,

D. MCNEILL.

SOUTH RIVER.

This body of the great Baptist host in North Carolina has just held the nineteenth session with Oliver's Grove church in Johnston county.

A new Moderator was elected, a layman, Bro. Lon. H. Hall, the former Moderator having removed from the county to a distant part of the State; but the old Clerk, Bro. J. B. Downing, was re-elected. He has filled this office for many years, and is very efficient and acceptable to the Association.

The introductory sermon was preached by this scribe, and the missionary sermon by Rev. W. M. Page.

The BIBLICAL RECORDER was represented as usual by our brother, R. N. Butler, who is the Treasurer of the Association, and his efforts for the RECORDER are always seconded by our brethren generally, both in appeals for the paper and in subscriptions. The N. C. Baptist was well represented by Rev. J. W. Cobb, and doubtless many subscribers were secured by him. Both of these excellent exponents of Baptist faith are favorites of the South River Association.

Oliver's Grove church is near the little town of Four Oaks, on the W. & F. R. R., and the open-hearted citizens of that place treated us royally, and seemed delighted to do us honor as a body of the Lord's workers. And the country people were equally free and generous and hospitable to all the delegates and visitors.

The noble pastor of the Baptist church of Four Oaks, Bro. Pulliam, was a great help to the brethren in many respects, and though belonging to another Association (Raleigh) seemed as one of us. He is also the honored pastor of Smithfield Baptist church.

The Association gave all its mission work for the next year into the hands of a general missionary, Rev. John Prevatt, at a salary of $300, whose duty is to travel up and down the length and breadth of the whole bounds, preach and organize, and establish where needed churches in destitute places, visit the mission points already planted, and report at each Union Meeting quarterly. His work will be arduous, but he is able-bodied.

The next session of the Association will be held with Baptist Chapel in Sampson county, N. C., about six miles from Wade on the W. & F. Ry. (A. C. L.)

The various objects of the work were remembered and collections raised as follows: Associational Missions, Foreign Missions (Gospel Plan), Orphanage, Ministerial Relief Fund, &c. But most of the churches that compose South River Association are poor in worldly goods, and the wonder is, to those who know them, that they do as well as they do; but still, there is room for larger consecration and greater self denial, on the part of all, that the gospel be not hindered, both here and in "the regions beyond."

It was the general regret among us that no one from the College (Wake Forest) visited us at this session; no brother, as agent, represented the Female University; no one of the gifted speakers on ministerial education was present to tell us of the struggles and difficulties of our young brethren, the many "Timothys" now endeavoring to prepare for the work of saving souls, under God; and we all felt the need of the inspiring presence of the leaders just on these great themes. Maybe, some of them will come to us next time.

W. B. HARRELL.

MARRIED.

HOLLEMAN—THRAILKILL—On October 27th 1895, at the residence of the bride's father, W. J. Thrailkill, in Chatham county, N. C., by Rev. J. M. Holleman, Mr. J. Raymond Holleman and Miss Notie Thrailkill, all of Chatham county.

DIED.

WHITE—Bro. Kader White, deacon of Roes' church, Bertie county, departed this life Sept. 1st, 1895, aged seventy-eight years. He leaves a wife and several children to mourn their loss. One of his daughters is a member of Green's Cross Church. A kinder woman to her pastor never lived. He lies in the old family graveyard. The funeral was conducted by Rev. S. F. Bristoe. God bless the bereaved. Their loss is his eternal gain.

G. W. WHITE.

Rockyhock, N. C.

HUDSPETH—At the residence of his son, A. E. Hudspeth, near Rock Cut, Iredell county, N. C. after a few hours sickness, brother John T. Hudspeth fell asleep in Christ Tuesday, Oct. 22d, 1895, aged nearly sixty-five years, leaving a wife and six children.

Bro. Hudspeth was led to Christ at the age of fifteen years, and so far as I can learn has been an active and consistent Christian in all his dealings from that time, and a blessing to all about him. Having recently moved to this community, he had just a few months ago placed his membership with Bethel Baptist church, this county, where he has been ever active in all departments of the work. So that in every way he will be greatly missed by all. May our God sanctify this grief to his family's good, and lead them nearer and nearer the mind of our coming Lord.

W. J. HOPKINS.

Rock Cut, N. C.

FEREBEE—Died at his home in Camden county, Oct. 16th, Bro. Wiley G. Ferebee, in the thirty-seventh year of his age. Sawyer's Creek church and community have sustained a great loss. Perhaps no man among us, certainly no one of his age, will be so sadly missed as he. Engaged in various enterprises, he gave employment to many people, and was kind and helpful to all. He was prominent in church work, superintending for years the Sunday-school, punctual in attendance upon the prayer meeting and all church services, and a liberal contributor to every benevolent object. Naturally buoyant he knew how to inspire others with his own hopefulness, and many times succeeded when the faint-hearted and despondent prophecied disaster and failure. He was a good strategist and knew how to bring things to pass.

His stricken family give him up with tears and aching hearts. He loved them devotedly, and planned liberally for their welfare. Truly he was a tender, loving husband, father, son and brother. O, the mystery of the Divine ordering! In the prime and vigor of life, his sun goes down while it is yet day! We are comforted by the words of Jesus, "What I do, thou knowest not now, but thou shalt know hereafter." God comfort the bereaved ones, and console them with the thought that "all things work together for good to them that love God."

W.

HALL—Bro. Oliver Hall departed this life Sunday night, Oct. 13th, 1895. The deceased was born at Beaver Dam, Cumberland county, April 2d, 1830, and connected himself with the Beaver Dam Baptist church in 1855, in which he lived a conservative member for twenty years. Then he removed to Abbottsburg, Bladen county, in 1875, and connected himself with the Abbottsburg Baptist church, in which he was ordained a deacon in 1885. He was faithful to his charge. For several months prior to his death he suffered intense pain from heart trouble and dropsy, yet he bore it with all patience. His death was not unexpected. He was a conservative Christian and devoted husband and father. Through his death the Abbottsburg Baptist church sustains a great loss and an efficient member and laborer for the advancement of the cause of Christ's kingdom here on earth. He lived and died clinging steadfast to the cross of Christ, and to-day we feel confident that Bro. Hall is in a haven of rest and happiness, where all pain and anguish is no more, and where the dead in body but living in the spirit of holiness await that great and most dreaded of all happenings, to some—the judgment.

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth; yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors; and their works do follow them."

His wife, son and daughter still survive him. We extend our sympathies to the bereft ones. His burial was witnessed by a host of friends and relatives. He was buried in the Cashwell graveyard.

PASTOR.

Tributes of Respect.

WHEREAS, It has pleased God to call from our midst on Oct. 16th, 1895, our Bro. W. G. Ferebee, and while the death of such a useful man is an unseen mystery, yet we bow submissively to his will, knowing that "he doeth all things well."

Resolved 1. That we the Sunday-school, do deeply sympathize with the family and friends of our departed brother, and ask an Allwise Father to strengthen and comfort them in their bereavement.

2. That in his death Sawyer's Creek church and Sunday-school have lost a strong member and a faithful worker, and that the community has lost a good neighbor and loyal citizen.

3. That a copy of this be spread upon the minutes of the Sunday-school, a copy be sent to the family of the deceased, and copies be sent to the BIBLICAL RECORDER, Atlantic Baptist and Economist for publication.

BUFFALO {Spring No. 2.} LITHIA WATER

A SOLVENT FOR CALCULI IN THE BLADDER.

Its Value in Bright's Disease of the Kidneys, the Gouty Diathesis, &c.

Dr. William A. Hammond, Washington, D. C., Surgeon-General U. S. Army (retired), formerly Professor of Diseases of the Mind and Nervous System in the University of New York, etc.

"I have for some time made use of the BUFFALO LITHIA WATER in cases of affections of the nervous system, complicated with Bright's Disease of the Kidneys or with a Gouty Diathesis. The results have been eminently satisfactory. Lithia has for many years been a favorite remedy with me in like cases, but the Buffalo Water certainly acts better than any extemporaneous solution of the Lithia Salts, and is, moreover, better borne by the stomach. I also often prescribe it in those cases of Cerebral Hyperæmia resulting from over mental work—in which the condition called Nervous Dyspepsia exists—and generally with marked benefit, and as a matter of prime importance it is not to be forgotten that the composition of the BUFFALO LITHIA WATER is such, and the experience of its use so complete, that no doubt exists of its great power, not only as a solvent for calculi already in the bladder, but of the diseases of such calculi existing in the blood."

This Water is for sale by druggists generally, or in cases of one dozen half-gallon bottles $5.00 f.o.b. at the Springs. Descriptive pamphlets sent to any address.

The Dearest Spot on Earth is the spot that's washed out without Pearline. It costs in clothes, in the rubbing and scrubbing that wears them out quickly; it takes twice the time, and double the labor. It's expensive washing before you get through with it—and the cost comes home to you, no matter who does the work.

Pearline saves money by saving work, wear, and time. It hurts nothing; washes and cleans everything. It costs no more than common soap, but it does more. It's cheap to begin with—but it's cheapest in the end.

Beware of imitations of PEARLINE which are being peddled from door to door. JAMES PYLE, New York.

"I made Josiah a handsome dressing gown out of some sofa covering I had in the house. It was very dressy with its beautiful tassels."

What Do They Say?

Table Talk publishes some verses from an unclaimed poem, which will tenderly appeal to many stricken hearts:

"Oh, what do you think the angels say?"
Said the children up in heaven,
"There's a dear little girl coming home to-day,
She is almost ready to fly away
From the earth we used to live in.
Let's go and open the gates of pearl,
Open them wide for this dear little girl,"
Said the children up in heaven.

"Far on earth, do you hear them weep?"
Said the children up in heaven,
"For the dear little girl has gone to sleep.
The shadows fall, and the night clouds sweep,
O'er the earth we used to live in—
But we'll go and open the gates of pearl,
Oh, why do they weep for the little girl?"
Said the children up in heaven.

"God wanted her here where his little ones meet!"
Said the children up in heaven.
"She shall play with us in the golden street,
She had grown too fair, she had grown too sweet,
For the earth we used to live in;
She needed the sunshine, this dear little girl,
That glids this side of the gates of pearl,"
Said the children up in heaven.

"Fly with her quickly, O angels dear!"
Said the children up in heaven.
"See! She is coming: Look there! Look there!
At the jasper light on her sunny hair
Where the veiling clouds are riven—
Oh, hush, hush, hush! The swift wings furl,
For the King himself at the gates of pearl,
Is taking her hand, dear tired little girl;
And leading her into heaven!"

Racie's Dream.

Racie's work every morning was to get up early enough to dress herself, and then dress Wilfred before the prayer bell rang.

Mamma was busy getting breakfast, and papa was out seeing the cattle fed on the farm, and the two little folks had the up stairs to themselves.

Sometimes it was a nice time, and sometimes it wasn't. When Racie did not dawdle too much over her own dressing, and then hurry too much over Wilfred's, they had merry laughs and "pretends."

But for some mornings Racie had been staying in bed a while after mamma called her, and that put her in a flutter, and put Wilfred in a fret, and the times were growing stormy.

One morning sister dressed herself very quickly, and then said, "Come, Billy boy, get up, up, up, right quick, quick, quick, and get in the tub, tub, tub."

"I don't want to get up," said Wilfred; "you'll wash me too hard, and pull my hair."

"Just try me," said Racie, "and see if I don't dress you as nice and easy as mamma."

This got Wilfred up in a jiffy, and sure enough dressing was good fun that morning.

"Don't you want to know what makes me so nice, to day?" asked Racie, as she coaxed the comb through the baby's tangles.

"Yes; what?"

"Well, I dreamed last night that God sent his angels to take you up to heaven, and when I found you were gone, I cried and cried because I hadn't let you play with my blocks yesterday. So when I woke up and found you asleep in your crib, I was as happy as anything, and I made up my mind to be real nice to you."

"But I don't want to go to heaven yet," said Wilfred looking troubled.

"Oh dear, no," cried Racie; dreams don't mean that. But I guess Conscience got tired talking to me in the day-time, 'cause I wouldn't listen, and she just put that little dream in my head at night."

"And I can play with your blocks to-day?" said Wilfred; he didn't know much about Conscience, but he could understand blocks.

"Yes," said Racie, with a little sigh: she thought Conscience was rather hard on her about the blocks, "but Conscience must know best," she said to herself resolutely.—E. P. A., in Sunbeam.

How To Feed Horses.

How few farmers think of having a rule for feeding horses or other kinds of farm animals, and when there was a rule, it was irrational and only to guide the boys in doing the chores.

Let us see, half an ear of corn was a full grain ration for a sheep; so many, a dozen or fifteen, nubbins was quite enough corn for a cow; six to ten ears of corn twice a day was a full feed for a work horse; one ear of corn twice a day was all a yearling or two year old colt needed.

How is it now, when stock raising is a science, and feeding as well as feeds have been considered on economical and rational formulas?

The experiment stations of the United States, with every facility for learning the facts, have been supplying information all along these lines, and the following, on feeding work horses, is well worth the consideration of every man owning a horse:

"Feed horses at hard work on four pounds of wheat bran and eight pounds of provender (consisting of four hundred pounds of cracked corn to fifteen bushels of oats) daily, with all the hay they want. This ration gave the best results at the Massachusetts Experiment Station for horses weighing about 1,000 pounds, but proportionately more grain is fed to heavier horses. For medium work, three pounds bran and six pounds provender per head daily is used, and for light work, two pounds bran and four pounds provender."—Southern Cultivator.

The Girl at Church.

You pride yourself on your politeness. You count yourself a well mannered girl and would be very indignant if you were told that you were lacking in ordinary politeness. When you are invited out you are careful not only to be prompt but to be considerate of your hostess. What consideration do you show God when you go to His house? Too often you come in late, seat yourself with a little noise and do not hesitate to turn and twist until you feel that your skirt is arranged exactly right and you are quite comfortable. Then you give a sigh as you look at the preacher. He is one whose sermons you do not admire, so while he is trying to do his duty you coolly read your prayer-book or hymnal, or look around the congregation, and catching the eye of a friend, give a shrug of disgust. When the sermon is over you give vent to a sigh of thankfulness, and you never seem to realize that this bad behavior on your part is bad behavior not only to the clergyman, but to that God whose representative he is.

When the collection is taken up you look here and there and everywhere to see who is depositing a bank-note. Before the benediction is said, you crane yourself like a bird with its plumage so that you will be ready to start out the very minute it is ended. I do not suppose you realize for a moment how dreadful this is. How it is giving an opportunity to an unbeliever to say, "What can these Christians think of their God when they are so impolite to Him?" Then you do something else. In your church the pews are rented. When you enter, you close the door and give no poor sinner an opportunity to sit beside you, and yet, in the sight of God you are all alike, and before Him the rich and the poor stand together to be judged.—Ruth Ashmore, in Ladies' Home Journal.

The Alphabet of Health.

All healthy folks are active and bright.
Be sure to go to bed early each night.
Children, be careful, and keep dry feet—
Damp shoes are neither healthful nor neat.
Eat slowly, and choose the simplest food—
Fresh fruit is dainty, and tempting, and good.
Garments should never be worn too tight—
Hats should always be airy and light.
If you would be happy and healthy and gay,
Just stay in the sunshine the livelong day.
Let your dress and your home be always neat.
Many have died from like of pure air.
No child can keep well without constant care.
Old rags and trash should never be kept—
People thrive best in a house well swept.
Quick motion brings to boys and girls
Red cheeks, bright eyes, and dancing curls.
See that the water you drink is pure.
'Tis better than coffee or tea, I am sure.
Use all your wits to prevent mistakes;
For sad are the troubles they often make.
Walk every day as much as you can;
Exercise makes the strong woman or man.
Your health is your wealth, and well worth pain—
Zeal in its care is never in vain.

A Dangerous Pet.

There are some things which are too dangerous to be petted

There is a story of a gentleman who got a serpent called a python, fifteen feet long, and kept it in his warehouse to clear out the rats. It was allowed to creep about at its will, and the workers got used to it, as it seemed perfectly harmless and was as docile as a dog. They could stroke it and amuse themselves with it, and even ventured betimes to tease it. But one morning a shriek attracted the attention of the workers of the warehouse, and on looking a German boy engaged in the office was seen holding on to a cask, while the serpent uncoiled its body from that of the boy. He had been playing with and teasing the reptile. At last, venturing to tread on its tail, it caught him by the throat and threw three powerful coils around him, crushing nearly every bone in his body.

The workers were surprised that a creature so gentle as this python had seemed should so suddenly change its aspect. But they need not be surprised—the serpent was just acting out its real nature.

There are men who seem mild and meek, and even pious, who yet are really serpents and a generation of vipers, and will by and by show their real nature to those who trust them.

There are habits and passions and sins which seem mild and meek and innocent and harmless for the present, but beware! Satan, though transformed into an angel of light, is still the same old serpent as from the beginning. The hidden sin petted and cherished will break loose at last and ravage and destroy. The wine cup, though it sparkles and dances to day, at the last "biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder."—The Little Christian.

A Tribute to Baptists.

In a recent sermon, Rev. Dr. B. H. Carroll of Waco, Texas, paid the following tribute to American Baptists:

"I affirm that there would have been no First Amendment to the Constitution of the United States had it not been for the Baptists. They stood upon the Bible, and, therefore each of the local churches was independent of others, and utterly separate from any hierarchy. And let the Baptist ship sail on, loaded with her cargo of civil and religious liberty, the right of conscience, and the unmanacled minds of men. May she sail through storm and breakers until she comes into the perfected kingdom and force of God."

THE country is to be congratulated upon having successfully gotten rid of two revolting murder trials, an international society-wedding with the ridiculous newspaper details, a great foot-ball game, a prize-fight, and elections in thirteen States, all in a week. The murderers were convicted, the happy couple duly wedded, the foot-ball players played an unusually bloodless game, the plans of the prize-fighters were frustrated, the elections went Republican; and the newspapers are again dependent on the European war cloud, Cuba's struggle for liberty, the woes innumerable of the Armenians, and the approaching session of Congress for news wherewith to fill their spacious columns.

SUPERINTENDENT JOARBOROUGH says the Greensboro State Normal School will get from the Peabody Fund this year $500 more than last year—that is, $2,500. Then of the remaining $3,500 to come from the Peabody Fund, $1,000 will go to the six colored normal schools; also certain amounts will go to the Clinton graded schools and the Durham colored graded schools.

George Peabody did the world a great service in teaching it by example what to do with a fortune; he did the South a service for which she should ever honor him, in devoting his millions permanently to her enlightenment when she was most in need of friends. The good that has in these two ways been done can not be measured.

Before Peabody's time estates were almost invariably handed from father to son; but since then men of wealth who use their money for the common good have appeared more frequently. There are plenty of close-fisted millionaires yet living, but the proportion of those who give largely has very perceptibly increased in the last half century, and there is reason to hope that when the wealthy come to know the poor better, and are themselves better known, there will be more rapid increase.

Last week Rockefeller's magnificent gift of $3,000,000 to Chicago University was announced. Quickly following comes the news that Mr. Andrew Carnegie has given the city of Pittsburg, Pa., a million dollar library, music hall and art gallery, which latter he proposes to endow with a million dollars. At the same time it was announced that he will build free libraries in three other Pennsylvania foundry towns.

The more such gifts as these millionaire's make, the better for them and the country; and it is not beyond reason to look for a day when they are a hundred fold more frequent than now.

WE SAID some weeks ago that the verse of Eugene Field, who died last week, was more to our liking than that of many a more highly esteemed poet. It requires no philosophy, no straining of the imagination, to fall in with the spirit of his lines. He wrote for the common people, his sentiment was of every-day life, of home and childhood; and he wrote with a simplicity and a tenderness not surpassed by any poet. There is a poem by him in this paper which shows the nature and the quality of his poetry. He was original, too, and commendably so, in that he never composed a love poem, until about a year ago, when he was persuaded to do so by a magazine which no doubt published it because it was the only one.

WE HAVE had somewhat to say about the State Fair. We have been persuaded by experience that the present institution is a failure. It does not represent the State; it is not worthy of the State. Moreover, it is a financial failure; is now halting about its obligations. It has lived its life, has had a fair chance and more encouragement than it deserved, but it has not proved equal to the reasonable expectations of its friends and promoters.

But the State ought to have a fair, ought to have some regular institution for the exhibition of her resources, for the industrial and social culture of her people. The intercourse of the people and the exhibition of the products of every section ought to be encouraged. The fact that one plan has failed does not make sure that others will. In fact, we are sure some plan can be adopted that will be thoroughly successful.

In the first place, the fair should not be confined to one place. Charlotte, Greensboro, Durham, Winston Salem, Newbern, Wilmington, Goldsboro, and other towns, are as capable as Raleigh in this respect, and their claims should be heard. Rotation would be the first step toward success. It would interest more people in the fair, and would multiply its benefits. We would suggest further that fairs be held only once in two years, and that the appropriation now used by two fairs be devoted to one.

Raleigh has had the State Fair so long that she makes no effort for it. There is no other town to rival her, and there is very little inducement to do her best. But if the towns of the State were recognized as having equal claim, and the place of holding the fair be determined by the outlay a town is willing to make, there would be ample reason for exertion, and local pride would be aroused to a wholesome degree.

If our contemporaries in the State will take this matter up, we are sure something good will come of it. We have no doubt that most of them are in favor of rotation, and a large majority of the people.

"THIS new venture (N. C. Prison Association) marks an event of importance in the history of our State. It signifies progress; it implies the onward march of civilization; it indicates the upward pressure of the millenial forces. Let all within whom shines the light of Christianity come to the meeting, for here shall be known no race, party or creed. Philanthropy is true religion set to music." We are not surprised to find this grandiloquent paragraph at the end of a call for a meeting to organize a N. C. Prison Association to "ameliorate the condition" of convicts. The paragraph means nothing, of course. It was not intended to mean anything. The writer of it no doubt had more regard to its "sound" and appearance than its sense. Of that last quality we could not expect to find even a trace in a call for citizens to organize in behalf of the criminal inmates of our penitentiary, so lugubriously called "unfortunates."

In the first place convicts are not unfortunates; they are criminals. A man who commits crime deserves to suffer. Last week we spoke of the way good people have of handling well-dressed gamblers (future dealers) with soft gloves. What shall we say of this new organization in the name of "true religion set to music," in behalf of out and out criminals? Do the promoters of it really think that convicts ought to have eiderdown quilts, electric conveniences, and meals to order? Would they have the convict enjoy penitentiary life? Or are they making their high-sounding pleas just to get into the papers; organizing for want of ability to do something else?

What is a penal institution? What is a penitentiary, anyway? It is a place of punishment, not a reformatory. The convict, the law-breaker, has forfeited his civil rights. The penitentiary is not to reform him; but to punish. He has deserved punishment. His fare should be frugal, his labor hard, his rest brief. There is no danger that our convicts will be cruelly treated. There are too many ways for them to make it known. The State provides for them a visiting committee of the State Board of Charities. And the actual fact now is, the superintendent of the penitentiary is anxious certain to have laws changed so that he can put in operation new rules in order to prevent convicts from returning to the penitentiary a third time. Let us be careful how we tolerate pleas for convicted criminals. Let us be slow to suggest that a man makes friends by committing crime. Let the North Carolina Prison Association, now in its beginning, question seriously if it has a mission of good or evil.

DEAN FARRAR of Canterbury, the best known man in the Episcopal church of England, made a bolder and a more meaning statement than could have been expected of him, when he said, "I can see no positive proof that Roman Catholicism as such is gaining to any appreciable extent in England, although it is perfectly true, and very grievously true, that doctrines once regarded as distinctively Roman Catholic are now taught on every side in the Church of England." That is, instead of Rome winning England back to herself, England is making a Rome of her own.

He Leads Us On.

He leads us on
By paths we do not know,
Upward He leads us though our steps be slow;
Though oft we faint and falter on the way,
Though storms and darkness oft obscure the day,
Yet, when the clouds are gone,
We know he leads us on.

The Cedars of Lebanon, or Growth in Grace.

BY REV. SAM. J. PORTER, NEWBERN, N. C.

"He shall grow like a cedar in Lebanon." Psalm 92: 12.

The Lebanon mountains are situated to the north of Palestine, and about twenty miles from the Mediterranean or Great Sea, and many of their peaks rise to a height of nearly 10,000 feet above the sea level. In ancient times, and, to some extent, even at the present day, these mountains were covered, far and near, with immense forests of stately cedar trees, which, at an early day, became proverbial for their grandeur, strength and beauty.

Probably King David visited this charming mountain retreat and admired the wonderful handiwork of Nature. Certain it is that we all might gather many valuable lessons from nature, if only we would take time to learn them. The beautiful and instructive parables of our Lord show us how admirably nature serves as a medium for conveying religious truth.

Reflecting on the remarkable growth of these far-famed cedars, the Psalmist, who was probably none other than King David, seems to turn to the somewhat kindred subject of growth in grace, and exclaims, "The righteous shall flourish like the palm tree: he shall grow like a cedar in Lebanon. Since by "the righteous" is meant the Christian, let us read the text thus: "The Christian shall grow like a cedar in Lebanon."

Then, as there can be no growth without life, we infer that Christianity is a life, and not a mere theory, or code of morals, to which we must subscribe in order to become Christians. Christ says of himself, "I am the life." And no man can be a Christian until the divine and eternal life is planted within his heart. How shall we know that we have this life? We answer, by the growth which is sure to follow. And what kind of growth is this? What is it like? Our text answers the question. God's Word says, "grow like a cedar in Lebanon." Invoking the Holy Spirit's guidance, let us inquire how does the cedar of Lebanon grow.

1. These cedars grow from small seeds. They did not spring into existence in a day, but sprouting up from tiny seeds they grew and grew, as the years came and went, until they became the towering giants of the forest, their spreading branches reaching upward and outward, literally covering the sides and summits of the great mountains. "The kingdom of heaven is like to a grain of mustard seed, which a man took, and sowed in his field; which indeed is the least of all seeds; but when it is grown, it is the the greatest among herbs, and becometh a tree." A little germ of faith in the heart can be cultivated until it becomes as strong as the faith of Daniel or Paul. Do not be discouraged, dear young Christian, if you find your faith weak; it is the quality and not the quantity of faith that saves. Remember that the tall cedar tree grew gradually from a small seed, and your faith, though weak and small, may grow until it reaches up into the very heavens.

2. These cedar trees grew from within. They did not grow from without—that would not be real growth. All true growth must come from within. Branches nailed or tied to the tree are no evidence that they grew from the tree. The real branch springs from within the tree, and partakes of its very life and strength. And so good resolutions and outward acts are no evidence of growth in grace unless they spring from a heart full of faith and love and sincerity.

3. Again, they grew straight up and were not twisted and bent out of shape. So must the Christian grow straight up towards God and heaven. Oh, dear Christian brother, do not bend to the right nor to the left, be not driven about by every false doctrine and prejudice, but be like the strong, upright cedar tree. Do not be a reed shaken by every wind, but always see to it that you grow upright. Do you know the meaning of the term upright man? Why, it means a man who is upright, or right up, just as you please—a man who is straight-up and down just like the straight up cedar tree. Let us strive to be upright Christians.

4. And then the cedars of Lebanon grew to be very tall trees, rising high above all the other trees and shrubbery about them. In this respect, too, we must grow. It is not only our duty, but our privilege as well, to be full grown men and women in Christ Jesus—"to reach the stature of manhood, and be of ripe age to receive the fulness of Christ; that we should no longer be children."—(Ephesians 4: 13, Conybeare and Howson's Edition). Why should we be satisfied to be poor withered shrubs, when it is our privilege to become lofty cedar trees growing up towards the skies? Who is willing to be a puny dwarf, when he may as easily be a strong giant. We should not be so soon satisfied with our attainments in the Christian life, but fired with a holy ambition, should aspire to grow towards the upper world. It has been my happy privilege to number among my intimate friends some few Christians who had grown so tall in grace, that, while their feet rested upon the earth, their heads and hearts seemed to reach up into heaven itself. My constant prayer and desire for you, dear reader, is that you may become like these chosen children of God.

5. They grew on the mountains, and not down in the valleys and marshes. And we need not be surprised to find that we are making but little progress in Christian growth so long as we remain in the marshes and valleys of intemperance, self-indulgence, doubt and cold indifference. The atmosphere and soil of such places are not favorable to Christian growth. Let us move up on the mountains of faith, devotion and prayer, where the atmosphere is pure, and free from the poisonous influences which cripple our growth, and where the life-giving light from the Sun of Righteousness may shed its quickening rays upon us.

6. These trees were evergreen. The bright beauty and sweet fragrance of their foliage were perennial. Nipped by the frosts, shaken by the storms, and covered with the snows of winter, the surrounding foliage faded and fell, and the neighboring trees appeared as dead. But the pinching cold only deepened the green hue, and the white snow brought out in stronger relief the evergreen qualities of the cedar trees. If we would have our growth in grace to be permanent and real, we must be evergreen Christians. Be just as good a Christian on Monday morning as you are on Sunday morning; be as devout at your place of business as you are in the church; be as cordial to the members of your own family as you are to the new preacher; pray in your closet with as much earnestness as you do when called on to pray in the congregation. Be as bright and cheerful in winter as in summer, and do not stay away from church on account of the heat nor the cold. Do not be a Sunday Christian, nor a fair-weather Christian, but be an evergreen Christian. Be a Christian all the time and under all circumstances, if you would promote your growth in grace.

7. The remarkable strength of these trees to resist the wild fury of the storms of many centuries was due to the fact that their roots grew far into the very heart of the mountains, penetrating deep into the fissures and crevices of the huge rocks and taking fast hold among the great mountain bowlders. Grown thus securely into this foundation immovable as the earth itself, they defied the fierce winds and played with the storm, and remind us of the great and sure foundation into which the Christian must grow, even Jesus Christ, the eternal and unmovable Rock of Ages. Rock of Ages—cleft, broken, fissured for me, let the roots of my faith be hidden and grown into Thee! Dear Christian, if you wish to stand up against the wild storms of doubt, gloom, temptation, disappointment, sickness and death, you must be firmly fixed upon the eternal Christ. Let the roots of your faith grow and entwine themselves around Him who was broken and wounded for you. May you be thus grown into Christ, so that you "may be able to withstand in the evil day, and having done all, to stand."

Let us notice some other things about these trees, which, though not directly connected with their growth, may offer to us some useful suggestions

8. Some trees present an external appearance of soundness and strength, while beneath the surface the entire heart is decayed. And as a result they soon become the victims of the storm. But these cedar trees were not only strong in appearance, but were sound to the core. During fair weather, the hypocrite may appear to be a strong Christian, but sooner or later, the storm will come which will break and blow away his mask and lay bare his rotten, deceptive heart. As among the trees of the forest, the test may be long in coming, but come it inevitably will, if not before the final judgment, assuredly then. But he who is thoroughly sound and sincere at heart has nothing to fear.

9. The cedars of Lebanon were highly aromatic,—their sweet, health-giving fragrance being born away by the passing breezes to regions far and near, strikingly emblematic of the Christian's influence, which, like a delicious perfume, is perceived, with a thrill of grateful pleasure by all around. Who can measure the powerful influence for good from a godly man's life? Who can know the length and depth and breadth of the influence of a pious mother over her son? How such precious influences gladden and sweeten the lives of us all!

10. One other thought: One day there is heard through the mountain coves the sound of cutting and crashing. What is it? The woodmen have entered the forests of Lebanon, and are felling the stately cedars which for centuries have adorned the mountain's brow. Why thus cruelly despoil the beauties and grandeur of nature and rob the forest of its boasted glory? Where once stood the beautiful trees, now is seen nothing but the withered branches and the scraggy stumps. What does it all mean? Why, down in Canaan at Jerusalem, King Solomon is preparing to build a magnificent temple to the Lord God of heaven and earth, and for completing and beautifying this splendid structure, no material can be found more suitable than the beautiful red wood of the cedars of Lebanon. And so the men go into the mountains, cut down the trees, and hew out the timber, and float it down to Jerusalem, where, without so much as the sound of the hammer or the axe or any other tool, the beautiful cedar planks, overlaid with pure gold, are given a prominent place in the house of the living God. For a moment, think of our world as Mount Lebanon. On every hand, the cruel axe-man, Death, is felling the splendid cedar trees. And with a crash and a fall which tear our affections and wound our hearts, the loved ones are taken from our midst, and borne from our view beyond the deep chilly river. What does it all mean? Why are our hearts and homes and churches bereft by the removal of those whom we can so ill afford to spare? Then listen. The Great King of the heavenly Canaan is preparing for himself in the New Jerusalem a great spiritual temple, or mansion, into which must be collected the richest treasures of the universe. He sees the goodly cedars of our Lebanon, and sends his angels to cut them down and bear them away over the sea of death to the bright city of love, where they are given a place in that house not made with hands eternal in the heavens. Let us pray that we all may grow like the cedars in Lebanon, and finally be given a place in that beautiful temple which the Great King is building in the New Jerusalem.

Annual Calls—A Rejoinder.

I did not intend to provoke discussion, or to continue the discussion of this subject. But it appears to have elicited considerable interest; and well it may, for anything pertaining to the welfare of Christian churches is of vast importance. The manner of doing work has a great deal to do with the success or failure of a cause. With all due respect to those who favor annual calls, I do not see that they have given a single solid reason for their preference. My reasons for indefinite calls have been fired at from North Caroline and Virginia, but I think they stand unhit and unhurt. The more I read of what is said in favor of annual calls, and the more I see and know of their bad results, the more I am convinced that indefinite calls are infinitely better both for churches and pastors. I have seen both tested and know the difference. The relationship between New Testament churches and pastors does not afford a shadow of support to annual calls. Is there even an intimation that pastors were elected by churches annually? Does it say, Acts 14: 23, that they "ordained them elders in every church," for one year at a time? It ought so to read, if annual calls are scriptural. A study of the relationship between churches and pastors of the New Testament favors only the idea of permanency.

The only two officers of New Testament churches are pastors and deacons. In Acts, sixth chapter, where deacons were first chosen, nothing is said about appointing them annually. Neither does the New Testament say anything about appointing pastors annually. Nearly all Baptist churches appoint deacons for life or good behavior. Why make the office of deacon more permanent than that of pastor? Can either Scripture or reason be given for so doing?

In a recent issue of the RECORDER, a Virginia brother said: "It would be unpleasant for deacons to tell a pastor privately that it was best for him to resign." Why should it be "unpleasant?" As officers of the church, it ought to be a part of their duty to know the condition of things in their church, and if, after careful investigation and consultation, they are sure it would be best for the pastor to resign, they ought kindly, candidly and privately tell him so, and let him quietly resign, and be saved the mortification and injury of being voted out.

Again, the contract between the church and pastor should be such as to prevent this from being an "unpleasant" duty. The contract should be something like this: When the pastor has reasons for changing, he is to give the church two or three months' previous notice, so they can get another pastor. If the church wishes a change, she, through her deacons privately, and two or three months previously, informs her pastor of her wish. This gives him time to secure other work. There should be nothing "unpleasant" in complying with a contract.

"But," one brother says, "it makes a pastor feel good to be recalled each year." I wonder if it would make a husband "feel good" to be turned off by his wife and be remarried annually? Would there not be as much "good feeling," and as much good sense in one as the other?

Another brother seems to favor annual calls because two preachers, whose names he gives, favor them. I know more than two of our best preachers who do not favor them, and regard them as unwise and hurtful to our cause. This brother further says that "churches favor annual calls." I know churches that have tried the indefinite call from ten to twenty odd years that could not be persuaded to change from it. If they like their pastor, they can keep him without the trouble of annual calls; if they do not like him, they can get rid of him at any time in any year. ANTI-ANNUAL.

Avoid "Theatricals" in Well Doing.

Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven. Matt. 5: 16.

Take heed that ye do not your alms before men to be seen of them. Matt. 6: 1.

Cavillers sometimes cite these texts as contradicting one another. Farthest possible from it. The words translated "seen" are different in the two texts. The word in the former text signifies "known." Christians should abound in good works, in order that men may be led, through the knowledge of these works, to glorify the Father in heaven. In the latter text, the root of the original is the same as that of the word "theater," and the idea is "to be seen as a theatrical show" by men. The contrast is very sharp.

Let your good works abound, that by the knowledge of them men may be led to glorify your Father in heaven.

Don't make "theatricals" of your well doing, for your own glory and the praise of men.—From "Helping" by Rev. Isabella Horsley.

J. W. BAILEY, - - - - - EDITOR.
J. C. CADDELL, AGENT AND CORRESPONDENT.

THE reader will find the symposium, "How my Church Paper Helps Me," interesting and very suggestive. It will help you and your religious paper if you will think a while on that line yourself, and then talk it over with your neighbor.

IT IS to be hoped that the custom established in a few churches of making Thanksgiving Day (Nov. 28th) a day of collections for the orphans, will be generally observed this year. Surely in the sight of the Lord this is a most acceptable way of observing the day.

WHAT we do for State Missions let us do quickly. Every pastor, every church, every Sunday-school, and every Baptist, can join in to bring our Board to the Convention out of debt, by prayer or contribution or exhortation, or, better still, all three. Less than three weeks remain. But that is time enough if the zeal of the Baptist hosts is aroused.

THE North Carolina Baptist Sunday-school Supply Store is the property of the Baptists of North Carolina. It is run by their capital, conducted in their interest, and the profits which it makes are given to missions. We have felt that our people are not so well acquainted with this work as they should be. We hope they will read the advertisement in this number, and if they are interested in Baptist literature, periodicals (musical or standard), they ought to give their own enterprise a chance to serve them.

EVERY Baptist in the State has business at Greensboro the first week in December; and every Baptist ought to be there in person or through a representative. Every pastor ought to attend on general principles, that is, for his own, his church's and the Convention's good; and if there is one who lacks means to buy a railroad ticket, it will be eminently in place for his people to send him. The happiest pastor there will be the one whose church has arrayed him in a new suit and sent him to the Convention. A pastor is touched by tokens of love or appreciation like any other man.

Our Convention suffers by reason of the small number of laymen who actively interest themselves in its plans. But for a few ardent brethren who attend regularly, the pastors would have to shoulder all the responsibility. Convention business is like any other business, and business principles should be regarded. There is no broader field in the State for business men of the Baptist faith to make themselves useful than that offered by our Convention.

IT IS a pity that the question of literature has been brought into the young people's movements. Surely there are enough obstacles without that of rival organs and publications.

When we took up the cause of a Southern Union we had no view to the literature question. Our purpose was to secure a general organization of the young people which would conform strictly to our Baptist teaching and be entirely within the control of each church. We did not think a new organization made a special literature necessary.

The question of literature in our denomination is a more troublesome one than it ought to be. The Baptist churches and the Baptist people are free to take such literature as they choose. Publications of all sorts must stand on their merits. This rule should obtain in the young people's work as well as all other. If the Southern Union about to be offers a literature to Southern young people, let the young people in each society be free to say whether or not it is better adapted to their needs than any other.

The Western Recorder not unwisely observes that the organ part of many of these movements is all there is to them. The circulation of a paper, the building up of an influence and an income is the heighth and depth of much of the ardor for organizations. Our Baptist denomination has enough papers, has enough current literature, has a great deal more than is worthily supported. It is poor economy to establish a new paper for every cause. The papers existing are abundantly able to take care of the young people.

If the young people in our churches can be persuaded to read the papers they now have, we need not ask more of them. And any one will agree that they ought to read [illegible] paper before going abroad for literature. Then let us get them to reading what we have before making new literature, and worrying about problems in regard to new organs, which really have no reason for existing.

HINTS FROM A COTTON FIELD.

Some time ago, when passing along a country road, we noticed a party of laborers who were just completing the picking of the cotton in an adjacent field. Every boll had been emptied and the field was quite bare of its fleecy product.

A few days later we had occasion to pass by the same field; and lo, it was as if an April snow had fallen upon it, so white was the field with freshly opened cotton.

Ah, we thought, there was more cotton to come from that field. One single picking did not get it all. And it may be that there are other fields which do not yield all their fruit to a single picking.

There's Bible reading. How many bolls we have to leave unpicked in our earlier readings. We cannot force them open, and for us, at least, they do not reveal any truth or practical lesson. Our knowledge may be inadequate, or our experience too limited. And there are other great bolls, five lobed, that we never even see at all in our first readings. But when we go over the field again, many passages, dark before, open of their own accord, disclosing precious truths and valuable lessons. And other divine revealings, whose very presence has been unsuspected, unfold themselves without need for search or effort. In the cotton field the limit for fresh pickings is soon reached. In the field of divine truth there is no limit. Passage sheds light upon passage. The more we have, the more there is to get and the easier it is to get it. And so it will be while life shall last; there will always be more and more opening for us in God's word as we become receptive for it.

And then there's preaching. Did you never wonder whether a preacher—we mean, of course, a young preacher—does not sometimes go to bed on Sunday night with the feeling that he has exhausted all his resources and that there are no more sermons for him? We think that we have even heard confessions of this sort. Perhaps an experienced old preacher, remembering his own blue Mondays, would smile and comfort his young brother with the assurance that fresh sermon bolls will open for him from week to week. But, if experience has brought wisdom, he will be sure to add the caution that this will not continue indefinitely unless he shall study. Sir Walter Scott once said, in one of his delightful introductions, that an author's brains should yield more than one single creaming. Perhaps they will. But it will all be drawn from previously acquired material. The principle of Conservation of Energy holds good. When nothing is put in, nothing will come out. And if a preacher does not study and read and observe and think, his brains, to use good Sir Walter's figure, will yield, not cream, but skim milk, very blue and thin.

Another hint. The revival has closed. Great has been the ingathering. Surely every boll in the neighborhood seems to have opened under the influence of pungent preaching and the Spirit's power. The harvest has been gathered. There's no use any more in trying to reach the unconverted; they have all been reached.

It does look that way now. But wait a little while and watch. Open bolls begin to appear ready for another picking. Some who professed religion show that they were not converted. New people move into the community. Children become old enough to understand and receive the gospel. How soon the field gets ready again for the work of ingathering!

Comfort, too, for the agent. This wandering "necessary evil" must, indeed, often need comfort in his Arab life. The field, as he surveys it, appears to have been thoroughly picked. Other agents have passed over it. Why should he pass through empty rows? He himself has thoroughly canvassed it. Why appeal to those who have already responded? They have no more to give. Why appeal to those who declined before? It is not pleasant to be denied.

Remember the cotton field, brother, and take heart. That other pickers have traversed your field will prove no bad thing for your success, provided your cause be at all worthy. These other workers have only helped the bolls of liberality to open wider and more rapidly. The oftener the gatherers of beneficence pass, within reasonable limits, the more the habit of giving will become established.

And if you have yourself wrought wisely in your work, you have not only collected as you passed among the brethren, but you have left the road in such order that you can pass over it again. A wise agent, like a good farmer, should enhance fertility even while he harvests good returns. And the oftener he visits his fields, at reasonable intervals, the more he will get. Those who helped your cause before did not impoverish themselves; you may be sure of that. And it may be that those who did not help felt sorry afterwards, and will be glad of the chance to show their repentance.

We like the sentiment of that hymn which reminds us again and again by its refrain that "There'll be more to follow." In our religious life, also, we can apply the similitude of the field of opening bolls. We have some measure of faith, hope, joy. Past efforts to add new graces to our Christian characters have not been altogether in vain. But we have not "attained." In answer to our prayers, and as the result of faithful effort, there will surely be more to follow.

We have done some little good already, perhaps. Cups of cold water have been proffered by our hands, sympathy has been shown by our manner, instruction and encouragement and warning have dropped from our lips, material aid has flowed from our purses. And we have felt the joy of it all. Let this, too, be more and more. The field is not yet gleaned. Nay, what we have done and felt hitherto is as nothing compared with what we may do and feel tomorrow and through the coming years.

SECRETARY DURHAM'S APPEAL TO THE PASTORS.

You will see by the Treasurer's report in another column that the amount received for State Missions is $8,884 85. If we secure the full $15,000 by December 1st the Treasurer must receive $6,615.15 in the next seventeen days.

Only three other Associations are to be held.

This year, as perhaps never before, State Missions should have the help of every pastor in special collections. It is not possible to reach the churches in the next seventeen days except as it is done through the pastors. But I have confidence in them. They are first in every good work. I appeal, therefore, in hope to them. They can reach the churches.

I have been shut in with a most painful attack of muscular rheumatism. I could not, therefore, attend some of the Associations, nor could I look after the work in many other respects. I now feel, as never before, that I am dependent on the pastors and the churches to bring up this department of the work this year. It can be done, and the Board can go to Greensboro free of debt, if all will now do what they can.

Remember, please, that whatever is done must be done quickly. Tell your people the facts, and ask them to help at once, and forward the same so as to reach the Treasurer by Monday, Dec. 2, 1895.

C. DURHAM.

THE Baptists of North Carolina must be alive to opportunity all the time. We have a powerful hold in the State as it is; but unless we grow and unless we grasp every opportunity that we can find or make, the rapid growth of our State, the large additions to our industrial population will leave us comparatively weak in our position.

Our mission forces, strong as they have grown to be, are by no means equal to the opportunities offered in the manufacturing districts of our State. Twenty-five thousand dollars a year could be wisely expended in helping build houses of worship and in maintaining regular preaching of the gospel in localities, possession of which will mean a great deal in a few more years; and if the factories and factory communities continue to increase as they have of late, twice that amount will have to be expended annually, if we do our duty to the Master. We must grow as the State grows; it is our duty to lose no opportunity.

State Missions have everything to commend them. Duty, love of the cause and love for men, and self-interest, are all on the side of giving the gospel to those near us who are destitute. To make our State better helps every citizen; to give the gospel to factory communities, hard-worked and discontented, uplifts the character of our population where it most needs uplifting.

Let there be no debt this year. We must go forward. There is no time to stand still. There is every reason to do everything we can now.

THE program of the Young People's Convention in this issue is interesting. There ought to be a large attendance on the meeting.

EDITOR R. E. FOLK of the Baptist and Reflector, Tennessee, has called a meeting of the Baptist editors with a view to organizing a Southern Baptist Press Association in Atlanta, Nov. 21. We hope to attend.

....Nine persons have joined Fork church, Davie county, since Bro. Conrad conducted a meeting there recently.

....Our meeting in Modestown resulted in thirty-three persons coming out on the Lord's side.—C. S. Blackwell, in Atlantic Baptist.

....We were pleased to see that Rev. R. D. Haymore of Chattanooga, Tenn., was elected moderator of the Ocoee Association of that State.

... Bro. J. W. Fleetwood is teaching a good school of thirty-five pupils at Severn, and is doing well. He is one of our strong men in Northampton.

....Rev. W. C. Tyree is aiding Pastor Porter in a meeting in the Middle Street Baptist church, Newbern. Considerable preparation has been made, and a good meeting is looked forward to.

....Rev. Hight C. Moore has renewed his work on "New Testament Studies," twelve of which were published in the RECORDER, and the rest of them will be published by us as they are prepared.

....Rev. B. W. Spilman sends us two items: "Rev. S. J. Porter has just closed a good meeting at Vandemere aiding Brother Fry.—Bro. J. H. Pridgen ('91 W. F. C.) has gone to live in Waco, Texas."

....Rev. R. G. Seymour, D. D., of Massachusetts, has been elected Field Secretary of the American Baptist Publication Society. Dr. C. C. Bitting will continue in the service of the Society as Bible and Home Secretary.

....We were glad to have Prof. Hugh Long of Wakefield Classical Institute in to see us Saturday. The Institute is doing well, and Bro. Long is pleased with the prospect. He has found it necessary to employ another teacher.

....Rev. Josiah Elliott tells us that his protracted meeting at Centre Hill was a very precious meeting. There were six accessions to the church, three promising young men and three ladies.—Eastern Courier.

....Rev. Jno. W. Suttle of Albemarle had the kindness to represent the RECORDER at the Stanly Association, and his work was worthy of him. He writes that the Association "was the largest and best session we ever had."

....Bro. A. W. Early of Aulander has sent us ten new subscribers within a week. He has always been one of the RECORDER'S appreciative and efficient friends, and we are very grateful for this further evidence of his interest.

....The protracted meeting is still in progress in the Baptist church here. Rev. Mr. Stough is preaching splendid gospel sermons, and great good is being accomplished, in reviving the Christians and in the conversion of the unsaved.—Warrenton Record.

....Bro. A. C. Cree is filling the Aberdeen pulpit, made vacant by Bro. Anderson's departure for the Louisville Seminary. His first service there was the last Sunday in October, and he was very highly gratified with the people and the reception accorded him.

....Rev. T. Bright of Forest City will leave next Wednesday for his new home in Murphy, Cherokee county, N. C. He is a faithful, honorable and aggressive minister, who will win friends wherever he goes. He has charge of the Baptist church at Murphy.—Shelby Aurora.

....The general summary of the mission statistics of the Presbyterian Synod of North Carolina, representing 32,000 communicants, is as follows: Local missions, $8,650; Presbyterial missions, $11,623.36; Synodical missions, $4,382 26. Total, $21,284.62. Churches built, 15.

....Rev. J. R. Pendergrass of Franklin, Macon county, has been for some time preaching to four country churches in that section, and he is so well pleased that he has purchased property with a view to locating permanently. We are glad to know that he is so fortunately situated.

....Dr. W. B. Royall of Wake Forest College has given up his churches in order that he may more fully carry on the work among the young men of the College, particularly ministers, which his revered father made a feature of the College's work. Churches were never more attached to their pastor than Youngsville, Rolesville and Forestville are to Bro. Royall, nor have any ever had more reason. But he may do a greater work at the College.

....Rev. W. H. Edwards of Wake Forest and his brother, Rev. D. D. Edwards, had a good meeting recently at the former's church in Chatham county. Thence they went to Merry Oaks, where another good meeting was held, and thence to Rock Spring, where thirty two people professed faith.

....Rev. Josiah Elliott has just completed fourteen weeks of revival work, having taken part in twelve meetings. He writes: "God be praised for the large blessings bestowed upon one so weak and unworthy. I can never do half, no never begin to do anything for my Heavenly Father for his love and mercy."

....Spurgeon, who detested organs, would have enjoyed a story which comes from a western State. The bellows in the church organ gave out, and the pastor arose and said: "Brethren, the bellows has broken and the organist can't play; let us, therefore, rise and sing, 'Praise God from whom all blessings flow.'"—Western Recorder.

....Rev. T. S. Wright leaves next Tuesday for the Theological Seminary to take a course in Theology. His churches have kindly granted him the vacation. He feels the need of the advantage of systematic study of the Bible and we believe he will return and be a greater blessing to his people.—Southern Index, Rockingham.

....I finished up my meetings a few days ago. The Lord was with us and blessed us greatly. At Dawson's the church was much revived and fourteen were added; at Tillery there were six conversions of faith and five were added. The church was much revived at Enfield, but no additions; hope to have some in the future.—J. A. McKaughan.

... A Texas contemporary bids for 10,000 new subscribers; a Virginia contemporary for 5,000. We do not expect that many, but we do hope every one of our readers will say a word to some one with a view to getting him or her to subscribe. Anything we can do to help make this labor a labor of love and pleasure will be cheerfully done.

....Oct. 31, Hon. E. E. Hilliard of Scotland Neck lectured in the Winton Academy Chapel to the students and people of the town. The lecture was a treat for those who heard it. "Mr. Hilliard is a man of rare ability as an orator, and is fast taking rank among the best platform speaker of the South," writes a brother who heard him.

....We have received nothing lately more encouraging than a letter from Bro. A. W. Perry of Mapleville saying that his church selected him to make a canvas for the RECORDER, and enclosing an order to cover a good list of subscriptions. How many churches will follow the example of Mapleville? Will not some brother speak up for us at the next meeting?

....It is very gratifying to hear that Rev. John A. Wray is doing so well in Milledgeville, Ga. There are two colleges in the town and about seven hundred students. Since Bro. Wray took charge, the people have become aroused to the work; there have been a number of conversions, and there is every sign of increased interest. Bro. Wray will write about the field later on.

....Rev. O. L. Stringfield writes: "One brother in subscribing to the Baptist Female University says, 'Put me down one dollar per month as long as I live.' A sister says, 'Put me down five dollars per year as long as I live.' Another brother says, 'Put me down for ten dollars per month from now on.'" We hope to announce soon that work on the University building has been resumed.

....Our church at Chapel Hill has not yet called a pastor. The brethren liked so well the preaching of Bro. A. C. Cree of Wake Forest that they invited him to supply the pulpit for six months.—Thos. Hume. We understand that Bro. Cree will not accept this flattering invitation, as he wishes to complete his course at college, and has about as much of his time as he can spare already occupied.

....We are sorry there has been delay in printing the account of Mt. Zion Association. Bro. McIntyre, who represented us, had to cut short his stay in order to reach the Union Association, and could not make report. We hope to print a report from Rev. J. F. MacDuffie. There were seven Associations the week the Mt. Zion met, and one of the brethren we had secured to represent us fell suddenly sick.

....Rev. Duncan McLeod has resigned the care of the Washington, N. C., Baptist church, and it is understood that he will go to Virginia. He has done good and lasting work at Washington. His efforts in behalf of the new building have been persistent and successful; and his influence has been felt all through the country about Washington. We commend him to the love and confidence of the people among whom his lines will fall.

....Rev. M. A. Adams has been called to churches in Asheville and Kentucky and has also had flattering offers to enter the evangelistic field. Sunday morning he tendered his resignation as pastor of the Main street Baptist church, but at a subsequent meeting of the church it refused to give him up. We hope Mr. Adams will decide to remain in Reidsville. He has done good work here and the Baptist church has been greatly benefited under his pastorate.—Reidsville Review.

...Rev. I. S. Boyles requests us to say that he is soliciting subscribers to the Louisville Seminary Magazine, a religious monthly, giving opinions of leading men on living issues and news from the largest Seminary in the world. He invites his North Carolina brethren and friends to send him their names and one dollar and they take a periodical that would ennobling opinions and help greatly in building Christian character. One half of the dollar will be given to missions.

....Under the auspices of the Southern Baptist Convention, Dr. A. J. Dias has organized and located seven Red Cross Hospitals in Cuba, in the section where the fighting occurs and where the Spanish government has about 20,000 soldiers. At each station there are a native physician, two Baptist women nurses, and about ten male helpers, all well supplied with tracts and leaflets. The Spanish government has given formal recognition of and expressed satisfaction in the work.

....Dr. T. H. Pritchard writes the Watchman from Charlotte, N. C., about the denomination of his State, as follows: "A hundred years ago the Episcopalians had about 6,000 communicants, and the Presbyterians had about as many, while the Baptists were hardly as numerous Now the Episcopalians count 8,000, the Presbyterians 28,000, while the Baptists, white and colored, number 360,000; more than all the other denominations combined." Good for North Carolina!—Western Recorder.

....Bro. C. W. Blanchard informs us that the purpose of President Taylor and himself is to do all they can to get the pledges necessary to take up the American Baptist Education Society's proposition signed in time for the Convention. A successful end of this vigorous effort to honor one of our purest and best men and to increase the efficiency of Wake Forest College is nearly in sight. If the brethren who have signified their intention of making contributions will sign notes for the amounts in the next three weeks, we believe it will be announced to the Convention that the $25,000 is assured.

....If we had the ear of any student for the ministry we should urge him in every way to make his preparation for his work the most thorough possible. Educated ministers who have breadth of outlook and poise of character are in increasing demand. Trained capacity was never at such a premium in the ministry as it is to-day. We seem to be approaching a time when the opportunity to work at all in the ministry of our well established churches will be absolutely dependent not upon good intentions, but upon trained capacity.—Watchman.

....We were glad to have Rev. D D. Edwards of Morrisville in to see us recently. He is recovering from a long sickness, and is able to take up his work again. Bro. Edwards reported a meeting at his church, Good Hope, three miles from Morrisville, which was one of the best in years. Laymen helped him in the meeting, and there were seven additions and some restorations. The church house will be moved half a mile to a more convenient point. He wishes to return thanks to brethren of other denominations as well as Baptists for helping in this work.

....Rev. G. W. Coppedge of Wakefield made us glad by calling to see us Monday. At the regular service last Sunday at his church, Pleasant Grove, in Wake county, Bro. J. B. Strain, one of our good friends, made a speech to the brethren on the RECORDER, which aroused much interest and will bring forth worthy fruits. Bro. Coppedge followed him with forceful remarks. We are much encouraged at these evidences of appreciation of the RECORDER. We wish some brother in every church would follow Bro. Strain's example; and we know his pastor would follow Bro. Coppedge's.

....Trinity College is not on the road with a football team this year, and will not be again. Athletics, though, are valued for athletics, but a Christian college cannot go before the world to feed the spirit of brutalism. If Trinity cannot give a community higher entertainment than that, it will stay at home. It is a great source of satisfaction to parents to know that their boys at Trinity are safe against the calamities of football. President Kilgo says that he will not commit the success of the College to the fortunes of a football team.—Christian Advocate.

....In Miss Willard's summary of what has been gained for temperance she dwelt upon the fact that in all of the States except two (Georgia and Arkansas), the teaching of the laws of health is now required; that the General assembly of the Presbyterian church has declared in favor of non alcoholic wine for sacramental purposes, and that in the widening field of athletics all stimulation is discontinued. Miss Willard held that the testimony of railway managers, of life insurance agents, of police captains and of the general public went to show that men who drink take less, and more men do not drink at all than in any previous year.—Watchman.

....The Tent Meetings in Charlotte have been closed for the winter after two months of blessed work. The tent was pitched at three different points in and near Charlotte, so as to reach people not likely to be reached by churches, and about two hundred people were converted. It it very gratifying to know that notwithstanding the incessant work, Dr. Pritchard is enjoying fine health, and that Bro. Pruett is already looking forward to renewing his efforts to reach the people. Surely we are fortunate in having our cause in Charlotte in these brethren's hands. Bro. Pruett will have a letter in the next RECORDER.

....No preacher becomes a successful fisher of men so long as he keeps fishing up the the fundamentals of Christianity with an interrogation point.—Richmond Christian Advocate. These be wise words. The gospel is a proclamation of certainties. He who would win souls must deliver the eternal verities of the word of God, speaking with authority as the ambassador for Christ to lost men. Dr. O P. Gifford was right when he said: "No one cares to attend church where the preacher spends his time ripping up the streets of the city of faith, and laying down new pipes. If the pulpit has lost power it is because preachers have lost the conviction of the eternal, and this conviction is lost or weakened not by reason of thought, but for want of thought.—Indiana Baptist.

....The tent meetings over near the Atherton Mill seem to have stirred up the Baptists in that vicinity, and now they propose to establish a Sunday school out there. Mr. Lee H. Battle of the new flouring mill is the superintendent. There is already a school out there under Presbyterian auspices, but as that is taught in the afternoon, this one, which is to open at 9 a. m., will not interfere with it. The Baptists hope at no distant day to erect a church in that part of the city.—Charlotte Observer.

....Rev. L. G. Broughton writes from Richmond, Va., Nov. 4: "Sunday week ago we closed the most wonderful meeting in Roanoke with Calvary I ever saw. Schoolfield and W. R Gales were with me. The meeting was strictly under the auspices of our church. Two hundred and twenty five professed conversion—nearly all men and women. Seventy five will join us; forty-two have already been baptized, among them some of the leading citizens of Roanoke. Had fifty professions here at Venable Street yesterday."

.....Since giving consent to receive and forward any contributions for the support of Rev. Ben Oliel and his work in Jerusalem, my attention has been call to the fact that he has changed his church relation and is now a minister of the Baptist church. To get the facts I sent for the annual report of the American Baptist Missionary Union, where I find on pages 10, 3 and 30, that Mr. Ben Oliel has applied for appointment as a missionary of that church. All Presbyterians are thus to know that Mr. Ben Oliel is no longer a minister of the Presbyterian church, and that all contributions persons were thinking of sending him should be sent to our own committee at Nashville.—A D McClure, in N. C. Presbyterian.

....Rev. G. S. Daugherty has resigned as pastor of Fountain Inn and Clear Spring churches, S. C., and will shortly remove to West Virginia, where he expects to engage in evangelistic work, for which he is well qualified. He has been pastor at several places in this State, and has done good work in all his fields, besides giving acceptable aid to many pastors in special meetings. There have been thirty seven additions to his churches this year, and his brethren regret to see him leave them. Bro. Daugherty is a native of Virginia, at one time a student in Howard College, and came to the Baptists from the Campbellites. He is full of energy, enjoys hard work, is a vigorous preacher, and will be an accession to the West Virginia ministry, to whom we heartily commend him.—Baptist Courier.

....Our readers will be glad to hear from Bro. J. T. Betts, late of Asheville, who is travelling in the Holy Lands with the Hale-Whittle party. He writes from Cairo, Egypt, Oct. 22d: "I would like to write you a letter from this interesting old city, but my time is so occupied with sight seeing that I can only send you a few lines. This is one of the most wonderful cities we have found in all our travels. It has 500,000 inhabitants—35,000 are Europeans. You find people of nearly every nation here—many of the richest and many of the poorest people I have ever seen. While in some parts of the city you find beautiful streets and palatial homes, in other parts of the city there are thousands living in mud huts and brush shanties. After a delightful stay of one week here our Whittle and Hale party will leave to-morrow for Alexandria. My camera is making some fine photos for me, and I will have a fine collection when I return."

....Pastor Simms of the Raleigh Baptist Tabernacle is nothing if not aggressive. Last week he put into operation a well thought out plan for getting the people to know one another better with a view to quickening and creating sympathy. Every night in the week was made a prayer meeting for a certain class, for instance, young men, professional men, fathers and mothers, laboring men, etc., etc., and each was represented by some one right from his calling. The talks were limited to ten minutes, in which the speakers were expected to tell of their work, trials, and need of sympathetic prayers of God's people. The plan was a thorough success. Bro. Simms proved equal to the difficult task of having something happy to say touching each class as it was represented. Appropriate Scripture was read and there was excellent music. As a plan for "bringing out" laymen, many of our churches could follow the Tabernacle's example to advantage.

....There are thirteen Bible Bands in Wake Forest College, and they are doing good work. Prest. Taylor lectured to them Oct. 27 on "The Universal Elements in the Teachings of Christ," and Prof. B. F. Sledd last Sunday on "The City of Jerusalem," ——The monthly meeting of the Missionary Society is well sustained. At the October meeting Prof. Gulley made a strong speech. ——Prof. J. H. Gorrell of the Modern Languages is growing in popularity; his classes are large and are enthusiastic in their work.——Rev. M. J. Willoughby of Beech Island, S. C., has been assisting pastor Gwaltney in an interesting series of meetings. The students under Prof. Carlyle have manifested their regard for him and his work by furnishing his room with a handsome set of student's chairs. He now has the best furnished room in the college. Not a single case of sickness in college. Many students planning to go to the Exposition at Atlanta. These notes were obtained from Rev. A. C. Cree.

We have received from the publishers, W. A. Wilde and Company, Boston, the first number of The Superintendent and Teacher, a Sunday-school monthly. Rev. F. N. Peloubet, the distinguished author of the well known "Notes," is one of six announced editors. The aim of this monthly journal will be to provide for every department of the Sunday school the best thoughts of the most successful workers, and to present those methods that have been tested in the best Sunday schools of the world.

ASSOCIATIONS.

PEE DEE.

This body met with Spring Hill church in Richmond county. This is one of the best neighborhoods in the State. "Old Father Monroe" was pastor of this church for sixty-five consecutive years, and his memory is revered by every one who knew him. He was succeeded only a few years ago by Rev. R. Ford, who is now in South Carolina. Bro. M. L. Kesler is now pastor, and one would judge from the love and appreciation these Scotch Baptists show for him, that the record of Bro. Monroe might be duplicated by the present pastor.

Bro. J. Q Adams of Wadesboro was elected Moderator, and Bro. W. J. Matthews, Clerk. This made a good, steady team, and the work of the Association went smoothly on. The churches were well represented, especially if we consider the long distance which many had to come to get to the church.

The pledges of the churches were all fully paid, and liberal work laid out for next year.

This was the first session of the Pee Dee attended by Bro. Blalock, the pastor at Rockingham. He was helpful in all the work of the Association, and made a good impression on those of the brethren who had before met him.

Bro. T. S. Wright preached the introductory sermon. The sermon was of the length to suit a school boy, and yet contained some rich thought and practical truth.

The Association took a nice collection for the Ministerial Board. This work has better standing than ever before in all of our Associations.

Bro. Johnson made a strong and effective appeal for Charity and Children and the Orphanage in general. This institution has no better friends anywhere than are to be found in the Pee Dee Association. To this was given the Sunday collection, and we hope it was a large one.

Bro. Mitchell was much pleased at the liberality shown by the churches to the Board of Education. The brethren were glad to hear Bro. Mitchell on this work, and will do well the coming year.

President Brewer found a warm welcome from his old school girls and the many friends of Murfreesboro.

Brother Stringfield had just arrived when my time came to leave. Many of the brethren had heard him in behalf of female education, and these as well as others would have been disappointed if he had failed to put his appearance. A number of the brethren in this Association have been quite liberal to the school in Raleigh, and we think Bro. Stringfield has his eye on others who will help largely in this work.

Dr A. E. Covington is now in fine health, and seems to be full of enthusiasm for the work of the Association.

Bro. W. R. Covington, in renewing his subscription, said: "I had to promise my wife to take the RECORDER before she would consent to marry me, and I have been a subscriber ever since."

Bro. D. McNeill was very kind. He conveyed us to the church, and also provided us a conveyance to the railroad on our return.

The Association missed the presence of Bro. H C. Dockery, who was unexpectedly called to Raleigh on business. His presence is always cheering and his council safe and progressive.

Early to morrow I hope to be in Newton where the

is in session. At 10:30 I am in the new brick church face to face with Bro. Cashwell, the Moderator, and also the pastor of this church. It is due to his efforts that the house is so far complete, as to admit of the meeting of the Association. This is the last county-seat west of Raleigh to complete a Baptist church. This house is not complete, but is in a condition to accommodate the congregation. Brother Cashwell will preach here another year, and will in all probability complete the house in that time.

The brethren were greatly disappointed at the failure of Bro. Durham to be present, as they wished him to preach in the town on Sunday, as well as to speak to them on missions and other subjects during the session of the Association.

The habit of this body has, for some years, been not to pledge anything for the different objects. Some of the churches still adhere to this custom, but a large number of the churches pledged for all objects, and those that did not pledge will contribute to all the objects of the Association.

The brethren were greatly disappointed at the failure of so many of the visiting brethren to be present. We ought to have a better schedule for the meeting of our Associations. We hope the Moderators of the Associations will make an effort at least to arrange these meetings so as not to have so many conflicts as is the case now. This can be done without injury to any Association in the State

Bro. C. M. Murchison made an encouraging report of his school. This Association has been one of the foremost in the State in its advocacy of an Associational school.

The body was handsomely entertained by the brethren and good citizens of Newton.

The State Board can do no better than to help this point liberally, and it will be but a short time when the work will be self-sustaining. J. C. C.

The new Catalog and Art Souvenir of the Southern Business College of Asheville, N. C., is perhaps the most attractive ever sent out by any school in the State, and all who expect to attend a Business College soon should not fail to send for one and investigate this splendid institution.

Attention, Delegates to the Baptist State Convention.

As we have every reason to believe the attendance will be unusually large at the coming session of the Convention, and as the Young People's Baptist Union convenes the day before, we ask all the churches who send delegates to the Y. P. B. U., to also appoint the same delegates (if practicable) to represent their churches during the meeting of the State Convention.

Homes can only be provided for delegates to the State Convention, Y. P. B. U. and W. M. S.

Visitors can get reduced rates at the hotels and boarding houses. Delegates desiring homes must send their names and post-office address (plainly written) to the Chairman Committee on Hospitality at least ten days before the Convention convenes, otherwise we cannot provide entertainment for them. Please address all communications to DR. W. W. ROWE,

R. VAN DEVENTER.

The Y. P. Meeting at Atlanta.

Dear Recorder:—As is well known, the Convention to form a Southern Baptist Young People's Union meets in Atlanta, Nov. 21st. We hope that the meeting will be a great one, great in numbers, and great in good accomplished.

The Atlanta Baptists extend a cordial invitation to the Baptist young people all over the South, and hope that every church and every society will send representatives. Owing to the fact that our people are already crowded with Exposition visitors, it will be impossible to entertain the Convention free of charge. But low rates have been secured from hotels and boarding houses. Rates per day will be as follows: for rooms, only 50 cents to $1 00; meals, 25 cents to 50 cents; at private boarding houses, including meals and room, $1.00 to $2 00; at hotels, from $2 50 up. These places have been selected with care and are satisfactory in every respect. Parties expecting to attend the Convention are requested to communicate with Mr. W. W. Gaines, 184 East Alabama St., Chairman of the Reception Entertainment Committee, so that arrangements, as far as possible, may be made in advance.

The Headquarters and Bureau of Information for the delegates while here will be the rooms of the American Baptist Publication Society, 93 Whitehall Street.

The Convention will meet at the First Baptist church at 7 30 o'clock p. m.

The Exposition will be at its best about this time, and let Baptists arrange their visit so as to attend the Convention and the Exposition at the same time.

CHAIRMAN.

THOMAS H. BRIGGS,
Treasurer Wake Forest College.
Raleigh, Nov, 11, 1895.

Good Pay, Light Work.

If you are member of a North Carolina Baptist church, and if you want good-paying, light work, that will pay you just in proportion as you push it, write (with a two-cent stamp for reply) to Box G, Raleigh, N. C. Either men or women may apply.

What Say You to This?

Six months of our Conventional year have passed. During this time God has graciously blessed our missions in foreign lands. Our people at home are rejoicing in returning prosperity in financial affairs. Bro. B. Y. Mullins has recently written you of how sorely we need funds for our foreign mission work. Let me press upon you to consider this matter. After the increased offerings of last spring, many seemed to think they would wait a while without giving for this work, but expenses continue to go right on. Our missionaries had to be provided for. The contributions have thus fallen far behind the expenses. Every State is short of what was asked from her. We all know that there is money and plentiful supplies in our country. I write this to ask each pastor and deacon to see that a collection is taken in your church and sent forward promptly. I ask each lover of God's cause to help. Appoint a day in your church for each member to bring a gift for Foreign Missions. If you have not money, give of your substance, give cotton, corn, cows, sheep, horses, give of such as you have, and let the deacons turn all of these gifts into money and send it forward.

What better way to praise God on Thanksgiving Day. May earnest brethren and sisters take hold of this matter in their churches. November and December can thus be made joyous and glorious with gifts to our Heavenly Father who has so abundantly blessed us and whose cause just now so very much needs help. If you like this plan, try it; if not, try some other; but be certain you give yourself, and try to get others to give also. Let us thankfully praise God and earnestly pray for his blessings.

R. J. WILLINGHAM, Cor. Sec.

RECEIPTS FOR FOREIGN MISSIONS.

The first column shows the amount asked for by the Southern Baptist Convention for six months. The second column shows the amount received.

Meetings.

I began a meeting at Mountain Creek on the fourth Sunday in July, and was aided by Rev. J. A. Beam two days. He preached some excellent sermons.

On Tuesday Rev. Josiah Elliott of Hertford, N. C., came and did the preaching for three days. He was a stranger in person to the people, but soon made himself well acquainted by his humble way of working. The people were greatly pleased with him.

The meeting was concluded by the writer. Thirteen were baptised and three restored.

I began a meeting at Mt. Harmony on the first Sunday in August and was aided by Rev. C. R Taylor and R. A. McFarland. At the close, three were received by baptism.

I began a meeting at Providence on the first Sunday in October and was aided by Rev. J. H. Bass of Nathalie, Va., who preached the gospel with power. At the close I baptized seven and three were restored. Others we think, will join.

The church called Rev. R. H, Jones, of Bethel Hill to be their pastor for the coming year.

The school at this place is doing a grand work this year. The principal is off this week in a meeting at Vernon Hill, Va.

Fraternally, J. T. RIDDICK.

Address Wanted

Dear Recorder:—Some years ago, Bro. C. E. Woodruff came to Hickory (we believe from Pennsylvania) to teach in Claremont College. He joined the Baptist church here by letter. While here he was ordained, and for a while supplied as pastor. About two years ago he left here, as we understood, for Chicago University. Since then we have heard nothing of or from him. We have written him at Chicago and in care of President Harper, and still we can hear nothing from him. Can you give us any information as to where he is? He is a member of our church, and we would like to know his whereabouts.

C. S. CASHWELL, Pastor.
T. J. WINES, W. F. JOHNS, A. SHELL AND J. F. CLICK, Deacons.

The Arena, Boston, Mass., through which is represented the most liberal and radical American economic, religious and literary thought, has reduced its annual subscription price from $5 to $3. It is an ably edited magazine, and has won wide recognition in this country. We are glad to see that the Arena has arranged to have Justice Walter Clark, of the N. C. Supreme court, go to Mexico with a view to writing a series of articles on the monetary system of that country. No abler gentleman could have been chosen for this task.

It will astonish you how quickly Johnson's Magnetic Oil will still all internal aches and pains for man and beast. $1 00 a bottle; 50 cents size, 25 cents size.

How My Church Paper Helps Me.

Major-General Oliver O. Howard, Burlington, Vt., says:—

"In answer to your kind letter, I may say that since my joining the church, about thirty-eight years ago, I have always taken a family religious paper. I hardly know how a man could have a fair view of the church's missionary work without the religious paper. Even touching secular matters, the editor's summary is the best review I get of what I have learned from the dailies. The Christian papers have been uniformly high-toned and utterly free from degrading sensations, and all of them have been well edited. In my judgment a Christian family ought to have a good religious journal."

Hon. Elijah A. Morse, member of Congress, Twelfth District, Massachusetts, says:—

"I take the leading religious newspapers of the country, and as a public man and a member of Congress I find the editorials and comments of these papers upon public affairs and questions of the day instructive and exceedingly helpful to me in the discharge of my public duties. The high moral and religious ground from which these observations and editorials are written, and the absence of political animosity makes them especially instructive and helpful. All great moral reforms, all great charities and philanthropies, the cause of education, the cause of good citizenship and good government are being promoted and set forward by the religious press of the country, and they are doing much to hasten that day, so long predicted in the Book, when none shall say, Know thou the Lord, for all shall know him, from the least even unto the greatest."

Anthony Comstock, Secretary New York Society for Suppression of Vice, says:—

"Saturday finds me always weary, worn and exhausted. I take great delight in my Sunday papers, for it is like drinking from a bubbling spring under the shade of a wide, spreading tree. In other words, I feel lost without the religious newspapers on Sunday. I find sermons and religious subjects discussed by able thinkers, and am able to see the various phases of religious work without burdening my weary brain by extended research."

Judge Hiram L. Sibley, LL. D., Marietta, Ohio, says:—

"Church papers help me, and to an important extent will aid all, I think, in several ways. Better than any others they give religious news—tell what the church they represent is doing at home and abroad—spread out in panoramic view, as it were, its achievements in saving men from their sins. In editorial and other articles they ably discuss all "live" questions of morals, religion, ecclesiastical polity and administration, showing thus the nature and tendencies of church work; how its machinery is operating, whether it needs mending, renewal at one point or entire change at another. Further, I find critical and other discussions of history, philosophy, education, literature, the arts, sciences and new discoveries. Added to these are valuable expositions, from the Christian point of view, of principles involved in what belongs distinctively to the ethics of our social, political and industrial life and action. Crowning them are fearless exposures of vice and crime, with their consequences, whereby the moral indignation of the times is expressed, and the public conscience aroused. These things are not all done, of course, in every issue. Still in a good church paper something always can be found of interest to old and young, the cultured as well as the untrained, to comfort the tried and solace the sorrowing. In brief, it contains food for mind and heart—is a fountain, so to speak, from which all may drink and be refreshed. The sensational filth and falsehood which disgrace portions of the secular press never stain the fair pages of a properly managed church paper. Though not faultless, perhaps, it is in some measure imbued with the spirit of the Master, and so enters the home as a teacher and symbol of purity and good will. The Christian family without one, as it seems to me, is as badly off as a merchant or manufacturer without market reports. Spiritual paralysis and death will follow in the one case, as do losses and bankruptcy in the other. Putting the pulpit as the right, the church paper is the left arm of power in propagating moral truth, quickening religious zeal. God speed the day when every household in the land shall take and pay for one. No equal investment will bring quicker returns or larger profits."

Hon. William H. Jackson, New York, says:—

"I would be glad to say a good word for the religious press. By all means let us increase the use of our church papers, and set their standard as high as possible, both in literature and in information. Five different papers are read in my family every week, and each paper is helpful in its own way. The religious papers are specially helpful in preventing the reading of the secular papers on Sunday, and the summary of the news must be valuable for those who have little leisure on any other day."

William W. Smith, LL. D., President Randolph-Macon College, Va., says:—

"You cannot exclude secularities from the Sabbath unless you furnish religious occupation and reading in place of secular. The Sunday-read newspaper is a certainty; what sort of paper shall it be? How can the forces of a great organization be kept in line and directed upon strategic points without the widely circulated organ? The pulpit is extended to the homes of the size of Lee Street, and fresh gospel messages are sent on a grand evangelical tour weekly by the religious press. The church impresses opinion on public matters in a way that is understood and respected when it speaks through a well supported press. We want the Sunday closing of the Chicago Exposition and the speedy abandonment of the Atlanta policy at the demand of the religious press. Reasons for the religious press are thick as blackberries are in July. I am too weary at this writing to do more than show a willingness to aid the cause by sending these which lie on the surface."

Judge G. G. Reynolds, Brooklyn, N. Y., says:—

"While the secular papers pay some attention to religious matters, the information they furnish is necessarily scanty, and often inaccurate. I do not see how a man can keep in touch with his denomination or understand its work, nor how he can be intelligent as to the questions and movements of the religious world of to-day without an attentive reading of at least one good religious weekly. Such a reader will also find his paper to be a great stimulus to his piety and zeal."—From "The Kingdom."

From Rev. G. W. Greene.

Rev. Henry Sheets, Lexington, N. C.

My Dear Brother:—I was very much interested in your articles in the Recorder about the early history of Jersey church, and intended to write you at once; but other things have hindered. I am always interested in such old records, but especially in those pertaining to the "Jersey Settlement," because my ancestors were in that colony. They, howeverr, seem not to have remained long there in "Rowan," as it was then called, but about 1785 went on to Wilkes, now Watauga in 1790, my great grandfather Richard Green(e) and his wife were two out of the eight members entering into the constitution of Three Forks church, three miles frpm Boone. He lived near Blowing Rock, and his father-in-law, named Sullivan, was probably the first man buried in Watauga county. Could you do me the favor to look over the old records of Jersey church and see if there were any Greens, probably spelled without the last "e", in the church between 1760 and 1790, and also look for the name Sullivan.

Is there not some man in Davidson county by the name of Greene, who would take interest in these questions and find out whether all these in Davidson and Davie are derived from the same stock, coming with the colony from New Jersey.

In 1685, John Greene came from England to Massachusetts; but being a Quaker, he could not remain in that colony, and went on to Rhode Island. His decendants were very numerous. The historian says, "They married young, lived long, and raised large families." They were prominent in Rhode Island, one or more Governors, Judges, College Professors, D. D.'s. They are mostly Baptists. Most distinguished of the name is General Nathaniel Greene, second only to Washington in the Revolution. He was fifth in descend from John Greene.

Before the Revolution one branch of the family moved to Brooklyn, N. Y., and then on to N. J. Here they are very numerous, and have spread out into Pennsylvania and farther west. New Jersey has had one Governor of the name. Some have been distindistinguished Professors in Princeton College, the New Jersey Greenes being largely Presbyterian. In Pennsylvania they are Baptists and Quakers.

About the time of the Revolution, several left Jersey and came to North Carolina, at first in the "Jersey Settlement," afterwards to Watauga. They are nearly all Baptists. They are not so distinguished here, as else where, though we have Judge L. L. Greene, as a worthy member of the family. Col. Wharton Greene, of Fayetteville, once a member of Congress, if from the Rhode Island stock, came to North Carolina by some other route, but I think his ancestors came direct from England.

These are some of the results of my investigations, which I write to you that, if you find any member of the family in your county, you may give him these facts and start him to making independent investigations. It would be interesting to know, if the most of the Greens scattered through the United States are descended from this one man.

We are all well and quiet here in Canton, trying to work on at this mass of heathenism. The hot weather is now nearly over, and we are planning for the fall and winter campaign. Our work is hopeful and encouraging. The baptisms this year have been about seventy. I have written so much about my own family matters, I have not room to write at length about our work. I am watching the list of the Associations, and thinking of the brethren as they gather in their meetings up and down the State; and how I love to be with you in some of these meetings.

If you will take this trouble for me and write me the result, I shall be under obligations to you. Then please tell me about the churches and the brethren and sisters and the Lord's work in North Carolina, in so far as you see. I keep up with what gets into the papers. But there is much of interest that is not printed. Love to all the brethren. Yours in Christ,

G. W. Greene

Notes of Travel

Northampton county is characterized by an unusual number of pretty villages, some of which have been already mentioned. Potecasi and Woodland were both visited, and gave hearty encouragement to the work of the Female University. Pleasant Grove church, which we visited on the first Sunday in October, is well named, as the handsome building is surrounded by many fine oaks. After a day most agreeably spent in the happy home of Bro. M. L. Taylor we addressed our Baptist people in Aulander on Sunday night, and spent several days thereafter in the hospitable home of Bro. C. W. Mitchell, whose soul is alive to every interest whose end is the advancement of the Master's glory. It was a pleasure to meet pastor's Curtis and Craig in their fields of labor, and to see how the Lord is prospering them in their work. After brief but pleasant visits in the homes of brethren Langley, Taylor and A. S. Vann, and a day at Winton, I embarked on the steamer Olive for Edenton. I found pastor John E. White rejoicing in the fruits of his great meeting, and ready to extend a welcome to the traveling brother. On Sunday morning it was my privilege to witness the beautiful ordinance of baptism administered to thirty-nine persons in the sparkling waters of Edenton bay. The glorious morning, the solemn stillness broken only by the voice of the preacher, the back ground of trees in their autumn colors, a pretty yacht in the foreground undulating on the waters, the happiness upon the faces of those who were following Christ—all these things combined to produce an impression never to be forgotten. After enjoying the cordial hospitality of Bro. T. D. Bush for several days, I sped on to Elizabeth City where I was met by my cordial friend, Dr. Blackwell, and soon comfortably ensconced in the parsonage. The brethren added yet more to the good amount already subscribed here for the Baptist Female University. Here, as at Edenton, I found the Baptist cause rapidly advancing. This growing city, already a stronghold of Baptist principles, will be even more so, when the projected plans of church extension are carried out. Returning eastward I spent half a day most enjoyably at Hertford, the home of Rev. Josiah Elliott. This consecrated servant of God was in the midst of a gracious meeting in which he was aided by pastor's Blackwell and White. There had already been many conversions. The Baptist house of worship here is one of the handsomest in the State, built in ante-bellum days by the Feltons, Skinners and others. It had been in sad need of repairs, but under the vigorous administration of pastor Elliott it has again become a thing of beauty. And now that the spiritual temple is being built up and beautified, the whole church rejoices. Bro. Elliott, though so busy, took time to give the traveling brother a word of cheer. He and his enterprising laymen are going to take hold and lend a helping hand in the establishment of our Female University.

Returning, a Sunday was spent at Roberts' Chapel, one of Bro. C. W. Scarboro's churches near Murfreesboro. Here I found among other good things the best country Sunday school I ever saw, with an enrolment of nearly 300, provided with special class rooms, to which others will likely be added. Every member of the infant class, forty-six in number, have been present for two successive Sundays.

My correspondents will please note that my permanent address from this time will be Wake Forest, N. C.

Mrs. J. A. Briggs, Corresponding Secretary of the Woman's Central Committee, wishes to call attention to the following errors which were made in the report submitted by the Central Committee for May 1—Aug. 31, 1895:

Rolesville, $2 70, should be Forestville; First church, Charlotte, $5 22, should be $15 22; Green Level, $6 15, should be $3 15; Fayetteville, $5 00, should be $4 00; Mt. Tabor, $20 56, should be $30 50.

The Woman's Missionary Meeting at the Pee Dee Association.

The Woman's Association, Auxiliary to the Pee Dee Association, met with the Spring Hill church, Oct. 25. The meeting was held in the "Temperance Hall" and was well attended and many expressed themselves as being greatly benefited and encouraged in Christian work. The following Societies were represented:

Mt. Beulah, Laurinburg, Lilesville, Wadesboro, South Wadesboro, and Spring Hill.

This Society was recently organized with Mrs. T. M. Watson, President, and Mrs. W. J. Matthews, Secretary.

Miss Dianna McNeil extended the ladies a warm welcome, and the President responded in behalf of the delegates.

Mrs. F. Bennett, Vice-President, presented an encouraging report of the work in Anson.

Mrs. L. Johnson having moved to Greensboro, we had no report of Richmond. We very much regret to loose such a faithful co laborer, but our loss is another's gain. Mrs. M. McKay of Laurinburg was chosen and unanimously elected to succeed her.

Miss Polly Crowder read an excellent paper on "The Importance of Mission Literature and Value of Prayer." She urged each Society, however small, to establish a library beginning with tracts and periodicals.

Miss Alice Ferrell made a touching and pathetic appeal for the "Yates Memorial Fund," and solicited contributions for the same.

Letters were read from Miss Heck of Raleigh, and Mrs. Chappell of China

Talks were made on "How to Keep a Society Alive and Active," by Mrs. Frank Bennett and Miss Alice Ferrell. There were excellent talks, and if practiced will do good.

Miss Katie McMillan told us how our "Society work" was hindered. First, by want of information and neglect of reading mission literature. Secondly, want of conscious ness in attending the meetings, lack of "faith" and a disposition to despise the day of small things forgetting that the stone the builders reject often becomes the head of the corner.

Before the close of the meeting, Rev. J. Q Adams kindly consented to address the ladies, and we feel very grateful to him for his words of encouragement, and hope to show our appreciation by working more and giving more in the future than we have done in the past. The following officers were elected for another year:

President—Mrs. T. B. Henry, Wadesboro, N. C.

Vice-President, Anson county—Mrs. Frank Bennett, Paris, N. C.

Vice-President, Richmond county—Mrs. M. McKay, Laurinburg, N. C.

Recording Secretary—Mrs. G. W. Goodwin, Laurinburg, N. C.

I earnestly hope that each Society in the Pee Dee Association will send a representative and written report to our next Association, which meets on Thursday before the fourth Sunday in Oct., 1896, at Lilesville.

Before I close, I desire to extend my heartfelt thanks, first, to my pastor and to the ladies who so much helped me in the meeting, and to Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Matthews, who so cordially welcomed me to their pleasant home. Long will I remember the good people of Spring Hill and the pleasant hours spent in the homes of Mrs. Flora McLean, Dr. D. Shaw, Mr. Wm. Johnson and Miss McNeill LILA L. HENRY.

Medical Work among the Women and Children of the Heathen Countries.

I present this as a humane institution, as a means of preaching the gospel to the people.

The work of the medical missionary dates from the beginning of Christ's public ministry, and the fact that the healing of physical suffering was to be a proof that Christ was the divine, loving, and compassionate Son of God, willing to give Himself that we might be redeemed from greater suffering than that of this life, is contained in the answer returned to John the Baptist to the question, "Art Thou He who should come, or shall we look for another?" "Go, tell John the blind see, the lame walk, the deaf hear, the dumb speak, and the poor have the gospel preached to them." Christ's field of ministry was not the same as those of His followers who are laboring in civilized lands to-day—lands moulded by the light of the gospel, till every breath we draw tells of the Son of Righteousness who came with healing in His wings. As we look over these fields we find cleanliness and an organized means of promoting proper sanitation and to check the spread of disease; hospitals, asylums, and homes for the relief of the suffering people, builded by the light which Christ brought into the world, are on every side; but what was the condition of the human family when He first entered on His public ministry?

Christ was a Jew, born a Jew, and came to the then most civilized nation of the world, but to one that had turned aside after strange gods, and been sold into bondage to a heathen people. He found the same condition we find in the Oriental world to day—the same physical suffering, the same poverty and degradation, the same turning to magicians and enchantments for relief, the same cruel torture from the unskilled and unqualified, would be healers. "She had suffered many things of many physicians, and had spent all that she had, and was nothing better, but rather worse," are the words used to describe the condition of the one healed by Christ, yet the cruel torture this woman suffered is by no means expressed in these words, and the more physicians the more cruel her torture.

To have a correct idea of the benefits derived from medical help, we must first look at the lives and condition of the people. The picture may be a sad one, and may cause many to inquire, Does she mean us to understand this as stated? and I will here state that in this paper I will speak only of things which have occurred in my own experience and are literally true, facts that can be attested by all doctors of India, and may be known to the mass of the missionaries present, yet I can only give you a glimpse into the sorrows of the heathen women. Much that my eyes have looked on is too terrible to describe in a public paper. My field for eight years was in the Punjab, India, but as I returned to America I had the privilege of visiting the Malay Peninsula, South China, and Japan, and find in each a corresponding condition, only varied in accordance with the customs of their country. Enter with me into a native city of India, and look on the heathen as they appear to open view. The streets are thronged with ox-carts, donkeys, dogs, and the multitude of people, men, women, and children—the halt, the blind, the deaf and dumb; the fever cases, with burning cheek and panting breath; small pox in the stage of desquamation, scattering the germs to all around; leprosy, with the unmistakable signs of the first stage or perhaps the advanced stage, sitting at the corners begging, showing hands and feet from which fingers and toes have dropped; scurvy cases, that dread disease supposed to develop in persons deprived of vegetable diet and dependent on salt meat, developed to the most intense form in those who have never seen salt meat or tasted meat of any kind, victims to a hot climate and a purely vegetable diet; the miserable beggar, or perhaps those who are not beggars, but who, like Lazarus, are full of sores from head to foot, undressed, uncared for, and alive with worms Take a glance down the two sides of the street and mark the naked infants on their hard stools, lying in the burning sun, left to fret their little lives away while the mothers are earning the daily pittance. Enter the doors of some of the homes and take a clearer view. Do you find the well-regulated homes of Christian lands? The honored father, teaching both by word and example the love and respect due to that mother who has borne all, sacrificed all, suffered all for them; the children clustering around the mother's knee pouring their tales of joy and sorrow into their ears, or watching with longing eyes for the return of father? No; there is nothing in their religion to sweeten life or elevate the human family. It degrades women with an infinite degradation, dwarfs their intellects, so that women of twenty or thirty are but as children of eight or ten. Deprived of every comfort, regarded as mere cattle, the property of their husband, bought and sold as other merchandise, till all the worst passions of the human nature are stimulated and developed, here envy, jealousy, hate and revenge run to such an extent, that I have often been begged and offered money if I would take away the life of some objects of their loathing. Contrast the condition of their sick with those of our land. Love and sympathy never cools their fevered brow, the footfall is never hushed to lessen their suffering, no anxious mother or sister ever places a dish before them to tempt their appetite, no skilful doctor or nurse is called to administer to their wants. Supposed to be possessed of some evil spirit, they are objects to be dreaded, and every possible cruelty must be resorted to that it may be expelled. Placed in the darkest, dirtiest room of the house, without light or ventilation, their bed the most filthy of rags, deprived of food and water, often for days they are forced to inhale the fumes of charcoal, given off from a smoulder pot, which is always placed by their bed, and are subject to burning from hot irons and many other cruelties to expel this spirit. A few examples in my experience will illustrate their condition.

Visit with me the home of a Muhammadan Molvi, a teacher of the Muhammadan religion, and one of the best homes, one where both wife and children are loved by the husband and father.

On a bed lies a little child of three, unconscious, a true case of infantile ecampsia (convulsions due to disease of the cerebro-spinal system). The father and two brothers are seated, native-fashion, on the bed at her head, the mother, sister, and two or three female friends on the bed at her feet, all so close as to prevent the possibility of air of any kind reaching her. As we enter, a barber has just finished shaving the hair from the head just over the frontal sinus (the place where the brain can be seen pulsate in an infant's head, and is called by the natives of India "the door to the brain"), and a Muhammadan doctor lifts a red hot piece of iron from the fire and presses it to the exposed part, destroying the tissues to the skull, and to my cry of horror and dismay the father, in an agony of sorrow, answers: "Oh, Miss Sahib, for many days that door was open, and an evil spirit entered there and must be destroyed, or our child will die." * * * *—Maria White, M. D., Punjab, India.

[The position the medical work holds as a means of the spread of the gospel and the winning of souls for Christ can be but illustrated by the words of a high caste Hindu. "We do not fear the usual methods of mission work but we do fear your lady Zenana workers (house to house visitors) and your lady doctors. They enter our homes, win the hearts of our women, threatening the foundations at our missions."—F. E H.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address,

Co-operative Creamery Association.

Too little attention has been given to this important form of enterprise in this State. It is to be hoped more interest will be taken in the near future and that the men who look into this industry will take hold of it as they do of corn or tobacco growing, and make it a success.

Whoever wishes to investigate co-operative dairying can have the active help of this Station. He should price apparatus and buildings of several dealers, among whom the following are old and reliable manufacturers of dairy supplies:

The Vermont Farm Machine Co., Bellows Falls, Vermont; Nonely & Stoddard, Rutland, Vermont; The Creamery Manufacturing Co., Chicago, Ill; The De Laval Separator Co., 74 Cortlandt St., New York City; Cornish, Curtis & Green, Ft. Atkinson, Wisconsin.

In general every local association should build its own house, if it can not more cheaply adapt some convenient building until it gets cows and milk enough to do a good profitable business.

It is well within bounds to assure any body of creamery promoters in North Carolina that they cannot start a creamery on a scale large enough to handle all the milk which can be brought to the factory, for from $1000 00 to $1500.00.

The manner some neat little plants can be established, the better provided they can be supplied with milk with which to operate. Canvas your neighborhood and get pledges to deliver a given amount of milk daily and make your business to correspond with what you can get pledged. Do not estimate beyond gallons delivered, and remember to caution your former neighbors not to count over 300 gallons of milk per cow per year, each gallon to weigh 8½ pounds.

Letter From Virginia.

Dear Bro. P. &c.—I enjoy the weekly visits of the RECORDER, and am glad to see it maintaining its accustomed place among the leading religious journals of the South, under the present management.

As you perhaps already know, I am now pastor of four good country churches, situated in Campbell county, Va. I lived in this good old country for about ten years when I was a boy, and have never lost my attachment for the country or the people. I have preached in city, village and country, and am ready to say that of the country people has a good home, and is content with his lot, there is no reason why he may not be as happy and useful as his brother pastor in the city. It is true that I am still "in the woods" being located at Brookneal, Va.; but I am thrown strongly on the plan of securing a home in the country, right among my people. One thing has kept me for the most part in city or town, and that is the better opportunity to educate my children. This as the preacher is a matter of serious importance; for as a rule, Baptist preachers have little or nothing to leave their children, and if they are educated, they have a much better opportunity to succeed in life. For this same reason country churches that are served by pastors located in towns or cities, ought not to blame them for keeping their children where they enjoy the benefits of superior schools. If the pastor of country churches lives in the town however, he should keep if possible a conveyance, and spend a good deal of his time among his people.

We have recently enjoyed good meetings at all of my churches. I had the assistance of our Virginia evangelist Rev. J. E. Hutcheson. I have received altogether sixty seven for baptism. Hutcheson is a good fellow, and a good preacher. He does not abound in evangelistic tricks, but relies upon the Word of God accompanied by the Holy Spirit to do the work. He knows the pastoral office and work, and does not attempt to boss people and things in general or places where he holds his meetings. By the way, I will give him for what it is worth, my plan of conducting a protracted meeting when I am aided by a visiting brother, be he evangelist or a neighboring pastor. I conduct the morning service, and then notify the visiting pastor or preacher when I am ready for him to commence. I ask him to preach and then give as many invitations as he is disposed to give, but when he is through, I again take charge of the meeting, give other invitations if necessary, and close in my own way. This prevents all confusion, and enables the pastor to finish the people in his own way and not in yours. I have a preference for [illegible] meetings before the entire congregation. I find [illegible] who compose persons to [illegible] I make figure heads of them, [illegible] to me, and I don't ask them [illegible] meetings. The visiting preacher can in many instances, do very much [illegible] the pastor, just as the pastor [illegible] visiting preacher. There [illegible] and need to forget that the above plan, or [illegible] which is the reverse of it, would be [illegible] and unfair [illegible] This is given only [illegible] the pastor to finish the people in his own way and not in yours, however, if [illegible] and [illegible] the visiting preacher. [illegible] of preachers who occupy pulpits [illegible] with visitors, or make figure heads of them, are not deserved by

New Jersey Baptist Convention.

Dear Recorder:—The Seminary Faculty gave the Senior Class two days off this week, that they might attend the sixty-sixth annual session of the New Jersey Baptist State Convention which met in Camden, October 28-30. Your correspondent took advantage of the opportunity to attend a Convention of the Northern brethren, and the following is a sketch of what he saw and heard:

The Convention met at the North Baptist church, of which Dr. A. G. Lawson is the pastor. There were a large number of delegates present, including pastors and lay representatives from all parts of the State. The Convention was called to order by Rev. D. DeWolf, State Superintendent of Missions, with Rev. C. A. Cook at the Secretary's desk.

On behalf of the North church and the eight other Baptist churches of Camden, Dr. Lawson bade the Convention welcome to the city. The annual sermon was preached by Rev. E. T. Tomlinson of Elizabeth, who took as his text Mark 13: 32.

The report on "Denominational Interests in the State" disclosed the facts that during the past year the membership in the State had increased from 39,529 to 46,000; that forty new churches had been formed and sixty new edifices built; that there had been 152 changes of pastors since January last; nineteen of the churches receiving aid from the Convention five years ago were self sustaining; and that the receipts during that period had increased from $4,639 20 to $10 625 79.

This report was followed by an interesting address on "State Missionary Effort a Pre eminent Duty of Baptists," by Rev. S. G. Nelson.

Perhaps the subject that called forth the greatest passing interest was the query, "What Can We Do in Church Edifice Work?" It was proposed that a church edifice fund should be established, from which congregations needing houses of worship, but unable to build them without outside aid, might draw. After a few short, ringing speeches, they proceeded to ascertain what they could do. The Ex President of the Convention, Samuel Colgate, set the ball to rolling by saying that he would give $1 000 per year for five years provided $95 000 could be raised within that time. This announcement met with hearty applause, and $14,750 was raised right then and there, one man sacrificing his gold watch and chain that he might make a contribution.

There was a young people's rally at 7:30 on Tuesday evening, which was followed at eight o'clock by the most interesting and profitable part of the Convention's program. Rev. Cortland Myers of Brooklyn was introduced and addressed the Convention on "The Man of Another Spirit." He is a masterly and eloquent speaker, and he presented some forcible truths touching the subject he discussed. But there were some of us there who did not think he proved himself to be the biggest preacher in Brooklyn; for he was followed by our own A. C. Dixon, who gave an eloquent and penetrating address on "Fishers of Men." "A pastor must fish as well as feed," he said. "It is our work to fish. A church that becomes a holy restaurant is to be pitied. Feed, for the purpose of fishing. Dry rot is the thing that is killing many churches of to day. Pastors should not fish for sermons, they are but bait and nets. All our sermonising ought to be with a view to fishing for men. I believe we should fish where it costs—among the worst men and women. If you ever expect to catch fish, you must go where they swim. We don't need so much to get the people to church as to get Christ to the people. The others will come afterward." The foregoing is a sample of the eloquent and forceful words of the speaker, but it would be impossible to give any adequate idea of the profound impression which the address produced by merely reproducing his words. After he had been speaking about forty five minutes, the speaker intimated that he was about to close, for the reason that he feared the audience was growing weary. But immediately the immense audience "all together with one accord" began to shout, "Go on, go on"; and he went on about twenty minutes longer, ending with a magnificent soul stirring peroration.

The next morning a resolution declaring in favor of local option was adopted by a practically unanimous vote.

Just before the Convention adjourned, Dr. Lawson, on behalf of the Convention, extended a hearty and cordial welcome to the new pastors of the State. There were twenty of them in all, among whom we were pleased to recognize one who is well and favorably known in North Carolina, and who, although now a pastor of one of the best churches in New Jersey, says he is always glad to meet a "tar heel." I refer to Bro. C. A. Jenkens of New Brunswick. He seems to be well pleased with his field of labor, and is getting on nicely with his work. In referring to Dixon's address, he said, "These Northern people like to hear Southern preachers because they preach the gospel."

At noon the Convention adjourned to meet next year at Patterson.

At two o'clock the fifty-eighth annual meeting of the New Jersey Education Society convened. J. PAUL STRESS.

A Well Deserved Tribute to a Popular Line.

The Atlanteon, Oct. 23d, says editorially: "The facilities for reaching Atlanta from this section are unequalled anywhere. The Seaboard Air Line runs double daily trains over the road, making close connections for the South and West at Atlanta, and for New York, Boston and other points. Indeed, as a gentleman of large travel remarked last Monday, the Seaboard Air Line has the best schedules and the best connections of any road within his knowledge. He also said that he was not aware of but one train in the United States that furnished cars equal in magnificence and without additional cost, to the Atlanta Special, and that was (we believe) the Buffalo Express, running from New York City to Buffalo."

B. O. Perry Repudiated.

The undersigned, council in the case of B. O. Berry, met in adjourned session, Nov. 5th, 1895, at the study of the First church, Wilmington, N. C., on the call of Castle Hayne church.

Rev. Jno. T. Albritton was chosen Moderator, and Rev. J. H. Hildreth, Secretary.

After careful and prayerful consideration of the evidence offered, the Council unanimously decided that B. O. Perry is guilty of gross immorality; that his ordination was fraudulently obtained; that he testified falsely; and without dissenting voice the Council repudiates him as a minister of the gospel, warns all our churches against him, and calls upon Castle Hayne church to revoke his credentials of ordination and license, thereby deposing him from the gospel ministry. Don't go to Chicago on an Ox Cart?

I want two first class hard workers on a liberal contract, to represent the Union Central Life Insurance Company as Special Agents. Give references and age when you apply.

Our new policies express greater and more advantageous guarantees in proportion to cost than any Company. So men of energy and backbone find it easier to sell our plans. No extra charge for insuring ladies.

We put all the possible attractive features in our life with annual dividend as well as all other plans, and the Companies that boast that they give the insured no greater guaranteed advantages than they did years ago are as far behind as he who to day starts to Chicago on a wagon or even an ox cart.

Our assets are over $14,000 000. Give me your age and investigate our insurance. It will really pay you.

DIED.

WILSON—Mrs. Amanda Wilson died Oct. 19th, 1895, in her eighty-second year. A Christian for more than sixty years, she was prepared to answer the summons. Through all the changing scenes of earth she ever turned in daily trust to the Master. Those who knew her will always feel the influence of devout goodness as exemplified in her life.

C. G. W.

WHITE—Died at his home in Bertie county, N. C., near Exeter P. O., Sept. 1st, 1895, Bro. Kader White. He joined the Baptist church in early life and was a consistent member. He lived as he died, triumphant in the faith of our Lord Jesus Christ. A good man has gone, and we hope to meet him by and by when we cross over yonder.

NEPHEW.

CHAPPELL—On October 17th, when just sixteen months old, God's light-winged messenger came and took our baby, Gertrude Yates Chappell, to the Father's bosom. She peacefully fell asleep after weeks of suffering.

We gave our pet in tears and pain,
Our household's light and love;
Still we shall find her once again
In the home of light above.

Forestville, N. C., Nov. 5, 1895.

HILL—At Eure, N. C., October 18th, 1895, God in his infinite wisdom called to himself Lilian Majesta, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Hill. She was nearly three months old—such a short little life; but father, mother and little brother loved her so fondly that the parting was hard to bear. But the one who gave, knoweth best when to take our darlings from us.

"The white winged angels of heaven,
To bear her thence came down,"
And took our precious Lilian
With Him to wear a crown.

HER MOTHER,

SHANNON—Margaret P. Shannon, relict of the late Wm. Shannon, departed this life at Portsmouth, Va., Oct. 28th, and was buried at Elizabeth City, N. C. She was seventy-one years of age, and among the oldest members of the Elizabeth City Baptist church. She leaves several children and many friends to mourn her loss. She was a lady of the old school, characterized by great kindness of heart and refinement of manners. She lived in the faith and died in the triumphant hope of an immortal life of love with her Lord.

C. S. B.

HARRELL—In Woodland, N. C., Nov. 1st, 1895, the angel of death came to the happy Christian home of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Harrell and claimed as its victim little Jessie May, aged four years and two months. She was a child much loved by all for the sweet and loving disposition which she possessed. She was a jewel too beautiful and bright for this dreary world, so the Lord took her to himself. She took great delight in her Sunday-school, and was the joy of her class. Amidst a concourse of sorrowing relatives and friends, and while her Sunday-school class of little girls formed a circle around her, weeping, she was laid to rest beneath the quiet shade Saturday evening, November 2d.

So fades the lovely blooming flower,
Frail, smiling solace of an hour,
So soon our transient comforts fly,
And pleasure only blooms to die.

GOODWIN—A good man has fallen. Bro. G. N. Goodwin was born August 19th, 1843, and died July 28th, 1895. Bro. Goodwin was a good citizen, neighbor, husband, father, and a devoted follower of Jesus Christ. He was converted while young and became a member of Ballard's Bridge church. He took a letter and joined Great Hope. After some years he, with others, organized themselves into a church known as Center Hill, and built a church house near their homes. Bro. Goodwin gave lumber and helped cut and haul to the mill, and then to the spot where the house was built. Rev. A. E. Owen of Portsmouth dedicated it to the service of God before a large number of people. At the close of this service Bro. Goodwin said, "I worked and prayed for this house for my children, and for my brethren and neighbors' children. I do feel like old Simeon when he said, 'Lettest thou thy servant depart in peace.'"

I never saw one man more devoted to his church—never absent from his meetings unless sick. He served as treasurer, did the collecting and managed the finances. He loved his brethren. When the young or old would do wrong he would plead for and with them, and ask the church to deal tenderly with them. He was beloved by all who knew him. The church will miss him, as his heart was in every department of the church work—mission meetings, Sunday-school work, and the general development of good among his people. He will be missed in his neighborhood, but his dear wife, who is so weakly, with her dear children, will miss him more than all others. He was a great sufferer at times for years before his death, but did not complain. He often would say, "I will leave you quickly some time." So he did. He leaves a wife, brothers, sisters, and seven children, with a host of friends to mourn their loss. As he requested, "Asleep in Jesus" was sung at the house. A host of friends followed his remains to the grave. God bless the loved ones, and bring them all together in heaven bye and bye.

JOSIAH ELLIOTT.

Timely Warning.

The great success of the chocolate preparations of the house of Walter Baker & Co. (established in 1780) has led to the placing on the market many misleading and unscrupulous imitations of their name, labels, and wrappers. Walter Baker & Co. are the oldest and largest manufacturers of pure and high-grade Cocoas and Chocolates on this continent. No chemicals are used in their manufactures.

Consumers should ask for, and be sure that they get, the genuine Walter Baker & Co.'s goods.

"Now I Lay Me Down to Sleep."

The fire upon the hearth is low,
And there is stillness everywhere;
Like troubled spirits, here and there
The firelight shadows flittering go;
And as the shadows round me creep,
A childish treble breaks the gloom,
And, softly, from a farther room
Comes, "Now I lay me down to sleep."

And, somehow, with that little prayer
And that sweet treble in my ears,
My thought goes back to distant years
And lingers with a dear one there:
And, as I hear the child's amen,
My mother's faith comes back to me,
Crouched at her side I seem to be,
And mother holds my hands again.

O for an hour in that dear place!
O for the peace of that dear time!
O for that childish trust sublime!
O for a glimpse of mother's face!
Yet, as the shadows round me creep,
I do not seem to be alone—
Sweet magic of that treble tone—
And "now I lay me down to sleep."
—Eugene Field.

The Cost of Intemperance.

How many people in the United States are arrested every year for crime?

Answer. About one hundred thousand.

Q How much does it cost to arrest, care for, try, and punish these criminals?

A. Nearly a hundred million dollars, and at least four fifths of this expense is due to strong drink.

Q How is this money paid?

A. By taxing the property of the people.

Q What else does drink produce?

A. Great suffering. The humane societies had to be formed largely because drunken parents abused their children.

Q What causes most of the pauperism in this country?

A. Strong drink causes more than four-fifths of it all, and in this way costs our country about sixty million dollars every year.

Q Is insanity ever caused by drink?

A. Yes. About three of every five insane persons become so because they themselves drink or through the drunkenness of their parents or through suffering caused by other people's drinking.

Q. How much does strong drink cost us for the support of these people?

A. About twenty-five million dollars a year.

Q. What makes people idiots?

A. At least a third of them all are made so by the drinking habits of their parents.

Q How much does strong drink cost this country in the care of such people?

A. Not far from twenty million dollars a year.

Q How is all this money paid?

A. By taxing the property of the people.

Q Who, then, suffers in this country from strong drink?

A. Everybody in it. There is not a person who owns any property who is not taxed to support the drink traffic. It takes his earnings from every workingman, and robs the whole nation.—Mrs. Howard M. Ingham, in Ram's Horn.

Raising Hogs.

There are two general methods followed in raising hogs, either to keep none over winter except breeding sows, have early pigs, stuff them from birth until they are marketed and to fatten the sows as soon as possible and sell them; or have pigs early in June or the last of May when the sows can run on grass. C. Bailey writes Orange Judd Farmer. Feed the sows well after the pigs are born, and provide a place where the pigs can get milk and extra slops of shorts, oil-meal, etc., run on pasture all the season, be fed a little corn, kept in good growing condition during the winter; then turned out to clover or other pasture as soon as possible in the spring with little or no corn until corn is in the milk, then cut the corn and feed them as long as they will eat the stalks. Some have a small lot and turn the hogs in when the corn begins to dent and let them help themselves. When the stalk gets a little dry stop the corn and feed in field until it gets wet and cold. Some feed the cut corn to pigs and cattle in the field for several weeks in autumn. In late autumn or winter feed on a floor one hundred feet or more distant away from the sleeping place so that the droppings will not be left on the feeding floor. I like to have a good range for the hogs all the time, to keep them strong on their feet, as cripples do not pay in Chicago. Give a change of feed; keep oats, bran, or shorts before them all the time. Give all the salt they want, and ashes if you have them, with a little sulphur, and all the water they will drink; or better, if you have milk, make a thin slop of milk, water, shorts, bran, and oil meal and they will thrive much better."

Sayings Wise and Otherwise.

Each bird loves to hear himself sing.

A bad bush is better than the open field.

The more thy years, the nearer thy grave.

Every man's neighbor is his looking glass.

Youth and white paper take any impression.

Wolves lose their teeth, but not their memory.

A bit in the morning is better than nothing all day, or than a thump on the back with a stone.

"Turn the rascals out"—the familiar party cry—may be applied to microbes as well as to men. The germs of disease that lurk in the blood are "turned out" by Ayer's Sarsaparilla as effectually as the old postmasters are displaced by a new administration.

Learn How to Punctuate.

It may be that some young folks do not consider it very important to learn the rules for placing commas and other punctuation marks in their proper places. Here is a story which shows how great a difference the place of a comma can make in the meaning of the words:

A Prussian school inspector appeared at the office of the burgomaster of a little town to ask him to accompany him on a tour of inspection through the schools. The burgomaster was out of sorts, and was heard to mutter to himself: "What is this donkey here again for?" The inspector said nothing, but waited his time, and with the unwilling burgomaster set out on his tour. At the first school he announced his wish to see how punctuation was taught.

"O never mind that," said the burgomaster. "We don't care for commas and such trifles."

But the inspector sent a boy to the blackboard, and ordered him to write: "The burgomaster of R— says, the inspector is a donkey."

Then he ordered him to transpose the comma, placing it after R—, and to insert another one after inspector, and the boy wrote: 'The burgomaster of R—, says the inspector, is a donkey."

It is probable that the refractory official gained a new idea of the value of "commas and such trifles."

Here are some queer sentences given by the Printer's Register, of Brooklyn. See if you can tell what is the matter with them: "A man was killed by a railroad car running into Boston, supposed to be deaf." A man writes: "We have decided to erect a school house large enough to accommodate five hundred scholars, five stories high." A geography has this: "Albany has four hundred inhabitants, all standing with their gable ends to the street." On a certain steamboat this notice was printed: "Hereafter the tickets shall be twenty five cents. Children half price to be had at the office." A newspaper, describing the doings of the convention at Cleveland, said: "The procession was very fine, and nearly two miles long, as was also the prayer of Dr. Perry, the chaplain."—Sel.

An Important Period.

Those of us not yet fifty years of age have probably lived in the most important and intellectually progressive period of human history. Within the half century the following inventions and discoveries have either been placed before the world or elaborated: Ocean steamships, railways, street tramways, telegraph lines, ocean cables, telephone, phonograph, photography, and a score of new methods of picture making, aniline colors, kerosene oil, electric lights, steam fire engines, chemical fire extinguishers, anæsthetics and painless surgery, gun cotton, nitroglycerin, dynamite, and a host of other explosives, aluminium, magnesium, and other new metals, electroplating, spectrum analysis, and the spectroscope, audiphone, pneumatic tubes, electric motors, electric railways, electric bells, type writers, cheap postal system, steam heating, steam and hydraulic elevators, vestibule cars, cantilever bridges. These are only a few out of a multitude. All positive knowledge of the physical constitution of planetary and stellar worlds has also been attained within this period.—Sel.

A Good Child

is usually healthy, and both conditions are developed by use of proper food. The Gail Borden Eagle Brand Condensed Milk is the best infant's food; so easily prepared that improper feeding is inexcusable and unnecessary.

Beauties of the Material Life.

All the hymns, all the prayers, all the scripture readings are as nothing unless you make their beauty come into your daily life, writes Ruth Ashmore in the October Ladies' Home Journal. Take some of the care off the shoulders of the busy mother; make life seem more pleasant by your gracious thought of that father who toils all day long. Make it easier for a sister to dislike the wrong and do the right; show a brother the rosy side of the cross and so make it lighter for him to carry. And do all this, not with loud protestations, but quietly and gently, letting God's name be whispered in your heart, and being only the sister and daughter without forcing the knowledge that you are the Christian. Then, very soon, some one will realize that your beautiful life is lived for Christ's sake, and then you will represent Him as all women should, not by speaking from the pulpit, not by giving commands, but by living every day the life that He would wish should be yours.

"Home, Sweet Home."

A contemporary relates the effect of a touching song:

"Hardly a face in the audience in a crowded concert hall was unmoved, and and many persons were weeping. A great singer had just finished a wonderfully touching and eloquent rendering of 'Home, Sweet Home.'

"'It is a beautiful song,' said a young girl to an older woman who sat next to her, wiping the tears from her eyes as she spoke.

"'Yes,' was the reply, 'and the sentiment to which it moves all these people is beautiful. How much happier the world would be if every one had as much principle as sentiment on the subject, and followed out a plan every day of making home sweet!'

"The girl turned thoughtfully away. She hardly heard the next song. She was acknowledging to herself that, in spite of her love for home, she made it unhappy every day of her life by her wilfulness and quick temper."

Rev. Lemuel Moss, D. D., does not think well of modern "evangelists." He says: A young brother, capable and educated, proposes to enter upon "evangelistic service," and asks a word of advice. It can be given in one word. "Don't." Modern evangelism is not "a high calling" at best, and is terribly overcrowded just now. As for New Testament evangelism, that is a different matter. New Testament evangelists will be in demand as long as there are unconverted, neglected, unevangelized people in the world. Their names now are pastors and missionaries.—Indiana Baptist.

THE EXPOSITION

surpasses, in some respects, any Exposition yet held in America. Here you find, side by side, exhibits from Florida and Alaska, California and Maine, the United States of America and the United States of Brazil, Mexico and Canada, and so on until nearly every civilized nation on the globe is represented. On the terraces are found, among many other attractions, Arab, Chinese and Mexican villages, showing just how those people have their "daily walk and conversation."

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA SOLD ALL AROUND THE WORLD

"A year ago, my partner died, and the whole burden and responsibility of a large grocery business fell upon me. The increased care and hard work so taxed my strength that I became all run down, had no appetite, was weak, nervous, and endured all the torments which headache, indigestion, and total loss of energy could inflict. The medicine recommended me did no more good than so much water. Ayer's Sarsaparilla being favorably brought to my attention, I tried it, and, in a short time, began to feel better. I continued to take this medicine for two months, at the end of which time I felt like a new man. My appetite, energy, and strength returned, and all traces of headache and nervousness disappeared. I am convinced that if I had not taken Ayer's Sarsaparilla, I should be totally unable to attend to business."—WM. H. BROWN, 33 Gorham St., Lowell, Mass.

THE news of Great Britain's dealings with Turkey in regard to the oppression and slaughter of the Armenians has been rather interesting since likelihood of action has become more pronounced. We have heard half a dozen times that the Sultan of Turkey had yielded to Britain's "ultimatum," but it appears that he is not so tractable. If a war were brought on, it would no doubt be very wholesome; and on the other hand diplomacy and dickering isn't saving a drop of Armenian blood For one we are willing that Great Britain own and govern Turkey outright. It is not unwise, it seems to us, to try to have all such countries placed in the hands of receivers.

CUBA'S struggle is more promising. At one time Spain boasted she would overcome every rebel by winter; but now her great General Campos, after nearly a year in Cuba, declares for a lenient policy unless Spain will increase his forces to 150,000 troops. On the other hand, it is said that there are 35 000 armed rebels, and that there will be 100,000 as soon as equipment for them can be obtained. Let it be said in passing that the demonstrations in America in behalf of Cuba are uncalled for, and will do no good. Our country is bound by international obligations of honor to maintain neutrality, and it is our duty to stand by our obligations in spite of our impulses.

IN THE Transportation building of the Atlanta Exposition there is an elaborate surface map of the Nicaragua canal, showing how much has been done, how much must be done, and indicating the obstacles. It will persuade one that the cutting of the canal can be done; and a citizen of the United States thus persuaded immediately feels that his own country ought to control it. We have said from the beginning that no risk of repeating the Panama scandal ought to be run; and, that no risk may be run, if our country goes into it at all, let it go alone, without endorsing any corporation's bonds or making a partnership with any investor.

POLITICIANS are loath to interpret the handwriting of the election. They gravely hint the end of one party's existence and the beginning of the long ascendency of another, or declare that it speaks the reproach of the people upon the late Congress or upon the administration, or take it as in favor of their personal opinions on national finance. But most of them know better; it does not require a Daniel to perceive that the result of the election is a declaration of the people against bosses and corruptionists. The rejection of Gorman and Brice and Hill will prolong the existence of the party which they have so long abused for their own ambitions. It will do more than this; it will teach other parties better than to allow themselves to fall into such hands—it prophesies the end of Platt and Quay. Of course there are other meanings in the result of the election, but this is the most hopeful of them.

THE people of New York City have learned that not every one who cries reform is a reformer; that it is one thing to have the will to shout a slogan and quite another to put it into practice; that it is one thing to have the ability to stand for reform and quite another to bring it about; one thing to get office in the name of reform and quite another to be worthy of it. And so New York City voted for Tammany, which she repudiated for "reform" only a year ago. The chief reform so far instituted is the closing of the saloons on Sunday; but that lost the German vote, and the disaffection of a large number of citizens because other reforms had not been started, turned the tide. It is clear, however, that New York City is anti-Tammany, for with the 15 000 votes from the Germans Tammany candidates did not show sufficient strength to carry the city, if there were no disaffection of voters on the other side.

THE type setting machine is just in its beginnings, but already a large number of men are out of work or are working for lower wages because of them. It is remarkable that no furor has been created. There has been no violence, such as occurred when the spinning wheel was displaced. This is a testimony to our times and also to the hand compositors, who form one of the most intelligent of the trades. The type setting machines mark a great step forward in the Art Preservative; they will multiply the benefits of printing and put them in the reach of all people. The cost of the machines will yet a while prevent general use of them; but that barrier will surely be removed. But what is to become of the human type setters? one may anxiously inquire. Here are thousands of men who have served a long apprenticeship and mastered a difficult trade, about to be replaced by machinery. There will be some friction inevitable in such decided changes as this; but hardship will not be brought upon those who accept the situation. A machine will hardly do more than three men's work, and they will increase the output of printed matter at least that much. Instead of reducing prices, papers will be enlarged, as is already to be seen in the papers of the cities. Printers will become operators, newspapers will publish more matter, editors will write more and have more writers, paper bills will increase, and the public will get the benefit. Would that every invention worked as directly for the people in general as this one.

PROF RICHARD T. ELY has a paper in the Cosmopolitan on State universities, in which he sets forth the importance of those institutions and the desirability of building them up and of merging into them the denominational schools. This, he argues, could be done without interfering with the opportunities for religious training supposed to be a feature of the church schools.

Prof. Ely is the best known professor in a leading State university. His opinion may startle the reader, but it is not at variance with that expressed by a member of the faculty of our own State University some years ago. If State institutions can swallow up "the dedominational schools" they will do it; they take it as their function. We think we can name an institution which was unceremoniously interrupted in the act of swallowing not so very long ago.

INVANTION may yet make necessary what the arguments of a North Carolina Supreme Court Justice have persuaded thousands is right and wise and expedient—government ownership of the telegraph. Mr. P. H Delany has satisfactorily demonstrated that more than one hundred words can be sent over a telegraph wire in 3½ seconds. "His invention consists, in part, of a tape which is to be perforated so as to represent each letter. A message can be perforated at the rate of twenty five words a minute. The message thus perforated, when transmitted, registers itself in dashes at the end of the wire. No matter how fast this perforated tape passes through the transmitter, impelled by whirling cylinders, the receiver faithfully records each perforation at the other end. One wire can carry messages as fast as fifty or more perforator operators could get them ready. Over 30,000 messages, or letters, of seventy-five word's average, could be thus sent daily from New York to Chicago at fifteen cents per message—received by postmen and delivered by postmen."

WE have heard that in West Virginia some citizens gathered in meeting to discuss how they could increase the length of the public school term, and that one of them ventured to suggest that the one thing needful was that the citizens in the meeting be really desirous to prolong the term. The speech would apply to much of the talk hereabout in behalf of more schools and better schools and good roads. When the people of North Carolina desire these benefits strongly enough, they will be quickly forthcoming. Then the present duty is to arouse the people to the need, to show them what advantages are going by and what hardships they are tolerating. It is far more to the point to tell a man who uses the roads how much poorer he is by reason of their roughness, far more to the point to persuade him that one reason of his unsatisfactory condition is the failure of his fathers to establish and maintain schools, than it is to tell him that some governor or congressman or political measure is the fountain of all his woes. Politics have their influence, but politics is not the sum and substance and chief concern of any man except the professional politician.

It is only by labor that thought can be made healthy, and only by thought that labor can be made happy; and the two cannot be separated with impunity.—Ruskin.

Dr. Hall on Tithing.

BY DR. J. N. STALLINGS.

I wish to notice a few points in Dr. Hall's article published in the RECORDER of October 9th:

1. The attempt to thrust out of the way the proof contained in the fourteenth chapter of Genesis, is a signal failure. It is clear that Abraham gave Melchizedek "tithes of all." Why? As interpreted by Paul in Hebrews, sixth and seventh chapters, it seems to show that as Levi, through Abraham, paid tithes to Melchizedek, so all ought to pay tithes to Christ who was typified by Melchizedek. It certainly shows that Abraham recognized it as a divine obligation. The king of Sodom and Melchizedek seem to have regarded it so also. This shows that it was a custom antedating Abraham's day. Jacob's vow is certainly to the same intent. The fact mentioned by Dr. Hall that the Greeks, Romans, Carthagenians and Arabians had traces of such a system, is corroborative evidence. It by no means follows that "Abraham gave no tenth" of what he possessed and of his increase, because it is only stated that he gave a tithe of all the spoils: but the contrary is clearly inferred. So, it seems clear that those who had the knowledge of God gave a tenth to his service many centuries before there was a Jew in existence.

Dr. Hall seems to think that there could be no use for the tithe except to support a numerous priesthood and costly ritual in magnificent temples. He therefore concludes that Abraham could not have given a tenth of his own increase, and that Jacob did not keep his vow. Now, how much Abraham and Jacob gave in God's name and for his service is not stated, but it is certain that they gave a great deal in sacrifices, and in kindness and hospitality to those about them. Why should we suppose they gave less than one tenth? The facts, as far as known, tend to the conclusion that they gave at least one tenth. Certain it is, that every one can find plenty of opportunities to give more than one tenth of all his substance and of all his increase, in our country, at this time, without giving one penny to costly temples and munificent rituals. The needs of suffering humanity all around us afford ample opportunity, if the Lord's people only will use it. Were not the opportunities as great or even greater in Abraham's and Jacob's days?

2 The above seems to be the gist of Dr. Hall's argument throughout. He says: "If in the early days of the church, the Christians at Jerusalem gave all they had, then they could not have observed the law of tenths." Now, while they did give all, that by no means proves that they were not under obligation to give at least a tenth. They only went beyond what was required. No one objects to any one giving more. The contention is that every one ought to give at least that much, and every one that can and will, more. Now, Dr. Hall knows that they did give all, and yet he cannot find how they could dispose of one tenth. He contends that it could not have been given to the Apostles, nor to build churches, nor to endow colleges and to build theological seminaries, therefore it could have been given only by Jews "as Jews and for Jewish worship and service," and he adds: "This we cannot believe they did." Will Bro. Hall please tell us what was done with all, if there was no need of one tenth? But, it is not necessary to wait an answer. By reference to Acts 2: 45 and Acts 4: 34, 35, it will be seen what was done with all, and it seems all was needed. And now, in our own favored land, there will be no difficulty in finding plenty of need for more than one tenth without spending a penny of it upon costly edifices, a numerous priesthood, or a splendid ritual. Because the Romish and English and other establishments have squandered the tenth they have collected improperly, does it follow that it must be done by us? Why may we not do as God requires, and while we give a part for the support and advancement of his kingdom, take care of the widows and orphans and the worthy poor? I am sure it can and will be better done if every one will give at least one tenth, than it is done now.

3. But Brother Hall says: "The spirit of Christianity is that of love and not of law." I fully agree with him. But does it therefore follow that we are not to obey law? Love is the fulfilling of the law. Love prompts to do the Lord's bidding in all things. No one has ever thought of enforcing a tenth by law. But it is desired that every one that loves the Lord shall see his duty to give a part of what he receives, and that that part ought not to be less than a tenth, but as much more as he can and will give. If a child of God sees this, will not love for the Lord and for his cause induce him to faithfully give it? Surely the law of love ought to prompt him to do as much, and much more, than the Jew did. Certainly it is not wrong to teach, so as to show duty; then love must lead to obedience—no other motive or force is to be thought of—is not thought of.

Dr. Hall describes a scene he witnessed, when $65,000 was laid down, and that increased to $75,000 by ladies who sold their diamonds, and says: "Not one dollar was given by the tenth rule, but the thousands were given in with the joy of the Holy Ghost." That may be so; or, it may be a mistake. But, be that as it may, I am sure that such spasmodic, sensational action is not worth one tithe of regular, systematic, stated giving, as God prospers, which is clearly the gospel method. Besides, we have few rich people who can give largely, and few ladies that possess diamonds to sell. If we attempt the sensational and spasmodic, we will miserably fail. I heard Bro. T. Harrison, when he was agent for Foreign Missions in North Carolina years ago, say that the gospel must be sent by the poor before it ever reached every creature, because most of the Lord's people are poor. It is a truth. We need to reach every one. It can be done only by adopting the gospel plan: "Upon the first day of the week let every one of you lay by him in store as God has prospered him." Now, if "every one" can be brought to see that God requires at least one tenth to be so put aside by him, there will be very great advance made all along the lines. What we need is systematic, proportionate giving by every one as God prospers. I am satisfied that our people do not average one fiftieth. What is given is contributed, it will be safe to say, by not exceeding one-fourth of our membership. Would it not be a good thing to get every one to contribute? Would it not be a decided advance to increase our average from less than one fiftieth to one tenth or over? It seems to me that that would be practically coming "up higher."

Notes and Comments.

BY REV. J. C. HIDEN, D. D.

In a very able and highly instructive article in the Baptist Quarterly Review, we find the following interesting story:

"Many years ago, in the lecture-room of President Woolsey of Yale College, a young man who did not know his lesson ventured to make a mock recitation and to give an impertinent answer. The president was a man of fiery temper, though it had been curbed and subdued by the discipline of years. On this occasion his face turned white; he bowed his head upon the desk before him; there was a half minute's silence, like the silence of death; he raised his head, called upon another man, and the recitation went on. He knew that if he spoke to the offender he would speak too much, so he said nothing. The students of that class knew well what a lava flood was pent up there; self repression did not seem to them a sign of weakness; it was the greatest evidence of power. Shall we call it a sign of weakness in God that he bears with the sins of men, the manifold and multitudinous transgressions with which they insult his holiness and hurl defiance at his law? When God humbles himself to behold and to forbear, shall we not see in this voluntary self-limitation one of the proofs of his greatness?"

When Stonewall Jackson was Professor of Natural Philosophy and of Military Tactics at the Military Institute, he had under his instruction some wild youths to whom his exceedingly vigorous discipline was by no means pleasant. Jackson was, by all odds, the most unpopular Professor under whom this scribe ever studied. Among the cadets it was generally regarded quite a feat to play a successful trick on "Old Jack." One day, when the Artillery Class was reciting on the science of "Projectiles," Davidson Penn, who afterwards figured so conspicuously in Louisiana politics, in the days of "Reconstruction," put on quite a serious face—an ominous sign of mischief in him—and, apparently in good faith, asked, "Major, can a cannon be so bent as to make it shoot around a corner?" The grave face of the great Artillerist, manifested no sign of vexation, nor of amusement; but, after a moment of what appeared to be the most sober reflection upon the somewhat novel problem, Jackson replied, "Mr. Penn, I reckon hardly."

We do not know what paper first published the following story; but the Deacon's retort was one of the keenest, and, at the same time, one of the most logical that we have ever seen:

"A skeptic, who was fond of making ill-natured flings at religion, churches and preachers, approached a sober old deacon, and in lively style, said: 'Now, just look at this! Here in the telegraphic column of the morning paper is the news that Rev. Dr. —— [a preacher of some considerable note] was found drunk last night in a San Francisco grogshop. Now what do you think of that?' 'I think,' said the deacon, 'that it is a very high compliment to the ministry.' 'Indeed!' said the skeptic. 'Why, how in the world do you make that out?' 'Well,' rejoined the deacon, 'if it had been a lawyer, or a physician, or a mechanic, or any one else but a preacher, that had been found drunk in that grogshop, do you suppose the news important enough to be telegraphed to the remotest corners of the continent? Surely not. But it is so very uncommon a circumstance to find a preacher drunk in a grogshop that it makes an item of news to the whole country."

If the said skeptic did not learn a valuable lesson from that reply, he must have been of the "brass" variety of the species.

The Christian Standard gives us the following anecdote:

"Dr. Jas. P. Boyce, soon after the publication of his 'Doctrine of the Suffering Christ,' met at a Southern Baptist Educational Convention a brother for whose theological opinions he had great respect, and said to him, 'I will send you my discussion of the 'Doctrine of the Suffering Christ,' and I want you to read it, and then write me your opinion of it.' The brother agreed to this and Dr. Boyce sent him the treatise by mail. After reading it, the brother sent him the following criticism; 'I have carefully studied your 'Doctrine of the Suffering Christ,' and in accordance with your request for my opinion of it, I will say that, on the general conclusion, I think you are right; but the arguments by which you attempt to prove your conclusion all turn upon your view of the doctrine of the Trinity, and on that subject I think you have come about as near to explaining the inexplicable as anybody else has done.'"

Upon this the Standard adds:

"A young preacher who had gone through a pretty severe course of 'Systematic Theology' under the stoutly Calvinistic leadership of Drs. Boyce and Hovey, not long since said to his father (also a preacher), 'I don't care to spend any more time on Systematic Theology; for I know more of it now than I can believe.' A youth who is capable of putting his views into such a shape, and especially into so small a space, is certainly capable of making a theologian, 'if he gives his mind that way.'"

But still, does this prove that Systematic Theology is useless? Were Boyce, and Hovey, and Van Oosterzee, and all the rest of the standard writers on "Dogmatics" fooling away the many years which they devoted to this subject? How any preacher can be fairly equipped for his work without some adequate knowledge of Systematic Theology, we fail to see. Nor do we see any reason for believing that the Biblical theology is devoid of system. The Epistles to the Romans, Galatians and Hebrews are distinctly systematic. Even the intensely practical Epistle of James has a system of its own. Men who have taken the trouble to learn Systematic Theology seldom speak lightly of it. Mr. Beecher used to ridicule it; but he knew very little about it.

State Missions.

BY J. M. BEATTY.

I am sorry to see that so large a portion of the money for our State Mission work this year remains yet to be raised and the time of the Convention is so near at hand. It seems that unless a special effort is made by the pastors and churches, the money will not be raised. We should be interested in all branches of our work, and see that no part of it is neglected. But if any part of it is left undone it must not be the State Mission work. This is a foundation work. It plants and develops churches which soon become self sustaining and are then able to return help to the general work. It builds churches at home which furnish men and means for the foreign work, pastors for our pulpits, boys and girls for our schools, and really they help all branches of our work.

Think of a neighborhood where no RECORDER goes, whence our schools get no recruits, whence the great work of our denomination gets no support or sympathy, where the precious Bible truths held by us are misunderstood and misrepresented. Baptists know they outnumber any other denomination in the State, and with this idea they frequently overlook the many places in the State where there are no Baptist churches. There is no Missionary Baptist church between Selma and Wilson, a distance of twenty five miles; none between Wilson and Goldsboro, thirty miles.

I have travelled right much of late in Eastern North Carolina, and there are many places in that section where there is great destitution of Baptist preaching. I have great confidence in the success of our doctrines if faithfully preached. The people will accept and stand by them. I trust the time will soon come when we shall be doing for State Missions at least twice what we are now doing. We get greater results from this work than from any other we do. Our aim should be a Baptist church in easy reach of every person in the State.

Johnston county has averaged building a church each year for the past nine years, and still there is room for several others. This has been done by missionaries of the State Mission Board. They worked among the people and stirred them up to do their duty, and a good and I trust a great work is before us. The destitute places in our State are included in the commission to go into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature. We have great encouragement in this work when we remember that some of our largest and most liberal churches were built in this very way.

How shall we do this great work? By putting forward good, strong men, and standing by them after they are located on the field. A cause is judged by its advocates, hence the importance of strong, discreet men for this pioneer work. Let us rally to this work and encourage the missionaries by our prayers and contributions.

A PRINCE IN ISRAEL FALLEN.

Our hand falters, and we are at a loss for words to convey the shocking news of the death of Rev. Columbus Durham, D. D., the Corresponding Secretary of our State Board of Missions and Sunday schools. It comes with a suddenness to the thousands who but lately grasped his hand or responded to his appeals for the Master's work that cannot be described. The most widely known and loved of Baptists in our State, his sudden passing away is a calamity that is at once personal and public. We have not only lost a worthy friend, but a mighty servant of the Lord and leader in his work. But God reigns, and as our dead brother wrote a few days ago—his last words in health—"all is well and will be well." God be praised for such a life and such a faith. We cannot realize that he is no more to be with us, and yet the restful countenance tells us we cannot hope this side the River. We cannot see the meaning in the cloud, but we know as he knew that meaning there is—and it is well.

Bro. Durham had for several years shown signs of breaking down under the tremendous strain of our annual Associations, but his indomitable spirit and strong physique sustained him, and led him to continue to bear more than a man could. He said not long ago that only twice in his life had he experienced the sensation of weariness. But this year the evidences of a weakening in his physical powers was evident much earlier than usual. He never said he was overworked; he gave his energies to working instead of complaining. Until his last illness he worked with his usual boundless energy and vigor, but when work was put aside for a brief interval of conversation, it was only too apparent that his old time zest in living was waning. When returning from his last Association, the Mecklenburg and Cabarrus, he was taken ill at Greensboro, and found it necessary to come immediately home instead of stopping at the Pee Dee.

He suffered as intensely as a man could suffer three weeks with muscular rheumatism, which affected several parts of his body at once. But he bore up well under his suffering, and his physician cured him of the rheumatism. He came to his office before he ought to, he was so anxious about the condition of the work and longing to get back to his place. At that time he expected to attend the Robeson Association. But after three or four days there were signs of heart-trouble, though not so pronounced as to alarm his friends. He did not suffer pain the last few days of his life, and the night of the attack he was sitting in his chair, having had a pleasant and unusually encouraging day. His physicians knew his condition and had intimated to his family to be prepared for anything. But the public thought he was getting well, and even at the time of his death his article in the RECORDER was being read all through the State. The end came like a flash. Bro. Durham realized his condition a few minutes before. His preparation was not to be made. He had walked with God from early young manhood. His family he was willing to leave in the hands of God. He lived under the orders of the Master, and when he heard the order to leave this life, he obeyed with the same trust that has marked his career.

Dr. Durham was born in Rutherford county, N. C., April 28, 1844. The family name is well known and the family characteristics equally well, from the character of his brother, Hon. Plato Durham, a name honorable in the annals of our State. On his mother's side, Dr. Durham was a nephew of Gov. Baxter of Arkansas, and Judge John Baxter of Tennessee. The Durhams were the pioneer Baptists in the Cleveland and Rutherford county section, one of the most populous and liberal sections of our Convention.

Bro. Durham's early life was passed on the farm and until 1860, when at the age of sixteen years he united with the Baptist church, and a few months later enlisted in the Confederate ranks, there was little evidence that he would remain comparatively unknown. He had not been in the army long, however, before he was marked as a boy of fine mind, thorough piety, and undoubted bravery. The boy that he was he frequently conducted army prayer meetings. When he was wounded, he returned home bearing [illegible] scarred with four wounds and an honorable [illegible] entered Wake Forest College, [illegible] the Baptist Board of Education, and graduated four years later in, we believe, the first Senior Class after the war, his class-mates being the distinguished Dr. A. C. Dixon of Brooklyn, and Dr. H. A. Brown, the honored Baptist pastor at Winston, N. C. Wake Forest afterward conferred upon him the degree of D. D; and in 1893 he was chosen Chairman of the Board of Trustees.

Though tempted to leave this State, he felt it his duty to give his life to those who had given him education, and at all times he was ready to spend and be spent for the College and all it stands for.

In the fall of 1871 he entered on a pastorate at Goldsboro, which was one of the most successful in the history of that church; and when in 1876 he decided to accept a call to Durham, the membership had increased two fold, an old debt had been paid, and a parsonage had been built. At Durham he served with ever increasing zeal and usefulness twelve years, during which a new house of worship and a parsonage were built, and the foundation of the present Baptist buildings in Durham were laid. As a pastor, Dr. Durham worked with the same vim and faith which has characterized his larger work as Mission Secretary of the Baptist State Convention. His people were devoted to him, and long years after he left them, they delighted to manifest their appreciation of his work.

In the last seven years of his life—his prime—he did the work which will count most for the glory of God, and for which our brother will be remembered. As an organizer, as a leader, as a worker in the cause of State Missions, he came in touch with the Baptists from one end to the other of North Carolina. He was the moving power, from a human standpoint, in the Associations which he attended; and no matter how many times he was called on, he put his whole soul into his efforts. He seemed to have inexhaustible energy, and to have the faculty of imparting his zeal to others.

Such is the surface of the life that went out Thursday night. But who shall tell of the inner man, of that life so filled with God's work? Who shall number the deeds of daily life which were stepping-stones in the onward march of this soldier of the Lord!

It has been said that Dr. Durham was an unyielding man. So he may have appeared, but many instances can be recounted of his yielding when it seemed best for the cause in which he was engaged. He was uncompromising and unyielding in his hatred of evil and in his desire for good to all men. But even if he appeared to be a man determined to have his way, it cannot be said that he was selfish. He died poor, although having served long in remunerative positions. He gave the last cent he could raise to the work in which he was engaged. He would not ask others to do what he was not ready to do. He pleaded with the people to make sacrifices to God, and he made them himself.

Looking backward no one can say that Bro. Durham was ambitious. He did not know how to be politic. He was actually incapable of strategy or cunning. He went the straight way, taking no account of circumstances or conditions. The Lord honored him with the confidence and the love of his fellow-workers such as few men have received in our denomination. But Bro. Durham did not seem to know of his position. He was ever the humble servant of God. He appeared anything but humble in denouncing wrong, and this is why he is widely known as a fighter. It may be said that Dr. Durham was impulsive; but it must also be said that he never betrayed a selfish impulse. It may be said that he made mistakes of judgment, but it must also be said that he was honest to the core. It may be said that he was severe in denouncing what he thought was wrong, but it must also be said that he gave all he to what he thought was right. The Baptists of North Carolina will write his name upon their annals as the man of boundless energy and boundless faith. What he would have been to them had his life been spared, cannot be told. It is known, however, that he aspired to write the history of our Convention, and was about entering on the work when illness came upon him. But there is glory enough in what he was.

When Pace and Heck and Bailey had fallen from the ranks, the work fell upon Durham. But he never complained. We never heard him say he was overworked; he would not complain at Providence. He rather sought to do all the work he could. The very fact that he did prove equal to the calls that were made upon him is assurance that another will prove equal to the present crisis. God endowed Bro. Durham for his work, he called him into it, and he called him home at the proper time.

Bro. Durham's relations to all the departments and enterprises of our work as a denomination were of such a nature that his death is a blow to them all; but he was the foremost of Wake Forest College's counsellors and supporters, and he will be missed as no other man would be. As President Taylor will write of him later, we may be pardoned for not writing at more length on this matter.

Personally the blow falls severely upon us. Day by day, as the strength of the late editor of the RECORDER waned and the responsibilities of the office became greater and greater, Bro. Durham would lend encouragement by word and deed and do all he could to make the way clearer and easier. A bit of information, a question of history or policy, anything that might be asked of him was cheerfully given. He never disappointed us. He was never too busy. But rather seemed anxious to do all he could. His judgment was not infallible, but his advice was sincere, unselfish and from the standpoint of a man of God. We thought to work with him many years, but in a moment he is taken, and we are left to work without him, but with a clearer view of what it is to glorify God by living and dying in the cause of Christ, and a fuller reliance upon the Holy Spirit to guide and strengthen.

Saturday evening a large concourse was gathered at the First Baptist church, of which Bro. Durham was a member, to honor his memory and to worship God before committing his remains to earth. On the platform were Pastor Carter, Dr. A. M. Simms, Dr. W. R. Gwaltney, Dr. T. E Skinner, Dr. J. D. Hufham. Dr. Carter impressed the text, from John 21: 19, "This spake he signifying by what death he should glorify God," upon the minds of his hearers; Dr. Gwaltney spoke feelingly upon Dr. Durham's relations to Wake Forest College, of his unremitting loyalty to the institution and of his loving sacrifices for it. Dr. Hufham considered the man, his training in the army by reason of which he learned to obey and struggle, of his power as an organizer and a ready master of detail, of his utter unselfishness. A telegram of sympathy from the General Association of Virginia was read. Dr. Simms read the opening hymn, "Servant of God, well done!" Dr. Skinner offered a touching prayer. Dr. Carter read our brother's favorite hymn which thousands have heard him raise at Associations, "How Firm a Foundation." The exercises were briefly continued at the grave, and then our brother's form was laid away to rest near by those of his co laborers and predecessors in the kingdom, Pace and Bailey.

There have been many evidences and many more will be of the moving sympathy felt for the bereaved family, the widow, the young man just entering a career, the boy yet in college, and the little girl so dear to her father. God give them consolation; God keep them.

LET US GO FORWARD.

When God calls his workers home, it is not for us who are left to stop. The cause needs us now more than ever. Never yet has it been found that a man was so essential to our work that his death set it back. God reigns, and he will call forth and qualify workers to fill the places that he chooses to make vacant.

We lament the deaths of three of our noblest brethren—pillars in our Convention. We feel our loss. The suddenness of the latest affliction appalls us. And yet we can best withstand the affliction by joining in with one accord to further the cause. We must prove equal to the responsibility and the duty which are now upon us with greater weight. God will give us strength.

We have been encouraged by reading letter after letter since Bro. Durham passed away urging the importance of carrying out his earnest prayers and bringing the State Board to the Convention out of debt. No more fitting way of honoring his memory could be hit upon. While sick he wrote the appeal to the pastors to help, and as late as Monday dictated a letter adding to it. Oh, if the brethren only knew how his heart grew heavy as he lay sick at home when he came to realize that he could not get strong in time to work before the Convention as he wished, if the people only knew, there would be no delay now. Let it not be said that State Missions lacked friends in the day of trial.

TO AVOID DELAY.

Until further notice, make all remittances for State Missions, Foreign Missions, Home Missions, and Sunday-schools, payable to J. D. Boushall, Treasurer, Raleigh, N. C. Make all remittances in payment for purchases from, and accounts with, the Sunday-school Supply Store, payable to the Sunday-school Supply Store, H. L. Watson, Clerk, Raleigh, N. C.

The Raleigh members of the State Board of Missions and Sunday-schools, with Dr. J. D. Hufham, met Saturday night, and decided not to elect a temporary successor to Bro. Durham, and requested Bro. John C. Scarborough to complete our late Secretary's report in time for the Convention, and gave him the authority of Secretary.

The work will go on as usual. Brother Boushall will receive remittances, and Bro. Watson will have charge of the Sunday-school Supply Store.

It is very important that all contributions be sent as soon as possible, in order that they may be audited and reported to the Convention. Dec. 2 is the latest date contributions can be conveniently received.

Amount reported for State Missions to $8 384 85; amount needed to make $15 000, as planned, is $6 615 15.

TO MEET THE CRISIS.

The RECORDER will head a list of twenty brethren who will give fifty dollars each to State Missions before Dec. 2, 1895. There are at least twenty brethren who can easily give fifty dollars; there are forty who can as easily give twenty five dollars; there are one hundred who can given ten dollars; and there are two hundred who can give five dollars. Brethren, if you only will do what you feel you ought to do—put yourself on the $50 list if possible, but if not, then in some other list,—God will bless you, and the work will go forward in his name.

We are expecting the pastors now to take up collections for State Missions every opportunity they get. Every penny counts. Let us roll away the cloud of debt that threatens our work.

SECRETARY DURHAM'S LAST APPEAL TO THE PASTORS.

[The following appeal was published last week in the RECORDER from our late Secretary, Bro. Durham. Before the type was distributed, he had been called up higher; and we print it again this week without alteration.]

You will see by the Treasurer's report in another column that the amount received for State Missions is $8 384 85. If we secure the full $15 000 by December 1st the Treasurer must receive $6,615 15 in the next seventeen days.

Only three other Associations are to be held.

This year, as perhaps never before, State Missions should have the help of every pastor in special collections. It is not possible to reach the churches in the next seventeen days except as it is done through the pastors. But I have confidence in them. They are first in every good work. I appeal, therefore, in hope to them. They can reach the churches.

I have been shut in with a most painful attack of muscular rheumatism. I could not, therefore, attend some of the Associations, nor could I look after the work in many other respects. I now feel, as never before, that I am dependent on the pastors and the churches to bring up this department of the work this year. It can be done, and the Board can go to Greensboro free of debt, if all will now do what they can.

Remember, please, that whatever is done must be done quickly. Tell your people the facts, and ask them to help at once, and forward the same so as to reach the Treasurer by Monday, Dec. 2, 1895.
